GET STRAWBERRIES NOW FROM FLORIDA

Markets Receive a Shipment—Regular Supplies Will Be Coming Soon.

NEW CABBAGE ARRIVES

Beets and Carrots Now Plentiful—Cold Damages Some Perishables, Says Review.

Christmas trees, holly and other evergreens, symbolical of the Christmas season, began arriving in small quantities in the New York market last week, and at the same time the season's first strawberries from Florida were received.

The prices of Christmas trees, mistletoe, holly, wreaths, pine and laurel roping have not been indicated by the limited trading to date, according to the weekly review of markets made public yesterday by Dr. Arthur E. Albrecht, New York director of the State Department of Farms and Markets.

"The cold weather early in the week damaged some of the perishables and the snowfall curtailed trading because of the difficulty in transporting produce in the streets," says the review. "The West and South continued to supply the fresh green vegetables, whereas New York and other nearby sections supplied the Fall and Winter staples.

"The outstanding luxury of the week was the season's first arrival of strawberries from Florida. They sold at $2.50 per quart. Regular supplies will begin in a short time and increase in quality.

"Argentine asparagus of both white and green varieties arrived during the week. The green asparagus, which was of the very best quality, sold at $20 per dozen bunches, whereas the white brought $10 to $15.

"The season's first shipment of new crop cabbage from Florida arrived in small quantities. Prices were $1.75 to $2 per hamper of forty-eight quarts. New crop cabbage is now also coming from Texas. State cabbage advanced on account of a more active demand brought on by the colder weather. On Friday most sales were made on the basis of $22 to $25 per ton. The demand for cucumbers on the other hand was reduced by the cold spell and prices slumped.

"New crop bunched beets and carrots from Texas are becoming more plentiful. While the price trend was upward on beets it was downward on carrots. Bushel baskets of beets sold at $3 to $3.50, and the carrots at $1.50 to $2.

"The season for Long Island cauliflower is nearing its end, but California is now supplying the trade requirements. On Friday approximately thirteen carloads were received from California. Prices ranged from $1.50 to $2.50 per crate of nine to fourteen heads.

"New York State barreled apples were in moderate supply during the week.

"Live poultry at the wholesale West Washington Market was only in moderate receipt. The cold weather caused a demand for fat, heavy fowl which, being scarce, advanced in price, as did also the average run of fowls.

"Chickens and broilers were not in such good demand, but for these also the price was ahead of last week. Dressed poultry was in fairly heavy receipt, and under a slow but steady demand last week's prices were maintained.

"Turkeys from all over the country in car lots arrived fairly freely, but found very few buyers, and mostly were consigned to storage. Christmas buying has not yet started."

BOSSOM LEAVES AMERICA.

Architect Sails to Make His Home in England.

Alfred C. Bossom, architect, of 680 Fifth Avenue, sailed yesterday on the White Star liner Majestic with his wife and their two sons, Clive and Doric. After twenty-three years' residence in this country, Mr. Bossom will spend the rest of his life in England, his native land.

During his long stay in America Mr. Bossom has made on an average of four trips a year to England and the Continent to study art and architecture. His last trip was made to Spain, where King Alfonso consulted him about the schools for art students the Government is establishing.

Mr. Bossom said that he intended to make another tour through Southern Europe and also would visit Egypt and the Nile to study the paintings and statuary in the ancient temples and to see what remained above water of the Island of Philae, just above the great dam at Assouan.

The architect said he would continue to visit New York two or three times a year to consult with his colleagues, who will carry on his business.

TO SELL SPANISH ART.

American Galleries Will Auction Ruiz Collection This Week.

A group of almost 600 items of Spanish furniture and other art objects, the property of D. Raimundo Ruiz, now being shown at the American Art Galleries, is to be auctioned there next Thursday, Friday and Saturday. In addition to furniture there are primitive paintings of the Castilian and Aragonese schools, an El Greco Madonna, brocades, damasks and velvets, Spanish point lace, embroidered silk shawls, Alpujarra rugs, and five sixteenth and seventeenth century Cuenca, Hispano Moresque and Hispano-Arab carpets.

The varguenos with lock plates and wrought iron hinges include a late sixteenth century Castilian varguenо of inlaid carved walnut. It is carved with lunettes inlaid with cruciform motifs and bone spirally fluted columns and is further ornamented with painted arabesques and gilding.

There are carved and gilt mirrors, carved pine wood chairs from Aragon, hangings, copes, chasubles, coverlets and table runners, in brocades, velvets, brocatelle, satin and silk in all colors, and benches and chairs, some leather covered.

FARM REPUBLICANS MOVING TO OPPOSE COOLIDGE IN 1928

Plan to Create Sentiment in the Party Ranks Against His Renomination.

LOWDEN AS A CONTENDER

Senators and Representatives From the West Apparently Drifting Toward Him.

MAY POSTPONE FARM AID

Many of Its Supporters Believe It Will Stand a Better Chance Next Congress.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.
Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Efforts to enact advanced farm aid legislation may be abandoned by its friends for the current Congressional session. The question is under consideration by the farm bloc, with a strong tendency on the part of its House adherents to drop the subject for the balance of the present Congress. Presidential politics with an eye to the 1928 nomination is interlocked with the situation.

Although Congress has been in session only one week, the proposal to postpone farm relief until the next Congress has gained headway in connection with a movement within the Republican Party to prevent President Coolidge from becoming the party's candidate for another term in 1928, which is likely to take form soon. The intended successful outcome is the displacement of the President, the immediate purpose of this movement is to create sentiment for the nomination of some outstanding Republicans who is in sympathy with radical proposals to relieve the agricultural situation.

There are no signs that groups or individuals which feel that their welfare is affected by national politics, other than the formidable advanced farm aid organizations, are viewing otherwise than with complacency or indifference the publicly widely conceded impression that Mr. Coolidge stands conspicuously unequaled in connection with the Republican Party's choice for President four years hence. But the chief strength of the advanced farm aid proposal is in the Republican West, and that fact alone makes of important significance tendency of that great area, which the past week has brought into greater relief, toward choosing another of the party as the Presidential standard bearer.

The difficulty in appraising the comparative importance of this movement lies in the fact that it is chiefly furthered by professional farm aid agitators. To what extent they represent the general sentiment of States having large agricultural populations has not been demonstrated certainly with regard to the standing of President Coolidge in the estimation of the people of them, at least, of those States.

Sentiment Varies in States.

In Iowa, with its large corn belt area, where dissatisfaction is most pronounced, there seems to be a decided setback in the President's popularity. So in the adjoining State of Minnesota, where conditions are approximately the same, and which is represented in the Senate by George W. Norris, now regarded as the leader of the Republican insurgent movement and one of the President's severest critics, such a conspicuous friend as former Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock is authority for the statement that the President is extremely popular.

There were indications of the same condition of affairs in other Western farming States. In Ohio, one of the chief campaign assets of Atlee Pomerene, unsuccessful Democratic candidate for Senator this year, was that President Coolidge had chosen him to prosecute Messrs. Fall, Doheny and others, while in Indiana the President's popularity was so pronounced that the Democratic State Committee was careful to make no issue against him in furthering the cause of Democratic candidates for office.

Although many regard the loss of seven Republican seats in the Senate and "close shaves" for Republican Congressional candidates in the November elections as a setback for President Coolidge, some Republican politicians contend that the "slipping" of the President outside the corn belt is confined to those agricultural sections which underwent a period of wild speculation during and following the World War, and which are still suffering from the inability of many farmers to carry mortgages on farm lands purchased at inflated prices during the peak of the speculation. This view appears to be reflected in the loyalty to the President shown by Republican Senators and Representatives from districts of the Western farm States which are recovering from the depression of war speculation.

Farm Relief May Go Over.

A new political aspect of the situation is the prospect which the week has developed that farm relief legislation may not be pressed at the present session of Congress. There are various reasons for this state of affairs, some practical and others political.

One practical consideration is that the session will last only three months, short a time for the satisfactory consideration of such important business. Another is the removal of incentive to force a compromise with the Administration through preventing any

Chilean Transport Founders; 67 of Crew Drowned, 29 Saved

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 12 (AP).—Sixty-seven men of the crew of the Chilean transport Arauco were drowned today when the vessel sank at Lota, Chile, during a violent storm, says a dispatch from Santiago to La Nacion.

There were ninety-six men aboard the ship when it sank, of whom twenty-nine were saved. Eight bodies have been recovered.

The Arauco is not listed in Brassey's Naval and Shipping Annual or in the current ship registers.

$60,000,000 NEEDED, SAYS COLUMBIA HEAD

Dr. Butler Tells of $388,911.32 Deficit for Year in Annual Report to Trustees.

CHIDES UNIVERSITY CRITICS

Campus Only Home of Liberty, He Says, Charging Church and State With Intolerance.

Prompt and large additions to the capital funds of Columbia University, amounting to not less than $60,000,000, are necessary for the school to carry out its work satisfactorily, President Nicholas Murray Butler told the trustees in his annual report, made public yesterday.

President Butler said the millions must be added "if reasonable physical provision is to be made for work in progress, if men and women of large scholarship and complete devotion are to receive reasonable compensation, and if the work of scientific research and public service, already so vigorous and so effective, is to be carried forward year by year with new power and accomplishment."

After stating that the budget for the year 1926-27 amounted to $8,130,151.54, he called attention to the fact that to meet these expenses the sum of $5,780,191.86 had been charged to general income, whereas the estimated general income was $5,441,280.54, showing an estimated deficit of $338,911.32 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1927.

After asserting that universities were the "only present home of liberty and apparently its only hope," he charged that intolerance prevailed in Church and State to such an extent that if it invaded the universities in the same degree it would mean "a new and dismal Dark Age."

Twits University Critics.

Dr. Butler said:

"The reader who permits himself to be more than diverted by the clamorous criticisms of American universities that are thrust upon his attention from time to time will doubtless be mystified by their contradictory and self-destroying character. He reads, on the one hand, that these universities are hotbeds of radicalism, of revolution, and of all that is signified by the mystic word Bolshevism. Doctrines destructive of morality, of religion and of public order are taught within their walls, and the influence of this teaching upon the public mind is revolutionary and pernicious in the extreme. Insistent demand is made that such teachers, however learned and successful, be silenced by fiat or turned loose to do their destructive work as individual disturbers of morality and the public peace without the advantage of university association and university authority.

"If then the page be turned, the reader finds himself asked to believe that these self-same universities are the entrenched strongholds of privilege, of reaction, and of capitalism, whatever that may mean. They are managed by capitalist trustees and subservient presidents whose minds are fixed on cultivating with servility and subservience all possible sources of benefaction.

"In the field of mathematics these two contradictory and self-refuting criticisms would cancel each other and disappear from the calculation. Psychology, however, and particularly the psychology of the group or mob mind, as well as the psychology of him who would uplift all humanity in the twinkling of an eye, knows nothing of mathematical limitations or mathematical precision, and it finds no impossibility in performing the acrobatic feat of keeping these two contradictory judgments in effective operation at one and the same time.

Answer Is School Freedom.

"The simple truth is that both of these extreme and wholly unjustified forms of criticism converge on the conclusion that the American university

HOUSE FIGHT LOOMS OVER COOLIDGE BAN ON NAVAL BUILDING

Members Fear Period of Inactivity Would Lower America's Ratio Standing.

OPPOSE PRESIDENT'S LOGIC

Critics Say Expansion Program Would Help, Rather Than Retard, Arms Limitation.

CALLED 'TRADING MATERIAL'

Moral Effect on Other Powers Expected—More Money Asked for Enlisted Personnel.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The stand taken by President Coolidge in his budget message against appropriations at this time for laying down additional cruisers or building the two dirigibles previously authorized is causing sharp feeling in the House Naval Committee. Fear is expressed by some members that the American Navy may rank fourth by 1932.

Incidentally, in his annual report, submitted today, Rear Admiral W. R. Shoemaker, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, recommends a larger appropriation to enable the navy to carry the requisite 86,000 enlisted personnel.

Members of Congress who have had a large share in urging the naval building program have come to the conclusion that the Administration will not heed arguments that the United States should equip itself with cruisers, submarines and other ships of the auxiliary class if it is to exercise real influence in international conferences for further limitation of naval armaments.

The feeling that has grown up in the House Committee over the action of the Administration in withholding estimates for three of the eight cruisers authorized by Congress in 1924 on the ground that their construction should be held in abeyance to await the conclusion of pending negotiations to broaden existing treaties with the Powers with respect to the elimination of competition in naval armament will be aired in the House when the Naval Supply bill comes up for debate. This measure is formulated by the Appropriations Committee. In all probability that committee will make no provision for the cruisers, but some members will protest if the bill, when reported, should provide for reduced navy personnel, as proposed by the budget.

The President's Argument.

In explaining to Congress that no provision had been recommended for the three cruisers in the budget the President mentioned the negotiations with the powers, which he said were under way, and added:

"I feel that it would be unfortunate at this time and not in keeping with our attitude toward these negotiations to commence the construction of these three cruisers."

The President, however, recommended that Congress extend the time limit for constructing the cruisers. A bill embodying that recommendation is now being prepared by the Navy Department. According to some Republicans interested in naval legislation, it may have hard sledding in the House Naval Committee. Some assert that the committee should provide for the cruisers or adopt a policy of non-action generally on naval matters until it receives assurances that the mandate of Congress respecting cruisers and dirigibles is to be observed by the Navy Department.

The House debate on the naval bill is expected to develop the most frank discussion of events since the Washington arms conference and just what has or has not been done by the United States in maintaining the treaty strength contemplated under the 5-5-3 ratio for the United States, Great Britain and Japan. Some critics of the present Administration policy assert that they will be able to show that by 1932 Great Britain will have added 25,000 tons and Japan 50,000 tons in cruiser strength and that, as things now go, the United States is making no progress in building ships of this class. Meanwhile, they say, France is coming forward in some kinds of naval vessels.

"Trading Material."

Members of the Naval Committee opposed to the President's attitude on armament as disclosed in his budget message assert that if his recommendations were carried out this Government would have no "trading material" if it entered an international limitation conference between now and

Holiday Deadline for Shopping Area Ended; Police Say Baumes Law Scares Away Crooks

The police will set no deadline this year around the hotel, shopping, and theatrical districts, such as was first established in 1924 at the Christmas shopping season, it became known at Police Headquarters last night.

The Baumes law has been so effective, it was said, that criminals who formerly menaced this section of the city are either under arrest or have left the city in fear of the consequences of arrest. Arrests of pickpockets throughout this area during the last two weeks have been 150 per cent. fewer than during the same period last year, also as a result of the Baumes law, it was said.

The police feel, therefore, that the additional protection afforded this area in 1924 and 1925 is not necessary this season.

The uptown deadline was established after an outbreak of hold-ups, window-breaking, and other crimes of violence. It extended from Fourth to Fifty-ninth Street and from Seventh Avenue to Third Avenue, and supplemented the old deadline established by Inspector Thomas Byrnes, who years ago drew an imaginary line along the south side of Fulton Street to protect the Wall Street district, the Maiden Lane jewelry section, and the lower Broadway brokers and business men.

Known criminals were arrested on sight inside the new deadline, as within the old one. During the Christmas season, pickpockets had been especially active in the uptown district, taking advantage of the crowded stores to prey upon shoppers.

TRANSIT BOARD ACTS TO UNIFY SUBWAYS

Will Take Initiative and Work Out a Plan of Its Own at Once.

CONFERS WITH GOVERNOR

His Wish for Speed Said to Have Prompted Move—Dahl Discusses 5-Cent Fare.

The Transit Commission, it was learned yesterday, will begin, probably this week, the preparation of a transit consolidation or unification plan of its own.

The decision of the members of the commission to take the initiative in trying to effect a solution of the city's transit problem instead of leaving it to Mayor Walker, the Board of Estimate or John H. Delaney, Chairman of the Board of Transportation, was reached after conferences with persons interested in the transit situation, including Governor Smith and Henry L. Sherman, who was counsel for Justice John V. McAvoy in the transit investigation of two years ago. The conference with Governor Smith took place on Saturday.

The three members of the commission, Chairman John F. Gilchrist, Leon G. Godley and Charles C. Lockwood, have already begun a study of the unification plan proposed by their predecessors, George McAneny, LeRoy T. Harkness and General John F. O'Ryan. The former Commissioners went over a great deal of ground and prepared a valuation of the properties of the various railroad companies, which the latter refused to accept, arguing that they were too low. Any chance of putting the old unification plan into effect was, of course, blocked by the opposition of the Hylan Board of Estimate.

To Be Guided by Old Plan.

In preparing its new unification or consolidation plan the present Commissioners will be guided by the work of their predecessors. Just what form the new plan will take and just what differences, if any, there will be between it and the old unification plan or the consolidation plan suggested by Mr. Delaney remain to be determined.

There are grounds for belief that it will not be exactly like either, for the commission, it was said, intends to make its own study of the situation with a view to consolidation and will engage special counsel for that purpose, just as their predecessors on the commission engaged Clarence J. Shearn as special counsel for their unification plan.

This special counsel has not yet been selected, it was said, and will not be until the return tomorrow of Mr. Gilchrist from Pinehurst, N. C., where he went on Saturday after discussing the transit situation with the Governor.

The decision of the Transit Commission to go ahead with a consolidation plan of its own, for which it has a mandate from the Legislature in the act which created it, was said to indicate its intention to make a strong effort to work out a solution of the transit problem. This decision to go ahead is attributed largely to the desire of the Governor to get action on some sort of plan, and the Governor was reported to feel that speedier and perhaps more drastic action could be expected if the movement for it was started by the Transit Commissioners, all of whom are his appointees, than if it were left for the City Administration to initiate.

Fare Likely to Be Troublesome.

The Governor was reported to feel that, inasmuch as the law made it a duty of the Transit Commission to prepare a unification or consolidation plan, it should prepare one without waiting for the Mayor. There were indications that such a procedure might be welcomed by Mayor Walker, as it would relieve him from the responsibility for starting a movement which might lead eventually to an increased fare.

The matter of rate of fare will not be one of the earliest questions to be considered by the commission, but ultimately it is expected to be the point at which negotiations for any consolidation will begin to hitch. At present Mayor Walker is understood to be opposed to any increase in fare. Friends of Governor Smith, including Controller Berry, are understood to favor some arrangement by which the city's investments in subways, both old and new, may be made self-supporting. Any method of unification or consolidation yet proposed has been based on a sliding rate of fare.

Figures to support his assertion that the city would continue to lose heavily on its subway investments by continuation of the five-cent fare were cited yesterday by Gerhard M. Dahl, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Corporation that the matter would be "straightened out."

$1,250,000 TO FOUND COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

W. V. Lawrence Gives Fund and Home at Bronxville as Site for Junior Institution.

FIRST OF KIND IN THE STATE

Students Must Be of American Parentage—Development of Girls' Hobbies a Feature.

Special to The New York Times.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Dec. 12.—A new junior college for women, to be known as the Sarah Lawrence College, will open in 1928 at Bronxville, N. Y., through a gift of approximately $1,250,000 by W. V. Lawrence of Bronxville. The first announcement of plans for the college was made here today by Miss Marion Coates, Principal of Bradford Academy, who will be its first President.

This will be the first college in the State of New York to operate exclusively as a junior college—that is, a two-year college—and one of the first in the country. Many of its policies of education and administration will be novel.

The college will be situated in Lawrence Park, Bronxville, a residential development built by the college founder, who is a member of the firm of Davis & Lawrence, a drug manufacturing company, and owner of hotels in New York, Maine and Florida. The gift is in property, securities and corporate stock and includes Mr. Lawrence's home, Westlands, which is valued at $400,000, and twelve acres of land. The transfer of the securities and stock from Mr. Lawrence to the trustees of the college will be made tomorrow.

Memorial to His Wife.

Mr. Lawrence originally intended to leave the property and money for the college in his will, according to Miss Coates's announcement, but after the death of his wife last May he decided to start the project at once as a memorial to her, and it is as such that it is being founded.

President Henry Noble MacCracken of Vassar College is Chairman of the Board of Trustees and Miss Julia Titsworth, a cousin of Mr. Lawrence, is Secretary and Treasurer. The other members are the Rev. C. W. Robinson, pastor of the Episcopal Church of Bronxville; Judge Frank B. Gilbert of Albany and Mr. Lawrence. The board was organized yesterday at a meeting in the Hotel Belmont, New York City.

The charter was granted by the Board of Regents of New York last Thursday. A rule of the board requires all chartered colleges to conduct a four-year course, but Miss Coates said the Sarah Lawrence College charter was granted for the usual five-year provisional term with the understanding that only a two-year course was to be offered. At the end of the five years it is expected that the board will have revised its rule on this point and that a permanent charter will be granted.

Restrictions on Students.

The main purpose of the college, as outlined by Miss Coates, will be to provide higher education for girls who have been graduated from secondary schools but who are not the type sought by the four-year women's colleges. Miss Coates pointed out that all the larger women's colleges were now badly overcrowded, and that many girls with real qualities of leadership were unable to get the college training best suited to their requirements.

Sarah Lawrence College will limit its student body, and the students will be admitted by a process of selection, Miss Coates said. The first requirement stipulated is that students must be of American parentage, although Miss Coates said no decision had been reached as to the way in which this term would be defined.

The full expense of operating the college will be borne by the students, Mr. Lawrence believing that the student appreciates the value of her course more in such a case. The tuition, therefore, has been placed at $1,500 a year, and the money provided by the founder will be used in building and equipping the college, rather than in endowing it. A fund may be instituted for loans to students who would not otherwise be able to finish their courses, but the loans will be repayable, Miss Coates said.

Only 250 Resident Students.

The resident student body will be limited to 250, but in addition it is expected that there will be many day students, who will live at home. This is in line with Mr. Lawrence's desire to give the college a community in-

BLUE LAW RAID NETS 98 SUNDAY WORKERS IN IRVINGTON, N. J.

Counsel for Movies Forced to Close Retaliates by Drive on All Business.

4 JAILED, BUT GO FREE LATER

Trolley and Bus Men, Merchants, Bootblacks Among Prisoners Who Give $2 Bond Each.

HEARING TO BE HELD TODAY

Street Car Company, Prepared for Drive, Gets Extra Motormen—Fiddler Is a Victim Also.

Special to The New York Times.

IRVINGTON, N. J., Dec. 12.—New Jersey's Blue Law, invoked intermittently for more than three-quarters of a century by ministers and others against "scofflaws" of the State, was employed again today in the arrests of ninety-eight persons here for doing business on Sunday.

Bootblacks, cigar storekeepers, confectioners, delicatessen operators, druggists, grocers, owners of gas and automobile service stations, drivers of taxis, trolleys and buses and newspaper photographers and reporters were caught redhanded in violation of Section 1 of the Vice and Immorality Act of 1854, which prohibits the sale or the displaying for sale of goods, the exercise of labor and the vending of amusements. They were all stopped, but only for a few minutes. Each person arrested put up $2 bond for appearance tomorrow before Recorder Frederic Stoddard, and returned to his or her work. In every instance except one the complainants, the police and the violators treated each other with punctilious politeness.

Four Jailed, Then Freed on Bond.

Four persons, one of them a woman, went to jail in protest. They were all reporters, but after employing the quiet and solitude of Irvington's jail to write their protests against the day's medieval doings, they reconsidered, were released on the recognizance of $2 offered by each and were ordered to appear in Police Court tomorrow.

The Blue Law activity of the day was the result of complaints made by Assemblyman-elect Ernest P. Biro, counsel for the Stanley-Fabian Theatre Corporation, and five of the company's employes, who got the evidence.

The theatres of the town, all moving picture houses, were prohibited several weeks ago after complaints by the Irvington Ministerium, an organization of ten ministers, from doing business on Sunday. Mr. Biro said that if the Blue Law was invoked against one it should be invoked against all, otherwise the Constitution of the United States would be violated by crass class distinctions. Therefore he and his employes set out this morning to uphold the Constitution.

Armed with nickels, dimes and quarters and accompanied by policemen, they went from store to store, gas station to gas station and from bootblack to bootblack. The police waited outside while one or two of the theatre employes went inside to make a purchase. As each misdemeanor was committed the police came in and made an arrest.

All the violators put on a good face in spite of their depredations against the dignity of the Commonwealth, all except Joseph Grosnan, owner and operator of a gas filling station at Colt Street and Clinton Avenue.

"This is just fine," Mr. Grosnan was quoted as saying. "Yes, sir, it's just fine, but I'll get even with the preachers. I won't let my children go to Sunday school any more."

Police Get Smiling Cooperation.

But everybody else smiled and seemed to want to cooperate with the police. John Angus, proprietor of a lunch room, telephoned the police early in the morning to arrest him soon.

"I'd rather be arrested in the morning," said Mr. Angus, "because I'm pretty busy serving my patrons in the afternoon."

Mr. Angus was obliged with an early arrest.

The reporters who were jailed were Oscar Spitz of The Newark News, John Riley of The Newark Star-Eagle, George Wohl of The Newark Ledger and Miss Antoinette Spitzer of The New York American. They were standing at the gas-filling station "illegally"

ALLIES END ARMS CONTROL OVER GERMANY JANUARY 31, LEAVING TASK TO LEAGUE

Woman Escapes Guillotine; 41-Year Record Stands

PARIS, Dec. 12 (AP).—No woman has been executed in France since 1885 and the record will not be broken now, President Doumergue having intervened to save Mrs. Lefebvre from the guillotine.

She was found guilty of shooting and killing her daughter-in-law as she rode in an automobile. Jealousy over her son's affection for his wife was said to have been the motive. The sentence has been commuted to life imprisonment.

Only a few women have been sentenced to death in recent years and the Pardons Commission heeded pleas for clemency for all except Mme. Lefebvre.

15,000 HUNT VAINLY FOR MRS. CHRISTIE

Multitude of People With Many Dogs Search Sussex Downs, England, for Novelist.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Amid remarkable scenes, the biggest search ever undertaken in this country for a missing person was made today for Mrs. Agatha Clarissa Christie, the American writer of mystery novels, who disappeared from sight nine days ago, apparently on the Sussex Downs.

The number of searchers was officially estimated at 10,000, although some estimators put the figure at 15,000. They scoured the neighborhood of Newland Corner on the Downs, hoping to find the missing woman, or clues that might lead to her discovery, alive or dead.

All these people appeared in response to a police appeal, made on Saturday and they were accompanied by dogs of divers breeds. There were six trained bloodhounds, a crate load of Airedale terriers, many retrievers and Alsatian police dogs and even the services of the common mongrel were not neglected.

"We've covered the ground as completely as it is humanly possible and we've drawn a blank," said Deputy Chief Constable Kenward after today's hunt.

Hiding in Man's Attire Theory.

But the searchers made several discoveries which may be of service to the police. Among the objects found were a black handbag containing articles of a man's apparel and a number of documents. Several small handbags such as women carry were unearthed and one of them is said to be similar to that which Mrs. Christie was carrying when she left home.

A new theory which the authorities are now reported to entertain seriously is that the missing novelist, disguised and probably in male attire, may be found hiding in London. Colonel Christie has made a careful investigation of his own wardrobe to discover if any of his clothing is missing.

Another sensational report is that Mrs. Christie left a sealed envelope which is to be opened only if her body is found. Should she return alive it is to be handed back to her unopened, the rumor has it. The letter is said to have been written within an hour before her departure from home and to have been addressed to her secretary. According to the report the letter was apparently written by a person in a nervous state of mind and its contents are known only to Mrs. Christie's secretary and her husband.

As against this, Colonel Christie is quoted as saying that he considers the letter has "nothing to do with the case" and does not explain his wife's absence.

"We are in possession of all the letters in the matter," said Deputy Chief GENEVA, Dec. 12.—Interallied control of Germany will cease on Jan. 31 next.

This announcement was made this evening after the representatives of France, Great Britain, Belgium, Italy, Japan and Germany had had two long sessions. The cessation of the allied powers is based on an agreement by Germany to submit the question of the Eastern fortresses and arms exports to the League of Nations Council for settlement if agreement on these points is not reached through diplomatic discussion before the Ambassadors' Conference by Feb. 1.

Although the agreement is neither initialed nor signed, according to Sir Austen Chamberlain, there is no question of its repudiation by any Government concerned. This indicates that M. Briand finally obtained his Cabinet's permission to lend himself to this solution of the difficulty.

Concessions Made by Germany.

But the fact that Germany on her side made certain concessions must not be overlooked. Germany has fought steadily for arbitration or decision by the Permanent Court—preferably the former—to settle these questions, and she definitely declared she would not leave anything in the hands of a League commission.

Though it is difficult to weigh the advantages and disadvantages to either side in the several processes which have been discussed, it does appear that M. Briand would get a better break through the League Council than through the arbitration body—not through any possible favoritism but because the Council perhaps has a more intimate knowledge of the situation and a better idea of what was in the minds of the persons who drafted the Treaty of Versailles than any other body.

An official communiqué issued after the second session reads:

First—Diplomatic negotiations will be continued before the Ambassadors' Conference on the questions of fortifications and war materials. Fresh proposals will be made with a view to assist the progress of the discussion and facilitate a conclusion.

Work on Fortifications to Cease.

Secondly—Pending a settlement all work on the fortifications in question will cease without prejudice to the right of either party to maintain its legal point of view.

Thirdly—The Interallied Commission of Control will withdraw from Germany on Jan. 31, 1927, and as from that date Article 213 of the Treaty of Peace will be applied in accordance with the conditions laid down by the Council of the League of Nations.

Fourthly—If on that date and contrary to expectations an amicable arrangement is not reached in regard to these questions, they will be brought before the Council of the League of Nations.

Fifthly—Each of the Governments represented in the Ambassadors' Conference will be at liberty to attach to its embassy at Berlin a technical expert authorized to reach an agreement with competent German authorities in regard to all questions of execution respecting the settlements reached or to be reached.

M. Briand, Sir Austen Chamberlain and M. Vandervelde are leaving for Paris tonight. Dr. Stresemann will leave for Berlin tomorrow at noon.

All French Parties Approve.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—Premier Poincaré, André Tardieu, framer with M. Clemenceau of the Versailles Treaty, and Louis Marin, leader of one hundred of the most aggressive Nationalists in the Chamber of Deputies, associated themselves this evening with today's compromise decision on the German disarmament issue by which the Foreign Ministers assembled in Geneva saved the spirit and letter of Locarno.

The compromise has given all sides the half-satisfaction needed to be able to claim a victory in each of the countries involved.

Dr. Stresemann can go home ready to face the Reichstag with the boast that he has secured the definite data of Jan. 31 for cessation of allied military control of Germany.

M. Briand can return claiming that work on the fortifications of Königsberg has been stopped until at least

Captain Taylor's French Bride Is Detained; To Be Sent From Ship to Ellis Island Today

When Captain Marbury Taylor arrived yesterday from Havre on the French liner Suffren, with his bride, formerly Georgette Leon, a young French film actress, he was surprised to learn that the immigration inspector was not satisfied with the temporary visa on Mrs. Taylor's passport, and that she would have to remain on the steamship for the night and go to Ellis Island this morning. He explained to the inspector that the United States Consul in Paris had assured him the passport was in order and good for a stay of six months in this country.

Captain Taylor said that he married the French actress on Nov. 27, and was taking her on a visit to his family in Richmond, Va. He said he intended to return to Paris in four weeks to look after his business. He remained on the Suffren with his bride and will go to the island with her this morning, he said.

Captain Taylor served on General Atterbury's staff during the war. After demobilization he started in the export business in Paris. He was formerly married to Mrs. Ethel Hanan, widow of Alfred P. Hanan, shoe manufacturer.

Captain Taylor said last night aboard the liner that he and Mrs. Hanan were divorced "by mutual consent" in Paris in August, 1924. He said that his wife's passport was good and that he had received word from the Immigration Bureau at Washington that the matter would be "straightened out."

American Woman Defies Paris Taxi Bandits On Quai at Midnight and Brings About Arrest

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—The coolness of an American woman in facing the menace of two dangerous Paris taxicab bandits on a lonely Paris quai last midnight was rewarded less than eight hours later by the police who, thanks to the number of the cab and an accurate description, were able to arrest the two men and restore the 50,000 francs in jewelry which they stole.

Mrs. W. Witton, a resident of Geneva, said formerly to have been a New Yorker, arrived at midnight from Switzerland on her way to London. Hailing the first taxicab that appeared, she gave the address of the Hotel des Champs Elysées. She had the heavy pieces of baggage placed beside the seat of the chauffeur, but retained her jewel case herself.

As the car pulled away a man jumped on the running board, shook hands with the driver and sat down beside him. Mrs. Witton's suspicions were thoroughly aroused when the cab suddenly stopped at the deserted Quai des Tuileries beside the Seine.

"Here you are. Jump out," said the driver.

But Mrs. Witton replied that if he did not take her at once to her destination she would scream for the police. The driver immediately became apologetic and proceeded to the hotel. While unloading the baggage, however, he snatched the jewel case and escaped with his accomplice.

But Mrs. Witton had been busy during the ride from the quai to the hotel and had the cab's number and a full description of the men written down. When the police came she handed this to them and with it they were able to trace the two men and retrieve the loot.

For your Health's sake! Cranberries help correct heavy Winter diet — delicious and healthful—and low in price. Specify "Eatmor" brand.—Advt.

a definite decision has been reached as to whether it is legal or not.

Sir Austen Chamberlain has the satisfaction of knowing that there is going to be another chance to discuss Germany's habit of half manufacturing arms and exporting them to be finished either for her own future use or for that of her neighbors.

Between now and Jan. 31 these matters must be settled, says this agreement, but even if they are not, who is going to take the responsibility of keeping the Allied Control Mission still in Berlin?

Already it is known that General von Pawels, the German military representative here has had instructions to modify the claims he made last Friday. Perhaps in German fashion he may, now that the situation is less tense, try to get back to his original position, but even Germany cannot, now that she is a member of the League of Nations, refuse to submit the matter for final decision to the Council of which she is a member.

Had M. Briand taken this course without consulting his colleagues in the Cabinet his position on his return tomorrow might well have been like that he faced on his return from Cannes. But tonight, after the Geneva meeting was ended and with full knowledge of what had been done there, the French Cabinet met and without discussion gave its approval. It went even further. In the words of an official communiqué it "congratulated itself on the happy result obtained by its confident collaboration with M. Briand."

During the afternoon there were rumors that M. Marin was prepared to resign. But it has several times been rumored that he was so determined. He has not done so and he will not do so. M. Briand has now committed him and M. Poincaré and M. Tardieu to the Locarno policy. For better or for worse, Locarno binds not only France but her politicians of all parties.

JEWS HERE REPLY TO FORD'S CHARGES

Celler, Wise and Bernstein Condemn Him for Rejecting Straus's Jury Plan.

The refusal of Henry Ford to accept the proposal of Nathan Straus that a jury of ten be selected to pass upon the question of the existence of a "Jewish question," and the reply of Mr. Ford in a forthcoming issue of The Dearborn Independent, proofs of which have been printed in newspapers, brought answering comment and denials from Jewish leaders yesterday. Among those who issued statements were Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Representative Emanuel Celler and Herman Bernstein, editor of The Jewish Tribune. In Rochester a magazine distributer refused to handle sales of The Dearborn Independent.

Representative Celler of Brooklyn said: "The alleged reply of Ford to Nathan Straus is not the reply of Ford at all. It is the work of one of his paid journalists, and Ford's bigotry forces him to subscribe to it.

"He cannot understand the Jew. His shrinking away from Straus's challenge to have a jury of ten New York publicists and clergymen pass upon the integrity of the Jewish people as a whole is a cowardly admission of his wrong. His charge that such a jury would neither know nor admit that there was a Jewish question is an unwarranted aspersion upon the honesty of such eminent New York publicists as Elihu Root, William D. Guthrie, Nicholas Murray Butler, and upon such eminent divines as Cardinal Hayes, Bishop Manning and Dr. Holmes, any or all of whom could serve upon such a jury."

"Poor Mr. Ford, pitiably poor despite his fortune," Rabbi Wise said, "replies to Nathan Straus by repeating the protocol defamations of the Jew, though the forged character of these was definitely established some years ago by some of the foremost scholars and teachers of the nation.

"The Christian world, which reasons and feels aright, knows what to think of Ford's charge of Jewish omnipotence in the light of the truth that nearly half the world's Jews are without elementary rights or barest necessaries in East European lands."

Mr. Bernstein's statement said in part: "The reiterated charges which Ford makes now, a rehash of the offensive and false statements contained in his series of articles on 'The International Jew,' require no answer at this time. They were answered long ago. Like all anti-Semitic falsehoods and fabrications, old and new, his charges have no legs to stand on. It is Henry Ford who should defend himself for violating the commandment 'Thou shalt not bear false witness.'"

Samuel Untermyer said in his statement, "There is nothing new about this rubbish." He charged that Henry Ford was attempting to bolster the circulation of The Dearborn Independent.

"Now another attempt of the same contemptible kind is being launched," Mr. Untermyer said. "I predict that it will meet the same fate as before, for of all the vicious libels ever perpetrated these are about the most silly and false ever published."

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 12.—Morris Manson, Secretary of the National Association of Magazine Distributers of America, refused today to handle sales of The Dearborn Independent in this city. He sent a letter to the magazine setting forth his reasons, in which he said:

"In view of the advance proofs appearing in the daily press of a proposed article to appear in the Dec. 25 issue of The Dearborn Independent, in which article charges are made against the Jewish race, I hereby discontinue my order for distribution.

"My reason for this action is based upon my belief that these charges are prejudiced and unjustified, tending to stimulate false propaganda and hatred against the Jewish people."

AID ASKED FOR MINISTERS.

Appeals Made From Pulpits in the Presbyterian Pension Campaign.

Presbyterian pulpits throughout New York, New Jersey and the New England States were used yesterday to further the $15,000,000 ministerial pension fund campaign being carried on by the Laymen's Committee of the Presbyterian Church.

Sixty Presbyterian ministers in Manhattan and seventy in Brooklyn appealed for the fund, while 1,400 others spoke throughout the Eastern territory. A goal of $6,400,000 has been set for the New York, New Jersey and New England district, where the campaign comes to a close tomorrow. Only $1,600,000 of the quota is already in hand.

Dr. Robert H. Carson, pastor of the Grace Presbyterian Church, Stuyvesant and Jefferson Avenues, Brooklyn, said that upon the success of the fund depended the future of the Presbyterian ministry.

The Rev. Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, President of Union Theological Seminary, spoke for the fund in the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church.

DEPEW WILL TURN NO NEW YEAR'S LEAF

Senator at 93 Says World Has Been Pretty Good to Him—No Strength to Change Things.

ENJOYS RADIO AND MOVIES

But Wishes Former Carried More Good Stories, Less Music—Thinks Traffic Might Be Faster.

Chauncey M. Depew, dean of American wits, champion after-dinner speaker, former railroad President, attorney, Senator and public figure for seventy years, will greet the bright New Year without so much as turning over a single new leaf.

In the only interview planned for the Christmas season, Mr. Depew told an Associated Press representative that he would carry on as at present, and let the world try to do the same.

"The world," he said, "has been pretty good to me for ninety-three years. And I haven't got the strength now to try to change things."

Mr. Depew, who lives at 27 West Fifty-fourth Street, expects to spend Christmas at home. He recently recovered from a severe cold and does not expect to do much with the turkey this year. Some years ago he gave up red meat, and before then cigars. A moderate drinker once, he drinks nothing now, he said, and while he believes the people are not satisfied with the Volstead law he predicts there will be no change.

"Why?" he was asked.

"Women," he replied.

Likes Radio and Movies.

A moderate himself, he would not interfere with the enjoyments of others, it was apparent in the interview, for he said he was opposed to stage censorship, found no harm in modern dances and liked the radio and the movies.

With his ninety-third year just around the corner, Mr. Depew, who was interviewed at his desk in his offices of the New York Central Railroad, said he couldn't find much wrong with the world.

Thomas Edison's attack on the New York skyscrapers Mr. Depew seemed to think a little pessimistic, and while he said he had to concede that traffic in New York was "about as bad as it could be," he didn't advocate any slowing down to alter matters. On the contrary, he thinks traffic in New York moves too slowly and that the salvation lies in more speed.

"The four-minute wait at intersections," he said, "seems to me too long. It permits too great an accumulation of machines. In a Southern city I noticed recently that they had a two-minute stop. That would be better in New York."

The five-day week he said he thought was not feasible.

"Time," he said, "is too valuable to obliterate one-sixth of it in order to do good for the other five-sixths, in other words, to get the habit of loafing an extra day."

Crime waves? He said he hadn't given the matter much thought.

Confidence in America.

Mr. Depew asserted a belief in the "adaptability of the American people to anything that may happen." Even if earthquakes should raze the tallest piles, he said, it would all come out right in the end.

"The Santa Barbara earthquake," he pointed out, "was followed by a real estate boom. That's American."

While speaded auto traffic might improve New York, Mr. Depew said he did not agree with Sir Alan Cobham, English aviator, that every "Tom, Dick and Harry" would soon have a speedy flying machine.

"Personally, I have no desire to go any place by airplane," he said. "I don't believe it is possible to do away with the perils of air accidents. There is some hope in a train, motor or ship wreck. I can't see any hope once you start to drop out of the air."

He said he did not believe that people would be born with "fearless psychologies" for flying, and neither did he expect planes to compete materially with present land and water carriers.

Radio, another contribution to the later years, Mr. Depew said he found a daily solace, and he tunes in fifteen minutes a day at home. If it wasn't for an overdose of musical selections, he said, he'd think much higher of it.

Still Enjoying Stories.

"I'm fed up with air music," he said. "I'd rather hear a few more good talks—reminiscences. There was a speaker a few nights ago I liked. He told some new stories about John Hay, once Secretary of State. I knew Hay, and they were good stories."

A connoisseur of stories, this year, so far as he can see now, will find Mr. Depew without any new one to tell. There is, however, a rider in the statement, for, Mr. Depew's friends explain, his present view has nothing to do with the telling of a funny story.

Mr. Depew confirmed this. He said when the time comes he tells his story. He has never kept a stock of tales, he declared, but like a contemporary, Will Rogers, who has followed the same method, he has based all his funny stories on current events. First the event, a little exaggeration in the imagination, and then the sotry.

It's quite the same now, Mr. Depew thinks, as it was in the day of Artemus Ward, Bill Nye and Josh Billings. They and Mark Twain, he said, have made America an appreciative audience for the "moderns"—Rogers, Lardner and others whom Mr. Depew says he doesn't read.

The moderns, he says, are meeting the demand for the humor of their age in the terms of their age, as Mark Twain and Artemus Ward met the demand of their day.

Warning to Humorists.

Mr. Depew has only one word of warning: "I don't think any humorist will last," he said, "whose strength lies in fooling with the English language, trying to twist it out of shape."

Mr. Depew said he was not familiar with Dreiser, Sherwood Anderson and other leaders of present-day novel writing, but that he liked novels, particularly older ones, and he thinks "Les Misérables" the greatest novel in any language.

"I read all the magazines," he said. "That takes a lot of time. I have this office here, and here two other things take a lot of time. Publishers send me books with nice letters, asking me to read them and please comment on them. That's one thing. Jacket ads. I never find time, however, to comply.

"The other occupation of mine now seems to be receiving countless charming young ladies who say they are just dying to shake my elderly hand. I always imagine they mean it when they say a single shake would be the event of their young lives. But I always find that before the visit's over they want me please to find a job for some nice young man."

However, Mr. Depew added, he is and always has been an optimist.

REMEMBER
The 100 Neediest Cases.

Monument in Cuba to 71st Regiment Dead Is Unveiled on San Juan Hill by Mrs. O'Brien

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, Dec. 12 (AP).—A promise made twenty-eight years ago was fulfilled today when a monument to the memory of the Seventy-first New York Volunteers was unveiled by Mrs. Duncan T. O'Brien.

Just before the New York regiment left for home in 1898 a group of the veterans promised Cuban friends that they would "return to Cuba and build a monument on San Juan Hill."

Cuban officials, school children, veterans of 1898, marines and sailors from the United States Naval Station of Guantanamo Bay and Cubans and American residents were among the 10,000 or more people who joined the New Yorkers in paying homage to the memory of the dead of the Seventy-first Volunteers.

Adjt. Gen. Franklin W. Ward of New York told his audience that in 1898 the United States was chosen by the Supreme Ruler to send her soldiers here to "reiterate by force" its belief that people have a right to alter or abolish their government. He said the monument was the only one erected in honor of New York soldiers on foreign soil.

"The martyr to such a cause never dies," Senator Duncan T. O'Brien said in his dedication address, adding that survivors of the regiment today were proud that they accomplished something for the cause of humanity.

Secretary of Sanitation Francisco Iario Fernandes, who spoke in Spanish and English, praised the action of the United States in aiding Cuban freedom.

General Pedro Betancourt, President of the Cuban Veterans' Association, said that Americans had left their homes and families to come to Cuba, not for ambitions of their Government or personal interests, but for the "sainted cause of the liberty of a people." Taps was sounded by buglers stationed in a radius of several hundred yards from the statue.

The ceremonies closed with the playing of "The Star Spangled Banner."

A dinner in honor of the New Yorkers was given tonight by Colonel Gonzalez Valdes, Chief of the First Military District.

HOUSE FIGHT LOOMS OVER BAN ON NAVY

1932. Their arguments in debate on the naval bill will follow these lines. It will be argued that when President Harding called the Washington Arms Conference his spokesmen entered it buttressed by one of the largest building programs ever drafted by Congress. Accordingly, it is contended, the other powers were convinced that unless a reduction of armament were agreed upon the United States would proceed with its program, or amplify it, thus precipitating a competitive situation calculated to cripple Governments just emerging from the war, with heavy debts facing them.

Instead of discouraging armament negotiations, prominent members of the committee insist, an adequate naval building program here would accelerate them and possibly persuade other powers to acquiesce in an earlier conference on further limitation of armaments.

In his annual report Admiral Shoemaker asserts that the 1928 appropriation to maintain 86,000 men should be $124,770,000. During the fiscal year 1926 the appropriation was $117,000,000, the same as for the preceding fiscal year.

LAYS SHIP BLAST TO VAPOR.

Dorman Thinks Agwisun Explosion Started in Petroleum Tank.

The explosion on Saturday which wrecked the oil tanker Agwisun, of the Atlantic Gulf and West Indies lines, docked at the foot of Dwight Street, Brooklyn, probably was due to petroleum vapor in tanks, according to reports made to Fire Commissioner James J. Dorman yesterday. Tank No. 4, the Commissioner said, was the first to explode, followed immediately by others. These explosions were heard for miles. Seven men on the ship were hurt.

"All members of the crew were interrogated," said the Commissioner yesterday," and all say the explosions were mysterious so far as they knew."

Yesterday extra policemen were posted about the dock yards and homes where plate glass and doors were broken by the explosion. The police will remain on guard until all these places have been boarded up to prevent burglaries.

NEW PRESS CLUB OPENS.

Brooklyn Newspapermen Host to Many in Livingston Street.

The new headquarters of the Brooklyn Newspapermen's Club, Inc., 127 Livingston Street, was opened formally last night. The house warming, the first of a series of events during the Winter, was attended by 500 persons, including theatrical stars, athletes and public officials in addition to the newspapermen.

After a program of both professional and amateur acts a buffet supper was served and the remainder of the evening was devoted to dancing. Magistrate Francis A. McCloskey and Deputy Attorney General Nicholas Selvaggi, who are honorary members of the club and who have been called the sponsors of the present club house, received a memento of the occasion. Gene Tunney, world's heavyweight champion, was a guest.

Japanese Butler Burned to Death.

RED BANK, N. J., Dec. 12.—Fred Ogovoa, 40 years old, a Japanese butler in the home of J. Lester Eisner, on Branch Avenue here, was burned to death today in a fire which destroyed the Eisner garage. The butler went to the garage to clean clothes with gasoline. There was a lighted stove in the building.

S. P. FITHIAN ENDS LIFE IN NEW JERSEY HOME

Aged Man Had Been Ill, Due to His Arduous Duties at the Sesquicentennial.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGETON, N. J., Dec. 12.—Samuel P. Fithian, 75 years old, a former Surrogate of Cumberland County and a former City Controller of Bridgeton, committed suicide today while his wife was away at church. When she returned she found her husband dead with a bullet wound over his right ear and a pistol on the floor beside him.

About a week ago Mr. Fithian came home from Philadelphia, where he had been assistant to Fred Margerum, in charge of the New Jersey State Building at the Sesquicentennial. His duties there were to act as host for thousands of New Jersey visitors who came to see the exposition. When he returned he appeared to be in poor health, a condition which his friends attributed to the heavy strain of his duties.

Mr. Fithian was an active Republican for years. He had served two terms as County Surrogate and three as Controller. He was Vice President of the Bridgeton Gas Light Company and was prominent in fraternal organizations. His widow and two sons, Dr. George H. Fithian of Perth Amboy and Erkurius Fithian, a civil engineer, living in Kansas City, Mo., survive him.

NEWTON, N. J., Dec. 12 (AP).—Grieving over the loss of his son, who died last month from injuries received in an automobile accident, Walter McDavitt, 45 years old, set fire to his clothing and then shot himself to death with a rifle today.

PREPARE FOR DEER SEASON.

New Jersey Hunters Are Pitching Their Camps for Next Friday.

Special to The New York Times.

WEYMOUTH, N. J., Dec. 12.—Today found many camps already pitched and permanent lodges opened for the deer hunting season, which starts in the New Jersey pine forests next Friday, with four days of actual shooting. Advance parties have motored to the deer woods to get things in shape for the drive for the big game. The snow, which still covers fields in the upper counties, has almost disappeared from the forests.

The principal camp sites are being located in the hearts of the woodlands of Atlantic and Burlington Counties. Many deer have been sighted in this region by guides and hunters, and even motorists have seen a few herds that have strayed near the main motor highways.

KILLS 2 DETROIT BANDITS.

Aged Policeman Employed by Merchant Service Attacked on Rounds.

DETROIT, Dec. 12 (AP).—Two bandits were shot and killed by Grant S. Lipscomb, aged 63, a merchant policeman, when they attempted to hold him up as he was making his rounds today. The dead men are George Von Sahgi, aged 23, and Joseph Allen, aged 20, both of Detroit.

One of the men knocked Mr. Lipscomb to the ground and began rifling his pockets when the aged policeman obtained his gun and opened fire on them.

Mr. Lipscomb is employed by the Detroit Merchant Patrol Service, a protective organization operating independent of the local police department.

Women's Civic Organization Party.

Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, wife of the Governor, and Mrs. James J. Walker, wife of the Mayor, will be the guests of honor at a card party which the Women's Civic Organization will give at the Commodore Wednesday night. Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Walker are honorary Presidents of the organization. The proceeds will be used for prizes to be given to children in the public schools for the best essays on civics.

ILLINOIS GUNMEN KILL MAYOR IN FEUD

Adams Is Lured to Door of His Home and Riddled With Bullets by Two Men.

WIFE SEES HIM MURDERED

Assassins Escape In Auto—Crime Laid to Bootleg Gang, With Whose Rivals Mayor Was Friendly.

Special to The New York Times.

BENTON, Ill., Dec. 12.—Mayor Joe Adams of West City, four miles from Benton, was shot and killed and his wife narrowly escaped death from flying bullets today in a new outbreak of the deadly warfare which for months has raged between the Birger and Shelton factions, rival bootleggers.

Adams, friendly to the Shelton crowd, and long marked for death, it is asserted by the Birgers, was shot down in the doorway of his home. A half dozen persons, near-by residents, observed the two assassins approach the Adams home, accomplish their purpose, leap back into a waiting automobile and speed away. But the witnesses all declared they could not name the slayers.

Adams, whose home was the target of a bomb which, on Nov. 19, was hurled into his front yard, where it harmlessly exploded, was lured by his slayers to his front door under the pretense that they wished to deliver a letter. They told Adams's wife that the letter had been sent by Carl Shelton, leader of the faction with which Adams was friendly.

Taken off his guard, Adams sauntered up carelessly and reached out his hand for the message. Immediately four shots were fired. One struck Adams near the heart, another in the abdomen and a third in the back as he fell forward. The fourth bullet went wild, missing Mrs. Adams and burying itself in the leg of the dining table.

Adams died a half hour later without making a statement.

The slayers ran the short distance to the highway, scrambled into the waiting automobile, which contained several other men, and drove rapidly away in the direction of Duquoin, Ill.

A short time before the bomb attack in November, a fusillade of bullets was fired into the Adams home from a closely curtained automobile which sped past.

This killing, the eighth traceable to the Shelton-Birger feud within the last four months, came hard upon the heels of a conference of District Attorneys and Sheriffs of twenty-six counties of the Southern Illinois coal belt held at Carbondale on Saturday to work out a way to stop the wholesale killings and the bootlegging rife throughout the region.

Search for Assassins Begun.

BENTON, Ill., Dec. 12 (AP).—After the murder of Mayor Joe Adams of West City today, the two assassins, as they ran from the porch to their automobile, fired a shot into the air. Several persons who were on the sidewalk about a half block from the Adams home said they could not tell whether there was one man waiting in the car or two.

Sheriff James S. Pritchard, who assumed office last week and who has since devoted much effort to the stopping of the carrying of concealed weapons, detailed all his available men to search for the gunmen, but the officers are working on meager clues. None of the persons who saw the automobile in which the gunmen drove up and escaped were able to tell the license number of the machine and opinion was divided as to the name of the car. None of the Adams family saw the auto.

Adams was conscious a few minutes after he was shot. He was able to whisper that he was not able to recognise either of the men, who were described as being youthful. Mrs. Adams also said that she did not recognize them. In addition to Mrs. Adams, the two children, a boy and a girl, were at home.

Adams recently admitted that he was friendly to the Shelton brothers, but denied that he had ever been affiliated with them.

Until about three months ago he had conducted a roadhouse near West City, but had not been in business since that time, when Birger and his followers forced him to close the place for the announced reason that he was harboring the Sheltons.

Hibben to Lecture at Harvard.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 12.—President John Grier Hibben of Princeton University will deliver the Godkin lectures at Harvard for 1927. Dr. Hibben has accepted the invitation extended to him by the Harvard Corporation and will lecture on the general subject of "Free Government and the Duties of the Citizen" on April 26 and 27.

MOVING TO OPPOSE COOLIDGE IN 1928

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

tax relief legislation unless a comprehensive farm aid bill is sanctioned by the President and his supporters in the Senate and House.

The determination of the Republican members of the House Committee on Ways and Means to ignore President Coolidge's suggestion that the Treasury surplus be distributed among income tax payers as a rebate on 1926 incomes paid in 1927 has robbed the farm bloc and its sympathisers of what they regarded as a trump card.

Politically, the case presented is chiefly that conditions are expected to be more favorable to the enactment of advanced farm aid legislation in the next Congress than they now are.

The most significant development in Congress following the decision of the majority of the Ways and Means Committee to let the President's tax rebate suggestion go by the board, was the appearance of a dominating sentiment in the House Committee on Agriculture that better results in the way of farm relief could be obtained by making such legislation the outstanding issue of the first session of the new Congress.

Principally in its political aspect the situation has become of some importance through the course of events at the convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation last week. The salient features of the McNary-Haugen plan were endorsed, but with the significant development that this scheme of farm relief was commonly referred to as "the Lowden plan." Add to that the manner in which former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois was acclaimed at the convention, and a political complex may be furnished for the next Presidential year.

It cannot be said that a Lowden-for-President boom has taken definite form among Republican Senators and Representatives from the West, but the events of the past week are interpreted as showing some drift in that direction. Mr. Lowden is being looked upon as the outstanding political champion of the farmers, and while any formidable movement in his behalf might not be successful in the Republican National Convention of 1928 if President Coolidge should let it be known that he would accept a third term nomination, Mr. Lowden's defeat in the convention might alienate masses of Republican voters in agricultural communities.

It has also not been overlooked that Presidential party primaries in Western States, with the asserted trend of some of them toward the selection of a Presidential candidate favorable to the advanced demands of agricultural associations, might build up a block of delegates in the national convention embarrassing to Mr. Coolidge.

Meanwhile President Coolidge is saying nothing that might give an inkling as to his intention with respect to the 1928 nomination. In spite of the tendency to leakage of political secrets, no hint has come that anybody professes to know the President's disposition. His reputation for silence is being strictly lived up to these days.

Opinion differs as to what decision Mr. Coolidge will make when the time comes when he must disclose whether he desires to be a candidate for another term. In the face of a rather widespread view that the President will be able to get the nomination if he says the word, there is a disposition among some politicians to believe that he will not go contrary to the anti-third term tradition.

The proposal of advanced farm aid advocates that their pet legislation be dropped for the present session brings relief to regular Republicans of conservative tendencies in Congress. No one in authority in the regular ranks cares to assume responsibility for dropping it, in the fear that such a course would become an issue in the 1928 Presidential campaign. One of the Republican leaders in the House said that the party's attitude must be determined by President Coolidge.

The Senate insurgents have so far shown no disposition to confirm the suspicion that they intended to filibuster to prevent the passage of annual supply bills, so that the President would be obliged to call an extra session of the next Congress to enact them. As they appraise the political line-up of the next Congress, conditions will be far more favorable than at present to get advanced farm aid legislation on the statute books.

The ascendancy of Mr. Lowden as a Presidential potentiality, backed by the farming interests, is causing worry to Republican regular leaders. That fact carries the strong implication that some of them are favorable to a third term for President Coolidge. They conceive Mr. Lowden assured of a large following in Iowa and some other sections of the West on account of his plan of farm relief, which provides for organizing a Federal farm board of twelve members, with power to declare operating periods on farm products, and the creation of a revolving fund of $250,000,000.

WESTCHESTER VALUES RISE.

Total Assessed Valuation for 1927 Close to $1,535,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 12.—According to an estimate given out today by the Committee of Equalization of Assessments and Taxation of the Westchester County Board of Supervisors, the total assessed value of real and personal estates for 1926, on which the county tax for 1927 will be based, is close to $1,535,000,000.

The total increase over last year in assessed value of real property is more than $153,000,000. This growth of the county, placing it in the billion dollar corporation class, makes Westchester close to the richest county in the State.

The City of Yonkers heads the list with a realty value increase of about $30,000,000, which will give it a taxable assessment next year of about $275,-$19,358. Other large increases follow: White Plains, $15,000,000, making total more than $98,899,281; Mount Vernon, increase, $10,500,000, total more than $129,650,000; New Rochelle, increase, $10,500,000, total $135,796,922. Large increases are also shown for the towns of Rye, Greenburg, Mamaroneck, Scarsdale, Harrison, Pelham and New Castle.

AMERICAN EXPLORERS SAFE.

Dr. Magoon and Dr. McMillan Arrive in Cape Town.

LONDON, Dec. 12 (AP).—Dr. H. L. Magoon and Dr. Dan W. McMillan, American explorers completing an expedition into the African jungle, are reported by the Cape Town correspondent of The Daily Express to have arrived at Cape Town Saturday night.

Dr. Magoon, who is from Chicago, is said to be suffering from an injury to his eye caused by a gun explosion and a dislocated shoulder through a fall from a restive horse.

Dr. McMillan, whose home is in Birmingham, Ala., is described as the healthiest of the party, although suffering from an infected arm, the result of thorn lacerations.

The party, The Express correspondent was told, learned on its arrival at Lobito of the anxiety of relatives for their safety and that the idea was entertained for a time of the sending out of a relief expedition. The explorers said their Dutch guide was discharged as incompetent early in the tour.

HOSPITAL GETS $60,000.

$50-Per-Plate Dinner Nets Fund for Israel-Zion Institution.

Friends of the United Israel-Zion Hospital, Brooklyn, which required additional maintenance funds for its work in 1927, staged a benefit dinner at the Hotel Commodore last night, for which each diner paid $50 a plate, and the total amount raised aggregated more than $60,000.

This fund was all net for the hospital, as it did not have to deduct a cent for the payment of the dinner. A group of twenty-two men arranged to underwrite its cost. They were Henry L. Chain, Irwin S. Chanin, A. Bohrer, Balfour Brothers, Newman Dube Gardiner & Co., Morris A. Goodman, Max Helman, M. R. Horowitz, Israel Friedman, George Jacobson, Isaac Marks, Jacob Nelnken, Dr. John O. Pelak, Louis Rayvid, Gustave S. Roth, L. J. Rubenstein, Leo Ritter, Nathan Schoenfeld, William Sugarman and Samuel Young.

It was the fourth anniversary of the establishment of the hospital.

Members of affiliated organizations commended for their support of the hospital included the Ladies' Auxiliary and the Young Folks' League. The speakers were Mr. Roth, President of the hospital; Louis Rayvid, Chairman of the Benefit Committee; Mr. Marks, toastmaster, and Supreme Court Justice Edward Lazansky.

ARMY SENDS FLIGHT FUEL.

Gen. Patrick Says Pan-American Trip Will Take 80,000 Gallons.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Each of the five army amphibian planes scheduled to hop off on Dec. 20 from San Antonio, Texas, on the Pan-American flight will consume 16,000 gallons of gasoline on the 18,500-mile trip, according to an estimate made today by Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, Chief of the Army Air Service.

About 80,000 gallons of gasoline, 2,000 gallons of benzol and 5,000 gallons of lubricating oil have been shipped to the fliers' various ports of call in South America.

Each of the five planes will start with its main tank filled with 160 gallons of gasoline and an auxiliary sixty-gallon tank filled with a mixture 80 per cent. gasoline and 20 per cent. benzol.

The contents of the auxiliary tank will be used on take-offs and climbs to obtain the maximum power from the motor when running wide open.

General Patrick said the cost of the flight would be met from the 1927 appropriation for training and cross-country flying.

FIGHT ON IN MAINE FOR PULP CONTROL

International Paper May Join Senator Gould in Opening 6,000 Square Miles.

GOV. BREWSTER AIDS HIM

With $2,000,000 Profits at Stake, Senator's Federal Permit for Railroad Lapses Dec.31

FACES MUCH OPPOSITION

Great Northern Paper and Two Roads Against Project—Canada Also Involved.

From a Staff Correspondent.

BANGOR, Me., Dec. 12.—Senator Arthur R. Gould, who is facing an investigation by the Senate to determine his fitness to retain his seat, must finance his projected railroad across Northern Maine and begin construction before Dec. 31 or the certificate of public convenience and necessity obtained by him after a determined fight before the Interstate Commerce Commission will lapse. Failure means the loss to him of from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000.

The new line is one of the chief issues in a battle between powerful industrial, railroad and political interests for the control of an almost virgin territory of approximately 6,000 square miles, or nearly the size of Massachusetts. It contains the greatest amount of undeveloped water power and the heaviest stand of timber remaining near the Atlantic seaboard of the United States. Involved in the development of this area is the unsettled question between the United States and Canada, which has already once led to bloodshed, of diverting the headwaters of the St. John River so that they flow southerly through Maine instead of north and east through New Brunswick, as is their natural course.

The factor which will determine success or failure in the building of Senator Gould's Quebec extension railroad, which is to run 112 miles across the Aroostook County wilderness and connect at both eastern and western terminals with the Canadian Pacific System, is the attitude of the International Paper Company, which owns 25 per cent. of the timberland in that section, or approximately 1,000,000 acres.

About a week before the special Maine primaries in October when Senator Gould was nominated by the Republicans as successor to the late Senator Bert M. Fernald, the Senator was told by A. R. Graustein, President of the International, that the company would not support the railroad project.

Paper Company Reconsidering.

Last Thursday Governor Ralph O. Brewster of Maine held a conference with Mr. Graustein in New York City. Although the Governor refused to support the Senator in the recent election and is credited with being one of his most determined political enemies, he nevertheless is anxious to see the new road built because he believes it will aid in his program for the industrial development of Maine.

As a result of the meeting in New York Governor Brewster obtained from Mr. Graustein the withdrawal of his refusal to cooperate in the financing of the Gould road and the promise that he would reopen the entire matter. The International is now making a sound investigation of the project. A final and favorable decision from Mr. Graustein is hoped for by Governor Brewster not later than Dec. 22 when the Governor will be in New York City to speak at a dinner of the New England Society.

Before agreeing to reconsider, Mr. Graustein told Governor Brewster there were various concessions the International would have to receive from the State of Maine.

Included among them are certain water power bills which must be enacted by the Legislature at Augusta this Winter. Governor Brewster will wait their passage. They are almost certain to meet opposition. Both the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad and the Great Northern Paper Company are hostile to the new road, although for different reasons.

Great Power Area at Stake.

The Allegash and the St. John River basins in Northwestern Maine, along the border of Quebec, form a vast potential waterpower developing station on a plateau approximately 1,000 feet above sea level. About 500,000 horsepower already has been harnessed and an equal amount remains undeveloped. The plateau is divided by a watershed. On the north side the St. John River flows for 100 miles through Maine, for seventy-five miles along the boundary between Maine and New Brunswick and for the remainder of its course through the latter province.

In 1840, to the chagrin of Canadian lumber interests, a dam twenty feet high was built at Chamberlain Lake and the headwater of the St. John was partially diverted through the Telos Canal into Grand Lake and the east branch of the Penobscot River in Maine. Chamberlain and Allegash lake waters now flow down the Penobscot, instead of down the Allegash River to the St. John River, as nature intended.

Canadian lumbermen along the St. John and Allegash Rivers protested in vain. In 1909 they attacked Maine guards at Chamberlain Lake and dynamited the dam. This action was upheld the following year by Canadian members of the International Commission and Canadian rights to the flow of water northward have been continuously asserted The projected development is expected here to result in fresh representations at Washington from Canada.

Senator Gould proposes to construct his new electric road westward through this section. It would connect at Washburn, the eastern terminal, with the Canadian Pacific, and at the western end in the Province of Quebec with the Quebec Central, a subsidiary of the Canadian Pacific, which connects at Sherbrooke, Quebec, with the Boston & Maine.

Maine Roads Oppose Project.

The Bangor & Aroostook and Maine Central both fought the issuance of the certificate by the Interstate Commerce Commission, alleging the road would drain Maine of pulpwood for the benefit of mills at Niagara Falls and Watertown, N. Y., and in Quebec, and that Maine mill owners and their own railroad systems would be injured. The certificate was issued only after Senator Gould announced his willingness to abandon a plan for giving the Canadian Pacific preferential freight rates and making them the same for both the Canadian road and the Bangor & Aroostook.

The Quebec Extension Railroad, according to Senator Gould's plans, will cost from $5,000,000 to $6,000,000. The Canadian Pacific has agreed to guarantee the interest on $4,000,000 worth of bonds. To raise the remainder of the money the Senator has entered into an agreement with all of the timber land owners in the territory, save only the International Paper Company, which has been the stumbling block and upon which now depends the success of the whole venture.

Under the terms of this agreement Senator Gould expects to sell permits for timber and hardwood which will enable him to own from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 worth of stock in the road free and clear. He has signed a contract to supply wood at $2 a cord to manufacturers at Niagara Falls who are now paying $6 a cord for it in Canada. For a long time the Coe and Pingree estates, which are among the largest of the timber land owners, stood out, but they at length consented to enter the agreement. It was tacitly understood the International would cooperate until Mr. Graustein's adverse decision was made in October.

In order to prevent rival Canadian interests from entering the field against them, the International has begun the development of a hydroelectric plant at Grand Falls, on the St. John River in New Brunswick, a few miles over the Maine border. It is expected that from 25,000 to 100,000 horsepower can be developed and that the eventual investment will be approximately $20,000,000. Grand Falls is said to furnish the greatest potential source of water power East of Niagara, with the exception of the rapids on the St. Lawrence River.

Maine Repeals Mill Act.

The Maine Legislature, at the instance of Governor Brewster, repealed the Mill act, as far as the St. John River is concerned. The act permits the storage by mill owners of waters above their property. Unless the law were repealed, it was feared in Maine that the Canadian mill interests would develop all of the water storage for their own benefit and to the detriment of this side of the international boundary.

Governor Brewster has confidential information, so a person closely in touch with him said today, that the International is considering an immediate power development on the Fish River, in Maine, and that it will sell this power to Senator Gould for his railroad, providing Mr. Graustein decides to enter the timberland agreement. The International is said to be more interested in the question of water storage than in the disposal of its timber holdings in the area to be opened up. It is in this connection that Governor Brewster, it is reported here, has been asked by Mr. Graustein to obtain legislation for him.

It will be necessary for the International to hold what water storage it has in Maine for certain periods of the year and, during them, to bring power into Maine from Canada. It will require authorization by the Maine Legislature to ship any power out of the State. It is said that Mr. Graustein has practically told Governor Brewster this is his price for coming to Senator Gould's rescue. It is maintained by the Maine authorities that the Joint International Boundary Commission has no jurisdiction in the matter.

The International Paper Company's mill at Van Buren has been idle for the past three years, but it is believed to be Mr. Graustein's intention to resume operations there as soon as the power development project has progressed further. The only territory from which it can obtain pulpwood is from the 1,000,000 acres the company owns in Maine, contiguous to the border.

This phase of the situation brings further complications in the hostility of the Great Northern Paper Company, which has what was once the world's largest newsprint mill at Millinocket on the line of the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad. The Great Northern owns approximately 1,000,000 acres of spruce lands on the Penobscot River waters, east of the Allegash and St. John basins. It is said to look with longing eyes toward the pulp wood supply in that region and to feel that the International is encroaching upon its territory.

The Gould railroad, in the view of the Great Northern, would drain that section of what wood the International does not take, as it would all be shipped westward over the Canadian Pacific to Watertown, Niagara and Quebec mills.

What active steps the Great Northern intends to take to protect what it regards as its interests has not thus far been disclosed, but the company is credited here, where its general offices are, with a disposition to throw any monkey wrench that is available into the machinery.

Smithsonian to Give Seven Pyrheliometers To Observatories to Measure Heat of Sun

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Seven silver disk pyrheliometers—sun meters—will soon be shipped by the Smithsonian Institution to observatories in India, Switzerland, Germany and the United States. The world has come to regard these instruments as "standard" for measuring the heat of the sun at the surface of the earth, and their universal acceptance emphasizes the leading position of Smithsonian scientists in the study of solar radiation.

These pyrheliometers were invented and perfected by Dr. C. G. Abbott, Assistant Secretary of the Smithsonian during his researches in solar radiation, and are made only at the institution. Fifty of them have found their way since 1913 to Government and private observatories here and abroad.

The basis of the sun meter is a blackened silver disk the size of half a dollar and three times as thick in a tube with a small aperture to permit the entrance of a sunbeam. The disk absorbs the rays and is warmed. A cylindrical bulb thermometer is inserted in the silver disk to record the effect of the rays. To check the accuracy of the silver disk instruments, Dr. Abbott invented a waterflow pyrheliometer, a more complicated and delicate instrument with a precision to ten-thousandths of a degree.

One of the rarest achievements to the credit of the Smithsonian astrophysicists was the measurement of the sun's heat at a point fifteen miles above the earth's surface.

To accomplish this, Dr. Abbott prepared a modified form of silver disk pyrheliometer for attachment to a pair of sounding balloons of expansible dental rubber. In cooperation with the Weather Bureau balloon experts, this was released by T. B. Aldrich, of The Smithsonian staff, of Omaha, in 1914. It ascended 15 miles and automatically recorded the intensity of solar radiation where 24-25ths of the atmosphere lay beneath it. It was picked up safely in Iowa, 150 miles distant from its starting point.

Besides the pyrheliometers, the Smithsonian has perfected the bolometer, which measures the heat of the separated rays of the spectrum recording temperature changes to one-millionth of a degree.

PROPOSES REFORMS IN THE PAROLE LAW

Commissioner Alger Favors a Full-Time Board to Better Administration.

MORE OFFICERS NEEDED

He Sees Too Much Speed and Too Few Tests in Releases—Supervision Inadequate.

ALBANY, Dec. 12 (AP).—George W. Alger, who investigated the State parole system as Special Commissioner, appointed by Governor Smith after the parole of "Izzy" Presser, notorious criminal, finds that the system as a whole is "an under-manned moral gesture," and that the parole law is not being properly enforced, due to unwarranted actions and perfunctory methods on the part of members of the Parole Board.

His report, made public tonight, adds, however, that "it is wholly unfair to conclude from the results that parole has been tried and found wanting."

The Commissioner makes several recommendations for improving the system, chief among which are the abolition of the present part-time board and the appointment of three full-time paid commissioners and of additional parole officers.

Discussing the theory of parole and its administration in the State, Mr. Alger recalls that the law sets as the test for parole the determination by the board as to whether there is "reasonable probability" that the applicant "will live and remain at liberty without violating the law."

"To apply this test to the individual case," says the report, "places upon the board what is, at least, a difficult duty. I do not find that this duty has been met by the board or seriously has been attempted. The Chairman of the board very frankly testified before me as to the past and present policy of the board, to the effect that even after the 'tightening up,' as he expressed it, within the last year, the board's policy was to put out on parole every prisoner at the earliest possible moment at which he might be paroled, except those who had violated prison rules, those convicted of robbery with a dangerous weapon and sex offenders against women."

Finds Misconception of Duty.

Asserting that the board has held that to keep a man in prison after the expiration of his minimum sentence would be, in a measure, to usurp the functions of the court, Commissioner Alger says he "cannot follow this interpretation."

"The law does not tell the board," he says, "to assume anything about the operation of the judicial mind in the fixing of the sentence. It does not authorize any substitute for the difficult duty of finding 'a reasonable probability that the applicant for parole will remain at liberty without violating the law.'"

"If the mere failure to violate prison rules during the minimum period of prison," continues Commissioner Alger, "is substantially the sole test for determining whether a man is given parole, the substance and spirit and purpose of the Parole law, and, still more, the essential part of its potential value as an incentive to reform, are wholly lost."

"This fundamental misconception of duty lies at the heart of our parole system in State prisons," he adds.

Commissioner Alger says he has been impressed "with the general non-informatory character of the average parole file" as a basis of the board's determination as to whether the prisoner, if paroled, will not violate the law.

Parole supervision, after the board has acted, is insufficient, Commissioner Alger finds. He praises the Prison Association, the Catholic Protective Society, the Jewish Board of Guardians, the Salvation Army and the Prison Committee of the Christian Science Church for their work in this connection, but thinks all are overburdened.

After pointing out that the present system is meagerly financed, Commissioner Alger continues:

"Despite abuses and inadequacies, I do not believe that the time has yet arrived when the State must adopt a prison substitute for parole. I do not believe that the parole system has failed to any such extent. I believe that the system should be changed and improved, and when and as improvement shows results, should be extended."

"In and Out" Process Wasteful.

An uncertain parole is an incentive to reform, Commissioner Alger asserts, adding:

"The transition from prison to the world outside of prison walls never should be made without a parole period, not only as an aid to reform but as a better means of learning whether a given case is one for ultimate freedom, permanent imprisonment or permanent custodial care. We should do one thing or the other. The present 'in and out' process is wasteful and unproductive of good results."

ORMISTON IS UNARRESTED.

Chicago Authorities Still Await Arrival of Los Angeles Prosecutor.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12 (AP).—Kenneth G. Ormiston, the radio operator wanted in California in connection with the Aimee Semple McPherson kidnapping case, and who came here from Harrisburg, Pa., still was a free man tonight so far as Chicago authorities were concerned.

No formal charges of any kind had been made against him. Asa Keyes, Los Angeles Prosecutor, who was reported headed for Chicago apparently had not arrived. Robert E. Crowe, State's Attorney; Morgan A. Collins, Chief of Police, and Edward H. S. Martin, Ormiston's attorney, all said they had heard nothing of Keyes's arrival here and he was not registered at downtown hotels.

Collins said he received a telegram yesterday from Keyes, sent from Philadelphia, and asking him to arrest Ormiston, but added he would not make the arrest on a telegram and said he was "suspicious of everything connected with this case."

Keyes, it was learned, has a reservation to leave Chicago for the West over the Chicago & North Western Railroad on Dec. 17, and if the Prosecutor himself comes here, Collins said he could swear out a warrant for Ormiston himself, if he cares to do so. This, Collins said, would avoid the delay of awaiting the arrival of a warrant now said to be en route from California by air mail.

SHORE TO INVITE COOLIDGE

New Jersey Citizens Would Have Him Spend Vacation There.

Special to The New York Times.

BRADLEY BEACH, N. J., Dec. 12.—President Coolidge will be invited to spend his 1927 vacation in New Jersey, preferably in the North Jersey seashore section. The Bradley Beach Board of City Commissioners after a conference this morning announced that a movement to bring the President to this State would be initiated this week.

The Bradley Beach Commissioners plan to enlist the aid of Senator Edge and members of the New Jersey Congressional delegation through Representative Appleby of the Third District in which the North Jersey seashore section is located. Appeals will be directed to municipal officials of the State, and Governor Moore will be asked to extend the official invitation of New Jersey.

CHARITY WORKERS TO DINE.

Prepare a Campaign for Hebrew Children's Temporary Shelter.

Preliminary to opening a campaign to raise funds to complete the building of a new home at the Grand Concourse and 205th Street, the Bronx, the Independent Ladies' Aid Society of the Hebrew Children's Home for Temporary Shelter will hold a dinner next Sunday evening at the Astor. Assistant District Attorney Rose Rothenberg (Mrs. Maximillian W. Goldstein), who was instrumental in obtaining a charter for the organization, giving it the right to carry on its work and enlarge the scope of its activity, will be the guest of honor. Judge Max S. Levine will be toastmaster.

terest for Bronxville and Westchester County, Miss Coates said, but the day students probably at no time will be allowed to outnumber the resident students. When the college opens in October, 1928, Miss Coates expects to have about 125 resident and perhaps 100 day students.

The Faculty will be chosen particularly with a view to teaching ability rather than productive scholarship. One Faculty member to each ten students is expected to be engaged and it is announced that the salaries will be liberal in order that the best available teachers may be engaged.

Only liberal arts courses will be taught at the college. Its four aims, as outlined by Mr. Lawrence, will be to interest the students in character, right social behavior, non-partisan politics and non-sectarian religion. Teaching will be by the tutorial system whereby classroom work is cut to a minimum and the student is allowed to progress as fast as she is able without being hampered by less gifted fellows.

Esthetic Training Planned.

Considerable stress will be laid on the development of esthetic tastes. Courses in art, music and related activities will thus be offered and an attempt made to develop the individual student rather than sacrifice her aptitudes to the curriculum. Because the college will be only thirty minutes from Broadway, no attempt will be made to acquire treasures of art, library, music and the theatre, which are available in New York, according to the announcement. One departure in educational policy will be the building up of hobbies. A certain number of hours will be set aside each week in which the students will be free to follow favorite pursuits, so long as these pursuits are considered worthwhile by the authorities of the college. This system, Miss Coates explained, is to give the young women a chance to build up interests for their leisure hours in life.

Several of the ideas which she intends to put in effect have been tried out by Miss Coates at Bradford which now offers a junior college course similar to that planned for the new institution. Miss Coates has been principal of Bradford since 1918. She is a graduate of Vassar, where she was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, and she has done graduate work at Yale, Radcliffe and Wellesley. She is President of the National Association of Principals of Schools for Girls. She will remain at Bradford while the plans for the opening of Sarah Lawrence are going ahead.

Work on the new buildings for the college will begin next April, according to present plans. Westlands, the Lawrence home, will be used as the Administration Building, and two other buildings will be erected at once. One of these will be used as a gymnasium and auditorium. This will be known as William V. Lawrence Hall. The other will be a dormitory, with single rooms for 125 girls and faculty members.

The gothic architecture of Westlands will be carried out in the other college buildings, which are expected to cost about $600,000.

Opening Set for Oct. 1, 1928.

Mr. Lawrence, a member of the firm of Davis & Lawrence Company, who retired from active business some years ago, said last night that ground will be broken for the new buildings next Spring and it is expected the buildings will be ready for occupancy and the opening of the college by Oct. 1, 1928.

Mr. Lawrence makes his Winter home at Daytona Beach, Fla., and is going there today. He said the establishment of the college had been a project to which he had given considerable thought for some time. Mr. Lawrence is 85 years old.

The Tudor house, which he now uses as a residence will be used as the Administration Building, Mr. Lawrence said, and the other buildings will conform to its style of architecture. Plans for some of the buildings have already been completed and others will be finished by the Spring.

The Board of Trustees, now composed of five members, will be enlarged before the college is opened, Mr. Lawrence said, and the project has the support of most of the prominent educators of this city.

PROF. AUER CELEBRATES AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP

Prince Obolensky Sings and Gershwin Plays at Virtuoso's Reception to Friends.

Professor and Mrs. Leopold Auer gave a reception at their home, 320 West Seventy-seventh Street, on Saturday night in celebration of Professor Auer's recent acquirement of American citizenship, a circumstance which made the noted virtuoso, who is 81 years old, probably the "oldest young citizen" of this country.

Prince Alexis Obolensky and George Gershwin, who were among the guests, entertained the company. Prince Obolensky sang several Russian songs and Mr. Gershwin played selections from his musical comedies.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Ignace Paderewski, Mr. and Mrs. Serge Rachmaninoff, Josef Hofmann, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schelling, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Damrosch, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Damrosch, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph S. Ochs, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hays Sulzberger, Miss Wanda Nomicos, Princess Obolensky, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Steinway, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Fiesch, Mr. and Mrs. Sigismond Stojowski, Ignace Friedman, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bodansky, Mrs. Rudolph Gaertner, Miss Lillian Gaertner, Mrs. Pleasant Pennington, Mrs. Paul Kochanski, Mrs. Albert Spalding, Nicolai Orloff, Mr. and Mrs. Fischer, Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Saenger, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stone, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Chotzinoff, Mrs. Anna Heifetz, Max Rosen, Mr. and Mrs. Eddy Brown, Mrs. Ray Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Foureff, Sam Battenheim, Mrs. Joseph Szigeti, Mr. and Mrs. Lacy Coe, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Bloch, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Achran, Richard Knott and Mrs. Knott (Ruth Breton), Victor Kurdo, Leonid Remisoff, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Stassewitch, Mrs. Eugene Reeskin, George Purver, Alexander Lambert and Barnett Beyer.

DENIES SET-TO IN CHURCH.

Rev. Robert McCaul Scouts Press Reports—Prays for Newspaper Men.

The Rev. Robert McCaul, pastor of the Washington Avenue Baptist Church, Washington and Gates Avenues, Brooklyn, denied last night in his sermon that at the annual meeting of the congregation last Wednesday night in the church, the election of a trustee had resulted in a fist fight in the aisle of the church and the exchange of oaths, as was reported in the press.

"There was more imagination used in the newspaper accounts of our annual meeting last Wednesday than Jane Gibson utilized in her narrative of happenings in Dr. Russey's Lane," said Mr. McCaul. "No church could be alive without having some controversy. Perhaps the press is doing us a service in keeping our name before the public." The pastor made a special prayer for newspaper men. A patrolman stood outside the church during the services.

Provide for Crowds to Hear Smith.

To bring as large a crowd as possible tonight to the dinner of the Survey Associates at the Hotel Astor, at which Governor Smith will speak on his water power policy, arrangements have been made to throw open the galleries of the grand ballroom, where the dinner will be held, at $1 a ticket to those who do not wish to attend the dinner but want to hear the speeches which will follow.

CITY BREVITIES.

Commander Evangeline Booth will be the chief speaker at a supper meeting tonight at Mecca Temple, when Commissioner Mary Estill will retire from the Salvation Army after a service of forty-eight years. Mrs. Estill has worked for the Salvation Army in five continents.

Rush Tagart, a lawyer of 54 Wall Street, has been elected a member of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church, to succeed W. E. Stiger, who died Aug. 29, 1925.

President H. W. Chase of the University of North Carolina, will address alumni of the institution living in New York and New Jersey, next Friday night at a dinner at the Aldine Club, 200 Fifth Avenue.

One hundred and fifty children from the lower east side will be the guests of the Social Service Committee of the Beekman Street Hospital, at a theatre party at the Hippodrome Wednesday afternoon. The party is the first of a series of Christmas entertainments arranged for east side children.

The Women's League of the Palestine Foundation Fund, will hold a bazaar and fashion show at the Waldorf-Astoria beginning next Saturday evening and ending Dec. 23. Mrs. Richard Gottheil is chairman of the league, and Mrs. Jacob Lesser is chairman of the bazaar committee. Addresses on the opening night will be made by Dr. Chaim Weitzman, Dr. Stephen S. Wise and Judge Julian T. Mack.

has increasingly tended to become a genuine university, a home of intellectual liberty and freedom of the spirit, and that of course it gives hearing to doctrines and opinions held by sincere and scholarly seekers after truth which are by no means universally accepted and which may indeed excite more or less violent opposition. In the Church such exhibitions of freedom of thought would lead to expulsion; in the State they invite political attack and, if possible, personal humiliation and suffering and loss.

"The university remains the only present home of liberty and apparently its only hope. If the voice of liberty be silenced there and the intolerance that now prevails in Church and in State be permitted to invade the precincts of the universities of the world, then indeed must we be prepared to enter upon a new and dismal dark age that will cast the thoughts and the activities of man in common and uniform molds, there to remain until such time as the unquenchable thirst for liberty shall again effectively manifest itself among men.

"No one who really believes in the power of truth fears liberty. However man may stumble, however wrongheaded or however blinded he may be by passion or by interest, we are forced to believe either that truth is real and can be found or that there is no such thing as truth and therefore that interest or passion may properly enough be enthroned in the place that has been reserved for truth to occupy.

Recalls the Philistines.

"There was a time when the Bible was a household book throughout the English-speaking world. Then the spot called Philistia could be indicated on the map by almost any child, and the doings of those doughty warriors, the Philistines, were by no means unfamiliar. The original Philistia covered an area some forty miles long, by from ten to twenty miles broad. On this quite insignificant bit of ground deeds were done and chronicled that have passed through the gateway of literature into history.

"Today there is a New Philistia, occupying a space indefinitely greater than the land for which it is named and peopled by an active, restless and highly nervous company of men and women who have turned it into what the Prophet Jeremiah described as 'the land of graven images, and they are mad upon their idols.' These new and numerous Philistines are concerned with displacing discipline for indiscipline, scholarship for deftly organized opportunities for ignorance, thoroughness for superficiality, and morals for impulsive and appetitive conduct.

"They are the proud discoverers and possessors of a doctrine of behavior which finds nothing to behave and no purpose in behaving. Where they have touched education—and they have touched and are touching it at many points—they are reducing it to a costly pantomime. They are the blind leading the blind, as well as no inconsequential part of the cause of those intellectual, moral, social and political ills which afflict modern man and which greatly multiply the difficulties of carrying forward a constructive and a progressive civilization.

Eulogy to Classicism.

"It is one of the curious and unexplained phenomena of human history that long before man had any but the most general and superficial knowledge of the structure and laws of the physical universe his spirit poured itself out in amazing revelations and conquests. The high-water mark of religious thought and feeling, of philosophic insight and interpretation, of poetry, of oratory and of the plastic arts was reached when men had not so much as an inkling of that elementary knowledge of the material universe which is now possessed by every intelligent child.

"Standards in all that has to do with mental activity and expression were set early and amazingly high. That is why no real education is possible without some appreciation of those standards and some knowledge of their meaning and their significance. When the modern Philistine says that all time and effort spent upon the study of the civilizations of Greece and Rome is wasted, he thereby writes himself down not only as without education, but as incapable of being educated. Like a squirrel in its revolving cage, he may go through the motions of progress, but of real progress he can make none for the simple reason that he has no point from which to start and no ideal at which to aim.

"Modern education needs nothing so much as stout resistance to Philistinism in its every manifestation and a revival of the classic spirit, which no one has described better than Kenyon Cox:

"'The classic spirit is the disinterested search for perfection; it is the love of clearness and reasonableness and self-control; it is, above all, the love of permanence and of continuity. It asks of a work of art not that it shall be novel or effective, but that it shall be fine and noble. It seeks not merely to express individuality or emotion, but to express disciplined emotion and individuality restrained by law.'

"Enthrone the classic spirit as here described, and education—elementary, secondary and higher—will again become something really worth while."

Raditch Absents Himself From Belgrade and His Followers Do Not Join in Eulogies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELGRADE, Dec. 12.—The funeral of Nikola Pashitch, "father of Yugoslavia," was held here today, under conditions recalling the darkest days through which he led his country, the great work he achieved and the difficulties left for his successors to overcome.

In a plain, golden oak casket the body of the aged statesman who for twenty years was almost absolute master of Yugoslavia was carried on an artillery carriage with the greatest pomp the country could provide, through two miles of the streets of the capital, to the new cemetery.

There it was deposited, amid masses of flowers and wreaths, in a chapel, pending the completion of the mausoleum which is expected to receive it on Tuesday.

The sky was of a cheerless slate color. A sharp and damp breeze chilled the tens of thousands who stood for hours to pay their last respects.

The casket-laden limber hurched over cobblestones eloquent of the unrepaired ravages of that war.

Services in Cathedral.

The funeral began at 8 A. M. in Belgrade's Greek Orthodox Cathedral, where Patriarch Dimitrie and twenty high prelates, clad in gorgeous purple, red and blue brocade, embroidered with gold, officiated at an impressive mass.

Eulogies followed from the Patriarch, the Minister of Public Health, M. Miletitch, representing the Cabinet, the Mayor of Belgrade and other dignitaries.

The cortege was formed, led by an officer carrying a wooden cross, accompanied by another bearing a silver tray full of steamed wheat, which, following an old Serbian custom, was distributed by spoonfuls in the cemetery to the crowd to eat. Then followed the national flags, which always had been crowded with final victory under Pashitch. Next were two royal guards resplendent in red and blue uniforms and carrying on a purple cushion a wreath from the King, with the Yugoslav flag covered by a black veil as the centrepiece.

On another cushion in the procession after leaving the church came a huge wreath of massive gold from the Radical Party founded by M. Pashitch, the local branches of every town in the country each contributing one leaf. At least 100 other great wreaths of flowers, each carried by two men, followed. Distinctive among them was one of thorns representing the Serbian Comitajis. Another was without leaves, symbolical of the Bosnian Mohammedans. Four trucks brought the remaining floral tributes.

Next came soldiers carrying sixteen cushions, on which were displayed all the decorations M. Pashitch had received from various nations. A company of naval cadets and a company of marines—Pashitch gave his country a seacoast—both smart in dark blue, appeared. Then three companies of infantry and a male choral society intoning a hymn. Altar boys with emblazoned emblems of the Greek Church, a score of prelates, then six horses drawing the gun carriage on which the casket reposed without a single flower.

King Alexander, clad in a general's uniform, accompanied by Prince Paul in formal civilian attire, walked immediately behind the coffin at the first stage of the procession and then dropped out and went to the royal palace.

Lived to Rebuild Belgrade.

Some of these streets over which the body of M. Pashitch was carried were not even country roads when he was born in 1845, or when fifty years ago he began his political career.

Then Belgrade was a struggling Balkan village capital. He lived to see nearly all the progress it had made in sixty years wiped out by the war in a few days. He lived to rebuild it all on a much greater scale in about six years.

Today his body was carried through the capital of his dream—the capital not of Serbia alone, but of the Southern Slavs united by his statesmanship for the first time in history.

An endless array of new buildings testified to the monumental character of his achievements.

Raditch Stays Away.

The absence in his stronghold—Zagrad—of Pashitch's post-war rival, Stephen Raditch, although he sent his nephew and another representative of his Croatian Party at the last minute, shows that all the bitterness born of Pashitch's policy of consolidating Yugoslavia is by no means buried with him.

Both Raditch's absence and yesterday's incident, when a Serbian crowd booed his representatives who called to express consolation for Pashitch's family, have created a painful impression, greatly increasing the difficulties of the current ministerial crisis.

The fact that the funeral was hastened to such an extent that many of the statesman's provincial peasant admirers were unable to attend also causes much comment. Originally it had been planned to have the funeral on Tuesday, when the mausoleum would be ready, and it is understood that the family desired this date. It is not known why the Government suddenly changed the plans, but every one ascribes it to "political reasons," and some well-informed persons say it was feared that the presence of masses of passionate peasant supporters of Pashitch's would lead to a repetition of such incidents as yesterday's on a larger scale and making a delicate situation worse.

Pictures Cut Up by Artist, Restored and Sold; Puzzled French Painter Sues to Regain Them

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—One Summer morning in 1914 the well-known French painter, Charles Camoin, decided to destroy all his paintings with which he was not pleased. He spent hours in his studio and by evening had cut into strips sixty-odd canvases. He then proceeded to forget about them.

What was his utter astonishment when he learned that many of his artistic efforts were included in a sale of the collection of Francis Carco, held in March of last year. M. Camoin immediately proceeded against the auctioneers and the Court ordered the seizure of the revived paintings.

In February of this year, other Camoin paintings mysteriously appeared at a Hôtel Drouot sale, but they were sold as of "unknown origin," some for as low as 10 francs.

M. Camoin then continued his investigations and now it appears that all the paintings which he so carefully cut to pieces have been wonderfully and mysteriously put together again and sold at prices which, absurdly enough, range from 10 francs to many thousands. Such prominent names as Rothschild figure in the list of those who now have Camoin "destroyed" pictures.

M. Camoin has brought suit to obtain his pictures, plus damages, and all the present owners have been ordered to appear in court to show cause why they should not give them up.

Meanwhile, one of the dealers who purchased some of them has intervened with a suit on behalf of the "Syndicate of Artistic Property" to protest "for the general interest against the moral right of artists to their works."

Constable Kenward today. "While I cannot disclose the contents of them, I can say it is cruel to suggest that Mrs. Christie planned this disappearance as a stunt."

A Mile of Spectators.

Today's hunt began soon after daybreak and thence onward there was a steady increase in the number of the searchers until the police were scarcely able to handle them. Unfortunately, many people came in a kind of holiday spirit, more inclined to enjoy the excitement than to give serious assistance. They came in autos and charabangs, on motorcycles, on bicycles, on horseback, in horsedrawn vehicles and afoot in multitudes.

There were at least 500 automobiles and charabancs and innumerable other vehicles. Special policemen had to be tolled off to regulate the continuous stream of motor traffic. The route from Newland Corner to Dorking for more than a mile was lined densely with curious spectators. At midday hundreds of groups of people could be seen taking an impromptu lunch, washed down by liquid refreshments supplied by nearby cottagers who seized the opportunity to make an honest penny.

A discreditable feature was the display of a number of posters advertising the publication in a newspaper of Mrs. Christie's latest novel.

Police Think Woman Alive.

Despite the lack of success which attended today's hunt, the local police are understood to be convinced that Mrs. Christie is still alive and tonight they distributed another description and photographs of her to all police depots throughout the country.

The Plymouth police are stated to be making full inquiries into a puzzling feature of the case arising from a letter received from Plymouth in a handwriting which strongly resembles that of Mrs. Christie. There is a report that a woman, very much resembling the missing novelist, stayed at a hotel in that town.

Plymouth is thirty miles from Torquay, where Mrs. Christie was born. Local detectives some days ago visited the large villa in Torquay which her father, Frederick Miller, bought when he came with his wife from America forty-five years ago. Mrs. Christie was in Torquay at the time of her mother's death, about six months ago, and it was reported that she visited her former home recently.

A party of spiritists visited Newland Corner Saturday evening and held a seance by the bushes where the novelist's abandoned car was found. It is understood the medium expressed the opinion that Mrs. Christie had met with foul play.

Miss Una Crowe Disappears.

Another missing-woman mystery was added today to that of Mrs. Christie. Miss Una Crowe, the second of three daughters of the late Sir Eyre Crowe, Permanent Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, has disappeared from her home in Chelsea.

No explanation for her disappearance has been suggested and her mother and sisters are in a state of great anxiety.

Miss Crowe left her home Saturday morning and as she did not return at night her mother made inquiries among friends with whom she might have stayed for the night. They had neither seen nor heard from her. As nothing had been heard from her daughter today, Lady Crowe consulted the police who have begun an investigation.

At a late hour tonight there was no clue. Miss Crowe is 20 years old and a girl of considerable ability. She suffered a nervous breakdown after her father's death last year. Tonight Scotland Yard officials are in consultation with Sir William Tyrrell of the Foreign Office, who is acting in behalf of the girl's family.

Mrs. Christie and Dorothy Arnold.

The information yesterday, the sixteenth anniversary of the disappearance of Dorothy Arnold from her home at 108 East Seventy-ninth Street, that Mrs. Agatha Clarissa Christie, the writer of mystery stories who has been missing nine days from her home in England, had been much interested in the Arnold case at the time the newspapers were filled with it, caused renewed inquiries here into the early life of Mrs. Christie in America.

The fact that mysterious disappearances have had almost a fascination for the missing novelist ever since Dorothy Arnold walked to Fifth Avenue and vanished forever, and that Mrs. Christie has frequently incorporated such disappearances in her fictional works, made the parallel between the Arnold case of long ago and the present Christie case particularly interesting. Dorothy Arnold would now be 41 years old. Mrs. Christie is understood to be about 35 or possibly 40. She has one child.

The missing novelist is understood to have personal friends in this city, but none of them could be located yesterday.

From acquaintances of Mrs. Christie among the publishers, however, it was understood that she was the daughter of Frederick Miller and that her family lived in Philadelphia. Mrs. Christie had never lived here, so far as they could say, but had gone directly from Philadelphia to England, where she married Colonel Archibald Christie and turned to writing, with marked success. She developed technical perfection in her plots. In her latest mystery novel, "The Murder of Roger Ackroyd," published here last Summer by Dodd, Mead & Co., the disappearance of one of the important characters of the book is a prominent incident.

Mrs. Christie has visited in America since her marriage and was last here three or four years ago. One of the executives of the publishing company who met her at that time described her as wholesome and pleasant and not at all the type of woman who would disappear purposely for publicity or any other slight motive, because she would be too much concerned for the unpleasantness it would cause her family and friends.

Her publishers received word a month or two ago that Mrs. Christie was suffering from a nervous breakdown and they ascribed it to the extreme intensity with which she works.

Still Tracing Dorothy Arnold Clues.

While the search for Mrs. Christie is being prosecuted vigorously, the Dorothy Arnold case remains after sixteen years as great a mystery as ever. Her family long ago gave her up for dead and her father, who died after conducting a search for her which covered much of the world, left no provision for her in his will.

The case last came into prominence in 1921, when Captain John H. Ayers, head of the Bureau of Missing Persons of the Police Department, was quoted as saying in a public address that the fate of Dorothy Arnold was known to the Police Department, but would never be revealed. This statement called forth an indignant denial from John S. Keith, attorney for the Arnold family, who personally directed the family's search for many years and still records and traces down every possible clue which rises.

"In my statements about missing girls," Captain Ayers was reported to have said in his address, "I wonder how many of you here thought of the case of Dorothy Arnold. Do you recall that some time ago the search for her ceased, apparently? Her parents, relatives and friends, who had been led to follow in all directions clues sent in multitudes of letters, suddenly ceased their activity."

Captain Ayers was interrupted at this point by an auditor, who asked if it had been an intricate case.

"All I can say is that it has been solved by the department," Captain Ayers replied, according to newspaper accounts. "Dorothy Arnold is no longer listed as a missing person. Probably I should not have mentioned the case, as it is a strictly confidential one in the department."

Captain Ayers refused to amplify his statement about the missing woman.

When Mr. Keith was informed of this he exclaimed:

"The whole thing is a damned lie. It has been a lie from start to finish, for, if he has been quoted correctly, Captain Ayers seems to intimate that the mystery of Dorothy Arnold's disappearance has been solved and that the family for some reason has kept the solution a secret.

"This is not true, for the disappearance of Dorothy is as much a mystery today as it was the day she disappeared more than ten years ago. There hasn't been the slightest clearing of the mystery."

Mr. Keith later wrote to Police Commissioner Enright protesting at Captain Ayers's statement. Captain Ayers afterward asserted that he had not been accurately quoted.

HANKOW ACCLAIMS BOLSHEVIST AGENT

City's Greatest Mass Meeting Honors Borodin, Adviser to Canton Government.

HE URGES RED REVOLUTION

Advises Unity, Banning Foreign Bank Notes and Breaking Foreign Treaties.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HANKOW, Dec. 12.—The greatest mass meeting ever seen in Hankow yesterday welcomed General Borodin, Bolshevist adviser to the Canton Government. It lasted five hours, during which he was addressed by labor leaders, merchants and students from three separate platforms.

On the main platform were General Borodin, Mrs. Sun Yat Sen and Sun Fo, widow and son of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, Eugene Chen, Canton Foreign Minister, and leading Nationalist Ministers.

General Borodin was the chief speaker. In excellent English he said the revolution is half completed, but that a very great task remained, namely, to unify the country under one revolutionary government and thus secure for the masses "better finances, more pay for the workers, less taxes and an improved trade."

There were, he said, difficult problems ahead in regard to labor and finances and the securing of independence. The Nationalist Government, which is moving to Wuchang, would, he said, prevent the people's capital from flowing out of the country, and it intends to make capital flow back to the Chinese by using their own capital to build railways and develop trade.

It intends to abolish paper money and foreign bank notes and "insure a sound financial position."

He urged the laborers to consolidate their unions, backed up by the Nationalist Government. He then called for a showing of hands in support of the revolution. The immense crowd was unanimous.

Against "Charter of Slavery."

Borodin declared his support of the Government would ensure its independence of the imperialists. It is impossible, he said, for the nation to progress until it is freed from imperialist oppression. The unequal treaties must be abrogated.

Finally, he urged his hearers to show their unity in order to help destroy the charter of Chinese poverty—the unequal treaties.

Altogether, thirty-three speeches were made, and of these twenty-eight were anti-British in tone. The vernacular press estimates that 300,000 persons were present.

There have been extraordinary changes here since the advent of the Cantonese. Virtually the entire working population of Hankow, Hankang and Wuchang has come under the control of some 260 labor unions formed in the past two months. These unions are affiliated with the General Labor Union, an aggressive extremist organization under the direction of the Political Bureau, which in turn is part of the headquarters staff of General Chiang Kai-shek, and stationed here for the express purpose of organizing labor agitation propaganda.

Laborers, in many cases, are reluctant to combine against their employers, but have been coerced or intimidated into joining the movement, it is charged.

There followed a succession of strikes for large increases in wages and degrees of control by the striking unions which, if accepted, would have left the employers almost without authority over their own business.

The effect upon trade and industry here has been disastrous and at one time it appeared as if the situation had got beyond the control of the civil authorities.

At this stage important Chinese commercial and financial interests addressed themselves to Chiang Kai-shek, pointing out that any further development of such a labor policy would result in the total paralysis of trade, and urging less force by the unions.

This appeal led to the appointment of a special commission representing all concerned to regulate the situation, and while strikes continue and unrest among laborers is still fomented, plain demands are not so insistent.

Cost of Living Soars.

Some consequences of this labor movement are instructive. The wages of all lower class workers have been increased by an average of about 50 per cent., the cost of living has gone up enormously, and the high charges of labor, it is alleged, have stifled enterprise and put large numbers out of work.

A concrete case is the cost of moving certain goods from Hankow across the Yangtze to Wuchang, a distance of three miles, which exceeds the freight charges on the same goods from New York to Shanghai.

One of the prime necessities of the new rulers is money, and all public and private enterprises have been taxed, the former by 20 per cent. and the latter by anything up to 75 per cent. A tax equaling an entire month's rent has been imposed on a house and other property, to be collected from the tenants or owners.

The confiscation of property owned by sympathizers of the previous régime has been colossal, it is asserted.

Armies on the Move in the North.

PEKING, Dec. 12 (AP).—The Kuominchun (People's Army), which has been partially eclipsed since the loss of Nankow Pass in August, has penetrated the Province of Shensi, driving back General Lieu Chen-hua, entered Honan Province at Tunghwan, and are advancing toward Shenchow, the terminus of the Lunghai railway.

Liu has asked fruitlessly for aid from Marshal Wu Pei-fu and General Yen Hsi-shan. He is now appealing to Marshal Chang Tso-lin.

Wu Pei-fu is helpless owing to insubordination in his ranks and Yen Hsi-shan is apparently unwilling to do more than defend his own Province of Shansi.

There is no reliable news of the Sianfu siege. There is reason to believe that it is still beleaguered, the Kuominchun invading Honan having advanced by the northerly route, while the Shensi unit still encircles suffering Sianfu.

Alarmed at the threat from the west, Anhuichun war lords (new Peking Alliance) are mobilizing at least 50,000 men from Manchuria along the Peking-Hankow line.

Chang Tso-lin is urging Wu Pei-fu to permit their entry into Honan. It is described as virtually an ultimatum to Wu to fight or make way for those who can.

Changchow, Honan, is thus the centre on which four advancing armies threaten to converge, the Kuominchun from the west, the Manchurians from the north, the Cantonese from the south and the Shantungese from the east.

General Chang Tsung-Chang's Shantungese in considerable strength are moving westward cautiously along the Lunghai Railroad.

SAYS OIL COMPANIES WILL OBEY IN MEXICO

Reputed Intermediary Asserts Most, if Not All, Will Comply With the Laws.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 12.—Robert Pesqueira, who flew from Mexico City to San Antonio, Texas, last week to meet oil men in conference there, issued a statement today in which he said that the majority, if not all, of the foreign oil companies operating in Mexico would comply with the alien land and petroleum laws, over which a controversy has arisen between Mexico and the United States.

Señor Pesqueira is regarded as an intermediary between the Calles Government and the oil men. He was agent for the Carranza Government.

The report persists here that the Mexican Government will suspend for several months the operation of the laws, which were slated to go into effect next month.

Friends of both Governments have been working along these lines in order to prevent a possible break in diplomatic relations.

A representative of one oil company said this evening that it was true that several companies had prepared to comply with the laws, but that they had not as yet signed the applications, though they were ready to do so at a moment's notice.

He said the American companies were waiting for the State Department to declare itself on whether it would protect them against the loss of their properties or merely advise them to use their own judgment. He said that if the State Department would guarantee them against loss, the companies would not denounce their rights, but that otherwise they would be forced to comply with the law to protect themselves.

GOUCHER EXPELS TWO GIRLS

They Violated "Social Code" of College Students' Organization.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 12.—Two students have been dropped from Goucher College for violation of the "social code" set up by the girls themselves and two others are to be similarly treated for cribbing in a recent examination, according to campus reports.

The Faculty declined to give the names of the girls expelled and the precise nature of their offenses. The expulsions were ordered by the Faculty following recommendations of the Executive Board of the students' organization.

AUSTRALIAN TOWNS FIGHT BUSH FIRES

Whole Population Turns Out in Many Places to Beat Back Flames 30 Feet High.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Dec. 12.—The great bush fires raging in New South Wales already have laid waste 250 square miles. While there have been heavy losses in grain, stock and grass, so far only one death has been reported.

The town of Marulan had a narrow escape from destruction. Flames swept toward the town from the forest. The whole male population fought doggedly to stem them, but were forced back. The streets grew hot and thick with smoke. Reinforcements were rushed from the nearest town. Women and children formed a second line of defense, carrying water and food to the fire-fighters all night long. The wind changed when the fire was at the edge of the town and saved the situation.

From Wellington it is reported that flames thirty feet high are racing over the country. At Albury, where 800 men are fighting the flames 10,000 bags of wheat and 100 miles of fencing have been destroyed. The whole population of Coollam are working to beat back the fire from the town. A magazine of explosives blew up, but the benzine store was saved.

Amateur Mathematician Asserts That He Has Solved Other Unanswered Problems.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—Ludovic Lepere, an amateur mathematician of Estres Saint Denis, today declared he had squared a circle and solved a number of other problems which have puzzled students of Euclid for centuries.

Other problems Lepere asserts he has solved include duplicating, triplicating, quintuplicating and septuplicating a cube and its reduction to one-half, one-quarter and three-quarters; trisecting angles; the multisection of line, circumference or angle in equal parts; peripheric squaring of a circle and direct superficial squaring of a circle.

Lepere has offered to make a public test of his system before a competent board of mathematicians.

PRINCE AT SPANISH BORDER

British Heir Spends Night at Perpignan on Way to Barcelona.

PERPIGNAN, France, Dec. 12 (AP).—The Prince of Wales, traveling incognito, stopped here over night while en route to Barcelona. This is the Prince's second visit to Spain within a few months.

Recently it was announced that the Prince of Wales would spend the Christmas holidays in Spain and an interesting rumor cropped out with the news of the impending visit.

This was that the Prince might become betrothed to Princess Beatrice, the 17-year-old daughter of the King of Spain. The report, however, was denied at the time.

The Prince, while in Spain, is expected to visit Madrid, Granada, Seville, Cordoba, Malaga and Gibraltar.

LAWRENCE ISSUES HIS ARABIAN BOOK

Abridged Edition of the Long-Awaited Volume Is in Hands of a Few Friends.

FIRST MANUSCRIPT STOLEN

Author Rewrote 400,000 Words, but Limited Circulation to Eight Copies at First.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The book relating the extraordinary adventures of an extraordinary man, Colonel Thomas E. Lawrence of Arabia, has at last been published. While awaited eagerly by two continents for six years, the book is now in the hands of only a few friends of Colonel Lawrence, who subscribed thirty guineas (about $156) per copy for it. No review copies have been sent to the newspapers, but the book is described in The London Times by D. G. Hogarth, the author of "The Penetration of Arabia."

Hogarth is a close friend of Colonel Lawrence's. He states that Lawrence agreed, just before his departure the other day for a long period of foreign service, to the publication of an abridged edition of his book, which he has named "Seven Pillars of Wisdom."

Colonel Lawrence first wrote the book in Emir Feisal's temporary home in Paris after both had withdrawn embittered from the Paris Peace Conference, because of its failure to modify the French plan for a mandate over Syria. After finishing the book, in which he tells the story of how he caused and led the Arab revolt against the Turks upon the promise of the Arab autonomy which the French refused to allow the Arabs to wholly realize, he returned to England. Leaving his satchel containing his manuscript notes and many illustrations unguarded for a moment at Reading Railway Station, it was stolen and was never recovered. For a time it was thought that the manuscript had been stolen for some definite purpose at the behest of persons interested, but it is now assumed that it was taken by a sneak thief.

Colonel Lawrence then rewrote his narrative in 400,000 words and had eight copies printed, of which four or possibly five remain. Twice he was induced to publish the book for wider circulation, but he packed out each time.

Finally, he consented to publish the present edition on the persuasion of the late Gertrude Bell of Arabian fame. Colonel Lawrence wished but few eyes to read his book, for a reason, so Hogarth says, apparent to those who obtained copies of the limited edition.

The book is said to be a marvel of typography and illustration. Under a subtitle, "An Arabian Epic," The London Times says of Lawrence's adventures:

"Of all the campaigns of war, none has been stranger or more picturesque than the struggle between a small group of Riffian leaders, with their fickle and uncertain tribal levies, and the armies of the Turk."

The most spectacular feat of Colonel Lawrence described in his book is his ride through enemy territory to stir up the tribesmen in Wadi-Sirhan and the capture of Akaba, which set the Arabs free of Turkish rule.

Another exciting incident is when Colonel Lawrence was almost killed when leading a camel charge against the Turks. He was saved from death by the body of his fallen camel. He also describes his adventures in wrecking railway trains, which earned for him the title among the Arabs of "Wrecker of Engines."

FRANCE HAS CLOSED CONSOLIDATION LOAN

Reaches 1,500,000,000 Francs, Caring for Maturity of 1922 Bonds in February.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—The French consolidation loan of 7 per cent., sinking fund, ten-year bonds, which was issued to replace the 6 per cent. 1922 bonds maturing next February, has closed after reaching approximately $1,500,000,000 francs, thus completely caring for maturity.

It is understood that next the consolidation loan offer by Premier Poincaré will be of the twenty-year sinking fund variety, but the details and the time of the new loan are still undetermined.

The Finance Minister has issued a decree announcing that no further national defense bonds of the one-month variety will be sold, but those outstanding may be continued from month to month. One-month bonds are officially considered highly undesirable because in the past they have often forced the Government to borrow many hundreds of millions of francs from the Bank of France at clearing periods.

The public favors these bonds because of their liquidity. There are several billions of one-month bonds now outstanding.

PLAN TO JOIN STEEL TRUST.

Czechs, Austrians and Hungarians Ask Time to Study Effects.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—It is learned today that the Czechoslovakian, Austrian and Hungarian steel men have virtually adhered to the European trust, representatives of the industry in these countries merely asking for a short delay in which to familiarize themselves with the statutes of the cartel and their effect on production, sales, &c.

The basis on which the tentative agreement was reached was that adherence would be accepted for a theoretical annual output at the actual rate of production during the first quarter of the present year. Some minor readjustments are contemplated, however, in view of the fact that the period chosen cannot be considered normal for each candidate concerned.

Although no official discussion has been opened on the subject, it is understood that unofficial conversations have been held regarding ways and means by which the British steelmakers might join the trust. British representatives are said to have participated in these talks.

The Poles, it is learned, have asked to be excused until they have had time to organize their steel firms nationally.

The conference now going on here is regarded as an important step toward bringing a majority of the European producers into the trust.

DEFINITION OF LUNACY URGED BY CHESTERTON

He Suggests, in Criticizing New Bill, That Cabinet Seat Disturbs Mental Equilibrium.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—G. K. Chesterton in a letter to the London Times says that if the House of Commons passes the new Mental Deficiency bill, which will bring within its scope "all cases of mental deficiency whether innate or induced after birth by disease, injury or other causes," he will suggest that seat on the ministerial benches of the House of Commons "is a bodily accident from which the mind seems never to recover entirely."

Like H. G. Wells and many other writers, Mr. Chesterton is interested in lunacy reform, but he objects to the new bill because he says it goes further even than the previous bill passed in 1913 in "the introduction of laxity in the definition of lunacy."

Mr. Chesterton believes the old law was "a scheme to impose legal segregation, control and loss of citizenship, which are tragic consequences of lunacy, on a very large class of people who are not lunatics." He believes individual liberties should be restricted only for obvious cases of insanity and not where "lunacy" may be only eccentricity. Of himself he recently remarked that his magazine failed because the public got the idea that it was run by a lunatic.

One interesting feature of the old lunacy law apparently unchanged in the new bill is a clause under which an escaped lunatic who evades capture for a short period can only be recommitted by another legal process. Often such fugitives retain their freedom. An incident came to light recently when it was noticed that one of the horses in a race was named "Escaped Lunatic." Asked the reason for this name the owner replied that he himself was an escaped lunatic.

Cries of "Long Live Christ!" Fill Church—Troops Line Roads, but Crowd Is Orderly.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 12 (AP).—Mexico's great holy day, commemorating the traditional appearance of the country's patroness, the Virgin of Guadalupe, to a poor Indian four centuries ago, was observed solemnly throughout the country today.

Although for the first time in history this shrine of the Blessed Virgin, like all Catholic Churches in Mexico, was without services by priests, she was honored by probably the largest crowd ever gathered in her name in Guadalupe, a little town about two and one-half miles from Mexico City.

More than 100,000 congregated peacefully at the shrine, and some estimates of the crowd exceed twice that number. The majority were Indian pilgrims from all parts of the republic, but there was an unusually large number from the upper classes.

The crowds were so great that the custom of crawling upon the knees along the roads approaching the church and advancing prostrate within it was prohibited by the Catholic laymen serving as volunteer directors, because this would have blocked the already densely congested traffic and prevented many from even getting near the church.

From long before dawn until late at night an unceasing procession, jamming the church to its utmost capacity, wound its way past the shrine. Constantly chanting as they passed along, often a thunderous chorus of voices shouted praises of the pilgrims' religion.

Roads Are Choked for Miles.

Above this unceasing chant of thousands, one of the throng would cry: "Viva Christo Rey!" (Long live Christ, the King!) The great building would reverberate with an answering roar of "Viva Christo Rey!"

"Viva Papa!" (Long live the Pope!) the voice would repeat, and again would come a ringing repetition from the multitude. Similar tributes would follow for the Catholic Church, the Archbishop of Mexico and the Virgin of Guadalupe.

Outside the church every road and trail was packed for miles with pilgrims coming and going. Many of them had tramped great distances across the freezing mountain passes by night and under the blistering sun by day.

Extraordinarily thorough precautions to prevent disorders had been taken by the authorities. Soldiers and police lined the highways, with heavy reserves stationed at every crossing. Every man and every automobile approaching Guadalupe was searched for arms.

Indian Dances Held All Day.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 12.—A picturesque feature of Guadalupe Day were the native dances performed by Indians, which continues all day in the gardens a few blocks from the shrine of Guadalupe.

In one dance about 100 Indians took part. They were divided into three groups. The Indians wore different colored plumes in their headdresses to indicate the villages from which they came.

The most striking dance was one in which forty men and women took part. All were dressed in gaily colored costumes. The men wore buckskin garments, with large, beaded eagles embroidered on the front and back of their buckskin shirts, long stripes of fur, beads and seashells decorated the legs of their buckskin trousers. They wore moccasins embroidered with red and blue beads and highly ornate headdresses.

MEXICO KEEPS SILENT ON NICARAGUAN CHARGE

Rebel Government Sends Its Thanks to Calles Ministry for Its Recognition.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 12.—Mexican Government officials continued silent today on the charges made by President Diaz of Nicaragua in a manifesto issued yesterday in which Señor Diaz charged that Mexican Government officials were outfitting a military expedition to aid the Liberal revolutionaries in their attempt to overthrow his Government.

The Foreign Office last night characterized the charges as "too absurd" for official comment and this is the only statement so far forthcoming from Government circles.

Rodolfo Espinosa, Foreign Minister in the Liberal Revolutionary Government under "Constitutional" President Obregon, which Mexico has recognized, has sent to Aaron Saenz, Foreign Minister of Mexico, a message, thanking this country for its recognition.

Excerpts from the message follow:

"Your Excellency will recall that on Jan. 19 your Government, in withdrawing its legation from Managua in obdience to its principles of not recognizing Governments originating in violence, declared that it reserved the right to renew relations with Nicaragua when constitutional order was reestablished.

"My Government deeply appreciates the upright and just attitude of your Government, by which it has shown respect for the rights of Nicaragua and the disinteredness of the great and noble Mexican people. The people of Nicaragua received the news of your recognition with great enthusiasm and profound gratitude.

"Permit me to state that I consider the renewal of relations as a happy circumstance increasing the fraternal bonds which have always held our nations together."

CIVIL EMPLOYES 4,013 LESS.

Commission Reports That There Are 560,705 in the Federal Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP).—There was a reduction of 4,013 in the number of persons employed in the Government's civil service last year, leaving 560,705 in the service on the lists, the Civil Service Commission said yesterday in its annual report.

The number of women was 79,758, a reduction of 2,432, but, while their total decreased, women were found in increasing numbers in administrative and other responsible positions.

Placing under the classified service Presidential positions which are non-policy determining, such as collectors of customs and internal revenue and postmasters, and dispensing with confirmation by the Senate and the four-year term of office, was recommended and legislation was urged to place future prohibition employes in the classified service.

FALL AND SINCLAIR TO PLEAD FRIDAY

With Doheny Case Expected to Go to Jury Wednesday, Counsel Prepare Teapot Dome Trial.

WITNESSES ABROAD SOUGHT

Prosecution Will Invoke Walsh Law for Oil Deal Testimony of Blackmer and O'Neill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The Fall-Doheny trial, which may come to an end during the coming week, will be followed soon by the "Teapot Dome" conspiracy case, which some consider of even greater importance than the Elk Hills case now nearing conclusion.

One of the defendants in the next trial will be former Secretary Albert B. Fall, who with Edward L. Doheny has been under trial in the District Supreme Court for the past three weeks on a conspiracy charge in connection with the California oil lease. The other defendant will be Harry F. Sinclair, President of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation and of the Mammoth Oil Company.

Messrs. Fall and Sinclair are to be arraigned on Friday before Justice Bailey of the District Supreme Court. This action results from the refusal of the United States Supreme Court last week to review the Teapot Dome case on a writ of certiorari.

The attorneys for the Government in all the oil cases will make their plans to begin the formal trial of the next case early next year, probably not later than Jan. 15.

Elk Hills Evidence Completed.

Only arguments and Justice Hoehling's charge to the jury remain to complete the Fall-Doheny trial. Wednesday afternoon at the latest is when the jury is expected to receive the case and determine its verdict. Both prosecution and defense announced yesterday that they had no further evidence to offer.

In the Teapot Dome trial the Government will seek to bring certain witnesses from abroad under the Walsh law enacted at the last session of Congress. This statute provides that subpoenas in court proceedings might be served through the American consulates. Those who are called but refuse to come back would be in danger of having the Government take over their property in this country up to a value of $100,000.

It is charged that at least $230,500 was the sum involved in the alleged conspiracy, although an amount of $232,500 is alleged to have been traced by Government agents to the account of Mr. Fall's son-in-law, Milton Eberhardt of Pueblo, Col.

Bond Deal Point to be Pressed.

The Government will endeavor to prove that he cashed Liberty Bonds at the Belmont Hotel, New York City, and obtained the money, and that this money was eventually traced to the account of Mr. Fall in El Paso.

In the background of this case lies the story of the alleged organization and disposition of the Continental Trading Company by Mr. Sinclair, Colonel Harry Stewart, Chairman of the Board, and James O'Neill, of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company; H. M. Blackmer, former Chairman of the Board of the Midwest Refining Company, which operated in the Teapot Dome lease territory, and H. M. Osler.

The Government will allege that transactions in oil were manipulated for a profit which, at a "skim-off" of 25 cents a barrel, netted them $2,000,000. It is alleged that the amounts, said to have been traced to Mr. Fall's account, came from this sum.

The two witnesses abroad are Messrs. Blackmer and O'Neill, said now to be in France.

LUTHERANS DEDICATE RADIO PLANT AT ITHACA

Dr. Trexler, in Dedication, Condemns Jazz as Unworthy of Wireless Invention.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 12.—Jazz orchestras and ukele choruses were an unworthy outcome of the painstaking work of sincere students for thousands of years in the realm of science which has resulted in the modern radio, the Rev. Dr. Samuel Trexler of New York City declared this morning in dedicating the exclusively Lutheran Radio Station on the top of the chapel outside the entrance to Cornell University campus, which Dr. Trexler's synod recently built at a cost of almost $200,000. The station has been licensed as WLCI, Lutheran Church of Ithaca, with a wave length of 266 meters. It was the gift of W. L. Beresford of Detroit, a student at Cornell.

Dr. Trexler was assisted in the dedication ceremony by the Rev. Dr. William M. Horn, chaplain for the Lutheran students in Cornell and pastor of the chapel. Hereafter Dr. Horn's Sunday morning and evening sermon will be broadcast. There are only two other Lutheran stations in the country, at Valparaiso College, Ind., and Concordia College, St. Louis.

"Among the startling discoveries of the present day there is none that so challenges the imagination as that of the radio," said Dr. Trexler. "Its universal use robs people of the thrill that should constantly surround it.

"The tragedy in this marvelous opportunity is that which relates to much that is bestowed upon man. He allows it to degenerate. Much of the music that comes through these weird avenues is merely that which panders to his lower nature; and many of the messages that load the ether are trivial and unworthy. The painstaking work of sincere students for thousands of years, the vast area of accurate scientific research, the investment of capital to the value of many millions of dollars—all this finally results in the jazz orchestra or a ukulele chorus. It is the mountain laboring to bring forth the mouse."

FAMOUS TAPESTRIES PRESENTED TO YALE

E. S. Harkness Gives to University Elihu Yale Chinoiseries Woven About 1700.

IN ENGLISH HOME 225 YEARS

They Were Made by the Royal Weaver, Vanderbank, From Indo-Chinese Scenes.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 13.—The tapestries of Elihu Yale have passed into the possession of the university which was named for him, as a gift from Edward S. Harkness of New York City. The $500,000 Yale Theatre, which was opened Friday night, was the gift of Mr. Harkness, and the Harkness Memorial Dormitories, across York Street from the theatre, and the Gutenberg Bible, which was given to Yale last Winter, are other bequests from members of the Harkness family.

The tapestries, generally considered the most important group of English Chinoiseries known to exist, came from the collection of the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Guilford at Glemham, Suffolk, England. They were woven about 1700 by John Vanderbank, and depict Indo-Chinese subjects.

In 1652, when Elihu Yale was 4 years old, his parents returned from America to England. At the age of 24 he went to India in the service of the East India Company, and gradually rose until he became Governor of Madras. He returned to London in 1699 and, having amassed a large fortune, lived there in princely style, and was noted for his great liberality. It was his contributions of books, art objects and money at about this time to the "Collegiate School," which had been founded at Saybrook, Conn., that later caused the school to be named Yale College. He married the widow of the previous Governor of Madras and left three daughters, the eldest of whom married Dudley North, son of Baron Guilford, and was the owner of the tapestries which have now come to Yale, and which remained in the family for over 225 years.

The weaver, Vanderbank, was the foremost weaver of his day, and designed tapestries after the first Chinese lacquer screens, which began coming to England in the latter part of the seventeenth century. In 1689 Vanderbank was appointed "Royal Yeoman Arras Worker," and the following year he made on the royal looms for the Crown four pieces of fine hangings in the Indian manner. They were made for the Withdrawing Room at Kensington Palace and have since disappeared. The Yale tapestries also were woven on the royal looms.

Two of the tapestries now are hanging on the walls of the Yale University Theatre. The largest is on the right wall. It is known as "The Concert," and is 17 feet 9 inches wide by 10 feet high.

Another of the set, "The Promenade," hangs in the Memorial Room of the Memorial Quadrangle. This panel is 8 feet 4 inches wide and 11 feet high.

Glemham Hall, Suffolk, where the Yale tapestries hung for over two centuries, was built in Tudor times. About the end of the seventeenth century Glemham was sold to Dudley North, a son of the second Baron Guilford and husband of Catherine, eldest daughter and co-heir of Elihu Yale. When the property was sold by the Earl of Guilford, the tapestries left the old home they had adorned since the marriage of Elihu Yale's daughter, and finally were brought to the land of his birth, where they were secured by Mr. Harkness and presented to Yale University.

THE UNION of two old and influential banks places at the command of every important business center of Greater New York . . . . .

AN INSTITUTION which takes high rank among the great banks of the world in resources, facilities and quality of its service

THE American Exchange Irving Trust Company, in opening its doors for business this morning, is new in name but old in experience and in traditions of service.

It inherits an outstanding record—the American Exchange dating back to 1838 and the Irving to 1851—covering more than three generations that have witnessed the development of New York from a provincial city into a world center of trade and finance, and of the United States from a struggling nation into a leader in the commerce and industry of the world.

At every step in this extraordinary development, as the demand has arisen, capital and resources have been enlarged, facilities multiplied and services extended to meet the constantly growing requirements of American business.

WITH its larger capital, surplus and undivided profits of $60,000,000, its larger resources of more than $600,000,000, and its 25 Banking Offices conveniently distributed throughout Greater New York, the American Exchange Irving Trust Company thus makes an important step forward in accord with the traditions of its parent institutions and with the present trend in business and banking.

The institution at a glance

25 conveniently located offices

Capital, surplus and undivided profits, $60,000,000

Total resources, more than $600,000,000

Each of the 25 Banking Offices, with its local management and staff, is thoroughly familiar with the business requirements of the neighborhood served. Each provides a complete banking service, including Loans, Foreign Exchange, Trusts and Custody of Securities, with all the experience, strength and resources of the entire institution.

She and Her Son Slightly Hurt in Atlantic City — Other Accidents.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Dec. 12.—Two persons were killed and four injured, one seriously, early this morning when the car of Samuel Hirsch, 29 years old, of this city, returning from Elizabeth sideswiped a truck on the Lincoln Highway.

Hirsch, who was driving, and William J. Murray, 23, of 115 Bayard Street, were almost instantly killed. John Healey of 1,115 Bayard Street is in St. Peter's Hospital suffering from a broken leg and arm and internal injuries. Mrs. Hirsch and Mrs. Murray were patients in the hospital suffering from injuries.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 12.—Evelyn Nesbit, divorced wife of Harry K. Thaw, and her son, Russell Thaw, narrowly escaped death or serious injury last night when a large roadster driven by Russell jumped a curb and crashed into a light standard at Indiana and Arctic Avenue in avoiding a collision with another car. Both mother and son were shaken and bruised, as was another youth named Ross who was with them.

Two firemen and a taxicab driver were injured last night when a cab, operated by Frederick Quinos of 228 East Ninety-ninth Street collided with Hook and Ladder 130 at Lenox Avenue and 135th Street. Firemen John Ruane and Joseph A. Healey with Quinos were taken to the Harlem Hospital for treatment for cuts and bruises. Quinos was held on a charge of felonious assault. Three occupants of the taxicab were shaken up.

Mary McGrath, 22, of 5 Orchard Place, Bronxville, was killed yesterday when the automobile in which she was riding skidded near the Tuckahoe Village line and struck a telegraph pole.

operated by Herbert Kruttschnitt at Springfield Avenue and Harrison Place when Mr. Kruttschnitt was apprehended in the sale of gasoline.

"Why don't you arrest them?" asked Mr. Kruttschnitt, pointing at the reporters. "They're working, too."

"Are you working?" a policeman asked sternly, although doubtfully.

"Yes, sir," answered the culprits.

And they were arrested on their own confessions. The men were stubborn about putting up $3 to assuage the dignity of the Commonwealth, but Miss Spitzer pleaded with suspicious tears that she needed her $2 to "provide food for her dear old mother." There were suspicious tears in the eyes of the police, too, but they took her and the men to the jail, where Jailer Frank Vogler deprived the men of belts, neckties, knives and other articles which might serve suicidal purposes. All these were returned when they were released.

Prepared for Arrests.

The Public Service Corporation expected the drivers of trolleys to be arrested, so they provided each car with an extra motorman. When the regular operator was arrested the car went on in charge of the second man, who remained on duty until the first man had put up the $2 bond and returned to work.

Conrad Pfeiffer of 95 South Twenty-first Street, Irvington, was arrested while playing a violin in the Elks Club after he had confessed he was "fiddling for merriment." Conrad Roch Jr., Socialist candidate for Mayor in the last election, and President of the East End Pinochle Club, was forced to leave a game in which the spades were running freely until he could post $2 at Police Headquarters. J. G. Logan, owner of a gasoline station at 1,148 Springfield Avenue, asked for a moment's delay when the police came for him, and he hung up a sign informing prospective patrons he would return as soon as he had visited Police Headquarters for violation of the blue law.

But there were limits to police interference. They were the sales of newspapers and milk and the performance of weddings. Chief of Police Thomas Kirkbride was asked if he would stop a wedding set for the evening.

"No," he replied. "I wouldn't stop a wedding for any law in the land."

The "Blue Law Sundae."

This evening all the confectioners and druggists who were arrested were displaying signs advertising a new ice cream on sale for the first time. It was called a blue law sundae.

Mr. Biro, who will meet the Ministerium Wednesday afternoon to discuss the Blue Law, said tonight he was satisfied that the blue law could not be enforced with the present police force and that this leads to discrimination.

"We want fair play," he said. "Either full enforcement of the law or non-interference with innocent violators."

What woman ever has enough!

FRANKLY, it isn't as difficult to select an appropriate gift for a woman as you may imagine during these hectic weeks of uninspired thought and tyrannical perplexity. Really, it's absurdly simple.

For women the wide world over are partial to Peck & Peck's sheer silk stockings, and never can have too many pairs of them.

They are stockings truly bewitching, tantalizingly diaphanous, flawlessly fine . . . stockings you can give without the least misgiving . . . stockings she will wear with great and pardonable pride.

They may be had, too, at modest prices . . . the all-silk Vanise at $2, the Princess at $3, the Queen Victoria at $4.50, the Queen Victoria Fine at $5, the new chiffon Fiesta at $3.75 and the La Seine, with a net of exquisite mesh, at $4.50 the pair.

Truly, silk stockings so fine are the ideal solution for the gift problem—this year or any year.

TWO AIRMEN FALL, ONE IN THE OCEAN

But Latter Swims to Shore at Rockaway Beach—Neither Is Injured.

WAR HERO IN FIRST CRASH

Captain Brady Forced to Descend in Fog on Long Island—Lieut. Aldsworth in Second Mishap.

Two army aviators, one a hero of the World War, crashed within eighteen hours of each other, three miles apart, on Long Island. Neither was injured, but one plane, a $22,000 pursuit machine, was a total loss.

The first flier to fall was Captain Francis M. Brady, one-time Columbia athlete, who went into the army as a machine gunner when the United States entered the war and won a chest full of medals when by his incredible valor he saved his detachment from annihilation. His family live here, but he is attached to the Air Corps Training School at Langley Field, Virginia.

Captain Brady flew up to New York Friday on a week-end visit. Accompanying him was Corporal Charles E. Powers. Late in the afternoon he was hopping the coast, preparatory to flying inland to Mitchel Field at Garden City, when a heavy ground fog rolled in over Long Beach. Brady circled in, but the fog completely hid all landing marks at Garden City and he could not make a landing. He flew back to the shore and tried to retrace his course, but again the fog was too heavy. He flew to Jamaica and then tried to find his way to Mitchel Field over the familiar course.

Presently an hour he manoeuvred without success, and finally headed for Miller Field, Staten Island. His gasoline was running low, however, and he was compelled to make a forced landing in the dark on the beach at the foot of Fifty-fourth Street, Edgemere, Queens. He glided down safely on the narrow strip of sand and would have come to rest without accident within fifty feet, but his plane struck two posts hidden in the dusk, and crashed the wings. Captain Brady and Corporal Powers climbed out unharmed and reported to Mitchel Field.

Yesterday morning Captain Brady was discussing his crash with First Lieut. Richard Aldsworth, also of the school at Langley Field, who had come here to take charge of a three-mile-a-minute fighting plane constructed for the army at the Curtiss plant. Aldsworth climbed into the plane, waved good-bye and flew off for Langley Field.

Soon after he started, however, his plane developed engine trouble, and he, too, was forced to come down. His plane struck the water fifty feet out, tipped over on its nose as the wings struck, and for a minute Lieutenant Aldsworth was pinned down in the water. He extricated himself and swam to shore.

It was said at Mitchel Field last night that Lieutenant Aldsworth's plane was ruined.

MORE TICKET FACILITIES.

Convenience Sought in Improvements at Pennsylvania Station.

William Pedrick Jr., general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad in New York City, announced yesterday the completion of extensive improvements at the Pennsylvania Station, making possible new and much more convenient methods of selling railroad tickets and assigning Pullman space.

Under the new plan patrons desiring to buy both railroad and Pullman tickets can now obtain them from one ticket seller. Formerly a traveler bought a railroad ticket at one window and a Pullman ticket at another. The newly adopted "universal" ticket selling plan means more speed and also provides for anticipated expansion.

Singer, 105, Prepares Dinner Recital

Chaim Rothstein, the 105-year-old singing inmate of the Home of the Daughters of Jacob, 167th Street and Findlay Avenue, held his first rehearsal yesterday afternoon for his appearance tomorrow evening at the $50 plate anniversary dinner of that institution, at the Hotel Astor. The dinner will commemorate the thirtieth anniversary of the founding of the institution and will open its campaign for $100,000 for improvements.

SMITH MAY DARE SENATE.

Chicago Hears Gov. Small Will Name Him for McKinley's Place.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—Reports from down State are that Colonel Frank L. Smith, elected United States Senator in November, will be appointed by Governor Small early this week to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator William B. McKinley.

Colonel Smith, according to his friends, wants the appointment now, so that he can face any efforts that may be made to bar him as unfit. He is represented as feeling, that unless he is appointed now the impression will be given that he has been repudiated by his own State and that if he were to refuse the appointment he would be looked on as a coward.

His friends have been canvassing leaders of both parties in Washington and are said to have given assurances to the Senator-elect that he will be seated despite the charges made against him.

LAWYERS ANNOUNCE JEWISH FUND GIFTS

$225,000 Donations Reported at Dinner to Sol M. Stroock, New Head of Federation.

COLLEAGUES EXTOL HIM

Louis Marshall in Address, Says Federation Must Change Methods in Raising Funds.

Contributions of $225,000 to the $4,720,000 fund being sought by the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies in its tenth annual campaign were announced by the lawyers' division of the campaign at a dinner last night in honor of Sol M. Stroock upon his election as President of the federation. The dinner was held at the Hotel Astor. Six hundred were present.

Max D. Steuer presided and tributes were paid to Mr. Stroock as a lawyer and leader in communal activities. Judge Benjamin N. Cardozo, Chief Justice-elect of the Court of Appeals; Supreme Court Justice Joseph M. Proskauer, Federal Judge Julian W. Mack, Louis Marshall and Julius Rosenwald of Chicago spoke.

After Mr. Steuer had introduced Louis Marshall as the "youngest and most energetic Jewish member of the American bar," and as one who was worth hearing "even when he scolds," Mr. Marshall said:

"I am not going to scold tonight, except in one thing. You have got to change your methods of raising funds."

He said it was "absurd" for the Federation to take weeks to raise the money it needs for its constituent charities because, he added, 75 per cent. of the fund was "raised in advance," leaving only about $1,500,000 to be obtained by a large campaign force. Mr. Marshall was congratulated on the occasion of his seventieth birthday.

Judge Cardozo, in an appeal for the Federation, described the three sections of the wall of lamentations in Jerusalem, one built by the rich, one by the artisans and one by the poor, and said the last was the only one left standing.

"And it seems," he added, "that the sacrifices of the poor are really the things that will count when the time comes for a divine reckoning."

Additional gifts to the federation's fund for the support of ninety-one affiliated charity and welfare agencies include the following:

Mr. and Mrs. Sol M. Stroock, $4,750; Louis Samter Levy, $4,000; Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Moses, $4,000; Mr. and Mrs. Moses J. Stroock, $3,500; I. Gainsburg, $2,000; George W. Newgass, $1,500; Henry F. Wolff, $1,750; Walter M. Mayer and Joseph M. Proskauer, $1,500 each; Frederick Loss, $1,100; Julius H. Zieser, $1,050; Otto Horwitz, Judge Samson Lachman, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. DR. REISNER INJURED IN COASTING ACCIDENT

Receives Cut in the Ankle and Bruises When Hit by an Auto That Drives On.

The Rev. Christian F. Reisner, rector of the Chelsea M. E. Church and founder of the Broadway Temple, spent yesterday in the Lutheran Hospital recovering from the effects of a coasting accident Saturday evening on a hill near 245th Street and Waldo Avenue, the Bronx.

Dr. Reisner finished preparing his sermon early in the evening and was invited by his young son and some friends to go coasting. About 11 o'clock he was riding down the hill alone on a sled, when a closed automobile, which later disappeared, struck him. He was taken to the home of Frederick Kraft, a trustee of the Broadway Temple, who lives in 245th Street, and Dr. Franklin Welker of the Lutheran Hospital was called. After treatment for a gash in the ankle and bruises, Dr. Reisner was removed to the hospital, where an X-ray was taken. No bones were found to be broken.

H. M. Daniel, another trustee of the church, who lives at 700 West 179th Street, was also in the coasting party. He said that a man and woman occupied the automobile, and that it drove off shortly after the accident. The driver of the car did not report to the police.

NEW HOPE FOR CONVICT.

Patterson to Ask New Trial on Doomed Man's Confession.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., Dec. 12.—Victor Patterson, who is serving a fifteen-year term in Sing Sing Prison for robbery, learned today of the assertion of John Maxwell just before he was put to death in the electric chair on Thursday night that he and not Patterson had committed the Brooklyn hold-up for which Patterson was sentenced.

Patterson was jubilant and made arrangements to ask his counsel to try to reopen his case. It was also reported that the Rev. Father John J. McCaffrey, Chaplain at the prison, in whose presence Maxwell made the statement exonerating Patterson, would go to Brooklyn tomorrow to present the Maxwell affidavit to District Attorney Dodd and to confer with him and Judge Franklin Taylor, who sentenced Patterson.

Maxwell, with two others, was put to death for killing a woman in another Brooklyn hold-up.

31 HELD AS SHOPLIFTERS.

Bail for 26 Women and 5 Men Totals $15,500—84 Arrests in Day.

Twenty-six women and five men were arraigned in Jefferson Market Court on charges of shoplifting yesterday as a result of the activities of store detectives in the Herald Square shopping district Saturday. They were all held by Magistrate George W. Simpson for trial in Special Sessions, in bail aggregating $15,500. This is the largest number of arraignments for shoplifting in one day this season.

A canvass of store detectives who were in court revealed that eighty-four alleged shoplifters were arrested Saturday and that more than half of them were permitted to go free by store officials. A number of children were detected in the act of slipping toys into their clothing, the detectives said. All were released in the custody of their parents.

Many offenders, the detectives said, are salesgirls in the department stores, who go into neighboring stores to pick up articles after leaving their own counters.

SEEK SKYSCRAPERS' EFFECT

42d St. Property Owners Study Bearing on Subway Congestion.

The discovery of the effect of skyscraper construction upon congestion in subway stations in the district between Thirtieth and Sixtieth Streets is being sought by the "Mid-Manhattan Survey," being conducted under the direction of the Forty-second Street Property Owners and Merchants Association and a committee of citizens of which Arthur Williams, Vice President, Public Relations of the New York Edison Company, is Chairman. Findings will be placed before municipal authorities for use in framing zoning laws.

"Current disputes as to whether our subway congestion is caused by building construction," declared Edward W. Forrest, Secretary of the Forty-second Street Property Owners and Merchants Association, "are purposeless. Nobody questions the fact that settled skyscraper communities contribute more to traffic flow than districts with low-storied buildings. What is important is the exact effect upon transit of new buildings as they are opened. This can be measured.

"The Mid-Manhattan Survey hopes to produce formulae which will show, first, the length of time in which the construction of a new skyscraper reaches its maximum effect upon transit congestion and, second, the degree of this effect. It is probable that there will be separate formulae for different kinds of structures, such as apartment-hotels and office buildings. Formulae are likely to vary according to neighborhood."

Polish Rabbi Blesses Orphans.

One hundred and fifty children received the blessing of Chief Rabbi Shapira of Pictrokow, a member of the Polish Parliament, yesterday at the Israel Orphan Asylum, 274 East Second Street, of which Judge Gustave Hartman is the founder. "It is fitting," he said, "that at the head of the orphaned children, left in the world without a guiding hand, should be, as is brought out in the Talmud, a judge." The children sang for the rabbi songs in ancient Hebrew.

32 MEN ELECTED RHODES SCHOLARS

American Students Chosen for Three Years' Study in Oxford University.

WILL ENTER NEXT OCTOBER

Each Receives $400 a Year and Makes His Own Choice of Subjects Studied.

SWARTHMORE, Pa., Dec. 12 (AP).—Results of the annual election of Rhodes scholars held yesterday in thirty-two states were announced today by President Frank Aydelotte of Swarthmore College, American Secretary to the Rhodes trustees. The scholars elected will enter Oxford in October, 1927.

Rhodes scholars are chosen on the three-fold basis of intellectual ability and attainments, qualities of character, including public spirit and leadership, and interest in many outdoor sports. An appointment carries with it a stipend of $400 a year for three years for study at the University of Oxford. No restriction is placed upon a Rhodes scholar's choice of studies.

For the thirty-two scholarships available in the United States this year there were 372 candidates. The list of 1927 scholars elected, subject to confirmation by the Rhodes trustees, with the States and colleges which they represent is as follows:

Alabama—R. H. BAUGH JR., Tuscaloosa; University of Alabama.
Arizona—JOHN E. MECK, 705 N. 2d St., Tucson; University of Arizona.
Arkansas—SAMUEL A. McCAIN, Sigma Alpha Epsilon House, Lexington; Washington and Lee University.
California—ROBERT P. HELBRON, 280 So. Madison Avenue, Pasadena, Cal.; University of California.

STATE DRY OPTION IS PLAN OF LAGUARDIA

He Will Offer Resolution in House Today for Amendment to the Constitution.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Representative LaGuardia of New York said tonight that he would offer a resolution in the House tomorrow to amend the Constitution to permit the respective States to define the alcoholic content of liquors, in accordance with suggestions made by many wets in different parts of the country. His resolution reads:

JOINT RESOLUTION

proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled (two-thirds of each House concurring therein), That the following amendment be, and hereby is, proposed to the States to become valid as a part of the Constitution when ratified by the Legislatures of the several States as provided by the Constitution:

Section 1.—The Congress shall have power to regulate the manufacture, sale, transportation, import and export of intoxicating beverages, reserving to the respective States the right to fix the alcoholic content of such beverages.

Section 2. The Congress shall fix the minimum alcoholic content of non-intoxicating beverages and any State fixing a greater alcoholic content than such minimum shall do so only under such laws, rules and regulations as Congress shall make and under such conditions as Congress shall impose to protect and guarantee other States adopting the minimum alcoholic content fixed by Congress from importations, sale and traffic of such intoxicating beverages from such State.

"Just as New York, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania desire a modification of the law, so States like Iowa, Kansas and many others desire the continuance of prohibition," Mr. LaGuardia said. "Any change in the law must therefore take in consideration the desire and wishes of the dry States and protect them against any importation of liquor or disturbance in their prohibition policy from States desiring to change under the constitutional amendment which I have introduced."

The world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos are subjected to a costly extra process, toasting, which gives:

1. Finer Flavor. Toasting for 45 minutes develops the hidden flavors of the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos.
2. Smoothness. Toasting for 45 minutes removes all "bite" and harshness, hence never any throat irritation.
3. Freshness. Then the tobacco is suddenly chilled. This seals the flavor in and insures constant freshness.

The toasting process adds a unique and distinct improvement to a cigarette that has already been made from the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged and blended with great skill. It is the reason millions prefer Lucky Strikes.

BIBLES PRESENTED TO HOTEL MANGER

Hymns Are Sung in Lobby as 1,250 Copies Are Given for Distribution in Rooms.

GUESTS JOIN IN CEREMONY

Dr. Carter, in Address, Tells of the New York Society's Work—Manager Gets Special Volume.

There was sudden silence yesterday afternoon in the great lobby of the new Hotel Manger, Seventh Avenue and Fiftieth Street, when the ceremony began of presenting 1,250 Bibles to the hotel, one for each room of the completed building. All day the Bibles had been stacked in the form of a huge cross in the right wing of the lobby.

Guests who were at the desk to register dropped their pens, bellboys dropped their baggage, clerks paused in their work and elevator men left their cars.

After the ceremony, which consisted of obeisances, hymn singing and prayer, the bellboys began distributing the Bibles, which were presented by the New York Bible Society, and by midnight there was a Bible in every room.

The presentation was made by the Rev. Dr. George William Carter, general secretary of the society, and the acceptance by William E. Stenman, manager of the hotel. Prayer was offered by the Rev. Dr. Edgar Tilton Jr., pastor of the Harlem Reformed Church. Dr. Carter also presented a specially bound volume with gold-edged leaves to Mr. Stenman. This part of the program was applauded by the bellboys.

In his address Dr. Carter said: "The work of the New York Bible Society began in 1809, 117 years ago this August. The aim was to provide a Bible for all classes and types of people of every race and creed. In the late '30s an appeal came to the society to supply Bibles for the guest rooms of the city hotels, which were then neither large nor numerous. A report of 1838 records the fact that in that year, eighty-eight years ago, nearly 3,000 Bibles were provided for the hotels of this city. This work of furnishing Bibles for the hotels always has been a part of the society's enlarging responsibilities.

"There are over 600,000 strangers in New York hotels every day. Many of them are perplexed, lonely, sorrowful and tired. Coming into the strange room of a hotel in this great crowded city, most of them have nothing to read and nothing to do. They find in the room nothing to read excepting this book, the Bible. The effect of this book has always been to restrain from sin and to inspire to goodness. It has given cheer, comfort and fresh courage to many a lonely stranger. It has carried the message of God's love to the disconsolate, inspiring hope and noble life.

"To we dedicate these Bibles—the word of God—to their mission of love and blessing. We look to the Divine Spirit to make the words of the book living and powerful unto those who may open its pages."

MRS. CHAPLIN MAY ASK CHURCH ANNULMENT

She Will Decide Later, She Says, Whether to Apply to Rome in Her Marital Trouble.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 12.—The possibility that Mrs. Lita Grey Chaplin will follow the lead of the former Consuelo Vanderbilt and of Gugielmo Marconi and apply for a Church annulment of her marriage to the screen comedian was expressed by Mrs. Chaplin tonight.

"I know of my rights, such as an appeal to the Rota in Rome," she said. "It is true that I have been informed that because Mr. Chaplin was divorced when I was married to him in a Mexican civil ceremony I am in a position to further these rights. However, I do not wish to go into a discussion of the matter at this time. Any statement must await the results of my discussions with my attorney, George Beebe. There will be no action until after my divorce troubles with Mr. Chaplin have been settled."

Mrs. Chaplin's attorneys, Beebe and Edwin McMurray of San Francisco, today were said to be preparing the divorce complaint which they intend to file against the actor in a day or two. No comment had come from Mr. Chaplin or his attorney, Lloyd Wright, tonight. Both are reported at Idle Wild, a desert retreat in Southern California.

CITY TO USE FARM SCHOOL.

O'Shea Accepts Offer by Leake and Watts at Tivoli, N. Y.

New York City boys who have practically appropriated to themselves the expensive agricultural school established in the centre of Long Island by the Board of Education primarily for Long Island farmer boys will now have an opportunity for still better agricultural study. They will be able to study farming in direct contact with the soil at the Leake and Watts Farm School at Tivoli, N. Y.

The Board of Education's plans for availing itself of the farm school's facilities were announced yesterday by Dr. William J. O'Shea, City Superintendent of Schools, who made public also the transcript of a "get-together meeting" at a luncheon at the Town Hall on Friday. Dr. O'Shea gave the luncheon as a compliment to Superintendent Albert S. McLain of the Leake and Watts Farm School.

The facilities offered include 500 acres of orchards, gardens, pastures and meadows; semi-bungalows, screened, curtained and equipped with bedding, springs and mattresses; central dining hall, a herd of thoroughbred cows, ice and pasteurization plants, poultry plant with 2,000 fowl, 100 sheep, 100 hogs, tractors and other machinery, a school house, library and social room, canning factory and sawmill.

tion, in the sixth of his series of letters to the Transit Commission and Board of Estimate.

Mr. Dahl asserted that by the Board of Transportation's own figures, the new city subway system, "when and if put in operation," would lose $61,-995,800 for the first three-year period and, if the five-cent operation was continued thereafter, would have a total deficit of $164,216,000 by 1940.

"When there is added," Mr. Dahl continued, "the sum of $207,675,000, accumulated deficits by 1940 at the present rate of $13,845,000 a year for the city's carrying charges on its non-earning investment in existing subways, the losses will have reached the staggering aggregate of $371,891,600."

Mr. Dahl declared that the Interborough Company, instead of profiting by the subways added to its system by the dual contracts, had really suffered a considerable loss in revenue per service track mile.

"To sum up," Mr. Dahl continued, "the Interborough subway division, after being expanded 194.6 per cent., actually showed a 17.4 per cent. decrease in passengers carried and a 20.6 per cent. decrease in earning receipts per service track mile operated, for 1925 as compared with 1912. Why? The reason is simple:

"According to official statistics, referred to by the Board of Transportation in a communication to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment under date of May 26, 1925, approximately 70 per cent. of the total daily rapid transit is handled in the district south of Fifty-third Street in Manhattan to Borough Hall in Brooklyn. In 1912 the original Interborough subways division, with its total of 76.18 service track miles, had 2.4 service track miles outside this district to one service track mile inside.

"This was an admirable balance, and the direct cause, in combination with the proportion of long-haul passengers, of Interborough's original subway's large profits. In making the dual contracts, however, both the city and the companies overlooked the necessity for such a balance."

Mr. Dahl said the same oversight is apparent in the planning of the proposed city system. He continued that it was war-changed wage and other operating costs, in combination with such decrease in passengers carried per service mileage, that brought the Interborough to the verge of financial ruin, which was only averted by the loyalty of employes, stockholders and associates.

See the Wonders of your great Pacific Coast

A region unsurpassed in all the world in scenic splendor, a magic land to inspire travelers, awaits you.

COME first to Southern California. See the quaint Old Missions, founded by Spanish padres more than 150 years ago. Drive over 5000 miles of paved boulevards—(smooth as city streets) that lead through orange groves, mountains, quaint cities, and a thousand new and different things to see.

Golf, hunt, fish, play tennis, ride horseback, hike in the mountains or pursue your hobby whatever it may be and find it at its best.

You may see here, too, America's highest mountain, 14,000 feet above the sea. And, only a few miles away, its lowest valley, 300 feet below the ocean level.

On your journey north plan to visit Yosemite in all its winter splendor.

See San Francisco, Oakland and the famous Golden Gate—Mt. Lassen, this country's only active volcano—lofty Mt. Shasta—then Crater Lake with a depth that has never been sounded and with water bluer than the sky.

Next, go out from Portland over the marvelous Columbia River Highway—unsurpassed.

Snow-capped Mt. Hood, a silent sentinel, with its great companion, Mt. Rainier, to guard the northwest wonderland.

Cosmopolitan Seattle—where the Orient meets the Occident—the gateway to Alaska's romance and adventure. Splendid Tacoma—Spokane, capital of the inland empire.

Beautiful Puget Sound with its evergreen shoreline and estuaries.

All this means that here is an unequalled itinerary for any vacation trip you may plan.

Special circle tour rates make this great trip possible at very reasonable costs. Ask at any railroad ticket office. Come via Southern California and travel north, or vice versa. Take advantage of these opportunities and see the Great Pacific Coast this winter. Come at any time that suits you, for this is an all-year playground. Attractive every day throughout the year.

We have issued probably the most complete booklet ever printed on the subject of vacations. Fifty-two pages about Southern California, illustrated and intensely interesting. Send coupon below and we will mail a copy to you free.

Fordham Signs Major Cavanaugh for Three-Year Term as Coach of Football Team

CAVANAUGH SIGNS TO COACH FORDHAM

Former Dartmouth and Boston College Mentor Is Employed for a Three-Year Term.

TO BRING HIS OWN AIDES

Hiker Joy Likely to Be Assistant—New Leader Has Developed Famous Players.

Major Frank W. Cavanaugh, who achieved prominence as football coach at Dartmouth and Boston College, has been signed by Fordham University for the next three years, it was announced last night by Jack Coffey, graduate manager. Ever since Frank Gargan resigned as Maroon mentor Fordham has been striving to secure Cavanaugh's signature to a contract. Yesterday morning Cavanaugh telegraphed that he would accept the terms offered by Fordham. The amount was not made public.

Cavanaugh will have entire charge of the Fordham gridiron situation and will bring his own assistant and freshman coaches in order to establish his system. Hiker Joy, former Holy Cross star, who has been Cavanaugh's subordinate for the past few seasons, is expected to be his assistant. The freshman coaches were not named.

1925 Record Is Impressive.

At the close of the 1925 campaign, which Fordham completed with a record of eight victories and only one defeat, it was thought that the Maroon would furnish an impressive record this year. However, injuries, lack of reserves and the putting into effect of the freshman rule so handicapped the Maroon that Fordham experienced a very poor season. Three victories, four defeats and one tie was the mark attained by the Bronx collegians.

Concurrently with this, Boston College made the announcement that its coach of eight years had resigned, and Cavanaugh and Fordham were repeatedly connected in the press.

Cavanaugh was graduated from Dartmouth in 1909 and while at the Hanover college he was considered one of the best ends ever to wear the Green. He went to Denver, where he played on the Denver Athletic Club eleven. He coached there for three years, and in 1903, 1904 and 1905 was at Holy Cross. He shifted to the Clark College in Worcester, his home town, and in 1910 went back to his alma mater, Dartmouth.

Produces Powerful Teams.

At Dartmouth he turned out powerful teams. Among the famous players he developed were Hogsett and Lowden, ends; Ghee, quarterback; Whitney and Llewelyn, backfield men, and Spears, a lineman. In 1917 Cavanaugh resigned at Dartmouth.

Boston College obtained him in 1919 and he has been coach there ever since. At Boston College he developed Fitzpatrick, Darling and Weston, backs; Heaphy, centre; Treat, tackle, and Urban and Comerford, ends.

During the war Cavanaugh enlisted despite the fact that he was above the draft age and had a wife and six children relying upon him for support. Shortly after the troops landed in France he was raised to a Captain's ranking and after the battle of Château Thierry he was promoted to Major for distinguished service in the field.

The new Fordham coach will summon his gridiron men in March or April for Spring practice. Zev Graham, Tom Leary and Jim Zakszewski will be the only regulars unable to play next year.

10,000 DEFY SLUSH TO SEE GRANGE WIN

Marks Breaks Away for 43-Yard Run That Defeats Chicago Bulls, 7 to 3.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—Red Grange drew 10,000 through fog and slush today to Comiskey Park, and Larry Marks, one of Red's mates, sent most of them home satisfied by running and skidding 43 yards for a touchdown that made the final score 7 to 3 in favor of the Yanks. The game was the second between Grange's and Joe Sternaman's teams, and now honors are even, the Bulls having won the first game.

The two elevens had pushed and punted, slipped and slid up and down the ice-coated gridiron with honors about even until the middle of the fourth period. The Bulls had the ball on the Yankees' 10-yard line. They had carried it there principally because Sam Whiteman, who captained the University of Missouri eleven during his amateur days, found that he could bore through the Yankee line. But on the 10-yard line the Yankees' defense tightened and the Bulls couldn't keep going.

So they called time out while Joe Sternaman took off his regular punting shoe and put on a square-toed shoe better fitted for drop-kicking. Joe laced the boot on carefully, took his stand on the 20-yard line and kept his footing to kick a perfect goal. The resultant three points looked like a victory for the Bulls until Larry Marks made that 43-yard dash.

Marks got his chance to score the touchdown because of the good return of the Bulls' kick-off after the drop-kick and a pass, Baker to Coglizer.

Grange played a rather mediocre rôle in the game.

The line-up:

YANKEES (7).		BULLS (3).
Maloney	L.E.	Homey
Kearney	L.T.	McMullen
Michalski	L.G.	Mahan
Schimetish	C.	Larson

Touchdown—Marks. Points after touchdown—Cogliser. Goal from field—Sternaman.

Substitutions—Cogliser for Goebel, Pease for Grange, Grange for Baker, Marks for Tryon, Whiteman for Mohardt.

CARLSON IN GOLF TIE.

Finishes In Deadlock With Hawe and Martin at Siwanoy.

In the second day of play in the qualifying round of the Snowbirds' Golf Tournament at the Siwanoy Country Club yesterday afternoon, John Martin, Victor Carlson and W. T. Hawe were tied for first place with net scores of 75. Martin and Hawe both tallied 90 and their handicaps of 15 brought them totals of 75. Carlson registered an 84 over the difficult course and his 9 handicap gave him a 75.

The twenty players competed over the course, which was blanketed with snow. Even the greens were covered and red balls were used.

Williams Football Season One of Its Most Profitable

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Dec. 12.—Although Williams College failed to regain the Little Three title on the gridiron this past Fall, the report of Manager Harold P. Goodbody shows that the season was one of the most successful financially in recent years. With the budget of $2,000 appropriated for the gridiron sport by the Athletic Council deducted, a balance of $6,771 is returned to the treasury as the profit for the season. The chief expenditure was $5,805 paid to Doug Lawson and his assistants for coaching.

The New York Giants, who stand seventh in the National League ratings, subjected the Philadelphia Quakers, champions of the American League, to a 31-to-0 trouncing yesterday afternoon at the Polo Grounds. A crowd of 5,000 turned out to see football's farewell flourish in New York.

The gridiron presented a novel appearance. The groundkeepers had managed to clear off the surplus snow, but a thin coating still remained. Where the snow had disappeared there was either ice or mud in its place. The usual chalk lines gave way to markings of mud.

Despite the fact that they themselves could not move the ball past midfield, the Philadelphians gave the Giants a stern battle for the first half, which closed at 3 to 0, McBride having kicked a placement goal. In the final periods the Giants marched straight down the field for a touchdown, and as soon as the ball was kicked off, journeyed for another score. Not content with 17 to 0, the New Yorkers added another pair of touchdowns before they closed their scoring activities for the day. McBride intercepted a Quaker pass and Voss stepped in the way of another errant heave for two tallies.

Losers Get One First Down.

The New York line held the American League champions to one first down during the entire game. Hagerty ran back one kick 65 yards for an apparent score, only to have a penalty nullify his brilliant dash. Jack McBride galloped for 52 yards in another dash which ended behind the goal-line. A penalty here also discounted this run.

In the third quarter Hagerty and McBride clicked off four first downs to place the ball on the 5-yard line. McBride skidded into the snowbank behind the goal posts for a touchdown. No sooner had the ball been kicked off than Hagerty made 13 yards, Koppisch added 13 more and McBride slid for 15. McBride and Haines made another first down and Hagerty skated over for a touchdown.

McBride Intercepts Pass.

To close the third session the Giants punted to the 5-yard line and the Quakers took the ball at this spot. Sullivan's pass was intercepted by McBride, who went 15 yards for a score. After the kick-off a New York pass was intercepted, but the Giants retaliated when Voss caught Sullivan's throw at the 35-yard line and sprinted for the final touchdown.

GOLF PLAY STARTS FEB. 10.

Date Set for South Central Open Over Hot Springs (Ark.) Links.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark, Dec. 12 (AP).—The third annual South Central open golf tournament was set today by the Hot Springs Golf and Country Club, to begin Feb. 10, for prizes totaling $5,000 in cash and trophies. The date was fixed to fit the eastward movement of the galaxy of golfers attracted to Southern California tournaments and will follow closely the Winter engagements on Texas courses.

Wild Bill Mehlhorn, Chicago professional, who beat Bobby Cruickshank in an eighteen-hole play-off for this year's championship, is expected to defend his title.

On Feb. 9, preceding the tournament proper, there will be an eighteen-hole amateur-professional low-ball foursome and a strictly professional medal play event at eighteen holes.

COOPER'S 293 WINS IN $5,000 TOURNEY

Los Angeles Golfer Falters on Last Nine Holes, but Tops Del Monte Field.

SCORES A 34 GOING OUT

This Work Carries Victor Through —Nabholtz, 295, Second—Farrell and Mehlhorn Tied at 296.

Special to The New York Times.

DEL MONTE, Cal., Dec. 12.—Even though he took thirty strokes for the last six holes, including a 6 on the short seventeenth, Harry Cooper of Los Angeles coasted into first money in the $5,000 Monterey Peninsula golf championship on the Pebble Beach links here today. His total for the seventy-two holes was 293.

Larry Nabholtz of the Cedarhurst Country Club, Cleveland, finished second, with 295. Johnny Farrell of the Quaker Ridge Club, Scarsdale, N. Y., and Bill Mehlhorn of Chicago tied at 296.

A strong wind came up from the sea this afternoon, making scoring more difficult than in any of the three previous rounds.

A testing eighteenth hole wrecked the hopes of Cooper's pursuers. Johnny Farrell started the final round level with Cooper, each having 217. On the last nine holes Farrell had three balls out of bounds, each error imposing the double penalty of stroke and distance. A 7 on the final hole left the New Yorker trailing the winner.

Mehlhorn took 79 this morning to lose the three-stroke lead he had on the field when play in the final thirty-six holes began.

A card of 34 for the first nine holes of the final round enabled Cooper to win, even though he faltered on the last nine and took 42, six over par.

Several in the Running.

The winning of the tournament was in turn in the hands of Mehlhorn, Farrell, Von Elm, Nabholtz and several others in a day of numerous and sudden changes.

Mehlhorn held his lead for forty-five holes, but taking twenty-one putts and four chips on the inside nine this morning enabled Cooper to pick up almost a stroke a hole.

Cooper is the young Texan who staged a hot finish in the Los Angeles $10,000 tournament last January and won first prize of $3,500. He is under contract to be resident professional at the new El Sereno Country Club, which is to be opened in Los Angeles shortly after the first of the year.

There were sixteen money prizes. For first place Cooper got $1,200 and a diamond-studded gold medal. Von Elm, the only amateur to finish in the prize list, received the same kind of a medal.

The division of the prize money follows: Cooper, $1,200; Nabholtz, $900; Farrell and Mehlhorn, $600 each; Abe Espinosa and Watroud, $250 each; Golden, $175; Dick Linares, Long Beach; Willie Hunter, Los Angeles; Olin Dutra, Fresno; Tommy Armour, Washington, and Leo Diegel, Los Angeles, $105 each; George Martin, Los Angeles, $50; Joe Turnesa, New York, $50; Hutt Martin, Los Angeles; Bobby Cruickshank, New York; Mike Brady, New York, and Duncan Sutherland, Edmonton, Canada, $25 each.

Before the tournament started Friday a fellow-professional offered 15 to 1 against Cooper's chances and another laid 10 to 1 against him. Cooper took both bets.

Von Elm started the day four strokes behind. He was putting for birdies on several greens of the outward nine, but he was able to pick up only one stroke, with a 35 to Mehlhorn's 36.

The succession of luckless putts finally told on Von Elm's temper, for on the tenth hole, after pumping a mashie-niblick approach dead to the flag, he missed a one-footer for a birdie. George gave vent to his feelings by flinging his ball into the Pacific Ocean. After that he was unable to compose himself, and he needed seven 5s from the twelfth in, his card of 77 leaving him too far behind to be a serious threat on the final round.

Farrell Gains Ground.

Farrell and Nabholtz were trailing by six and seven strokes, respectively, when the third round started, but both moved up by scoring 69, tying the course record. Nabholtz went out in 31, a feat that had been accomplished here only once before.

The only previous times 70 had been broken for the Pebble Beach course, which has a difficult inside nine laid out along the rocky shore line of the Pacific, were by Von Elm and two other West Coast amateurs, Dr. Paul Hunter, Walker Cup player, and Harold Thompson, Californian intercollegiate champion. Thompson shot his 69 on his own ball in winning the amateur-professional four-ball prelude to this tournament with Cyril Walker as his partner.

The two record-tying cards this morning follow:

But—
Nabholtz	4	4	3	3	3	4	3	4	3—31
Farrell	4	3	4	4	2	4	2	4	4—33
In—
Nabholtz	4	5	4	4	5	4	3	4	5—38—69
Farrell	4	4	3	4	5	4	4	3	5—36—69

Nabholtz, Farrell, Watrous and Diegel all were left with a 4 to tie Cooper's 293, but taking 6, 7, 8 and 9, respectively, on that hard finishing hole represented the margin by which each trailed the winner. The eighteenth measures 535 yards and it is a double dog-leg; following the curving shoreline of the bay, the tee is built up on high rocks, against which the ocean waves splash.

Standing in the middle of the first angle are two large trees, and their presence puts it up to the player whether he will play for the narrow half of the fairway between the trees and the sea, or play it safe further to the right, where there is rough and the possibility of a stymied second.

Those who were among the leaders in the final drive chose to play it safe, to avoid the penalty of going out of bounds. Farrell had a bad lie for his second shot and he topped his brassie effort, leaving him a long iron to get home to the green. His third shot was a pull which went into the water.

Hard Row for Diegel.

None of the contenders had a tougher finish than Leo Diegel. Apparently out of the running starting his final eighteen, when he was nine strokes behind the leaders, Diegel played sixteen holes in four under fours in the high wind. He had par 3—5 for a new course record, which would have given him second money, and he needed a par and a birdie to tie Cooper, who had finished a few minues before. On the seventeenth Diegel was trapped and he took a 4. On the eighteenth he took nine shots to hole out. His total was 299, giving him a tie for eighth place with Von Elm.

Diegel was treated for pleurisy by a doctor in his room tonight. He expects to leave tomorrow with the other players who are going to Sacramento for the three-day tournament to be played on the Del Paso Country Club course Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Bruins Beaten by New York Rangers in Overtime Game

RANGERS CONQUER BOSTON'S SEXTET

Triumph in Overtime Hockey Game at Madison Square Garden by Score of 2 to 1.

MURDOCK'S SHOT DECIDES

Hard Battle on Ice Ends in 7:50 of Extra Period — Numerous Penalties Are Inflicted.

By SEABURY LAWRENCE.

Fast pulsating, extra period hockey was played at Madison Square Garden last night, where a crowd of 10,000 persons saw the swift New York Rangers defeat the Boston Bruins by a 2-to-1 score in a game that bristled with action and fiery attack from start to finish.

It was also a rough party, sixteen penalties being handed out in all, Ching Johnson, New York defense man, taking the penalty honors, if any, with five banishments. Johnson also scored the first tally of the game on a brilliant individual effort.

By winning last night's game the Rangers maintained their leadership in the American group of the National Hockey League. The game was a never-say-die struggle and was very evenly played all through. It could not be placed to the credit of the Rangers until Murray Murdock, one of the New York substitute forwards, stickhandled his way cleverly through the Boston team and jammed the winning goal in after 7 minutes, 50 seconds of play in the first sudden death period of play.

The first regular period went scoreless but both teams counted in the second; Johnson on his long, individual play, and Shore, a bright star in Boston's line-up, on a good pass from Herberts.

Bun Cook Makes Dash.

After the face-off, Bun Cook took the disk down the north side almost to the net, where a good stop by Stewart saved the goal. Cook and Boucher then staged two fast combination plays, getting close to the net each time, and only good work by Cleghorn and Hitchman foiled their attack.

The Rangers were traveling at top speed and kept the play largely in enemy territory. Johnson plunged through savagely twice, but could not make good the shots. In another stirring attack by Boucher and Bun Cook only clever saves by Doc Stewart saved the Bruins.

The game grew rugged. Cleghorn, the great Boston defense man, and Boyd, a substitute Ranger wing, were put off for roughing, and Jim Herberts of Boston was fined $10 for rough talking to one of the goal umpires.

Boston opened a fierce attack and there was a wild mêlée in front of the Rangers' net to prevent a tally. Boucher and Bun Cook carried the disk down in a stirring dash, and Cook popped it in only to have the play called offside and the goal not allowed.

The Cook brothers put on two handsome plays beginning the second period but could not quite crash the Bruin defense. Johnson was put off for roughing and so was Herberts a moment later. Shore and Oliver stirred the crowd with slashing runs for Boston, and on Oliver's play half a dozen men fell in a scrimmage in front of the net.

Cleghorn Is Penalized.

Johnson quickly drew another penalty for tripping. The tireless Cleghorn led the attack again for the Bruins and then he was again penalized, leaving Johnson one up in the matter of penalties. Johnson came back to the ice and proceeded to rouse the crowd with a brilliant goal earned there.

Johnson picked the disk out of a scrimmage near his own goal and skated almost the whole length of the ice, eluding one after another of the Boston players. Johnson shot hard and straight from in front of the net. The disk eluded Stewart and then Johnson slid majestically into the boards on his stomach.

It was one of the best slides of the season and also one of the best plays. Johnson's goal was pocketed in 13:05. The Rangers were not in front long. Shore and Herberts staged a brilliant combination in which Shore, taking a nice pass, flipped it in from just to the left of the net. The score was evened up at 1—1 just before the second period ended. The time was 15:35.

Both Sides Attack Hard.

The third period opened with lightning attacks by both sides, and only excellent defense work kept the nets intact. Shore and Boucher shone brilliantly, and the game was rough and breezy. Hitchman was put off for tripping and Bill Boyd, the New York forward, crashed into the Boston goal-keeper for no good reason and was also banished.

Johnson elated the crowd with another good individual run down the north side but his shot was wide. Shore and Cleghorn staged a sizzling attack and Shabotsky was on his knees to stifle the shot. Thompson made a pretty run but his hard drive was well blocked by Stewart.

With only a minute to go Johnson and the Cook boys combined in a great attack and a goal was missed only by great work in the net by Stewart. Cleghorn and Johnson were sent off just as the period closed without a score and an extra session was ordered, the count being still 1-1.

Shore performed brilliantly opening the first extra period but skated ahead of his team and his shots were blocked. Johnson was sent off for the fifth time and then Murray Murdock staged his good play to win the game by 2-1, the goal being made in 7:50 of play.

SPITFIRE V BREAKS HYDROPLANE TIME

Lowers Mark of Sister Boat Made on Previous Day in Regatta at San Diego.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Dec. 12 (AP).—Hydroplane records for boats of the 151 Class, smashed yesterday when Spitfire VI, owned by James R. Rand Jr. of Buffalo, N. Y., circled the five-mile course in 6 minutes and 52 seconds, an average of 43.06 miles an hour, were shattered here today when Spitfire V, another Rand boat, driven by its owner, covered the course in 6 minutes and 22.6 seconds, an average of 47.05 miles an hour.

The former mark of 42.2 miles an hour, which was a record until the San Diego speed regatta opened, was smashed by three boats in the heat in which Spitfire V. made racing history. Spitfire V made 47.05 miles, Spitfire VI followed with 43.68 miles, and Angeles I was third with 43.13 miles an hour.

HOPPE TO ENGAGE MATSUYAMA TODAY

Will Concede Handicap of 100 Points in Each Block—Amateurs Also Start Play.

Willie Hoppe will continue play for the fourth straight week when he meets Kinrey Matsuyama in another special 18.2 match, which will open a the Strand Academy this afternoon and will end on Saturday night. On this occasion, however, Hoppe will concede a handicap of 100 in each of the twelve blocks, playing 400 to 300 or 4,800 to 3,600.

Hoppe won last week's match from scratch by 3,600 to 2,145, having a grand average of 57 29-63 to Matsuyama's 35 45-60. Hoppe punctuated his work with seven runs over the 200 mark. He showed poorly in only one block, that the eleventh, which was played on Saturday afternoon, when he lost, 62 to 300, in fourteen innings. However, he came back with a burst of brilliant playing in the twelfth and final block, winning by 300 to 61 in four innings, having a high run of 236.

Hoppe had hoped to meet Young Jake Schaefer in a special test for four days this week, but this was found to conflict with the sailing date set by Schaefer, who expects to leave for Europe either Wednesday or Friday. Schaefer said that he would be too busy making final arrangements for the tour to play any billiards.

Hoppe is losing no time, as he has only a few weeks remaining in which to get into condition for the 1,500-point world's championship 18.2 balkline match against Eric Hagenlacher, which will be played at the Hotel Pennsylvania on Jan. 5, 6 and 7.

The three leading amateurs of New York will open a round-robin tournament at the Hoppe Academy tonight, with the New York State amateur championship at stake. The players are Edgar T. Appleby, international Class A amateur 18.2 balkline champion; Herbert Hammer and James M. Lewis, two candidates for national Class A 18.2 balkline honors. The present tourney will be limited to six games, each player being met twice. Appleby is favored to win, but he should receive some close opposition from Hammer and Lewis. The games will be at 300 points each.

SCHAEFER FAVORS HOPPE.

Says Veteran Cueist Is Entitled to First Chance at 18.1 Crown.

Young Jake Schaefer, holder of the world's 18.1 balkline title, said yesterday that he most likely would give Willie Hoppe the first chance at the title, but not before early Spring. Schafer, who will leave for Europe this week, said that there was a possibility that he would devote most of his time to 18.2 balkline while abroad as that is the style of billiards at which the European stars are most poficient.

"Hoppe gave me the first chance as the 18.2 balkline title, and it is only fair that I should return the favor," he said. "It was a close game all the way and showed that Hoppe is the most worthy contender. I would be willing to make it a three-cornered championship in the event Edouard Horemans can be induced to play here."

Schaefer said that it was possible he would stay abroad until April if it was decided that no world's 18.2 balkline tourney would be held this year.

Three-Cushion Tourney Postponed.

The New York State three-cushion championship tourney, scheduled to open this afternoon at Dwyer's Broadway Academy, has been postponed until after the holidays, it was announced yesterday by Frank A. Dwyer. Eight players, including Alfredo de Oro, George Moore, Tommy Hueston and Harry Cline, all former world's champions, were scheduled to compete.

Amateurs Open Title Play Tonight.

H. G. Millwood and Anthony J. Coppiello are among the six contestants who will start play in the Eastern three-cushion amateur championship tonight at the Claridge Academy. The other players are C. C. Atwood, I. J. Goldenberg, Alfred Lewis and A. J. Lambert.

Cue Tourney Starts Tonight.

Six pocket billiard players headed by Ardie F. Wickers, title holder of the Amateur Billiard Club of New York, will begin the competitions in the Eastern States championship at the Masonic Club, 71 West Twenty-third Street, tonight.

PARSONS SILKS WIN IN HAVANA RACES

Carom Takes Marianao Handicap, Beating Anaconda on the Second Day of Meeting.

SETH'S HOPE HOME FIRST

Triumphs in Second Start in Two Days by Outrunning Foretop in Fifth Avenue Purse.

Special to The New York Times.

HAVANA, Dec. 12.—Parsons horses won the two featured races on the second day of the meeting at Oriental Park here this afternoon. Carom, bearing the silks of J. A. Parsons, took the Marianao Handicap, while Seth's Hope, under the colors of Mrs. J. A. Parsons, was first to the wire in the Fifth Avenue Purse.

Carom, an Hourless colt, which was in the money in his last two starts at Pimlico, took the measure of C. D. Pryor's bay gelding Anaconda, while the Shady Brook Farm's Magnetic captured third money.

Seth's Hope won the third race for Mrs. Parsons yesterday, but that didn't stop him from coming right back again today and winning the Fifth Avenue. The two-year-old gelding triumphed under 108 pounds over the five-furlong distance on the opening, and today he picked up seven pounds more. In spite of the weight boost, the players could see little else in the race and Seth's Hope closed a 1-to-2 favorite. He led H. G. Bedwell's Foretop to the wire, with A. R. Freeman's two-year-old filly Rope's End third.

Although the Bedwell silks were beaten in the Fifth Avenue, Buy Bedwell, who has charge of the older Bedwell's string here, saddled a winner in the five-year-old campaigner, Appellate, which beat Winding Through and Wasquez among other starters in the third race.

FIRM FRIEND FIRST IN MUD AT TIJUANA

Light Impost of 91 Pounds Enables Horse to Beat Sweepstakes by a Neck.

OPENS UP 6-LENGTH LEAD

But Tires Near the Finish Line—Victor Pays $8 for $2 Mutuel Ticket in Four-Horse Race.

Special to The New York Times.

TIJUANA, Mexico, Dec. 12.—The veteran campaigner Firm Friend proved he is not through winning races here today when he won the featured Mission Beach Handicap at one mile and seventy yards. The son of Friar Rock was asked to carry only ninety-one pounds in the Mission Beach and beat Miss M. Hunter's Sweep gelding Sweepstakes, which had seventeen pounds more in the saddle, by a neck margin. A. A. Baroni's Sure Fire, which took third money, was making a weight concession of twelve pounds to Firm Friend. The unsettled weather and muddy track marred the day's program.

Firm Friend, under his light impost, opened up a six lengths' lead on the far turn, but tired near the finish and came perilously near losing the race to the fast-closing Sweepstakes. G. Drumheller's Bonnie Omar, which was not without his following in the mutuels, ran last in the four-horse race.

Firm Friend paid $8 for each $2 ticket, good odds for a four-horse race with the weights as they were. Firm Friend's time for the mile and seventy yards was 1:47, a fair performance considering the soft going.

40-Kilometer Cycle Race In Paris Won by Jaeger

PARIS, Dec. 12 (AP).—Charlie Jaeger, American motorcyclist, today won the forty-kilometer race in the Winter Velodrome against a field of international riders. His time was 34 minutes 9 3-5 seconds.

He also won the ten-kilometer race in 8 minutes 43 2-5 seconds.

Jaeger is a product of Newark, N. J. He is 22 years of age and has been riding for about two years. He was a contender for the American motor-paced championship last Summer until nearer the completion of the test, when in one of the title series at the Newark Velodrome he fell and suffered a broken collarbone, which forced him out of the competition.

WALKER SLATED TO MEET WILSON

Fugazy Expects to Promote the Battle in Jersey City Armory Next Month.

Mickey Walker's first bout as the world's middleweight titleholder will be against Johnny Wilson, Boston Italian and former champion, in the Jersey City Armory next month, if present plans of Promoter Humbert Fugazy materialize. It was learned yesterday that Fugazy plans this bout as an attraction in his first Jersey City undertaking following the Christmas Fund show he has scheduled there for Dec. 20.

It is understood Fugazy has Wilson's consent to the battle and that the former champion has already started training. The promoter expects no difficulty with Walker. A conference will be held within a few days with the champion's manager, Jack Kearns. It is understood, however, that the contest will be arranged above the middleweight poundage.

This bout, if it materializes, will be the only one in which Walker engages before he defends the title in a return bout against Tiger Flowers, from whom Walker acquired the title in Chicago recently. The Walker-Flowers battle, it is learned from a reliable source, is practically closed for Madison Square Garden, the only detail being the selection of a date. The contest will be held some time in March.

Jack Hurley will keep his boxers busy. Rusie Leroy, who fights in Newark tonight, is matched to fight Spug Meyers in Milwaukee, Dec. 20, in the semi-final to a bout between Billy Petrolle, Hurley's star, and Les Murray, Australian. After this engagement Petrolle, Leroy and Earl Blue, light heavyweight member of the Hurley stable, move to their native Fargo, where on New Year's Day the trio swing into action. Petrolle is to face Tommy (Kid) Murphy, Leroy will oppose Joe Reno, and Blue will engage Jack Denny.

KAPLAN IS READY FOR ROSENBLOOM

Wagering Even on Bout Between Middleweight Contenders at the Garden Tonight.

HERMAN ALSO ON PROGRAM

He Will Meet Eddie Anderson in Semi-Final Bout—Other News of Boxing.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

Boxing comes back to its own after a week of absence at Madison Square Garden tonight. Promoter Tex Rickard has arranged a popular-priced card and it is expected that a banner crowd will witness the bouts.

K. O. Phil Kaplan, Harlem's middleweight contender, is to tackle Maxey Rosenbloom, a sectional rival, in the stellar ten-round bout on a program which holds three ten-round events, a six-round battle and a four-round encounter. In the ten-round semi-final, Babe Herman, Coast featherweight, who recently won a decision over Benny Bass in Cleveland, will engage the spectacular Eddie Anderson, Wyoming cowboy. Alf Mancini, Anglo-Italian welterweight, and Farmer Joe Cooper, the Oklahoman discoverd by Broadway Johnny Cox, are to battle in the first ten-rounder. In a six-round contest Teddy Baldock, English bantamweight, tackles Joe Clifford. The curtain-raiser will be between Sammy Morgan and Jack Phillips.

Middleweight Contendership Up.

The Kaplan-Rosenbloom battle will determine whether K. O. Phil warrants recognition as a contender for the middleweight title. Originally this contest was arranged to produce a rival for Tiger Flowers. When Referee Benny Yanger rendered his decision for Mickey Walker in the recent Chicago championship, this plan automatically was sidetracked. Nevertheless the battle will have its important aspect, for Kaplan and Rosenbloom are regarded next in line to Flowers for a battle with Champion Walker.

Kaplan is confronted with one of the most serious assignments of his career. The betting generally is at even money. There is a feeling that if Rosenbloom is strong at the weight the latter will emerge the victor. Kaplan's one big chance is to score a knockout, and his chances of accomplishing this hinge on Rosenbloom's strength. Maxey has been fighting at 165 pounds or above. It appears to be his natural weight. At this poundage he won on a foul from Tiger Flowers before the negro dropped his title, held off Harry Greb and Jack Delaney, beat Johnny Wilson and twice beat Dave Shade. Kaplan, on the other hand, is fighting at a natural weight and this may prove to his advantage.

Herman-Anderson to Give Action.

The Herman-Anderson encounter promises an exciting tilt. Herman figures to win, but Anderson is expected to make the Coast lad extend himself. When Mancini and Cooper square off the fight fans can expect a slugging bee which will furnish plenty of excitement. Cooper came here unheralded a short time ago and scored a hit in his bout with Lew Tendler. On the verge of a knockout himself, the Oklahoma welterweight came back and had Tendler down and tottering later, in a battle which proved to everybody's satisfaction that Cooper is strong and a heavy hitter.

Jack Bernstein, Yonkers lad, who formerly held the junior lightweight title, and Ray Miller, Chicago featherweight, will furnish the action tonight in the stellar twelve-round bout at the New Broadway Arena, Brooklyn. The contest is one of a series planned by Bernstein in a campaign to regain the 130-pound title. If he is successful against Miller, Bernstein plans to camp on the trail of Tod Morgan in an effort to compel the Seattle lad to defend his title in a bout against him. Joey Silvers and Johnny Filucci have been paired in the ten-round semi-final. In a six-round battle Harry Ebbets, hard-hitting Freeport youngster, will engage Henry Shaw, Harlem negro.

Russie Leroy, Fargo lightweight, who boasts of having twice defeated Ace Hudkins, will tackle Al Conway of Philadelphia in the ten-round feature tonight at the Laurel Gardens, Newark. The ten-round semi-final will bring together Jimmy Ryan, the "Waterford Walloper," and Al Delmont of Newark.

Charity will benefit tonight from an attractive card of bouts to be held in the Fourth Regiment Armory, Jersey City. A show has been arranged for the Hoboken Elks Crippled Kiddies Fund, and in the main event Phil McGraw, Detroit lightweight, will tackle Johnny Rocco of New Rochelle. Billy White of Jersey City and Sid Barbarian, Detroit veteran, are to clash in the ten-round semi-final. The first ten-round bout will be between Jimmy Britt, Coast lightweight, and Paulie Alberts of Jersey City.

DELANEY TO RESUME WORK.

Will Start Training Today for Bout With Gorman Dec. 20.

Jack Delaney, world's light-heavyweight champion, will return to training today for his ten-round bout against Bud Gorman, Wisconsin heavyweight, which will be the feature bout Dec. 20 on the Christmas Fund card in Jersey City. Charley (Phil) Rosenberg, world's bantamweight champion, and Petey Mack of Jersey City, will clash in another ten-round bout.

Another ten-round encounter will be between Andy Di Vodi, Bay Ridge's promising young welterweight, and Jack McFarland of Elizabeth. Johnny Green and Giovanni Salerno will clash in a fourth ten-rounder.

Goldberg-Marino in Final.

Henny Goldberg, Harlem welterweight, and Joe Marino, another local lad, will furnish action in the stellar six-round bout Wednesday night at the New Manhattan S. C. Matchmaker Joe McKenna has paired Joey Ferrentino, Brooklyn flyweight, and Phil Tobias of the east side in the six-round semi-final.

Harmon to Oppose Mancini.

Willie Harmon, east side welterweight, and Alf Mancini are scheduled to clash in the main bout of ten rounds at the Newark Armory on Wednesday night, under the auspices of the National Sportsmen's Club. Jack Hood, English welterweight, and Young Jack Dempsey will meet in another ten-round contest.

Providence Loses to New York Giants in American League Soccer Clash, 5-2

GIANTS ARE VICTORS IN LEAGUE SOCCER

Close Strong in Final Half After 1-All Tie to Down Providence, 5 to 2.

WANDERERS BEATEN, 3-2

Newark Gains 3-0 Lead in First Period and Wards Off Rally—Fall River Blanks Indiana.

The New York Giants gained two more points in the American Soccer League, by defeating Providence at New York oval yesterday, 5 to 2. Through the first half and part of the second, the New Englanders held their own; in fact, they twice held the lead. For the rest of the game, however, the Giants found themselves and won as they pleased.

The field had been cleared of snow and was in fair condition for the game which attracted a crowd of 2,000. The score at half time was 1—all.

On a pass by Florie on the left, McLaine shot the first goal of the game for Providence after five minutes of play and the Giants equalised 15 minutes later.

Five minutes after the re-start, McLaine drove in the second point for Providence. Ten minutes later, Haeusler headed in the equalizer from a mix-up. The Giants continued to attack and, at 30 minutes gained the lead when Brown scored. The totals went up to 4—2, two minutes later, when a free kick was allowed. Hierlander took the kick and found the net. On the next play, Hierlander netted Schwartz's pass.

The line-up:

N. Y. GIANTS (5).		PROVIDENCE (2).
Geudert	G.	Nicol
Tandler	R.B.	McAuley
Moorehouse	L.B.	Abel
Pollak	R.H.	Lyons
Guttman	C.H.	Cornell
Herd	L.H.	Auld
Schwartz	O.R.	Green
Haeusler	I.R.	Abdullah
Brown	C.	McLaine
Hierlander	I.L.	Toner
Horne	O.L.	Florie

Goals—Brown (3), Hierlander (2), Haeusler. N. Y. Giants. McLaine (2), Providence. Referee—C. E. Creighton. Linesmen—E. McCabe and T. Cunningham. Time—Halves of 45 minutes.

Newark Gains Early Lead.

The Newark soccer team defeated the Brooklyn Wanderers by 3 to 2 in an American League soccer game at Hawthorne Field yesterday before 4,000 persons. The Jerseyites led at the interval by 3 to 0, two of the goals being scored by a former Brooklyn player, Harry McGowan, who was transferred to Newark two weeks ago.

The Wanderers kicked off and Eisenhoffer, broke through, but his shot hit the upright and before the game was four minutes old Johnny Nelson missed an open goal with only Murdoch to beat. The Wanderers were soon attacking again, Eisenhoffer just missing with a hard drive, while Yule shot right into Murdoch's waiting hands. Newark returned the play and McGowan sent over a timely pass to Bremner, who had no difficulty in beating Smith for the first goal with a cross shot after fifteen minutes of play.

The Wanderers attacked strongly but Murdoch cleverly saved from both Yule and Eisenhoffer, while Newark played hard to increase its lead. After Smith had saved from White and Green, McGowan again wormed his way through and scored the second goal. Eisenhoffer then netted the ball but an offside penalty lost the point. Just before half time, McGowan made the score three straight with a great shot.

Five minutes after resuming, Jock Marshall handled, but Murdoch made a brilliant save from Eisenhoffer's shot. Eisenhoffer later broke through and scored for the Wanderers. Gray followed with the second goal from a long shot. Shot after shot was rained in upon Murdoch who gave a great defensive display between the uprights, and the game closed with Brooklyn pressing.

The line-up:

NEWARK (3).		BROOKLYN (2).
Murdoch	G.	Smith
Marshall	R.B.	Gross
Herd	L.B.	Wilson
McLeod	R.H.	Jose
Thomson	C.H.	Drucker
Nicol	L.H.	Norris
Duggan	O.R.	Gray
Bremner	I.R.	Conrad
White	C.	Nelson
Green	I.L.	Eisenhoffer
McGowan	O.L.	Yule

Goals—McGowan (2), Bremner, Newark; Eisenhoffer, Gray, Brooklyn. Substitutions—Brooklyn: Mahrer for Jose. Referee—M. Bloom. Linesmen—J. Hayes and S. Day. Time—45 minute halves.

Paterson Scores Three Goals.

Special to The New York Times.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Dec. 12.—Fall River easily took the measure of the Indiana Flooring soccer eleven on a muddy field here this afternoon, 4 to 0. The Marksmen gained an early lead, scoring two goals at eight minutes, both of which were converted by Willie Paterson. The Floormen advanced the ball with regularity, but the soft ground in front of the goal interfered greatly with their foot work.

Fall River had much the better of the play in the final half and Paterson scored his third goal twenty minutes after the restart on a cross from McEachran. Shortly afterward White took a sharp pass from McPherson and slipped it past Brown for the fourth counter.

The local forward line was supreme and shot after shot was rained at the Indiana goal tender, but to no avail.

The line-up:

FALL RIVER (4).		INDIANA (0).
Kerr	G.	Brown
McGill	R.B.	Clark
Gibson	L.B.	Donald
McPherson	R.H.	Chatton
Hyslop	C.H.	Terris
Coyle	L.H.	McIntosh
Campbell	O.R.	Gallacher
Croft	I.R.	Carlson
Paterson	C.	Jenkins
White	I.L.	Millar
McEachran	O.L.	McGhee

Goals—Paterson 3, White. Referee—Norse. Linesmen—Rose and White. Time of halves—45 minutes. Substitutions—Indiana: Ferguson for Clark.

COLUMBIA'S DATES FOR FENCING SET

Freshman Swimming Schedule Is Also Announced by Graduate Manager Benson.

The varsity fencing and freshman swimming schedules were announced yesterday by Reynolds Benson, graduate manager of athletics at Columbia. The fencing season will close with intercollegiate finals in this city March 30 and April 1.

Seven preliminary meets are scheduled before the Northern division semi-finals on March 18 and 19. Meets with the Army, Cornell and Hamilton again appear on the schedule, while Harvard, Yale and M. I. T. have been omitted. The season opens Feb. 5 with Pennsylvania at Columbia. Three of the seven preliminary meets will be held away from home, these meets to be with Army, Cornell and Hamilton. Besides Pennsylvania, Dartmouth, Princeton and Syracuse will be opposed here.

The freshman swimming schedule calls for nine meets, opening with Stuyvesant High School, Dec. 17 and closing March 12 with the Princeton yearlings at the Columbia pool.

The schedules:

VARSITY FENCING.

Feb. 5, Pennsylvania; 19, Army at West Point; 25, Cornell at Ithaca; 26, Hamilton at Clinton.
March 2, Dartmouth; 5, Princeton; 12, Syracuse; 18-19, semi-finals, Northern division; 31-April 1, Intercollegiate finals.

FRESHMAN SWIMMING.

Dec. 17, Stuyvesant.
Jan. 11, Poly Prep; 14, George Washington.
Feb. 4, Blair Academy at Blairstown, N. J.; 9, Flushing; 17, Erasmus Hall; 24, All-Hallows Institute.
March 3, McBurney School; 12, Princeton Freshmen.

TWO CAPTAINS FOR TEMPLE.

Each Player Will Lead the Eleven for Half of the Season.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 12.—Two football captains have been elected at Temple University for the 1927 campaign. They are Harry Jacobs, fullback, and Lindell Ashburn, guard. Jacobs comes from Hammonton, N. J., and Ashburn from Cape May. They succeed Halfback Ben Cresse of Rio Grande, N. J. Each player will captain the team one-half of the season, the first leader having charge until after the Dartmouth game at Hanover, N. H., and the other to include the Brown game at Providence.

Only two members of this year's squad are in the graduating class—Captain Cresse and Bill Surrick, tackle. The team is coached by Heinie Miller, former star end at Pennsylvania, and Les Haws, former Dartmouth halfback. At the annual dinner varsity letters were awarded to eighteen players.

GROVE CITY BOOKS GAMES.

Quintet Lists Eight Contests and Will Open Season Jan. 5.

Eight games at home and seven afield are on the program of the Grove City College basketball team. The newcomers on the schedule are Adrian and St. Francis. The regular schedule does not open until the game with Adrian on Jan. 5, but Athletic Director Thorn is working on a short preliminary schedule with games on Dec. 29, 30, 31 and Jan. 1. It is possible also that a game will be played at Grove City on Dec. 17 with the Butler Y. M. C. A. team.

The schedule follows:

At home—Jan. 5, Adrian College; 11, St. Francis College; 15, W. and J. College; 29, Carnegie Tech; Feb. 15, Thiel College; 18, West Virginia University; March 4, Allegheny College; March 8, Geneva College.
Abroad—Jan. 8, Thiel College; 21, Allegheny College; Feb. 7, Geneva College; 11, University of Pittsburgh; 12, West Virginia University; 25, Carnegie Tech; 26, W. and J. College.

Georgetown Declines Game.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12 (AP).—Because its game with Fordham in New York has grown to be such an important contest, Georgetown University's Athletic Council voted today to decline an invitation from Carnegie Tech for a football game in that city next Nov. 19.

Cards Release Two to Houston.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 12 (AP).—Edgar Clough, a pitcher, and Ernest Orsatti, an outfielder, of the Cardinals, have been released on option to the Houston Club of the Texas League, it was announced tonight.

31 CONTESTS BOOKED FOR THE YALE NINE

Team Will Play 22 Games at New Haven—Vanderbilt Is Among Four Newcomers.

HOME-AND-HOME SERIES

Columbia, Holy Cross and Penn Among Those That Have Two Dates on Ellis' Schedule.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 12.—Benedict N. Quinn, '27, of Greenwich, Conn., manager of the Yale baseball nine, tonight announced the schedule for next season. Thirty-one games have been arranged, twenty-two of them to be played on Yale Field.

Four newcomers to the schedule will meet Yale next year—Vanderbilt Springfield, William and Mary and Richmond. Springfield and Vanderbilt will come to Yale Field, Vanderbilt for the first time, while Yale will meet Richmond and William and Mary during its Easter Week trip to the South.

Yale has completely abandoned the idea which was carried out in 1920, 1921 and 1922 of sending the baseball squad to Macon, Ga., for a ten-day period at Easter. The venture proved impracticable for several important reasons, although it possessed distinct advantages.

Yale has arranged its home and home schedules, as usual, with such teams as Pennsylvania, Columbia, Holy Cross, Georgetown and Cornell. Last year Yale was able to play only one game with Holy Cross. Only one has been arranged for 1927 with Dartmouth, Brown and Syracuse.

No professional opponents have been scheduled, although it is likely that Yale will arrange a practice series of two or three games as usual with the New Haven Eastern League team.

The schedule follows:

April 5, Springfield; Easter trip, 7, Richmond at Richmond; 8, William and Mary at Williamsburg, Va.; 9, Navy at Annapolis; 11, Georgetown at Georgetown; 12, Maryland at College Park; 13, Columbia at New York; 16, Fordham; 20, New York University; 23, Brown; 26, Tufts; 28, Dartmouth; 30, Pennsylvania.
May 3, Bowdoin; 5, Virginia; 7, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; 10, Columbia; 12, William and Mary; 14, Cornell; 17, Catholic University; 18, Holy Cross; 21, Cornell at Ithaca; 24, Colgate; 26, Georgetown; 28, Holy Cross at Worcester; 31, Syracuse.
June 4, Princeton; June 11, Vanderbilt; 14, Providence; 18, Princeton at Princeton; 21, Harvard; 22, Harvard at Cambridge.

The Yale freshmen will this year take an Easter trip for the first time in several years.

The freshman schedule:

April 8, Lawrenceville at Lawrenceville; 9, Peddie at Peddie; 16, Massee; 20, George Washington High; 23, St. John's Preparatory School; 27, Kent; 30, Roxbury.
May 4, Choate; 7, Andover; 11, Worcester Academy; 14, Exeter at Exeter; 18, Milford School; 21, Princeton '30; 25, Suffield School; 28, Harvard '30 at Cambridge.

FINDS INDIANS READY.

McCalister Sees Speaker's Place as Only Vacancy.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 12 (AP).—Jack McCalister, veteran scout and coach of the Cleveland Indians, who succeeds Tris Speaker as manager of the club, believes the Tribe is ready for the 1927 season, barring the vacancy in centrefield left by the retirement of Speaker. Jack must find a centrefielder who can fill Speaker's shoes.

"Otherwise, I am going to stand pat on last year's team," he said. "I don't contemplate any radical changes unless some of the men we consider regulars are handicapped by accidents or sickness."

McCalister will try to find a man on the team who can turn the trick in centrefield, but he admitted that eventually he might have to look on the outside.

BREADON HERE FOR SESSION

Cardinal Owner Says There Is Nothing New on Hornsby Matter.

Sam Breadon, President of the St. Louis Cardinals, the first arrival here to attend the National League meeting which opens at the Waldorf-Astoria tomorrow, said last night that nothing further had developed in regard to signing Rogers Hornsby. Mr. Breadon arrived yesterday morning and went to the Hotel Alamac.

"I have not seen Hornsby nor President Heydler of the National League in regard to the contract differences with Hornsby," said Breadon. "There is nothing new in our relations and I don't expect to meet Hornsby until I return to St. Louis after the league meetings."

ROTH TO AID WHITE SOX.

Veteran Catcher Signed by Schalk to Act as Coach.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12 (AP).—Frank Roth, a catcher who helped the Chicago White Sox capture the world's series of 1906, has been signed as coach to assist the new Sox manager, Ray Schalk, it was announced today.

Russell Blackburn, Palmyra, N. J., another old-time Sox star, is being sough for another coaching job. Roth will replace Chief Bender as tutor of young pitchers, while Blackburn is desired in place of Ben Egan.

LEBOURVEAU'S .377 WINS BATTING CROWN

Official American Association Averages Place New Giant Outfielder at the Top.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12 (AP).—Dewitt (Bevo) Lebourveau, who roamed the outfield for the Toledo Mud Hens last season and who will display his wares to Manager John McGraw of the New York Giants next season, was the king of the hitters in the American Association, according to the official averages, released today.

Lebourveau went through 149 games, and by crashing out 220 hits in 584 times at bat finished the season with a batting mark of .377.

Bevo also gave Richbourg of the Brewers a close race for the stolen base honors with 45 thefts. The fleet-footed Milwaukee fly chaser topped the base stealers with 48. His remarkable speed also carried him to the front as a run getter, with 151 tallies to his credit.

Playing in 164 games Richbourg smashed out the most hits—247. He was high man in total bases with 350, his blows including 38 doubles and 28 triples, the latter being more than any other player had.

Bruno Haas, the St. Paul star, copped the honors for two-base hitting with 51 doubles, while Pick of Kansas City had the distinction of receiving free transportation to first 104 times, 100 of which were on boos on balls.

Pat Duncan of Minneapolis and Bunny Brief of Milwaukee set a merry pace for the honors of driving in the greatest number of runs, but Duncan nosed his rival out with 123, compared with 122 for the Brewers' slugger, who took the home run title with 26 circuit blows.

DUAL MEET VICTORS TO GO TO ENGLAND

First and Second Place Winners to Make Trip, Harvard-Yale Officials Decide.

SAILING DATE UNSETTLED

Athletes Will Probably Not Have More Than Week's Time Before Races Are Held.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 12.—Further details concerning the trip to be taken by the joint track team of Yale and Harvard to England next Summer for a meet with Oxford and Cambridge were made at a meeting held here yesterday of representatives of Harvard and Yale.

Those attending were William J. Bingham, Director of Athletics of Harvard; Fred A. Moore, Harvard's graduate treasurer; Everett S. Gleason, manager of the Harvard track team; Harold F. Woodcock, general manager of the Yale Athletic Association; Alfred C. Gilbert, Chairman of the Yale Graduate Advisory Committee on Track, and Stuart N. Scott, manager of the Yale track team.

It was agreed that the winners of first and second places in the Yale-Harvard dual meet to be held here on May 21 would compose the team.

The definite sailing date has not been determined, but it will be about June 25. Negotiations with several steamship lines are in progress, but no agreement has been reached. The team, it is expected, will sail from New York or Montreal. The date of the joint meet of the American and British athletes will be held at Stamford Bridge on July 9 and the Yale and Harvard athletic authorities plan to have the American team spend only a week in England previous to the meet.

CORNELL PLANS TENNIS.

Hopes to Stage an Intercollegiate Indoor Tourney Feb. 11 and 12.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 12.—Cornell University will be host to tennis stars of Eastern and Midwestern universities at an indoor tournament in the New York State Drill Hall on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 11 and 12, if plans now being made are realized. The tournament, if successful, will be made an annual affair and the list of invitations will be extended.

Correspondence with representatives of Dartmouth, M. I. T., Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Columbia, Pennsylvania, Lehigh, Hamilton, Colgate, Syracuse, Michigan and Ohio State has shown general endorsement of the idea of an indoor intercollegiate tourney, and it is likely that at least eight universities will compete. Some are planning to enter complete teams. Twelve courts can be laid out on the drill hall floor.

Mlle. Lenglen Halts Tennis To Attend Races at Tijuana

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 12 (AP).—Suzanne Lenglen, French tennis star, followed the ponies today. Immediately after her arrival from the North, Mlle. Lenglen went by motor to Tijuana, Mexico, to attend today's races. The net star will spend a few days at Coronado and Del Monte before returning here for an exhibition Dec. 28. She was accompanied here by C. C. Pyle and members of his troupe of professional tennis players.

RETI TO VISIT U. S. FOR CHESS TOURNEY

Will Be on Reserve List for New York Play—Negotiations On With Dr. Lasker.

Richard Reti of Czechoslovakia, [illegible] prize winner in the New York chess congress of 1924, will come here in February to be on hand for the opening of the New York international grand masters' chess tournament, according to Dr. Norbert L. Lederer, Secretary of the Executive Committee. Reti, who is one of the conspicuous members of the so-called hyper-modern school of chess play and the author of several books, is on the reserve list with Rudolf Spielmann of Austria and Dr. S. Tartakower of Ukrainia. [illegible] two also will be on hand.

Jose R. Capablanca of Cuba, [illegible] J. Marshall, United States; Dr. [illegible] Vidmar of Yugoslavia, and A. [illegible] sowitsch of Denmark already have accepted the invitations sent to them. In addition, negotiations are under way with Dr. Emanuel Lasker of Germany as to whose participation there has been some doubt. The tournament will open on Saturday, Feb. 26.

Martin D. Hago, playing [illegible] shared first and second prizes with Robert Willman in the rapid transit tournament at the Manhattan Chess Club. In the weekly contest at the Marshall Chess Club H. Helms, with 7-0, was first.

Morris High and Stuyvesant yesterday finished first and second in the Manhattan division of the Interborough High School Chess League at the rooms of the Manhattan Chess Club. Thereby they qualified for the semi-finals, in which they will encounter Thomas Jefferson and New Utrecht, winners of the Brooklyn division, for interborough championship.

TRADE MARK

The Union Square subway stations (express mid-level) make for easy access to our 15th St. store, corner of Broadway.

From far-off Nagoya, in Japan, comes this:

"I am a Japanese who came to America 15 years ago and visited New York City. While I was there I purchased an overcoat at your store on Broadway. It has occurred to me that perhaps the fact that I am still wearing the overcoat might interest you. The coat is in fine shape even to the present day. It has been relined once by a Japanese tailor. My object in writing this letter is to lay emphasis on the fact that goods purchased in a reliable store like Rogers Peet are in the long run the best that money can buy. In America you might say, 'But the style is old and out of fashion'; but in Japan it is rather the clothes than the style. I am very, very much pleased with my purchase."

All we need add to that is the assurance that our clothing is still "the best that money can buy," plus styles that are entirely up-to-date.

OGDEN TOPS FIELD AT N. Y. A. C. TRAPS

His 98 Wins Scratch Cup and He Also Takes Legs on Two Doubles Trophies.

14 MEN IN HANDICAP TIE

Moulton Is Survivor After Three Shoot-Offs—Larchmont Gunners Are Led by Dalley.

W. B. Ogden scored heavily at the Travers Island traps of the New York Athletic Club yesterday. He started his winning by taking the High Scratch Cup from a field of thirty-five gunners, the largest that has turned out so far this Winter for a Sunday shoot. He won the event by registering a total of 98 out of a possible 100 targets.

Ogden followed up his good work by winning a leg on both the Doubles Scratch and the Doubles Handicap cups. In the shoot for the latter trophy K. H. Locatelli and A. W. Sieleken also won legs. A leg on the Distance Cup went to T. H. Lawrence. The Travers Island Cup was won by J. D. Nickles.

There were fourteen gunners who had full scores of 100 targets each in the shot for the High Handicap Cup. It was a record number and it was responsible for no less than three shoot-offs at 25 targets each before the winner finally was known. In the third shoot-off there were only H. G. Moulton and O. Wuerz. They finished with 24 and 23 targets, respectively. It gave the prize to Moulton.

The scores:

Dalley's 97 Is Best.

L. C. Dalley led the field at the traps of the Larchmont Yacht Club yesterday. He took the High Scratch Cup with a card of 97 out of a possible 100 targets. The second high scratch gunner was H. F. West, who finished with a total of 96. Both of these gunners had full scores of 100 targets. But, of course, neither one was eligible for the Handicap Cup.

In the race for this trophy there was a tie between C. A. Krickl and G. LaBranche. They also each had full cards of 100 targets. On the shoot-off Krickl took first and LaBranche the second cup. Next Sunday the Larchmont Yacht Club will stage the first of a series of interclub shoots.

The scores:

THE WEEK IN SPORTS

Notable Six-Day Cycle Race—Christmas Seal Golf Tournament—Landis and Baseball's Future—Winter Racing Stakes—Many Boxing Challengers—Form in Squash

CYCLING

Reggie McNamara stands forth today as the greatest six-day bicycle rider of all time. It needed but the race that closed on Saturday night in Madison Square Garden to establish this hardy veteran of the wheel on a pinnacle. He showed the way in one of the greatest grinds in history and he led the procession like the competitive king he is. Forty years old, this product of Australia who has adopted America as his home, made the forty-first international race the occasion for his forty-eighth bid for six-day race honors and he thrilled one of the greatest and most representative crowds with his eleventh triumph.

More significant perhaps than the victory itself or the method by which it was scored was the condition of McNamara immediately after the grind. After his 146-hour test the veteran Newark rider was unaffected. He dressed quickly for the street but before leaving the Garden visited the press box where newspapermen were yet sending over the wires the news of his victory. And to look at the conqueror was to doubt that this six-day test of cycling speed, skill and endurance is the hardship it is painted.

Looked Like a Spectater.

McNamara might have been one of the spectators, judged from his appearance, rather than the scintillating star of the competition. In fact, he was not affected half as much as some of the spectators who went delirious with joy at the spectacle he offered. He is truly "the Iron Man" of cycling. That title is his beyond challenge.

It was McNamara's riding experience and his wonderful stamina, coupled with the brilliant speed of Linari when speed was necessary, which brought this American-Italian team victory.

Linari is deserving of the highest praise for his exhibition. He is a comparative newcomer to six-day racing yet he rode rings around his rivals when hard riding was the order and he stood up admirably under the strain. His performance is overshadowed only by that of McNamara. Together the pair constituted an unbeatable combination.

Both Were Unconscious.

McNamara and Linari had to have plenty of courage and determination to survive the race and more particularly that thrilling last-hour succession of sprints. Fifteen minutes before the scheduled ending of the grind the two riders were unconscious on the track flat, where they had been tumbled making a relief at the height of a jam. They narrowly escaped death but it was part of the game and they acted accordingly, being off the track only for the length of time it required them to collect their scattered wits and remount.

The race was notable for the number of stolen laps it produced. A record of 304 laps was established, surpassing by one the record made in the last Chicago race. In another respect the race made history. The crowds were as large as in former years and more representative of all classes. Women in evening gowns and men in dress clothes were conspicuous in the boxes which circled the saucer, giving the closing night an opera touch. The race went off without a hitch or an objectionable occurrence.

BASEBALL

The impression prevails that Kenesaw Mountain Landis will be re-elected Baseball Commissioner at the joint league meeting next Thursday, and it is to be hoped that the magnates do nothing to ruin this impression. Judge Landis has been an excellent commissioner. His seven-year administration has been full of good offices, kindly works and just decisions; he has handled an unenviable job well.

The grumblings of some of the magnates are hard to understand. Judge Landis did not seek the commissionership; neither by word nor by action did he give the impression that he coveted the task of leading the battalions of baseball. On the contrary, after the Black Sox scandal of 1920 the magnates came to him almost with tears in their eyes, imploring him pathetically to take the commissionership and restore baseball to its old place of confidence in the minds of the American people.

Having selected their man and made the rules under which he should govern, the magnates are strangely inconsistent when they complain at the workings of their own system. It might be said that baseball no longer needs a Landis, but this would not be true. The old rule by a national commission of three men has gone forever. That form of government ended when the American fans woke up one morning to find that a world's series had been "thrown."

Baseball is an honest game, but not automatically so. It is under steady siege from elements which would taint it. Preventive vigilance is the only safeguard, and baseball doubtless will need a Landis as much in 1956 as in 1926.

Fortunately, the Judge has a clear majority with him. For the sake of the record he will probably get a unanimous vote on Thursday, even though some of the electors are none too fond of him.

With the appointment of Jack McCallister as leader of the Indians the last managerial vacancy in the big leagues has been plugged. The open season for managers has ended, presumably. In the most turbulent of all Autumns seven pilots have been swept overboard by heavy seas. Only three managers survived in the American League.

It is worthy of note that one of the three is Miller Huggins. He has been under a heavy fire since coming to New York; self-appointed managers have poked at chinks in his armor; his policies have oftentimes been ridiculed and scorned. Yet in the great house-cleaning of 1926 not a broom was waved at Mr. Huggins, who goes blithely on.

BOXING

This has been a trying year for pugilism's champions and if one is really anxious to know the reason, one doesn't have to delve very far into the records. The answer is that probably never before in the long history of boxing have there ever been so many formidable challengers shaking their fists under the noses of titleholders as at present. Nor is this condition confined to any one class. Almost every division has its host of contenders upsetting one another and, when they get the chance, upsetting the titleholder.

Fidel LaBarba, the flyweight king, will be put on his mettle soon after the new year when he tackles Elky Clark, the British champion, who is coming to America heralded as one of the best of the little fellows developed abroad since Jimmy Wilde.

Lively Bout in Sight.

Charley (Phil) Rosenberg, bantamweight champion, can be assured of an entertaining evening when he faces his foremost challenger, Bushey Graham, next month. Incidentally, this particular challenger is fighting at the Garden this Friday night and, recalling the rather surprising manner in which Joe Dundee recently was toppled from his lofty perch as outstanding contender among the welterweights, there is nothing certain about what Graham's standing among the 118 pounders will be a week hence.

The featherweight division is a wide open proposition, with no official titleholder at the helm. Honeyboy Finnegan is receiving credit in some quarters as being entitled to the distinction, but he still has two or three to beat before he can make his claims conclusive.

Steve Latzo's greatest problem appears to be the weight question. Returning to action last week, the welter champion climbed through the ropes practically a full-fledged middleweight. He fought a good battle, coming from behind to score a decisive victory over the rugged Joe Simonich, but whether Latzo can carry this same form when trained down to 147 pounds is a matter yet to be proved. Eddie Roberts, who toppled Joe Dundee, Willie Harmon and Mushy Callahan are among those ready to disprove it.

In the middleweight class, Micky Walker need look no further than Tiger Flowers, the man from whom he wrested the title, for a turbulent evening any time the two should meet again. Also there are Maxie Rosenbloom and K. O. Phil Kaplan, who will stage a little elimination argument of heir own at the Garden tonight. Either of these two is quite likely to make it interesting for the new champion.

Plenty of Good Lightweights.

There are half a dozen lightweights horoughly capable of providing Sammy andell with plenty of opposition whenever that champion gets ready to return to the wars, while Gene Tunney will have to prove in his next fight next year whether he is to be considered as invincible in the heavyweight division as were some of his predecessors when they were in their prime. There are at least a half-dozen big fellows, prominent among them Jack Sharkey and Jim Maloney, each with a good chance of filling the rôle Tunney himself so aptly filled last September.

About the only champion who seems fairly secure within his own domain is Jack Delaney, the light heavyweight monarch. The flashy French Canadian stepped out of the North Woods last Friday night and demonstrated that he still is a legitimate light heavyweight. As such he appears to have no serious rival in sight.

SQUASH

In spite of the numerous reversals of form that have marked the season's play, the developments of the first big tournament have demonstrated that the players who have ruled the ranks in past years are still the king pins in squash tennis.

All the first ten, as well as the leading "hopefuls" of the season, were entered in the lists in the Princeton invitation tournament, and when the play came down to the semi-final round the four who were left were the four first in the national ranking—Fillmore Hyde of Harvard, Tom Coward of Yale, Harold Mixsell of Princeton and William Rand Jr. of Harvard. Play could not run closer to form than this.

The defeat of Hyde, the champion, and the remarkable improvement in the play of Coward, the winner, were the features of the tournament, while the best game of the week's play was the first one in the match between Coward and Hewitt Morgan of Harvard, one of the finest exhibitions of hard hitting and flawless control under terrific pressure in years.

The defeat of Hyde is not to be taken too seriously, in spite of the merit of Rand's victory over him. The champion was making his first competitive appearance of the season in this tournament after being sick for two weeks and he was lacking in the aggressiveness and will to win that were necessary to overcome the high pressure opposition offered by Rand. Hyde was slow on his feet in getting to Rand's powerful up and down drives and he made far more errors than he is usually guilty of.

Coward, after getting away to a late start, owing to his absence abroad, came back with a vengeance in the tournament. Mixsell beat him by a wide margin in the Class A League play, but last week he was simply hammered into submission by Coward's bludgeon smashes.

There were some who thought that Edward Larigan would beat Coward at his own game, but the Crescent siege gun was unable to maintain the terrific pace of the Yalensian and submitted easily in the second game.

Rand, as a result of his victory over Hyde, was favored over Coward in the final, but the speed and change of pace that had been effective against the champion were of no avail. Coward took him off his feet with his blinding speed and sledge-hammer blows, and after making a game fight for the opening game the Harvard star found himself swamped.

HOCKEY

The outstanding feature of the hockey season so far is the work of the Ottawa Senators, leading team of the international group of the National Hockey League. By conquering the Toronto St. Pats at the Dominion capital on Saturday night the Senators completed a string of eight victories without a defeat. Naturally they are coasting along at the top of their division of the league with quite a long point lead over the New York Americans, who have climbed up to second place.

These two teams will meet at the Garden tomorrow night in what should be one of the most stirring ice battles of the season. Both sextets seem to be going at top speed just now. This will be the first appearance of the fast-traveling Senators on the Garden ice this year and perhaps will recall to hockey fans the grim 1-0 battles fought by these teams at the Rickard arena last season.

As they are now, the Senators were breezing along in front at this time last season, and even at this early stage of the game they seem to be assured a place in the championship play-offs. A solid, consistent team at all times, they are a very hard combination to beat, but it is a fact that the Americans never play better than when pitted against these sizzling Senators.

A notable event of the hockey week will be the start of the new Metropolitan Amateur League's season on Wednesday night at the Garden. This will be an especially interesting event inasmuch as the three games scheduled for decision are being played for the benefit of the press and sports boys at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. There will be a distinguished audience present, including Bishop Manning and Mayor Walker.

The Metropolitan Hockey League this year consists of six teams, including the Knickerbockers, New York A. C. and St. Nicks, which played here last year. New clubs added to complete an all-Metropolitan circuit are sextets representing the Seventh Regiment, Canadian Club of New York and the Crescent A. C. of Brooklyn.

GOLF

Although its lustre was somewhat dimmed by withdrawals of several stars, the Christmas Seal Golf Tournament held at the Seaview Golf Club last week turned out to be such a successful venture that it will be repeated another year and no doubt greatly expanded.

What caused many entrants to withdraw their names at the last minute was the heavy snowfall that blanketed New York and Philadelphia courses a few days before the Seaview tournament was scheduled to start. Since Absecon, Seaview's port of debarkation, is only three hours away from New York and one hour from Philadelphia, even those who made the journey had their doubts that the course would be playable until they actually arrived on the scene and discovered fairways entirely free from snow, ideal putting greens and conditions equivalent to those found in the metropolitan district in April.

Event to be Expanded.

The tournament itself was a novelty and those responsible for the idea and for putting it through, especially Messrs. Sweetser, Geist and Tillinghast, deserve heartiest congratulations. An experiment this year, the event will surely be expanded and in time it and others like it held in different sections of the country will prove a tremendous aid to the work that the National Tuberculosis Association is doing. If there is any single group that ought to be interested in lending a hand in the fight against the white plague it is the golfers, for perhaps no other game has raised the standards of health quite so much as theirs has done.

The idea behind the Seaview tournament was not so much to raise money as it was to call attention to the Christmas seal sale. In that respect it was as successful as anything that the National Tuberculosis Association has ever done. Another year its value along these lines will be far greater and it may be that the idea of getting golfers to donate balls and dollar bills will become so popular as to be a wonderful source of revenue.

Some Were Sportsmen.

One could not watch the Seaview tournament without getting a pretty good knowledge of the varying degrees of sportsmanship that prevail in the golf world. That is possible in every tournament, but especially at Seaview where Winter rules prevailed. The employment of Winter rules was not necessary, but it was decided that inasmuch as the ground was soft it would be only a courteous thing to save the turf as much as possible and so the contestants were permitted to lift the balls through the fairway and on the greens.

Some, it was noticed, would lift the balls and replace them in such a way that the original lie was in no measure improved. If the ball came to rest in a hanging lie or on a sidehill lie they would endeavor to replace it in such a way that the conditions for the next shot would be changed as little as possible.

Others, however, would seek some spot in the fairway where the lie would be always perfect. One of the most general practices was that of pressing down the spot behind the ball with the foot, a thing that should never be done under any circumstances.

TURF

It is a far cry to the opening of the 1927 Eastern racing season, since nearly four months must elapse before the bugle calls the horses to the post for the first race at Bowie on April 1, but the announcement of the tentative schedule for the Spring meetings in Maryland provides owners and trainers with something tangible on which to base their plans.

In these days, when there is no cessation of racing in this country from one New Year's Day to another preparations by the large establishments must be made far in advance. Four months is not a long time when measured by the activities of a stable that races the year around and with the important prizes to be aimed at in the intervening weeks.

Right at hand is the $10,000 Christmas Handicap at Pompano. Throughout the first month of the new year stakes of considerable value will be decided at Miami, New Orleans and Tijuana. In the middle of February comes the $50,000 New Orleans Handicap and a little later in that month the $10,000 Daytona Stakes at the Hialeah course. On March 5 is scheduled the $25,000 Miami Handicap, followed the next day by the Tijuana Derby of the same added value. The $75,000 Coffroth Handicap will be decided on March 13, the $10,000 Tijuana Cup and the $7,500 Tijuana Futurity following at intervals of a week.

Schedule of Interest.

That brings racing right up to the opening at Bowie on April 1. The Maryland schedule, which must yet receive the approval of the Racing Commission of that State, is of great interest, since it fixes definitely the dates of the early Spring classics. The first is the $25,000 Dixie Handicap, which will be decided on the opening day of the Pimlico meeting at a mile and three-sixteenths and will have as contestants the stars that have been seasoned by Winter racing on Southern courses, together with the top-notchers which have had their preparation nearer home.

There will follow the first of the three-year-old classics, the Preakness Stakes having just been fixed for May 9. It already has been announced that the Kentucky Derby will be run on May 14, giving an interval of five days to ship candidates for the great event of the year in the Blue Grass country.

No large establishment can much longer neglect the opportunities to reap the rich rewards now presented in what used to be the off season. More and more are the racing silks of famous stables displayed on Southern courses and in Cuba. And that the current season on those tracks will be the most important they have ever enjoyed is indicated by the nominations in the important stakes which have just been announced.

Entries From Big Stables.

That the Coffroth Handicap will take some winning next March is indicated by the names of the fifty-four colts and fillies that are eligible. The most important stables on the continent will shoot for the small fortune which will go to the winner. The list of nominators reads like the roll of a mid-Summer stake in the East—Harry Payne Whitney, the Rancocas Stable, the Greentree Stable, Commander J. K. L. Ross, the Idle Hour Farm Stable, William Daniel, the Chula Vista Stable (which won it last year and will again depend upon Cariaris), Phil T. Chinn, the Xalapa Farm, the Seagram Stable, W. S. Kilmer, J. N. Camden, La Brea Stable, Green Briar Stable, and so on.

With the opening of racing at Havana and Orlando four Winter courses are now in operation, apparently with more than enough horses on hand at each.

Walker and Beckman Top the List of Spectator Prize Takers With $1,000.

Reggie McNamara, the iron man, and Pietro Linari, giant Italian rider, who won New York's forty-first international six-day bicycle grind, which came to a close in Madison Square Garden Saturday night, were fêted last night at the Unione Sportiva Italiana at 108 West Forty-fifth Street. This club is the largest cycling organization in New York.

The race broke all records for number of laps gained in a six-day race in New York. The total for the week was 304. The laps gained by the respective teams were: McNamara and Linari, 28; Georgetti and Belloni, 28; Winter and Stockholm, 27; Goosens and Stocklynch, 27; Wambst and Lacquehay, 26; Petri and Lands, 24; Bello and Hill, 23; Walker and Beckman, 22; Coles and Garrison, 22; McBeath and Grimm, 22; Dinale and Bestetti, 19; Wynsdau and Coburn, 15; Taylor and Hanley, 11; Goullet and Spencer, 10.

The premiums for the week put up by the spectators amounted to $3,880. The teams collected the money as follows; Walker and Beckman, $1,000; Goosens and Stockelynch, $575; Coburn and Wynsdau, $460; Dinale and Bestetti, $345; McBeath and Grimm, $280; Taylor and Hanley, $275; Bello and Hill, $250; Belloni and Georgetti, $176; McNamara and Linari, $150; Coles and Garrison, $125; Goullet and Spencer, $125; Stockholm and Winter, $50, and Wambst and Lacquehay, $50.

The riders will gather in Madison Square Garden this afternoon and be paid off.

COLGATE PLANS DINNER.

All Athletic Teams to Be Present at Gaia College Event.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 12.—The annual football smoker, held between the Thanksgiving and Christmas vacations in honor of the Colgate athletes, will be replaced by a Block "C" banquet this year. Plans for the dinner are now being developed. It is to be held at the close of the basketball season.

The detailed plans are indefinite, but are rapidly being worked out by a student committee, consisting of F. D. Taylor of East Orange, N. J., chairman, R. B. Crouchley, Ridgefield, Conn., and C. O. Pratt, Cambridge, N. Y. The general scheme calls for a plate dinner at a sufficiently nominal charge that will enable all Colgate students, alumni and friends of the university to attend, which should make the attendance reach the one thousand mark.

The features will consist of speeches by a famous football coach, a veteran baseball coach, a noted sports writer and several prominent alumni. Men of repute in these fields have been approached, and the committee promises that they will be of national fame. At this time letters and trophies will be presented to the Colgate athletes, each team sitting together at the dinner and presenting themselves in a body to the master of ceremonies to receive their awards.

Cowboys Beat Nevers's Eskimos.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 12 (AP).—Ernie Nevers's Duluth Eskimos lost a professional football game here today to the Kansas City Cowboys, 12 to 7. The Cowboys owe their victory to the toe of Al Bloodgood, former Nebraska University star, who kicked a field goal in each quarter.

PEACE AND GOOD SENSE IN EUROPE.

Again a trumpeted "crisis" has melted away at Geneva. For several days the dispatches were alarmist. No agreement was possible. The Treaty of Locarno was to be scrapped and the agreements at Thoiry were to become waste paper. But, as usual, a sudden shift of scene took place, and the Council of the League of Nations adjourned with everything in train for a peaceful settlement with entire good-will on the part of all concerned. The great stumbling-block had been Allied military control in Germany. This is now to give way to a military commission under the League of Nations, which is to have a jurisdiction, and to operate under limitations, wholly satisfactory to Germany. So that latest war cloud rolls by.

In the closing speeches at Geneva, partly given up to congratulations to Sir AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN, M. BRIAND and Dr. STRESEMANN on having received the Nobel prizes, the finest spirit was shown. The British Foreign Minister handsomely said that his labors had been lighter than those of the others, since he had been supported by an undivided public sentiment in his own country. BRIAND, in his reply, deprecated all mere questions of personal distinction when it was only a case of humble individuals throwing themselves with all their energy into the great work of world progress through peace. Equally noteworthy were the utterances of the German Foreign Minister. Dr. STRESEMANN frankly admitted that he had encountered certain difficulties at home, and that some Germans had protested that it was unworthy of the "dignity" of their country to strain every effort to arrange terms of lasting peace with their neighbors. But he maintained, in language reminiscent of BURKE, that nations found the highest manifestation of their dignity in striving to maintain those peaceful conditions under which alone the best capacities of their citizens could be fully developed. All told, the outcome at Geneva was one more bright page written in the history of the League of Nations, with the Ambassadors working harmoniously in cooperation with the Council.

DEBTS AND TAXES.

In voting unanimously to have nothing to do with reduction or rebate of taxes at this session of Congress, the Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee doubtless had mixed motives. They did not wish to see the whole subject thrown into the caldron of Congressional debate. The Democrats stood ready with proposals alternative to any that the Republicans might offer. This movement the majority party desired to head off. Moreover, the Republicans must have been in grave doubt whether any measure of their own could, considering the limited time at their disposal and the uncertainty about holding even their own party together, be passed even if it were agreed to fight for it. So they resolved to get rid of the bone of contention by throwing it out the window.

Yet there are sound reasons for the policy upon which the Republicans of the Ways and Means Committee decided. This is to authorize and instruct the Secretary of the Treasury to apply every dollar of the surplus to redemption of the public debt. It is a sure road to lasting tax reduction. Every million of Government bonds paid off means a cutting of the interest charges which have to be paid out of the taxes by $40,000. Multiply this process often enough and you get infallibly a lowering of taxes. It is better to relieve the taxpayer in this way by a small percentage extended over each of several years, than by giving him a rebate of 10 or 12 per cent. for a single year. Nor can any one tell how long prosperity and superabundant revenues will last. Having a surplus at present in hand, it is far wiser, instead of keeping it as a kind of incentive to politicians to be extravagant or to seek to divide it up among various interests that would like a share, to apply it to the payment of debts in a way to bring about the lessening of the burdens of taxation.

How far this decision of the Ways and Means Committee means a rebuff to the President and his Secretary of the Treasury, every man can judge for himself. It is clear that in making the proposal which he did for a refund of taxes, President COOLIDGE was more impulsive than politically cautious. By the time he came to send his message to Congress, he had arrived at a different opinion. In that he was ostensibly backed up by Secretary MELLON, though it was plain from the latter's annual report that he had little heart in the business, and would really prefer to go on paying off the public debt as rapidly as possible. To that view the majority of the Ways and Means Committee has now committed itself. It is a wise change of front. We shall get rid of a lot of the projected debate in Congress, sure to be angry and time-wasting, and to lead no whither. In place of it, we shall have a considered plan of doing in national finance what any prudent man would do in private business, use surplus funds to pay debts. If President COOLIDGE has any ground for feeling chagrined over the quietus put upon his own suggestion, he will undoubtedly be able to conceal his emotions.

A REMINDER.

Men forget, the poet assures us, even to do intended kindness, not because they will but because sometimes they must, the day's routine often being too much for their memory to act as an alarm clock. Many must have had it on their tablets to contribute to the Hundred Neediest Cases who have not yet done so. Though the total number of givers to date is somewhat larger than last year and the full amount received is higher than the previous record, a great deal remains to be done if the entire need, for the relief of which the work has been undertaken, is to be successfully met.

The daily mute appeal of the cases themselves ought to be enough. It is more eloquent than any written words can be. But a reminder to our readers may be of avail in crystallizing the vague intention to give to this worthy cause "some day." The time is getting short and delay may readily lapse into complete forgetfulness. The sort of charity undertaken by the Hundred Neediest Cases is really a privilege offered to the benevolent-hearted. They will do a wrong to themselves if they fail to take advantage of it.

NO ARMY MANOEUVRES.

The United States cannot find money to meet the expense of army manoeuvres in May. With $25,000, the War Department could have authorized war games in cooperation with the fleet on the New England coast. It was proposed in Congress a year ago that joint manoeuvres of the army and navy should be held in 1927. The navy is kept on edge by annual exercises in the Caribbean or in the Pacific. A war game is always played to test the offensive and defensive power of the fleet. Every unit is used. A base is established at Panama or at Culebra in the West Indies. Recently the activities of the navy were transferred to Hawaii. Something of strategic importance or tactical value is always learned. Thus the navy is ready for an emergency so far as it can be made so with its resources.

The army has no such opportunities to test the organization, and it must not be forgotten that the National Guard, although it goes into camp every year, is the second land line of defense and is in the same fix. The omission of manoeuvres was to be remedied in 1927. A plan was drawn up by the War Department for the participation of the National Guard and reserves in war games with the navy alongshore. Major Gen. PRESTON BROWN, in command of the First Corps Area, headquarters at Boston, was asked to calculate the cost for transportation, supplies and camp sites. He reported that it would be $25,000. The War Department did not have the amount for such a purpose. So Secretary DAVIS was obliged to notify Secretary WILBUR that the joint manoeuvres on the New England coast were off. Yet if there was ever an army rusty for want of field training, it is the present United States Army.

There were no British army manoeuvres between 1913 and 1925. It is true that only divisional and brigade exercises were attempted this year, strict economy preventing war games on a major scale. But, after all, a division is a large body of troops. Conditions of open warfare were maintained. What is called mechanicalization, that is to say the functioning of lorries and tanks, was tried out in a large area. By transferring much of the infantry's equipment to mechanical vehicles greater speed in marching was attained, and when surprises were in order the infantry took to lorries. On one occasion tanks, cavalry and horse artillery surprised a less mobile force. There were days when fog swallowed up the airplanes and mimic battle became a trial of wits. There were other days when owing to deep mud the tanks proved to be a disappointment. Again in these manoeuvres the machine gun demonstrated its superior value. All kinds of experiments were tried with the new weapons. Smoke screens were used in assaults upon batteries. Anti-aircraft gunnery was sometimes effective. Units were tested in various kinds of terrain. Similar exercises would give the United States Army and the Guard a familiarity with the new weapons under battle conditions which they are now denied.

WHAT TO DO ABOUT THE TOMBS.

Grand Juries are required by law to "inquire into the condition and management of the public prisons of the county." So they speak with a measure of authority, and the presentment of the November Grand Jury is of particular significance because it embodies the conclusions of an inquiry into conditions at the Tombs revealed by the recent attempt at jail delivery there. The chief trouble, according to the jurors, is that the prison is undermanned. This confirms the judgment of the Commissioner of Correction, the Commissioner of Accounts and prison experts generally, who have repeatedly urged the need of additional keepers. One to ten prisoners is too low a ratio, particularly in this day of gang and gunman.

The Grand Jurors vigorously condemn the practice of allowing inmates of the Tombs to keep a lot of money in their possession. Convicted prisoners always have their money taken away from them, but the Tombs was long thought to present a somewhat different case because most of those incarcerated there were not convicts, but persons awaiting trial. Many of them are pretty desperate characters, however, and in the belief that the protection of the public was paramount Commissioner WALLIS secured an opinion from the Corporation Counsel last Summer authorizing him to put this weapon of corruption out of the reach of his charges. The Grand Jurors approve this move. They also protest against that overcrowding which is recurrently the bane of the Tombs, and urge the city to expedite the construction of new penal institutions on Riker's Island.

One detailed recommendation the Grand Jury makes which has not appeared before in the current discussion. It seems that in the Tombs and elsewhere electrical apparatus is in charge of prisoners specially deputed to this work. In the event of any night jail delivery plot these men, if in the conspiracy, would be in a position to further it by throwing the whole institution into darkness. The Grand Jurors do not relish that prospect and suggest that all work of this nature be entrusted to civil employes. The report also suggests that the keepers are underpaid. That is a point for the consideration of the Board of Estimate. Salaries today range around $1,500. You cannot buy incorruptibility, but everything possible should be done to encourage self-respect.

NEW PHILISTIA.

President BUTLER of Columbia has discovered "a New Philistia." Of its inhabitants he gives a brief description in his annual report. The location and boundaries of this land are as indefinite as those of the "Erewhon" of SAMUEL BUTLER, but clearly the New Philistia includes parts of our own hemisphere and embraces areas in other continents, for Dr. BUTLER says that it occupies a space "infinitely greater than the land for which it is named." The original Philistia was forty miles long and not over twenty miles broad. Moreover, the inhabitants of New Philistia are not identified by any particular language, though there is one bit of internal evidence that they are contemporaneously known to Dean INGE and Dr. SPENGLER as well as to Dr. BUTLER'S own international mind.

The New Philistines are at the other extreme from the college-trained Erewhonians. The latter are most highly disciplined. Their training is chiefly in "hypothetics." They are required to give intelligent answers to questions arising from a set of utterly strange and impossible contingencies, so that they may be prepared for all sorts of emergencies. Not so the New Philistines. They are restless and nervous companies of men and women "mad upon their idols," who are concerned with displacing discipline by indiscipline, thoroughness by superficiality, and morals by "impulsive and appetitive conduct." Where they have touched education they are "reducing it to a costly pantomime"—as costly, one might add by way of further comparison with the Erewhonian system, as the maintenance of "the colleges of unreason," where "intellectual overdulgence" was considered one of the most insidious and disgraceful forms that excess can take.

It is more accurate to say that President BUTLER has rediscovered this land of New Philistia, for he himself speaks gratefully of warriors who have gone forth in earlier days and fought against it. THOMAS CARLYLE "trampled it under his hoofs and tossed it upon his horns." COLERIDGE and FROUDE and SWINBURNE were like the three mighty men with DAVID, who defied the ancient Philistines. And MATTHEW ARNOLD, who "dissected Philistinism and laid bare its deformities and its grotesqueries," seemed to be the ZECHARIAH of the modern era, prophesying that the pride of the New Philistines would soon be cut off. Yet they persist—these perverse barbarians who glory in isolated, uninterpreted facts and are "inaccessible to and impatient of ideas." When President BUTLER speaks, it is told the next day in Gath and published in the streets of Askelon. The daughters of the New Philistines are therefore no doubt rejoicing over the admission of the strength of those who not only do not think but cannot think, and who purposely or ignorantly weaken or destroy the necessary tools of thought.

The words which President BUTLER quotes from KENYON COX'S noble definition of the classic spirit are as "the sound of a going" in the tops of the mulberry trees. They summon those who are in "the disinterested search for perfection" and who have "a love "of clearness and reasonableness and "self-control," of permanence and continuity, to go out to battle in the assurance that the spirit of truth will go before "to smite the host of the Philistines" in the New Philistia.

GOLDEN WORDS.

In "Georgian Stories, 1926," it is not Mr. SOMERSET MAUGHAM or Mr. LIAM O'FLAHERTY or even Mr. ALDOUS HUXLEY that most stirs the intellectuals and the morals. GERTRUDE STEIN, more brilliant, original and moving than any of her rivals, utters and reiterates an indispensable—ah! if it could only be a saving—"message":

He said enough,
Enough said,
He said enough,
Enough said.
Enough said,
He said enough,
He said enough,
Enough said.
He said enough.

Of the enchantments of eye and ear, the interwoven music and spectacle, the meetings and partings of the partners in this majestic dance of words and thoughts—of its sensuous charm, literary value, incomparable magic, we scorn to speak. It contains invaluable advice and directions. While it applies to all Caves of the Winds, it is especially calculated for the latitude of Washington. PAT HARRISON should have a copy of this salutary passage stuck in the corner of his bedroom dressing mirror so that he may see it as he views therein his comely phiz. Senator BORAH should have it pasted on his manuscript "Notes of the Day," which he consults every morning to find out what is the chief "menace" and what his opinion for the day. Colonel BROOKHART should interweave it between every two pages of "Statistics I Have Invented and Bogies I Have Seen."

If WAYNE WHEELER could and would repeat this incantation of silence before he began to "do" his daily ten thousand words! If the whole herd of Congressional yawpers, squawkers, wailers, weepers, bellowers, denouncers, defiers, taunters, could heed this invocation! Then the campaign of 1928 might be left to its sufficient day. "He said enough, Enough said." The whole perfect Steinism should be printed at the head—if it can be said to have one—of the Congressional Record. Unless the prescription is followed, that noble periodical must be numbered among the victims of incurable obesity.

"WOMAN'S PLACE."

Tucked away at the end of the special "Woman's Place" issue of the December Survey-Graphic is a page delicately marked "For Men Only." Here Mr. LEON WHIPPLE mutters sibilantly, "Where Is Man's Sphere?" Woman has taken the world for her sphere. She is scolded for telling man's stories—and telling them poorly—for driving men out of the saloon, for putting the Modern Priscilla in the barber shop in place of The Police Gazette, for infesting the prize ring and for ruining men's Delphic mystery, business. This spurt of humorous protest is the only glance taken at men except in their relation to woman—as husbands, fathers, sheiks, providers and home-makers.

The rest of the magazine is made up of a series of remarkably acute and varied studies of women. No attempt has been made at unanimity. The writers have given their views, based on the facts they have encountered in long and painstaking search. WILLIAM F. GREEN says: "There is a regrettable tendency for newly married women to continue in employment, avoiding the responsibility of children, rather than sacrifice material comforts temporarily." But HELEN GLENN TYSON writes: "Of one thing we can be sure: the mother works because she has to work, and unless some other method of raising the family income is devised, she is in industry to stay."

A third slant at the same question is that of ALICE BEAL PARSONS. She admits that many women are working after marriage and not having children. She sees, too, that many mothers are working because an addition to the husband's income is an absolute necessity. Years ago, when the family resources were not cash, but food, clothing and shelter produced by all members of the family, "a man added to his income by acquiring a wife and children.'" Every one sees that today such an acquisition is a liability. Mrs. PARSONS suggests that women be restored to their lost industrial occupations. If it is possible without injury to the home, women should be permitted to resume their former economic contributions.

To save the home and yet enable women to work outside it is the core of the problem. Some of the writers lay emphasis on one side of the question, almost to the exclusion of the other, but the other is always there. A little at a time, work which formerly belonged exclusively to women has been taken from them to be done better by machinery, by men in factories, or by men specially trained. An example is given by Dr. BEATRICE M. HINKLE. Until the seventeenth century midwifery had been in the hands of women. When it was introduced as a special study in the university and attracted the interest of surgeons, a law was passed forbidding the practice of midwifery without a degree. But women were not admitted to the university. Their "place in the home," as it exists now, is seen by Dr. HINKLE as an artificial position.

It is, of course, the children who are thought of when the preservation of the home is discussed. If women are to go on as wage earners in the increasing proportions of the last thirty years, something has to be done about the children. Under present economic conditions women will continue in business life. The old notion that woman's presence in business is due to her own efforts and her desire to "express herself" melts away before the illuminating facts of economic necessity and business needs. But what of the children? EUNICE FULLER BARNARD sees the mother of the near future, not abandoning her baby for a job, but abandoned by the child. Her account of the rise of the nursery school in England points to the specialization of infant training. It was not begun to meet the need of mothers compelled to work or choosing to work, but to aid them in making their children healthy and normal. It is regarded as an adjunct to mother care, not a substitute for it.

Not all mothers, it is now frankly admitted, have the instinct for doing the right thing always for the child. Even the good housekeeper, traditionally regarded as a good mother, is now sometimes challenged on that point. In homes of low income, stripped of materials useful in child training, the activities of the children and wage-earning mother are far apart. Where the mother is a professional woman she is often the first to admit that she is a better wife and mother if she is engaged in congenial work and has help with the care of the children. One such is KATHARINE S. ANGELL, who prefers to interest her children as a person quite apart from that important but much-taken-for-granted figure, Mother.

As for Father, he has sometimes disappeared actually. But in most cases he is plodding along, supporting as well as he may the load he must carry while the muddle is gradually clearing. His heart should be cheered by a reading of The Survey-Graphic. It indicates the eventual regaining of a natural division of labor.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Hunting for Dislikes.

"He loves me, he loves me not," has been the accompaniment to the plucking of daisy petals as this buxom country of ours has considered whether England or France or Italy or some other nation likes America or not. We have been at it so long, sometimes coming out favorably but more often not, that we are surprised to see some one else taking up the pastime.

Canon CARNEGIE, Chaplain of the House of Commons, is a recent recruit to the game. In The Sunday Times of London he wonders whether America likes England. Dean INGE is cited as certain that she doesn't: Americans as a whole would be pleased to see the disintegration of the British Empire and the waning of British prestige. The Canon himself, after long thought and many visits here, concludes that there are undercurrents of anti-British feeling in this country, but they are weakening rapidly. The bias fostered by school books on the War of Independence will not be permitted to live another generation. "The great majority of educated and cultivated Americans are well disposed to us."

It is very pleasant to think that we like the other nations and that they like us. Presently, it is hoped, we can all take that attitude for granted. At any rate, mutual respect and liking are to be strengthened more easily if we are not too self-conscious and garrulous about it.

Walkers Are Human Beings.

The pedestrian is at last to be recognized as a creature with traffic rights. Heretofore the chief regulations of traffic have been in the interest of chauffeurs. Everything has been done to expedite motor traffic—quite correctly—but the poor pedestrian has been left to save his own skin—or break his neck, as the case may be—when it comes to getting across the streets.

An ordinance is to go into effect on Jan. 1, 1927, giving mere walkers the right of way over motors "where no police officer is present and no traffic control system is in operation." Drivers are required to slow down, or even stop, in order to permit pedestrians to cross.

This is a victory for the principle that walkers also are human beings. If the ordinance can be enforced, taxi drivers will no longer be able to bear down on innocent pedestrians with ferocious glee and force them to leap like kangaroos in order to escape death or mutilation.

The principal remaining danger for walkers is, therefore, at those corners protected by policemen who control the cross and the up and down town movement, but who permit right or left turns. Chauffeurs will still be able to show their scorn for the man on foot by coming up behind him when he thinks he is safe and honking with such vehemence that he makes a running broad jump for the curb.

Pedestrians Are Often Thoughtless.

In connection with the regulation of traffic for pedestrians, a correspondent wrote to THE TIMES last Saturday to protest against the habit of most walkers of ignoring the rule of keeping to the right, and described the usual crossing of streets at crowded corners as little better than a football scrimmage. He asked that this also be prohibited by law and that pedestrians be forced to keep to the right.

He might have gone even further and suggested an anti-parking law for pedestrians which would penalize individuals and groups standing at strategic corners and at the entrances to subways, blocking free passage and needlessly irritating persons in a hurry.

Thoughtlessness such as this becomes all the more inexcusable as the crowds increase. These pedestrians sometimes succeed in blocking the sidewalks for a good distance for the reason that they hold up traffic both ways. In regions that are congested it seems not unreasonable to ask that the emergency slogan of "keep moving" be invoked.

Too Many Street Santa Clauses.

The number of embarrassing questions a young child can ask has been increased. If he is taken shopping, as all youngsters are at this time of year, he notices the great number of red-cloaked, white-whiskered figures infesting the street, and naturally wants to know who they are.

In all probability he has been told that he is on his way to a toy shop to see Santa Claus, and he must find it confusing to be told that this red-nosed, rather chilly looking fellow on the corner is the jolly old gentleman he has heard so much about. That might be explained. But the real difficulty arises when mother and child approach their fifteenth Santa Claus.

Quite aside from the matter, sufficiently serious, of disillusioning children there is the question of what becomes of all the contributions which certain unauthorized Christmas saints collect. Some of them are obviously working for recognizable charity, but some others adopt the genial uniform to cover up less worthy purposes. The whole trend of charity work today is toward organized methods, by which contributions are carefully accounted for and distributed. Promiscuous gifts of small sums to unidentified individuals are far from certain of reaching those whom the giver has in mind.

Old Toys Are Wanted.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I call the attention of THE TIMES readers to the toy factory which the little girls of the Greater New York Camp Fire Girls are running at their headquarters at 31 East Seventeenth Street? The work of this factory is to make over and refurnish discarded and second-hand toys for the little children of the Bellevue Hospital visiting nurses' homes.

The girls are giving their time as well as their playthings. Every Saturday and afternoons after school dozens of them are at work. But the factory must depend for the bulk of its material on the public. Toys of all kinds, not too badly damaged, are asked for. When a happy Christmas may be provided for thousands of little children by the gift of playthings already discarded by their first owners, we hope your readers will respond to this request. All toys should be sent to the toy factory, Camp Fire Girls, 31 East Seventeenth Street, New York.

CATHEDRALS.

You tell me of cathedrals. You have come
From journeyings in far and distant lands.
You have walked down the roads of all the world,
And all the city ways have known your feet.
You have passed by the palaces of Kings
And marked their ancient beauty. You have heard
The temple bells ring out above a shrine.

You tell me of cathedrals. With your eyes
I see the majesty of all these things.
I know their beauty well, for I have seen
A grove of hemlock trees, and passed within,
And signed a silent cross upon my breast.

And I have stood upon a rocky shore
And watched a white moon rising from the sea.
And I have walked alone in high sweet grass
Where clover was, and little sounds of growing
Came to my heart like words upon a wind.

You tell me of cathedrals. Oh, my friend,
Last night a snow fell down, and all the trees
In all the silent forests of the world
Are gleaming spires and shining turrets now.
And in those windows all the white saints stand;
And on the altar many candles burn.

No man shall build cathedrals such as these.
Seeds from the earth and crystals from the sky
Build and forever build; and vast and still
The living temples of the living earth
Reveal the word of majesty and light.

FREE SPEECH IN SCHOOLS.

Ludicrous Side Is Seen to Recent Board of Education Action.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The editorial in THE TIMES of Dec. 8 commenting favorably on the decision of Dr. Graves against the American Civil Liberties Union does not accurately state the facts in the case.

The Board of Education was not asked "to avail itself of the proposed program" of the union as a part of the educational curriculum. The application for permission to use a high school auditorium to discuss "Old Fashioned Free Speech" was made under subsection 3 of section 455 of the Education law, which authorizes the use of the school buildings, outside of school hours, for "social, civic and recreational purposes, and other uses pertaining to the welfare of the community." The same section directs Boards of Education to adopt reasonable regulations for such use of the school buildings "when not in use for school purposes."

These provisions are distinct from the provision of the same law, quoted in part in THE TIMES editorial, which authorizes Boards of Education to establish community centres to promote principles of Americanization.

If these provisions were fairly interpreted in accordance with the apparent legislative intention, and if the New York City Board of Education permitted the use of school buildings at times when they would otherwise be dark, for the discussion of any subject really worth discussing—any subject, that is to say, on which people more or less strongly differ—it is quite conceivable, at least to those who believe in the educational value of free discussion, that the school buildings might be made valuable civic centres of enlightenment. No one would be likely to assume that the Board of Education sponsored every speaker in the school buildings any more than he would assume that you agree with my views if you publish this letter.

THE TIMES editorial performs a useful service in indicating the need of a reconsideration of the whole subject of free speech. The trouble with free speech seems to be that everybody professes to believe in it. Such unanimity must surely indicate that the term has become too vague for any use. Your editorial pays ceremonial homage to free speech, for instance, at the same time that you imply that a distinction may fairly be drawn between free speech for respectable people and free speech for blatherskites. Some public-spirited citizen might perform a valuable service by proclaiming boldly that he does not believe in free speech for others than himself. This would stimulate an enlightening debate on the subject, and would enable us to approach intelligently the real issue in the civil liberties case, which is whether it is in the public interest to permit educational officials, in addition to their legitimate function of instructing the young, to assume the power of deciding what sincere and intelligent adults may or may not hear and say in the school buildings outside of school hours.

After all, does it not seem somewhat ludicrous for any one to scent danger in permitting a discussion of free speech in a school building by two men whose names may be found in "Who's Who in America" and whose views have probably received wider publicity in your columns at various times than they could ever receive in a school auditorium?

Treating Nervous Diseases.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have noted with surprise the letter of "An Observer" in reply to Dr. Zabriskie.

Your correspondent says that "the reason people neglect their nerves is because the average person cannot afford to pay the price of an interview with a neurologist," and that "if the neurologists are sincere in their desire to aid the people, why don't they regulate their charges so that a man with a moderate salary can without hesitancy get advice?"

Permit me to say that this is a most unfair stricture upon a body of able and earnest men, many of whom are on the staff of the Neurological Institute, and who are devoting freely a very large part of their time to the public service.

When a physician has selected the particular field of neurology for his life work and by ability and hard work has risen to eminence, he is entitled to liberal compensation; but there is a large body of younger neurologists, able and competent, whose charges are no higher than those of practitioners in other branches of medicine and surgery.

If it be true that the reason why people neglect their nerves is because the average person cannot afford to pay the fees of a neurologist, the average person must be unaware of the existence of the Neurological Institute, now located at 151 East Sixty-seventh Street, and of the work it is doing, not only for the rich and for the average person, but also for the very poor.

The Out-Patient Department is conducted to meet the need not only of the poor but of the self-supporting patient who can afford to pay something.

The Dispensary Clinic at the Institute is open every day at 1 o'clock, except Sundays and holidays, at which the fee is regulated entirely by the patient's ability to pay. The maximum fee for examination and advice by a trained neurologist is $1, with correspondingly modest charges for X-ray and laboratory tests and for treatments, all of which are far less than the actual cost of such service. If the patient can pay nothing, every service of the institute is open to him free.

For those who neither need nor desire charity there are private pay clinics every morning at 10 o'clock, except Sundays and holidays, and on Monday and Friday evenings at 7 o'clock, at which the fee for examination and advice by a trained neurologist is $5, with moderate fees for X-ray and laboratory tests and for treatments.

Toys for Prisoners' Children.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mothers and children come to the Prison Association of New York every day in great sorrow and distress through no fault of their own. For the children of men in prison we hope through the help of your interested readers to have a Christmas tree and toys at 135 East Fifteenth Street. Dolls for the girls and toys and games for the boys, to bring them a little cheer and brightness, will be appreciated.

This effort to bring happiness on Christmas Day is not at all one to condone crime or to make it easier for the offender, but it is an efffort to help little ones who are unable to help themselves and who deserve to be spared, so far as is possible, the disgrace and hardship visited upon them.

MUSEUM ACQUIRES RARE SUIT OF ARMOR

Metropolitan Prizes Highly Art Object Made After Days of Chivalry Had Waned.

A MASTERPIECE OF ITS KIND

Other Acquisitions of Glass Work and Gems on View—Board of Trustees Announces Elections.

One of the last suits of armor [illegible] out by craftsmen after the days of chivalry had waned is now on view at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Only two or three other pieces that bear "kinship" to this suit of mail are in existence, according to Bashford Dean, Curator of Armor at the Museum. The armor and other recent acquisitions will be on view today.

Other examples among the recent accessions are terra-cottas, glass [illegible], jewelry, gems and an ivory piece of classical origin, a T'ang pottery horse given by Mrs. Edward S. Harkness; a collection of early books and several paintings.

The Bulletin of the Museum describes most of the recent accessions and also announces that the classical [illegible] withdrawn from exhibition since March, 1924, on account of lack of space, are again accessible to the public in Galleries B 34 to 36. In the collection are a number of small bas-reliefs which, according to Gisela M. A. Richter, Curator of Classical Art, depict the Athenians of the fifth century, B. C., at their prizefights, cat and dog fights, hockey games and other athletic contests. Among the other bas-reliefs are specimens of Pinfare.

The suit of armor is regarded today by Bashford Dean, Curator of the Metropolitan, who said:

"As an object of art the present armor is noteworthy, especially when we consider that it dates from a period when armor was already decadent. It was made by a master and enriched with bands of engraving in [illegible] design elaborately carried out."

It was sold at an auction at London Castle, Ayrshire, in 1921, and passed through a number of hands to the Metropolitan Museum.

"While on sale in London," Mr. Dean continued, "this armor was made the subject of a special and carefully documented memoir, which compared it with similar harnesses and discussed critically for whom, by whom and when it was made. This memoir considers a score or more suits or fragments of suits, mainly Savoyard or Spanish, which the author, Mr. Dean, compares with the present specimen—some of which seem not to concern us closely. For in all there are but three suits of armor, so far as our records go, which bear close kinship to our present specimen.

Announcement is made that the Board of Trustees at a meeting held Nov. 15 elected the following individuals in their respective classes:

Fellows in Perpetuity—Adolph S. Ochs, Mrs. Edna D. Tallman.

Honorary Fellow for Life—James Spencer Morgan.

Contributing Member—Mrs. Robert Cary.

Sustaining Members—Mrs. William P. Armstrong, Mrs. Edgar E. Dillon, Mrs. Lydia Friedman, Mrs. Artemis Gates, Mrs. Louis Gimbel, Miss Cortlandt Goodwin, Mrs. Sam Gray, Jason W. James, Miss Annie Kahn, Henry Katz, Mrs. Frances Duffy Kehoe, Miss Nancy V. McClelland, Charles E. McMannus, Edwin T. Meredith, Miss Alice Lord O'Brien, Mrs. G. M. Roberts, Mrs. Donald T. Samuels, Mrs. Jack Q. H. Smith, Mrs. James E. Spiegelberg, Mrs. Isidor Straus, Mrs. Louis Stewart Jr., Mrs. Joseph Stout.

Annual members were elected to the number of 150.

A FREE SPEECH SUGGESTION

Weekly Would Pick a Few Daily Halls for Topics of Strife.

The decision of Dr. Frank [illegible] State Commissioner of Education, in holding the Board of Education in barring the use of a public school building to the American Civil Liberties Union for "an old-fashioned free speech meeting" is commented on in the current issue of the Public Education Association's weekly paper, "The Public and the Schools," and a way out of the situation is offered.

The article says that in the opinion of the Public Education Association the school authorities would act more wisely in erring, if necessary, on the side of liberality rather than on the other side, as they have so often done.

"There is less danger to our democratic institutions in encouraging freedom within the bounds of law and order than there is in causing, however unwittingly, either just or [illegible] nary feelings of suppression," the article continues.

"If the use of school buildings for public forums under private auspices is to be permitted at all, such use should be denied only when the meeting in question is clearly for illegal purposes. It seems reasonable to say that, in the interests of 'Americanization,' the public schools should be utilized for the stimulation of an intelligent and informed citizenship."

COLLEGE SEEKS $1,000,000

Connecticut Women's Institution Needs Adequate Buildings.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 12—The need for $1,000,000 further endowment was laid before the Board of Trustees of Connecticut Women's College at their December meeting here. It was reported that with all available dormitory rooms in use, the curriculum could not be extended by another class until more funds were required to maintain the Faculty at fair and adequate salaries.

The specific needs of the college in the terms of buildings are an adequate instruction building, a chapel to seat about 800, new dormitories with refectories to accommodate 250 students, an administration building, a new gymnasium, a museum building with facilities for the Fine Arts Department, galleries for permanent exhibition and studies, a central assembly hall with facilities for the music department for practice rooms and chamber concerts and homes for the Faculty on or near the campus.

The Bursar of the College, at the request of President Benjamin C. Marshall, has prepared a statement of the assets of the college at New London year by year since its incorporation in 1911. The assets of $1,350,000 in 1912 have grown to $2,672,879 in 1926. Of this increase, $1,471,401 came during the present administration and included gifts of nearly $900,000, while to the capital account from current income $335,333 has been added. The budget for the current year of the youngest of Eastern colleges for women lies above $400,000.

8,112 SIGN TRIBUTE TO LOUIS MARSHALL

Five Volumes of Signatures From Many Lands Given to Lawyer as He Nears 70.

ADDRESS EXTOLS CAREER

Calls Him Champion of Jews—Record at Bar and Work for Minority Rights Praised by Noted Men.

An address signed by 8,112 persons in many parts of the world was presented to Louis Marshall yesterday in celebration of his seventieth birthday, which will be tomorrow. The address testified to his services to the cause of Judaism, and commemorated his efforts to safeguard the religious and political rights of Jews. It extolled his brilliant record as a lawyer and his civic activities.

The presentation was made at Mr. Marshall's home, 47 East Seventy-second Street by a committee representing his friends. As his birthday drew near the recognition it should receive was discussed and most of the suggestions made were rejected because of Mr. Marshall's dislike for showy demonstrations. So the address to receive signatures was prepared. So far it has been signed by persons in 348 cities in the United States, by 563 persons representing organizations and communities in France, Denmark, Rumania, Italy, Switzerland, Austria, Hungary, Yugoslavia, the Argentine, Canada and Cuba, and by 519 officers of forty institutions of learning, charity and philanthropy with which Mr. Marshall is connected.

There are so far five volumes of these signatures, and so many are yet being received that a sixth volume will be prepared. The address itself is engrossed and illuminated and is the work of Joseph B. Abrahams, Secretary of the Jewish Theological Seminary. Each illumination is a reproduction of an ancient manuscript or book in the library of the seminary, reflecting the Jewish art of the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, and representing medieval Germany, Italy and Spain. The volumes are bound in crushed levant.

The address was read by Dr. Cyrus Adler, Chairman of the presentation committee, before the members of the committee and some of Mr. Marshall's closest friends. Mr. Marshall stood at one side of his drawing room, with men prominent in the business and legal life of New York and other cities grouped around him.

The Address.

The address, dated as of his birthday, follows:

Dear Mr. Marshall:

Upon this day, when you have reached threescore and ten, in health and vigor, your friends and associates and many far and near, who have not had the privilege of knowing you in person, ask you to accept their warmest congratulations.

We realize that any form of praise or adulation will be distasteful to you, and in this we shall not indulge, but we may be permitted to express our thanks to Almighty God, who has in our day raised you up as a champion of the Jewish people. We are grateful for your never-varying zeal in behalf of our rights wherever they have been denied or threatened. The occasions upon which you have defended our cause are too numerous to recall, but we remind ourselves of those notable months which you spent in Paris in 1919, never tiring, always resourceful, your labors resulting in the inclusion in the treaties of peace of provisions which we hope will ultimately safeguard the religious and political rights of the Jewish people of Eastern Europe.

Another occasion that we would wish to recall is the splendid part you played in bringing about the abrogation of the treaty between the United States and Russia, thereby contributing, as you did, to what was probably the most notable act ever undertaken by a great State in behalf of the Jewish people.

You have never ceased your activity since 1914 in the gathering and administration of the funds for the relief of the sufferers from the great war wherever they might be. You have in this cause spent your energy, traveled far and wide and with well-nigh superhuman strength and devotion have lifted your voice in behalf of the succor and rehabilitation of the broken Jewish people. You have given unceasing devotion to the synagogue, to Jewish education and to Jewish learning without respect to party differences, acting in the spirit that nothing Jewish was alien to you.

Eminence at the Bar.

As a member of the bar you have combined learning, power and integrity. In the courts of New York, in many courts throughout the country and before the Supreme Court of the United States, you have come to be recognized as one of the outstanding advocates of America, and your passion for the promotion of right and justice has frequently led you to take up causes solely that the ends of justice might be served. Not only among your brethren at the bar and on the bench but in the Senate of the United States you have been acclaimed as among the leading constitutional lawyers in America. You have sat consecutively in three conventions for the revision of the Constitution of the State of New York—a unique record—and you have served as Chairman of the Immigration Commission of your native State. You have aided in the promotion of industrial peace. You have been one of the leaders in the preservation of our forests, and are a valued trustee of the University of the City of Syracuse, your native city. You have served innumerable organizations for the promotion of learning and the welfare of your fellow-men.

In these and many other activities you have encouraged hundreds and thousands in all walks of life by your sacrifice and your devotion to the public good, and for all these things and for the many which we forbear to mention we ask you to accept this modest offering as a slight token of our affection, our esteem and our gratitude.

Mr. Marshall Replies.

Dec. 14, 1926.

Mr. Marshall replied briefly that he did not feel that anything he had done merited such honor, and that such service as he had performed for his fellow-Jews or as a citizen of his country had been in the line of duty for which a man should not receive thanks.

"If I have been able to earn the appreciation of my fellow-men, I have been repaid a thousandfold for all my efforts," he said.

Those on the committee in addition to Dr. Adler who were present were A. C. Ratschesky of Boston, James H. Becker and Julius Rosenwald of Chicago, David A. Brown of Detroit, Felix Fuld of Newark, Judge Horace Stern of Philadelphia, and David M. Bressler, Daniel Guggenheim, Judge Samson Lachman, S. C. Lamport, Colonel Herbert H. Lehman, Judge Irving Lehman, Sol M. Stroock, Cyrus L. Sulzberger, Israel Unterberg, Ludwig Vogelstein and Felix M. Warburg, all of New York. The late Jules E. Mastbaum of Philadelphia was also a member of the committee.

Others present were Judge Benjamin N. Cardozo, Judge Abram I. Elkus, Nathan Straus, Adolph Lewisohn, Adolph S. Ochs, Herman Bernstein, Jacob Billikopf, William Spiegelberg and Mr. Marshall's son, James Marshall.

The issue of The Jewish Tribune of Dec. 10 is dedicated to Mr. Marshall and contains many tributes from prominent men of many religious beliefs and in many walks of life. Herman Bernstein, editor of The Jewish Tribune, wrote:

"Wherever Jewish rights are infringed, wherever human rights are violated, Louis Marshall is always ready to defend and protect the weak and the oppressed. His tireless work, his legal genius and his passion for justice are at all times given by him generously and energetically.

"Louis Marshall is one of America's most respected, outstanding public-spirited citizens of this generation."

Praise From Elihu Root.

Elihu Root wrote:

"I am much obliged to you for giving me an opportunity to express my admiration and warm regard for Mr. Louis Marshall on the occasion of his seventieth birthday.

"I have known him very well indeed for a great many years at the bar and as his colleague in two Constitutional conventions. He is a most learned lawyer, thoroughly familiar with the precedents and imbued with the spirit of our law, and his learning has been made effective by a capacity for clear and precise statement. He has the kindliest of dispositions, good temper, respect for the rights of others in matters of opinion, a soul superior to petty suspicions and irritations, loyalty to clients, integrity, a high sense of honor and public spirit.

"His whole distinguished career has been a contribution to the administration of justice, and the example of his life may be usefully insisted upon as an evidence that by the possession of such qualities as his great success may be attained.

"I wish him many more years of honor and contentment."

Samuel Untermyer, who was a classmate of Mr. Marshall at the Columbia Law School forty-eight years ago, recalled that Mr. Marshall was the outstanding man in his class, and that Professor Dwight regarded him as a prodigy.

"His professional life has not been devoted solely to money-getting," wrote Mr. Untermyer. "He has given himself freely to great public causes (without compensation and at times at his own cost) and time and again he has assumed without pay the championship in the courts of principles which he believed should be established in the public interest. I know of no man who by his life, his example, his work and his ideals is better entitled to the love and affection of his fellowmen, regardless of race or creed."

Chaim Weizmann, President of the World Zionist Organization, paid tribute to Mr. Marshall's tact and skill at the Peace Conference.

"I saw the man at his difficult work in this particularly feverish atmosphere," he wrote, "and I learned to admire his high qualities of tact and skill, his sound judgment, firmness and sterling character. The triumph of the treaty for the protection of minorities is due largely to the generous, far-sighted and energetic efforts of Louis Marshall. In the memorandum presented by him and his associates he also supported the Palestinian resolution."

A Great Leader, Says Cardozo.

Chief Justice Benjamin Cardozo of the New York Court of Appeals wrote that Mr. Marshall had "somehow been transformed into a great civic institution, coordinating the energies and activities of many men, so that with all his intensely human traits he has acquired in his own life a new and, as it were, a corporate personality.

"He is a great lawyer; a great champion of ordered liberty; a great leader of his people; a great lover of mankind."

Justice Harlan F. Stone of the United States Supreme Court wrote:

"Occasional contacts with him at the bar and years of service with him on one of the hard-working committees of the New York Bar Association have given me a high appreciation of his great ability as a lawyer, his tireless industry, and his zeal for service to his profession and to the public. A career such as his merits recognition and approval such as it has long received, and will now receive in an increasing measure."

An unusual tribute to Mr. Marshall's eager support of a cause which he believed involved religious freedom, although in this case it was not his own religion which was affected, was paid by William D. Guthrie, President of the Bar Association.

"I shall never forget or fail to recall with gratitude, nor should any other Roman Catholic ever forget or fail to be grateful for, the fine service rendered by Marshall in the Oregon school cases before the Supreme Court of the United States, decided in June of last year," wrote Mr. Guthrie.

Nathan Straus wrote: "He spares neither his health, nor his talents, nor his pocketbook when worthy causes are to be served, whether education, relief work or human rights are involved."

Among others who paid tribute to Mr. Marshall in The Jewish Tribune were George Gordon Battle, James W. Wadsworth Jr., Colonel M. A. Guinzburg, Daniel Guggenheim, Philip Cowan, Julius Rosenwald, Felix M. Warburg, Adolph Lewisohn, Paul M. Warburg, Ben Altheimer, Lee Kohns, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Professor David Werner Amram, Judge Frank H. Hiscock, Rabbi Abram Simon, Judge Otto A. Rosalsky, Nathan Krass, Nathan S. Jonas, Benjamin Winter, Congressman Isaac Bacharach, Joseph A. Rosen, William Fox, Judge Irving Lehman, Judge Samuel Greenbaum, Israel Unterberg, Roger W. Straus, Ludwig Vogelstein, Alfred M. Cohen, George W. Wickersham, Nathan Straus Jr., Lee K. Frankel, Samson Lachman, Mortimer L. Schiff, Lewis L. Strauss Jr., Judge Horace Stern, Frederick Brown, H. G. Enelow, Victor Rosewater, Benno Lewinson, James Weldon, the negro poet; Jacques Bigart, J. L. Greenberg, Lillian D. Wald, Herbert H. Lehman, Solomon Solis Cohen, B. C. Vladeck, Jonah J. Goldstein and Sol M. Stroockt.

LED AS ROMANTICIST EARLY

"The Song of the Beggars" Sent Him to Jail—Once Roamed Europe in Humble Callings.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company. Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—Jean Richepin, best known of the French romantic poets during the latter part of the last century and since then a poet of academic rank, died this morning at the age of 77. His first published verses, "La Chanson des Gueux," issued in 1876, caused such a scandal that the poet was sentenced to four months in prison. For some twenty years thereafter, Richepin was a poet of truculent new ideas of "blasphemies" and the romantic life. His theatrical work, which was voluminous, was of the same sort.

In 1897 in "Le Chemineau," which was immediately put into the repertory of the State Theatre, Richepin reached the peak of his literary reputation. After that his character seemed to undergo a complete change. The "Gypsy" and "Blasphemer" became content to receive the honor of being elected a member of the institute and to write official odes.

Two weeks ago, during the filming of one of his plays, M. Richepin caught a cold, which developed complications, to which he succumbed today.

A Longshoreman for a While.

M. Richepin was born in Algeria, the son of an army surgeon, and educated at Paris. After making a good record in the war of 1870-71, he roamed for a year or so through Southern Europe, earning a precarious living as sailor, porter, longshoreman and professor of languages. He even wrestled for money at fairs. In view of these early experiences, it is reasonable to believe that "Le Chemineau," or "The Tramp" contains autobiography. Otis Skinner in October, 1904, appeared here as the Harvester in a play of that name adapted from "Le Chemineau."

After an unsuccessful trial of literature, M. Richepin was with an obscure theatrical company for a couple of seasons. On his return to Paris he naturally settled in the Latin Quarter, where a literary group that included Raoul Ponchon and Paul Bourket was beginning to attract attention. In this period he wrote "The Song of the Beggars" that sent him to jail.

REV. DR. MOSESSOHN EULOGIZED AT FUNERAL

Founder-Editor of The Jewish Tribune Praised as One Who Loved Fellow-Man.

Funeral services for the Rev. Dr. Nehemiah Mosessohn, founder-editor of The Jewish Tribune, who died on Friday night at Mount Sinai Hospital, were held yesterday morning at Shaare Zedek Synagogue, 212 West Ninety-third Street. A thousand persons attended. The Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise, the Rev. Dr. Jonah B. Wise and the Rev. Dr. Bernard M. Drachman joined in praising the qualities of Dr. Mosessohn. Burial was in Mount Carmel Cemetery, Brooklyn.

Dr. Stephen Wise declared Dr. Mosessohn was a fearless champion of Israel who, although he had strong ideas, was tolerant toward those who disagreed with him. Th speaker had come to know Dr. Mosessohn in Portland, Ore., many years ago and they became warm friends. Dr. Mosessohn's great love for his fellow-man and for his children and his devotion to the weekly paper that "will remain a monument to him" were glowingly described.

Dr. Jonah Wise said he saw reflected in the soul of his departed friend the soul of all Israel. Dr. Mosessohn, he declared, spent his life in a struggle for the expression of truth.

In eulogizing the dead editor, Dr. Drachman declared that he had the "spirit of the Jewish scholar" and regarded scholarship, not as an end in itself, but as a means of accomplishing good and combating wrong.

At the graveside, Rabbi S. Leikin, who came to this country recently from the Crimea, compared Dr. Mosessohn to the central character in a book, "The Golden Heart," who was forever giving away a piece of his heart to the less fortunate. Dr. Leikin expressed gratitude for the aid he had received from Dr. Mosessohn when he landed in America.

The honorary pallbearers were Dr. George A. Kohut, Herman Bernstein, Judge Otto A. Rosalsky, Rabbi Z. H. Masliansky, Joseph Barondess, Dr. Bernard M. Kaplan, Dr. F. de Sola Mendes, Alfred Zanti, Louis H. Chalif, M. Stern and J. D. Bookstaver. The El Mole Rachamim was sung at the services by Cantor David Roitman.

REV. L. F. OSTRANDER DIES.

LYONS, N. Y., Dec. 12 (AP).—The Rev. Le Roy F. Ostrander, 54, son of the Rev. Luther A. Ostrander of Lyons, and for twenty-five years head of the American school at Somakov, Bulgaria.

He was a graduate of Lyons Union School and of Hamilton College. His wife was head of the girls' department of the school. The Rev. Mr. Ostrander resigned his post with the school last June.

Frank E. Brackett.

Special to The New York Times.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Dec. 12.—Frank E. Brackett, retired civil and mining engineer, died last night. He was a native of Somerville, Mass., and a graduate of Harvard. During the Civil War he joined the United States Navy and was detailed to a blockade runner in the Gulf of Mexico.

Mr. Brackett's first big undertaking was the construction of the Sesquihoning Tunnel in Pennsylvania. He was later Superintendent of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company. In 1879 Mr. Brackett came to the Georges Creek region and was manager of the Maryland Coal Company until fifteen years ago when he retired.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Capner Steel Brackett, two sons and one daughter.

Leo Straus Dies Suddenly.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11 (AP).—Leo Straus, 69, former wholesale liquor dealer and a cousin of S. W. COL. S. E. ALLEN DIES AS WIFE GREETS HIM

Former Commander at Fort Hamilton Stricken as He Approaches His Home.

Colonel Samuel Edward Allen, U. S. A., retired, commander at Fort Hamilton from 1910 to 1916, dropped dead shortly before 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon as he was approaching his home at 231 Gates Avenue, Brooklyn. His wife had stepped to the door to greet him and he died almost at her feet. He had appeared previously to be in good health. He was 68 years old.

The funeral will be held at the Church of the Nativity, Classon Avenue and Madison Street, Brooklyn, at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery, Washington.

Colonel Allen was graduated eighth in his class at West Point in 1881. He attained a Captaincy in 1899. He commanded the defenses of the Potomac before coming to Fort Hamilton, and just prior to his retirement in 1920 he was in charge of the coast defense of Manila and Sabic Bay, P. I.

Wanamaker's Open Tonight Until 9 O'clock

LAST CHRISTMAS OPEN NIGHT OF 1926

HERE ARE THE QUICK WAYS TO REACH THE STORE:—

From the Founder's Writings

From That Little Dingy Brick House of Thomas Carlyle

at Chelsea, old London, quite near the Thames embankment and Battersea Park, we got this little piece which sounds exactly like the way the old philosopher talked:

"Yes, sir; experience is a good schoolmaster, but he does charge such dreadful wages." Solomon was one of those who paid a high price for experience; so did Benedict Arnold, of Revolutionary times. This reference is pertinent to those Revolutionary times for half-and-half patriots to whom it may be a two-edged sword. What's the use of a man or woman being like most mules, who can only be made to move with a club?

Fortunately, we have what the shrewd and canny Scotch people claim to be the best books for their boys to learn business—"The Book of Proverbs"—that we would not have but for Solomon's experience.

Truly, truly it is sometimes harder to take advice than to give it.

It is smarter to profit by experience that others paid for than to blindly pitch on ahead until something hurts us.

The experiences of this Store's experiments cost us "a Mint of Money," but it is worth all it cost.

(Signed)

S.S. Santaland trips in Auditorium
7 and 8 P. M.

Children tucked away to bed—mother comes in ready for a glorious shopping trip. Dad snaps shut the lid of his desk and hurries smiling to meet her. From the Restaurant, a trip through the store—books, pictures, electrical gifts, furniture, tapestries, the Arts of the East, toys, china, glass, lamps, the Gift Shop, the Paper Shop, radio, phonographs, pianos, the whole floor for men—and in the old building, world-known Au Quatrieme, lingerie, children's things, fashions for women, gift linens, blankets, and then to the Street Floor, with its rows on rows of gift suggestions—jewelry, bags, perfumes, stockings—a pause—of reverence—in the Christmas Rotunda vibrant with Sacred Symbolism—and out into the nipping air, Christmas singing in your heart.

HELP FOR NEEDIEST MUST COME QUICKLY

Fund Is Far From Total of Last Year, When 345 Cases Were Provided For.

FAMILIES FACE SEPARATION

Speedy Contributions Are Urged to Relieve the Distressed Before Christmas.

EMPLOYE GROUPS SEND AID

Lawyer's Fee, Engineer's Bonus and an Unclaimed Account Are Among Sunday's Gifts.

Contributions of $3,371.53 increased the total for the neediest cases yesterday to $69,553.02. The fund is far from its goal. The amount so far received is $190,000 less than last year's total of $260,998.36.

Help is sought this year for hundreds of afflicted families. The fund of a year ago not only provided for the 100 printed cases, but for 245 additional ones. The aim this year is to extend relief on an even larger scale. Contributions must come in a great volume to make this possible. A falling off in large gifts for the neediest has been noted in the last three days. Scores of large and thousands of small contributions are needed to make sure that the crusade to end the unmerited distress and suffering of New York's neediest cases will be pressed more vigorously than ever before.

The hundred neediest cases and the additional cases, for which the appeal is made, are those of the most afflicted families known to six of the leading charitable organizations of New York. The majority of the cases are those of mothers and children left without resources. Labor troubles and unemployment are not involved. The families are without income, either because there is no breadwinner or because he is disabled by blindness, accident or illness.

Relief Is Continuous.

The relief that is given is not temporary. It is not for the holiday season only. It lasts for a year or until the stricken family has recovered and is self-supporting again.

Relief, as the word is used in the appeal for the neediest cases, means steadily and continuously meeting all the needs of the family. Rest for an overworked mother may be the greatest need. If so, rest is made possible for her. Hospital or sanitarium treatment for a sick man or woman may be the greatest need. Special diet for undernourished children threatened with tuberculosis may be the greatest need. Whatever the needs of the family may be they are met fully. Food, clothing, shelter and medical attention are provided.

Comprehensive relief is given with the object of bringing about the complete recovery of the family wherever possible. In some cases good care and freedom from anxiety enable the breadwinner to recover his health. Light work is found for the partially disabled or they are trained in some new occupation. The health of growing children is carefully looked after and older sons and daughters are trained and equipped to become effective workers who will command good wages at an early age.

Good homes will be saved. Mothers will be spared the agony of surrendering their little ones to orphan asylums. Children who adore their mothers will not be forced to separate from them and live in institutions while contributions make it possible to maintain their homes.

Gifts Help to Save Families.

The fate of many families depends on the size of the fund for the neediest cases. Every contribution that is made will help to wipe out undeserved distress and misery. To withhold a contribution that could be made is deliberately to allow such distress to continue.

Contributions of $200 were received yesterday from Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Simon, and from "F. A." Contributions of $100 were received from E. Felix Shaskan, James Norris, Chester Dale, Henry R. Benjamin, A. P. Gunari, Mrs. D. C. Wicklam, Clarkson Potter and C. R. Vose.

Contributions have begun to come from groups of employes. The sales force of Charles Burstein & Bros., 11-17 West Nineteenth Street, sent its $30 with a letter saying:

"Enclosed please find check for $30, our annual contribution, trusting this little mite will gladden some poor family's heart."

A contribution of $36 was sent by the employes of Stern, Merritt Company, 45-51 West Twenty-fifth Street, for Cases 4 and 23. A money order was received with the following letter:

"Herewith I am sending you money order to the amount of $18.50 which represents various contributions of the girls of our office. We leave it to your good judgment to apply this to any one of the cases that you see fit. Please report this as 'The Girls.'"

Twenty-six contributions were made yesterday in memory of dear ones.

Bonus and Fee Aid Cause.

Some unusual contributions have been received this year. An engineer passed on to the neediest cases a large bonus which he received for work done in South America. A lawyer turned over to the neediest cases the fee he received for legal work for a charitable organization. Two salesmen gave commissions to the neediest cases. A gift of unique origin from the H. & M. Building Corporation is described in the following letter:

"We are enclosing herewith our check for $96.70, representing an unclaimed account on our books, and which we desire to have applied to your fund, to be used on whatsoever case or cases you may think best, in memory of Charles Peterson. We consider this work one of the finest we know of."

The following are passages from other letters accompanying contributions:

Joan and Pieter—Enclosed find our check for $5. We wish that we could send $800 for Case 95. We have saved our pennies and now we want Eva, Grace and Eleanor to have them to spend for something nice for Christmas.

Mrs. George Morse, Orlando, Fla.—I enclose check for Case 17, "Jimmie" and his six little brothers. And may this splendid work grow every year.

J. H. Conover—As I read your article on the needs of many of your city families and look upon my family, who are supplied with a great deal more than they need, I cannot help contributing to the fund, even though the sum is small. Conditions are very different here in the country. We are unable to find a family who are not supplied with all they could wish, so far as the necessities of life are concerned.

"Happy"—Please use the enclosed for Bert in Room 32 of "Heartbreak House." This is the second contribution from a little fellow who was homeless at birth two years ago. Now, for the second time, he is looking for the coming of Santa in a home where he is loved and happy.

Khes Onago—Please find enclosed my humble donation to that worthiest of charities, the Hundred Neediest Cases. How its appeal could fail to touch the heart of every reader is more than I can understand. May the fund of 1926 far exceed the goal that you have set for it.

Wishes She Could Give More.

Elizabeth Turnlow—Please put to the case to which contributions are coming in most slowly. My one regret is that my straitened circumstances prevent my adding at least two ciphers to this small mite.

Emory and Tom Comstock, Great Barrington, Mass.—My brother and I are sending $25 to help others who need it more than we do. As I was reading about the One Hundred Neediest Cases I thought it would be nice to help those poor children. My brother and I have everything, while others are starving; therefore we are able to give up our Christmas to make some one else happy.

Edith A. Ashley—Please use this check as you think best. All the cases are most appealing.

Friend E. S.—Please enclosed find a small sum to help along the good work. Case 70 of two elderly sisters seems to appeal to me, being elderly myself.

Rosalie Mayer—Will you please give this little contribution to Catherine of Case 94? I hope that it will help to lighten her cares.

Sarah Eisler—Kindly add my modest donation to your growing fund for the Hundred Neediest Cases. Case 1 appeals to me very much, as I appreciate an old grandmother's efforts to help her grandchildren. I regret I cannot do more for that brave old lady, but hope others will also help her. I wish all success to this wonderful humane work.

Maude Staples—Thank you for the opportunity to give to sweet charity and hope this year's contributions will dazzle us all.

F. A. W.—Enclosed find $5 for the Neediest Cases. Am happy I am able to increase my donation. Wish all success to this wonderful work.

E. Felix Shaskan—Check sent annually is enclosed. It is indeed a pleasure to be allowed to contribute to so worthy a cause. Here is hoping you go over the top.

Ellen Kelly—Enclosed please find $5, the widow's mite, for this noble work in helping these little ones my heart goes out to. Give it to some one you think needs it most. So many I cannot choose. In memory of daughter, Mildred.

Clarkson Potter—Please accept the enclosed check for $100 as my contribution to the Hundred Neediest Cases, a cause which I have always thought is so worthy in every sense of the word.

L. M.—I enclose my check for $5 toward the fund from my little girl and myself. Will you please use it for June (Case 80). We only wish it could be more. Please say that it comes from L. M., with best wishes for the success of the fund this year.

Glad to Help the Neediest.

F. A.—The writer wishes to state he contributes to this fund with great pleasure, as it seems to be one of the best applied of any charities of which he knows.

Mrs. I. F.—Enclosed is money order for the small sum of $10, which we would like to contribute "In Memory of Sis" toward Case 22, that of the widow, her little girl and dog.

B. R. R.—I am enclosing this small check from my little girl and boy, Gladys and Bobby, to any family with children that has not been already well taken care of.

Herbert S. Brussel—Enclosed please find my check for $25 to apply to your worthy fund. I am confronted with the usual difficulty in picking the most worthy case, as all appear meritorious. However, the necessities of Case 66 appear very great and I suggest that my check be applied to that case.

Lois and Mary Butterworth—My sister Mary and I are sending a dollar to help Case 38. I hope Virginia is not taken away from her mother.

Anonymous—I am enclosing a small sum which I hope will go to Case 94 to help Catherine and her family. I earned this myself and I realize what a struggle she must have to support four other children. I am just two years younger than she is.

H. A. Batchelder—The bit I gave to the fund last year has returned to me so much of joy and satisfaction that I wish to invest again.

H. F.—Please find small check from Janet and Carol Filer, whose parents are deeply thankful that they are able to contribute to this worthy cause. We wish you the same success you have had in the past.

H. Wilmerding Biddle—Enclosed please find check for $15 for the Hundred Neediest Cases Fund. I will watch with interest to see how much over last year's high water-mark the fund goes this year.

Z. F. M.—It gives me pleasure to contribute to the fund again this year, although I cannot increase my contribution as I had hoped to do. I should like this $5 to go to help Case 84, the two young boys trying to support the family.

The following are cases whose needs have not yet been met:

Teacher Seeking a Pupil Finds a Distressed Home

CASE 77—A Father Flees, Leaving His Family of Five Destitute.

Bessie is 10, but is only in the first grade. When she was away from school for several days, the teacher asked about her. None of the other children knew what had happened and the teacher went to investigate. She had a good deal of trouble reaching the hut where Bessie lived. There were no streets near it, and finally she found it—a desolate spot near Jamaica Bay. The teacher learned that Bessie had to stay at home to look after and cook for the other children, because her grandmother was ill. Her mother could not be at home in the daytime because she is the only breadwinner. She walks half a mile each day to and from a factory. The father was an iceman. A year ago he shot and killed another iceman for stealing his customers, and since then he has been a fugitive. At night the grandmother, the mother and the four children huddle in two big beds under thin blankets, piling their clothing over themselves for additional warmth. The children's toys are made-over pieces of tin from a junk heap; Julia, 5, and Etta, 3, are so thin that every bone shows. Baby Mat is greatly undernourished. The mother is worn out by hard work at the factory, long walks going and coming, and long hours washing, ironing and doing other housework at night. She cannot carry the burden alone any longer.

CASE 13.

A Widow and Her Seven Helpless Children—Stranded.

When Thomas Wood, a laborer, died of pneumonia there was an undertaking bill of $400 for his widow and seven children to pay and the insurance was only $150. Bruce, 16, the oldest boy, left school and found employment paying $14 a week. The mother went to work at home finishing coats. Betty, 10, a beautiful child with great brown eyes, tried to help by pulling out bastings, but she bent too close over her work and jabbed a steel instrument in her eye. A doctor promised to save the child's sight, but insisted on having $10 in cash. The frantic woman borrowed it. Then it was found necessary, after all, to remove the injured eye. The child now needs an artificial eye, but the poor mother is deep in debt and the small amount that she and Bruce can earn will not even hold the family together. Pleading to stay at home, three of the boys—Harvey, 13; James, 8, and Thomas, 6—were taken away and placed in an institution. Help is asked to reunite the family and see it through its afflictions.

Amount needed, $600.

CASE 14.

A Waif Deserted by Her Parents in the Shanties.

The family lived in one room in a shanty. Helen never had a toy—nor even enough to eat. Rags were her only clothes and at times she nearly froze. Her sister did die of the cold. Then one day her father and mother left Helen with strangers without saying good-bye. Her second home was a shanty where traffic in whisky went on. She spent nights of terror because of the shouting and the fighting. At last she was rescued and for the first time in her life she is receiving good care and training. In spite of her tragic childhood she is a promising child, now 6 years old. She has a speech defect that must be corrected. Help is needed to continue her under the care of a good mother who boards her.

Amount needed, $400.

CASE 2.

A Great-Grandmother Who Watches Over Two Little Ones Is Injured.

Josie's great-grandmother came to the rescue. Josie was only 2 months old when her father was sent to the hospital suffering from tuberculosis. Her mother was only 19. Although the aged woman was already taking care of one grandchild, Harold, she said, "We'll manage somehow," and she took up the burden. But she had very little. She began to sell chairs and other bits of furniture. Then a heavy blow fell—she stepped on a bit of broken glass, infection set in and her leg had to be amputated. "Lucky it wasn't my arm," she says now, as she demonstrates how skillfully she can get about and even mop the floors from her wheel chair. Harold is at work, earning $15 a week. Josie's mother took work as a shopgirl until the doctor found that both mother and child were threatened with tuberculosis and that the mother required rest to build her up. With help this brave household can be tided over its difficulties.

Amount needed, $1,080.

CASE 67.

Four Children Thin From Undernourishment, and a Tired Mother.

Robert, 10, was one of her best pupils, and the teacher was worried when he grew thinner and paler. The boy assured her that he was all right. She asked him many questions. Then she telephoned his name and address to the charitable organization. "I am sure he is starving," she said. The visitor went to the home and found three others suffering as much as Robert. Janet, 11; Ralph, 8, and Marie, 7, were emaciated children with dark circles under their eyes. Their mother was worn and tired from anxiety and toil. In addition to caring for the home she worked regularly as a scrubwoman. The grandmother was past 70 and blind. Help given now would enable the mother to make a better start toward self-support.

CASE 6.

In Their Old Age, a Sister and a Brother Fear They Will Be Parted.

Ellen is 80, and Patrick 75. Brother and sister, they came over from Ireland sixty years ago. Each married, but ten years ago all their other loved ones had died, and Ellen and Patrick began life together again. Ellen was still able to do the cooking. Patrick had a place as watchman in lower west side markets. Recently he broke his ankle and was taken to a hospital. He pleaded to go to his sister and a social worker from the hospital found her, tiny and bent, sitting at a window, wondering what had happened to her brother. Patrick will soon leave the hospital, but will not be able to work as a watchman again. They hope that something will make it possible for them to live out together the little that remains of their lives.

CASE 90.

Four Neglected Children Living in a Shack on an Ash Dump.

Their home is a shack built on an ash and rubbish dump of the Street Cleaning Department, with a little squatter's garden where they raise vegetables. They have little else to live on. The only breadwinner is Claude, 15, who earns $11 a week as a machinist's helper. May is 9, Theodore 7 and Elizabeth 5. The mother is suffering from hernia, the result of heavy work in the garden, and is partly crippled by arthritis. Theodore's chief toy is a small battered tin wagon that he rescued from the dump. He and May and Elizabeth are always searching the heaps for treasures of this kind. They help with the truck garden and also tend the small flower bed where they raise marigolds and zinnias. The younger children are much undernourished. They all need better food, clothing and shelter.

Amount needed, $850.

CASE 98.

Hungry and Afraid Are These Five Children and a Deserted Mother.

The mother and her five children were crowded in two corner rooms within a few feet of which the elevated trains thunder around a curve. The father had deserted them. They were all hungry, alarmed, bewildered. The mother could not earn a living for them. Neighbors said the children would have to be placed in institutions, and this threw the devoted mother and her affectionate children into a state of heartbroken anxiety. The children are Winifred, 12; Alice, 10; Virginia, 6; Fred, 8, and Charles 3. A church worker discovered their plight and appealed for help. The family must be aided until the mother can take the father's place.

Amount needed, $1,140.

CASE 25.

A Father in Jail, a Mother and Five Children Who Hunger.

"I am in very bad need," she wrote. Her husband had just been sent to prison. Her heart was so weak that she could do only very light work. Her five children were hungry. She had told her plight to the Judge who sentenced her husband. He told her to go to the charitable society, but she borrowed a stamp and wrote a letter because she did not have the money for carfare. The visitor found the woman shrinking and timid. Since her husband's arrest every knock at the door had made her jump. She and her children were stunned by the disgrace that had befallen them, for they had always thought their father the best of men. The oldest boy, John, 13, is in Junior High. Jennie is in 7A, and Joseph in 6A. The others are Ellen, 6, and Mary, 4. The three school children had left home that morning without breakfast. Little Ellen and Mary that day had had only sweet cakes that a neighbor gave them for lunch. Their eyes shone and they ate eagerly when food was provided. The father, a mechanic, has an indeterminate sentence for receiving stolen goods. They all believe that he yielded to the temptation only because much sickness had left them without savings.

CASE 18.

A Widow Who Declined Aid Until She Could Go On No More.

A letter signed "A Neighbor" reported that the widow and her two daughters were "starving." Aid was offered. The mother refused it indignantly. "I can manage," she said. She would not think of taking charity. Besides, Gertrude, who was 14, and Mary, 13, were in high school, taking commercial courses and in a year or two would be able to help. For three months longer the mother continued the struggle at dressmaking and peddling. By the end of that time they were starving in earnest, and the brave woman was obliged, for the sake of her children, to ask for help.

Amount needed, $600.

CASE 15.

A Boy of 16 Shoulders the Load for a Sick Mother and Two Sisters.

Jim, 16, is working in a box factory at $8 a week and doing his level best to take a father's place in the lives of his two young sisters, Rose, 14, and Mary, 10. Their father, a street cleaner, died of tuberculosis some years ago, leaving his family almost penniless. For years the mother went out washing until the heavy work told on her health. Then she found employment as a finisher and sewed early and late, until the doctor warned her that she would lose her eyesight if she continued to sew for a living. Then Jim took up the burden. It will probably be a year before Rose, who is in 6B, can get her working papers and help him support the family. Meanwhile the load is too much for Jim's young shoulders, and he is in grave need of assistance.

Amount needed, $840.

CASE 100.

A Woman, Widowed by Tuberculosis, May Have to Give Up Her Sons.

The nurse's heart was wrung by the frightened starved appearance of the mother and two children who called at the hospital to see the dying man. They were whiter, their eyes hollower each time they called. When at last the father died of tuberculosis, the nurse called on the family and then asked the Association to help them. Besides undernourishment, the mother was suffering from rheumatism and did not even have a pair of rubbers to protect her feet on wet days when she went out as a laundress. The older boy, Albert, 12, did not have a coat. The younger boy, Jimmie, 4, is in need of food and care. The mother is so crippled that she earns very little, and is in terror lest it should become necessary for the children to go to institutions.

Amount needed, $680.

CASE 4.

Want Comes to a Widow and Four Children Living on the Wastes.

The four Drake children and their mother live in a shack on the edge of the city dump on Barren Island. The wind whistles through the holes in the roof, and rain drips on the rough board floor. In Winter the cold comes in through walls and roof faster than the heat comes out of the kitchen stove, fed with driftwood which the children gather. They had sufficient food in the Summer, thanks to the clams which the children dug, and to the vegetables from their small truck garden. The present is their time of trial. Their plight was discovered by the lone policeman who patrols the wastes of Barren Island. He had heard that Bill Drake's family had been in want since his death. Bill had earned a meagre livelihood for them by stripping hide from dead animals that were thrown on the island. Three of the children tramp a great distance to school. They are Harvey, 11, who is in 4A; Joseph, 7, in 3A, and Charles, 6, in kindergarten. The fourth child, Frederick, is only 4. To give these little ones a chance in life help is asked.

Amount needed, $1,080.

CASE 55.

The Father Gone, a Mother and Four Children Facing Starvation.

The mother and four children sleep in one bed, the only one they have. A fifth child is expected soon. The rent is two months overdue and the landlord has threatened to dispossess them. Mother and children are undernourished and frightened. The oldest is Fred, 8, who is in 2B. Jack is 6, and Tom is 3. Mary, 2, is a cripple from infantile paralysis and walks with difficulty, dragging a heavy iron brace. They were well treated by their father until, recently, he lost his mind and disappeared. The mother must find a helping hand.

Amount needed, $1,000.

BAIL TEXAS GIRL IN BANK ROBBERY

Mayor of Austin and University Professor Sign $5,000 Bond on Capital Charge.

PISTOL AND CASH TURN UP

Miss Bradley Is Accused of Mailing Them to Herself—Smiles as She Passes Scene of Hold-Up.

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 12.—Miss Rebecca Bradley, who was arrested last night by Austin police officers, charged with the robbery of the Farmers' National Bank of Buda yesterday, was released at an early hour this morning in $5,000 bail, given by Mayor P. W. McFadden of Austin and Dr. Charles Ramsdell, Professor of History at the University of Texas. This action followed the granting of a writ of habeas corpus by Justice O. S. Lattimore of the State Court of Criminal Appeals.

John Cofer Jr. of Austin, retained as counsel for the girl, who at the age of 22 is a graduate student in the University of Texas and a stenographer in the office of Dan Moody, Attorney General and Governor-elect of Texas, said tonight that she would waive examination before Judge George Calhoun tomorrow morning in the District Court.

Miss Bradley is required to be present at tomorrow's hearing and make answer through her counsel. Her lawyer said that he would request that the $5,000 bail be made permanent and that she be bound over to await the action of the Grand Jury.

It was disclosed today that yesterday afternoon, after the robbery at Buda, Miss Bradley went to the main postoffice in Austin and sent a registered package addressed to herself at the University of Texas station. This package was intercepted before it could be delivered to her and was found to contain an automatic pistol with the clip removed and $910 in bills.

Accused of Capital Offense.

The specific charge lodged against Miss Bradley is "robbery with firearms," which is a capital offense in Texas, although the penalty has never been imposed, except when a crime involved shooting.

As soon as her liberty was ordered, Sheriff George M. Allen of Hays County brought Miss Bradley back to Austin from the County Jail at San Marcos, thirty-five miles south of here. She went to the home of her mother, Mrs. G. E. Bradley, with whom she lives, refused to make any comment on the case and denied herself to reporters.

Sheriff Allen disclosed, however, that when first arrested the girl refused to see her mother and sent by him the following message to her:

"I'm where I belong. I'll look out for myself and get out of this the best way I can."

At the courthouse, while bail was being arranged, Mrs. Bradley had an earnest talk with her daughter and afterward declared that the charge against her was "preposterous."

Miss Bradley told her mother that she had had "a good night's sleep" at the jail, the Sheriff having provided her with bedding from the jury room.

Miss Bradley remained perfectly composed throughout the trying ordeal of the hours that followed her arrest. She chatted pleasantly with officers here and with Sheriff Allen on the way to San Marcos, but carefully avoided all reference to the robbery.

It was at midnight when she and Sheriff Allen drove out through Buda, the little town where, just twelve hours before, a girl of her description had forced the cashier and bookkeeper of a bank into the vault at the point of a pistol, seized several hundred dollars in bills and escaped in an automobile.

She looked at the little one-story bank building which stood forth in the light of the street lamps and a quizzical smile lighted her face. A few hours later, on her way back to Austin, as she again passed by the bank in Buda, she gave it another curious glance. But on neither occasion did she utter a word.

Worked Way by State Service.

At the University of Texas among the students and Faculty the one topic of conversation is the robbery of the bank and the charge that stands against Rebecca Bradley. She is an outstanding student in many respects. Her scholastic record has been unusually high, both during the years when she was an undergraduate and this year while she was taking graduate work toward her Master of Arts degree.

The fact that she managed to fill most acceptably a full time position as stenographer in the office of Attorney General Dan Moody and at the same time pursue her studies as a graduate student has led to the conclusion that she must have worked and studied many long hours each day. This overwork is assigned by her friends as a possible cause of her alleged delinquency.

During all of her college years the Bradley girl earned by her own efforts the money to pay her way through the university. She was Assistant Journal Clerk of the State Senate during two sessions, beginning when she was only 17 years old.

She held a clerical position in the House of Representatives during the recent special session of the Legislature, and received her position in the Attorney General's Department three months ago on recommendations of her former employer.

SYNAGOGUE FOR THE CITY.

Mayor Accepts New Building for Jewish Inmates on Welfare Island.

A synogogue for Jewish inmates of the city institutions on Welfare Island was dedicated and presented to the city yesterday afternoon. Mayor Walker accepted the synagogue on behalf of the city and spoke in praise of the compassion for the unfortunate shown by the donors of the building. Bird S. Coler, Commissioner of Public Welfare; Mrs. Edward Josephy, President of the New York Section, National Council of Jewish Women, and Mrs. Max L. Levenson, President of the Welfare Island Synagogue Committee, also spoke.

"I have had many delightful and novel experiences since the first of the year," said the Mayor in accepting the key to the building from Mrs. Levenson, "but none so novel and delightful as this. At last some one has presented a key to me. It is such works as this which save New York from being what she is often called, the worshiper of the almighty dollar. The interest of our citizens in the welfare of their unfortunate brothers and sisters is the surest bulwark we have against Bolshevism and communism."

The building stands on the northern part of the island. Its cost was $55,000. The building was dedicated by the Rev. Dr. De Sola Pool of the Spanish and Portugese Synagogue.

GET 2 IN NIGHT CLUB ON BEATING CHARGE

Police Arrest Supposed Owner and Employe on Complaint of a Patron.

BOTH HELD WITHOUT BAIL

Victim Tells of Assault When He Refused to Pay $21 for 3 Drinks —Other Club Arrests.

For the third time within a week police of the West Forty-seventh Street station were called to a night club, when, early yesterday morning, Frank Timpone, 38 years old, said to be the proprietor and manager of the Biarritz Club at 210 West Fifty-fourth Street, and Thomas Healy, 25 years old, an employe of the same place, were arrested on the complaint of a patron that he had been lured to a dark room in the club and badly beaten.

When the case against Timpone and Healy was called in the West Side Court the complainant, McKowan Whitcomb, an insurance adjuster employed by the General Finance and Mortgage Corporation of 1,133 Broadway, who lives at East Orange, N. J., was unable to appear because of the beating he had received, and Magistrate William A. Farrell ordered the accused committed to the Tombs without bail. They will have a hearing in the West Side Court tomorrow morning if Whitcomb is able to appear against them.

Shortly before 4 o'clock yesterday morning Whitcomb staggered into the West Forty-seventh Street station with his face cut and bleeding and both eyes badly discolored. He told Lieutenant Bernard McGowan that he had been beaten and robbed of $27.50 in a room at the Biarritz Club by Timpone and Healy when he refused to pay a bill of $21 for three drinks.

Patrolmen Henry Robinson and John Gillen were sent to the club with Whitcomb. Admittance was refused but the policemen insisted on going in. Whitcomb identified Timpone and Healy as his assailants and they were arrested.

Timpone and Healy were released on bail furnished by Benjamin Moore, a former partner with Timpone in the Arena Club of 246 West Thirty-ninth Street, where four persons were injured early one morning about a year ago when the walls collapsed. Following their arraignment, however, the Magistrate declined to admit them to bail when he learned that Whitcomb's condition was serious.

Olga Petrovits, a night club entertainer, was sent to the Jefferson Market women's prison yesterday, after being arraigned before Magistrate Farrell on a charge of disorderly conduct. She was fined $15 or five days' imprisonment. She was arrested early yesterday morning in the apartment of John Carey in a hotel on West Forty-seventh Street, when, according to John Conway, houseman of the apartment, she refused to leave the place after being ordered out by Carey. She said that Carey struck her in the face.

Hyman Edson, night manager of the 300 Club, where Texas Guinan is principal hostess, was arrested a few days ago on the complaint of Charles Coval of Elmhurst, L. I. Coval complained that he had been beaten at the club by Edson and two or three other men.

Abraham Stein, proprietor of a night club in West Fifty-second Street, was arrested Friday by detectives of Inspector Coughlin's staff, on the complaint of Charles C. Bull of the Harvard Club, that a check for $32.25 given in payment of a bill had been raised to $432.25. Stein will have a hearing on Friday.

TURATI FLEES ITALY IN SMALL MOTOR BOAT

Socialist Leader and Eight Other Political Refugees Arrive in Corsica.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—A small motor boat reached Corsica at 9 o'clock this morning with eight political refugees from Italy aboard, including Signor Turati, leader of the Italian Socialist Party and a director of the Socialist newspaper Avanti.

The party left Italy at 10 o'clock last night and after landing at Balagne proceeded to Calvi for refreshments.

Signor Turati said he could not live in Italy any longer under the continuous threats of the Fascisti.

The only way he could leave was secretly, as a close guard is kept along the entire border to prevent political refugees escaping.

HELD IN $1,000,000 SWINDLE

Three Men Accused in Atlanta of Mail Order Fraud.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 12.—Solicitor General John A. Boykin revealed today an alleged million-dollar fraud scheme which has resulted in the indictment of three men on eighteen larceny after trust charges and the seizure of a mass of papers and correspondence.

Postoffice inspectors discovered that three mail pouches containing 8,000 letters for the alleged syndicate were received yesterday containing checks and money orders totaling approximately $20,000.

H. D. Gaines and D. W. Nichols are held here and the third man indicted, J. G. Grimes, is said to be ill in an Augusta hospital.

It is charged that the three men advertised under numerous company names throughout the United States that they would sell chickens, honey, fruits, seeds, &c., on a mail order basis, and that thousands of dollars were received from victims to whom no delivery was made.

PREDICTS A SURPLUS ABOVE $500,000,000

Garner Declares the Treasury's Figures Show the President's Estimate Is Far Too Low.

CHARGES POLITICAL MOTIVE

Both Coolidge and Mellon, He Says, Want Taxes Reduced Just Before Election.

EFFECT ON NATIONAL DEBT

If President's Surplus Estimate Is Right, $890,000,000, at Least, Will Be Paid.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Representative Garner of Texas, author of the Democratic tax reduction proposal, which was rejected yesterday by the Republican majority of the Ways and Means Committee, asserted today that the Treasury surplus for the fiscal year 1927 would exceed $500,000,000. He reached this conclusion, he said, after a study of former alleged miscalculations made by the Administration in estimating the surplus.

"Treasury figures show us," said Mr. Garner, "that for the first ten months of the calendar year 1926 receipts at the Treasury Department were $141,000,000 greater than for the corresponding months of last year. For the first five months of the current fiscal year (July 1 to Dec. 1) they were $67,000,000 more than for the corresponding months of the fiscal year of 1926.

"The surplus at the close of the fiscal year 1926 was $377,000,000. It is apparent from the Treasury figures that the surplus for the fiscal year 1927 will be much larger. I estimate that it will exceed $500,000,000.

"Recently the Treasury estimated this surplus would be $187,000,000. Then the President came along and said it would be $383,000,000. When the money is counted up on the first of July next year, both will be shown to be wrong, as they have always been in their former estimates.

Cites President's Estimates.

"Let me give you a few examples of the President's miscalculations:

Date. of Message.	President's Estimate.	Actual Surplus.
Dec. 31, 1922	$329,639,934	$505,366,986
Dec. 1, 1924	67,884,489	250,505,238
Dec. 7, 1925	262,041,000	377,767,816

"In other words, the President under-estimated the surplus for 1924 by $175,726,376; for 1925 by $182,620,749; and for 1926 by $115,726,816. So his average miscalculation for these three years was $158,000,000. There is no indication that he will do any better this time or the next.

"The President and Secretary Mellon are opposing the Democratic tax bill purely for political reasons. If we passed it, not only would the entire country be greatly benefited, but there would still be a nice surplus left in the Treasury.

"Both Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Mellon have said again and again that reduction of taxes will release capital that will go into productive enterprises and thereby increase the revenues of the Treasury, but now they don't want to do that. They want to hand back to the big boys and regular campaign contributors taxes that have already passed on to the consumer, and then reduce taxes in 1927 just before the election.

"It's a nice little scheme, but they shouldn't get away with it."

May Reduce Debt $890,000,000.

If the decision of the Ways and Means Committee proves final, and no tax refunds are made by Congress during the current fiscal year, the public debt reduction for the year, if all surplus is applied to that purpose, will be at least $890,000,000.

In his recent budget message President Coolidge estimated the surplus for 1927 at $383,000,000, and Secretary Mellon stated in his annual report that payments on war debt to be made by foreign nations and the sinking fund set aside by law for public debt reduction would amount to about $507,000,000. The total of these items is $890,000,000.

If Representative Garner's estimate that the surplus will reach at least $500,000,000 proves correct, and all surplus is applied to debt reduction, in addition to foreign debt payments and the sinking fund, the total reduction for the year would be not less than $1,007,000,000.

Figuring the rate of interest which the Treasury pays on the outstanding debt at 4 per cent., the annual saving in interest effected by the $890,000,000 reduction, based on the President's estimate of surplus, would be $35,600,000. If the Garner estimate is correct, the saving in interest would be $40,304,000.

Interest on the public debt is paid out of tax receipts.

At the beginning of the fiscal year 1926 the annual interest charge on the public debt was $829,525,300, and the corresponding charge at the end of the year, June 30, 1926, was $793,423,960. During 1926 the total of the debt was reduced from $20,516,193,887 to $19,643,216,315, or by $872,977,572. Since June 30, 1926, enough purchases have been made for the sinking fund to bring the total debt outstanding at this time under $19,500,000,000.

In Aid of Control of Cancer.

Mrs. Francis Rogers and Lawrence Smith Butler will give a program of monologues and songs this afternoon at the Colony Club, to aid the American Society for the Control of Cancer. Mrs. Rogers will include in her program "At Cook's Tourist Office" and Mr. Butler will offer a group of songs in French, German and English. He will be accompanied at the piano by Miss Betty Schuleen.

DR. HOWARD REJECTS BLUE LAW PRINCIPLE

He Would Not Prohibit Sunday Sports if Indulgence Brings Spiritual Gain in Player.

FORCE AS WRONG METHOD

Preaching for Lord's Day Alliance on Its Anniversary, His Views Are Said to Surprise Its Friends.

No prohibition would be placed by him on Sunday golf if by indulging in that game one found that it paid from a moral and spiritual standpoint, the Rev. Dr. Harry Howard declared yesterday morning in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church at Fifty-fifth Street. Dr. Howard was recently installed as senior pastor.

The occasion of his sermon was the thirty-eighth anniversary celebration of the Lord's Day Alliance of the United States, the annual meeting of which will be held today, beginning at 10:30 o'clock, in the auditorium of the Methodist Book Concern Building, 150 Fifth Avenue.

Staunch supporters of that organization coming to hear Dr. Howard, who was preaching the sermon at the request of the Executive Committee of the Alliance, were said to be greatly surprised and keenly disappointed because Dr. Howard did not recommend putting into force any "Blue Laws." On the contrary he reminded his hearers that the Apostle Paul declared every man had a right to settle how he would keep the Sabbath Day according to his own conscience.

Dr. Howard related what hardship he had to endure as a child one day in every seven because his parents had the old Puritanical view of how to spend Sunday.

The alliance of which the Rev. Dr. David G. Wylie is the President and the Rev. Dr. Harry A. Bowlby, the general secretary, is opposed to all kinds of Sunday amusements and sports, travel and recreation. It works all the year round against the passage of laws letting down the bars against Sunday being anything but a day of rest and worship.

"The Sabbath Made for Man."

Dr. Howard took for his text "The Sabbath Was Made for Man, and Not Man for the Sabbath."

"Now although I have consented to preach this stated sermon in observance of the anniversary of the Lord's Day Alliance, I feel somewhat embarrassed because my own early training was such that with me Sunday was a day of painful restriction and prohibition from morning till night," he said.

"I was always in trouble as a boy on Sunday; I have been taken by the ear out of the church for misbehavior not once but many, many times. And the subsequent punishments I will not describe. To my boyish mind Sunday was more of a day of pious gloom, to be endured with becoming regulation, rather than one whose dawn was hailed with delight. Any satisfaction I might have felt in getting any joy out of the day was promptly repressed.

"As I recall those days it sort of put me in moral credit, giving me a superiority complex which developed an offensive priggishness which must have aroused when it did not incense friends. Even now I cannot look at a Sunday newspaper without a feeling that my conscience ought to hurt, although I know that the Sunday newspaper has not involved one-hundredth part of the labor on Sunday itself which the Monday morning paper has. Yet I go on tabooing the Sunday paper and reading the Monday morning paper without compunction. And I confess I am somewhat sad if on Sunday some reporter does not come to me for something on my Sunday sermons. And although I have helped the reporters to work on the Lord's day, I am really disappointed if when I read THE TIMES or The Herald Tribune on Monday morning it has not a quotation from my sermons.

"But now I have come to see that good and gracious as were the motives of those who handled me, the method was all wrong. The Lord's day that we are celebrating today does not rest on the old Jewish Sabbath. And yet at the same time one feels that there must have been some peculiar principle unfolded in the Fourth Commandment which was meant for all time and all peoples.

Negative Side Emphasized.

"One of the mistakes we lovers of the Lord's Day have made is that we have emphasized too much this negative side of Sunday. We have uttered too many 'thou shalts' and 'thou shalt nots.' This is like prohibition, which has provoked a reaction against itself that would not have taken place had the movement been rightly managed."

Dr. Howard said Sabbath legislation was a great aid to the lengthening of human life.

"Everything we do should be sacred, and then you would not have this distinction between Sunday and weekday," he asserted. "Then we would not need this setting apart of one-seventh of our time for sacred uses. It gives some of us a chance to rest. Its regularity rescues the act of worship from being crowded out. And then there is something wonderful about millions of men and women meeting at the same time for worship, thus week by week loosening our yoke from the world and claiming our right as citizens of Heaven. It keeps the highways open. We descend after the Sabbath to the daily round, reinforced for the battle of life."

The clergyman declared that a multitude, including thousands in New York City, leave the city on Sunday "and the nature through which they say they go to worship God they desecrate and defile with revelry and deviltry."

"For this type to claim a love of nature is nonsense. They are not even on nodding terms with nature. And their words are so shallow a piece of humbug that even a little child cannot be fooled. We want to rescue the Lord's Day from any commercialization for business or sport lest the many be sacrificed to the greed of the few in making Sunday a day of work.

"You who trifle with the day are doing a great wrong to the workingman, and when once the Sabbath has gone it will be an irretrievable loss.

"Religious 'luke-warmers' are holding on with such a slight grasp that it would not take much to wrench the Sabbath away. Our text strikes the note of deliverance from rabbinical tyranny—freeing man from the Sabbath law.

"If you hold as I do that the Sabbath has in it an abiding moral element which, alike for all ages and all lands, is a perpetual call to man to lay aside the things of the world, you will come to my point—that the Sabbath is a great divine trust to be guarded and to be passed on to our heirs."

Dr. Young Sees Huge Wealth As Greatest Problem We Face

"The biggest problem before America is our wealth," declared the Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young last night in his sermon at the Bedford Presbyterian Church, Nostrand Avenue and Dean Street, Brooklyn.

"From President Coolidge's message and Secretary Mellon's statements and the figures of the National Budget, it is evident not only that we are the richest we ever were, but that we are the wealthiest nation that ever existed and the wealthiest per capita. This makes the rest of the world think of us chiefly in terms of dollars.

"The results inside the country, if counteracting influences are not applied, are likely to be far more calamitous. With our wealth-getting we are growing the idea that money can buy anything. So soon as this belief is general enough we may have social revolution. Money czarism will be resisted quite as violently by the masses of this country as were the czarism and bureaucracy of Russia by the Russians."

INSISTS CHURCH HAS A RIGHT IN POLITICS

Clergy in American Tradition Speak Boldly on Moral Issues, Says Dr. Sockman.

A REPLY TO SENATOR BRUCE

Preacher Denies Methodism Is in Politics to Lobby, Threaten or Advance Own Power.

Replying to the attack made on the Methodist Church by Senator Bruce of Maryland in the Senate last Tuesday, the Rev. Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, in his sermon last night at the Madison Avenue Methodist Church, at Sixtieth Street, declared that the clergy of today was true to American tradition in speaking boldly on matters of social, political and international policy, and that it had a right to keep the public informed on moral issues.

Dr. Sockman said:

"A speech in the United States Senate this week decared, 'If there is any vatican prejudicing the freedom of our political life, it is not the ancient Vatican at Rome, but the browbeating vatican which the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church has erected just across from the United States Senate office building.'

"The Senator's speech in itself is negligible, as its campaign flavor was palpably apparent, and in itself might be better disregarded. Because, however, the Senatorial utterance is in tune with a chorus of articles in the press it would seem worth while to reply.

"If the maintenance of a secretarial board and a building at our national capital were to enhance the prestige and the dominance of the Methodist Episcopal Church, I should repudiate this activity on its part. But if, as I believe, the purpose is merely to keep the public mind informed and alert on the moral issues at stake in government, then I heartily endorse its existence.

"The Colonial pulpits asserted their right to speak freely on policies of State, and the result was the arousement of the Colonies into a free nation. The pulpits of seventy-five years ago spoke freely on national issues, and the effect was the abolition of slavery. If the pulpits of today would be true to the American tradition, they too must speak out boldly on matters of social, political and international policy.

"If, when we speak of the Church being in politics, we mean that it seeks to lobby its programs through our Legislatures, that it tries to intimidate officials by threats, that it desires to set itself up as a sort of ecclesiastical bloc to manipulate votes, that it urges discrimination against candidates on the ground of religious belief, that it uses its machinery to elect political candidates from its own membership, then I do not believe the Methodist Church is in politics.

"If, on the other hand, to awaken the consciences of men on public evils, to kindle the desire and inform the intelligence for expression of religious ideals through political instruments—if these activities mean being in politics, then I hope that the Methodist Church and every other church will assert its God-given prerogative in this direction."

DR. C. E. WAGNER CALLS OUR CHRISTMAS PAGAN

Sees Day Spoiled by Avalanche of Gifts—Wants Hearts Prepared, Not Trees.

The Rev. C. Everett Wagner preached on "Christmas Preparedness" last night at the West Side Methodist Episcopal Church, 461 West Forty-fourth Street.

"In our rush through the jostling crowds to buy Christmas gifts are we really preparing for Christmas?" he asked. "Our minds are clogged with lists of persons for whom we must buy presents, with embarrassment about securing the money to pay for them and with perplexed calculating as to what these individuals would like us to give them. Are we overdoing the matter of buying and receiving of gifts and is it injurious to the Christmas spirit?

"We lay more stress upon getting ready for the Christmas tree instead of preparing Christmas hearts. Is not the most of our so-called preparedness for Christmas nothing more than preparedness for the Christmas tree? That is pagan, not Christian.

"Spiritual provision for Christmas cannot be bought at any department store; it must come from the inner department of life in contact with God and Jesus Christ. Christmas is being spoiled by its best friends. The true Christmas spirit of good-will is buried underneath an avalanche of gifts given and received."

DR. WISE DENOUNCES ERSKINE'S NOVELS

"Most Vicious I Have Read in a Generation," He Says of "Helen" and "Galahad."

SEES EXALTATION OF EVIL

Contrasts Shaw's "St. Joan" as Work of Man Called Pagan, Now Shown in New Light.

Dr. Stephen S. Wise, speaking on "Shaw the Pagan and Erskine the Puritan," at the Free Synagogue, Carnegie Hall, yesterday morning, attacked the two novels "Helen of Troy" and "Galahad," by Professor John Erskine of Columbia University, as "the most vicious books" he had "read in a generation."

Dr. Wise admitted he was giving free advertising to the professor's novels, but said he felt forced to denounce them, as "they are the deadliest blow struck at Hebraism and at the life of standards and changeless ideals I know of." He continued:

"They are vicious from the viewpoint of the youth who will read them and from the viewpoint of the author, who knows exactly what the books mean to those who read them. No matter how smoothly laid on the satire may be, the tendency is perfectly clear—that the quest of the human life is the quest of the evil, the bad, the vicious. That, after all, is the real meaning of the books. Out of that grows the repudiation of the moral law, which we Jews know as Hebraism.

"I think if I were a Christian in the same sense I am a Jew I would have flung down the books in abhorrence. I have a feeling for the sanctity of tradition, which is ruined in 'Galahad.'"

Contrasting what he called the "Hellenistic paganism" and "spiritual sabotage" of Professor Erskine with George Bernard Shaw, Dr. Wise said:

"It is strange that we always think of Shaw as the great pagan. If we have seen his 'Joan of Arc,' which to my mind is his greatest work, we have seen this great Englishman not a pagan at all. He has made Joan a great spirit of her times, explaining her and interpreting her in the background of her life and her religion. 'Joan of Arc' is the creation of a great spiritual figure.

"On the other hand, what does the writer of 'Helen of Troy' do? He glorifies Helen's casting aside of moral standards and makes his book the tragedy of an unsatisfying and insufficient husband."

Declaring he "would rather commend almost any notoriously salacious volume to young people than these semi-Lombrosian-Freudian books," Dr. Wise continued:

"If I thought 'Galahad' represented typical information which the colleges and universities of America are giving to young men and women, I think I would willingly shut every one of them."

Professor John Erskine said last night that he would not reply to Dr. Wise's attack on his books, at least at present.

WARNS OF MAKING CHRISTMAS 'MATERIAL'

Dr. Carter Says We Sacrifice the Spiritual for the Physical—Sees Commercialism Even in Cards.

Choosing "A Pre-Christmas Warning" as the subject of his sermon last night in the Throop Avenue Presbyterian Church at Macon Street, Brooklyn, the Rev. Dr. William Carter said:

"We are making Christmas too material; we are sacrificing the spiritual for the merely physical. There is too much hurry and worry in Christmas; too many are dreading it for the strain it entails, both physical and financial. We are forgetting that the first great Christmas gift was 'without money and without price' as we try to outdo other givers in the expensiveness of our gifts which we cannot afford.

"The greatest gifts that life has are entirely free; the air, the sunshine, health, happiness, friend- and love. The greatest gifts you can make at Christmas time are friendliness, thoughtfulness and love. These cost nothing, but if you are worrying as to how much you have to spend, love and friendliness will not be there, and the gifts will be worth nothing, no matter how much you pay for them.

"We have even forgotten the true spirit of Christmas in our very Christmas cards. How few of them have any sentiments on them that express the spirit of the Christ Child Whose birthday we are remembering! Commercialism has gotten into the Christmas card business and driven out Christ!"

WANTS CHRISTMAS TO RETAIN FRESHNESS

Bishop Gray Gives Sermon at the 58th Anniversary of Church of St. Mary the Virgin.

The Episcopal Church of St. Mary the Virgin, 139 West Forty-sixth Street, celebrated its fifty-eighth anniversary yesterday with the Right Rev. Campbell Gray, Bishop of Northern Indiana, officiating at the High Mass service.

"As we approach the Christmas season it behooves us to think carefully of the Good News, the Gospel, the Evangel, if you like, which is so old that it is likely to lose something of its newness, and yet is a message which remains ever young," said Bishop Gray.

"Our Christmas cards forget the first part of the angels' message. The first said: 'Glory to God in the highest,' and after that, 'and on earth peace among men.' But our Lord never promised external peace; He promised the peace that passeth all understanding, and that is an internal peace."

POINTS TO CHRISTIAN DUTY.

Dr. McComas Emphasizes the Need for Unselfishness.

The Rev. Dr. Joseph P. McComas said Christians must recognize the challenge of their duty to man, in his sermon yesterday morning in St. Paul's Episcopal Chapel of Trinity Parish, Broadway between Fulton and Vesey Streets.

"Emphasis upon the rights of man may lead to selfishness," he said. "The controversy between capital and labor may be taken as an example. But regard for the duty we owe to other men calls for unselfishness, while personal right is safeguarded."

Dr. Black Calls Disillusion Of the Spirit a Tragedy

Discussing disillusionment in man's spiritual life, Dr. Hugh Black of the Faculty of Union Theological Seminary told the congregation of the North Presbyterian Church, 535 West 155th Street, yesterday morning, that a chief difficulty besetting religion was that "its visions seem to fail" for the reason that "it has to do with inward faith." This "slipping of standards," he said, was a fact not only in religion, but also in every other sphere of life.

"One of the greatest tragedies that can come to a man is the disillusionment that comes to his own soul," he said. "The remedy is to drive a man to a deeper kind of faith. The remedy is closer contact with God. If our vision fails we must realize it is because a truer and higher vision is possible."

GOD UNKNOWABLE, DR. HOLMES ASSERTS

But Declares the Fact That He Is Incomprehensible Does Not Mean He Is Non-Existent.

MAN'S INTELLIGENCE FINITE

Agnosticism Not a Step to Atheism, He Holds, Saying Great Agnostics Believed in a Deity.

The fact that God is incomprehensible to man does not mean that God is non-existent, said the Rev. John Haynes Holmes yesterday morning in his sermon, "The God Nobody Knows," at the Community Church, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street.

"The finite limits of man's intelligence," he continued, "cannot be brought forward as proof that God does not exist. Our eyes are aware of the colors of the solar spectrum; they cannot go beyond, but does that mean that other colors do not exist? Are there no other tones besides those of our scale? We cannot use our human limitations to qualify the existence of the Deity. We must admit that we never can know much about God, just as we know very little of Jesus, but that incomprehensibility has nothing to do with the reality of God. In fact, the vast existence of space and the complex intricacies of life, all of which we can never understand, should lead us not to deny but to believe in an unknowable Being. Agnosticism is not a step to atheism. The great agnostics, men like Voltaire, Spencer, Shaw and Wells, all of them have predicated their beliefs on a fundamental and existent, even if unknowable God."

WANTS A REVIVAL TO HELP THE OUTCAST

The Rev. C. A. Westerdahl Cites the Works of John Wesley and William Booth.

A religious revival is needed whenever the poor and needy and outcast are not drawn to the church, said the Rev. Clifford A. Westerdahl in his sermon last night on "The Penalty of Goodness," at the Immanuel Swedish Methodist Episcopal Church, Dean Street near Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn.

"Whenever supernatural power attends the religion or teaching of a man or a group of men," he said, "those who have no such power in their religion are grieved for their orthodoxy, just as the Bible says the priests in the temple were grieved. The miracles of Jesus and the apostles were bombs exploded to awaken those who had a sleepy religion.

"When John Wesley began to get converts and men were actually being 'borns again,' the Church of England closed its doors to him. But John went out into the cemetery and, using his father's tombstone for a pulpit, he kept up the good work with the same results. Once when the Methodist Church got a sleepy spell, William Booth felt out of place and went outside of the Church and ministered to those the church too often passes by. The Salvation Army, which at this season of the year is an angel of mercy to many, was the result."

SAYS DEITY NEEDS NO PROOF

Dr. Woelfkin Scores Tendency to Question Christ's Divinity.

"True Christianity is the mystery and the marvel of the incarnation perpetuated in personal experience and human history," declared the Rev. Dr. Cornelius Woelfkin in his sermon on "Divine Consciousness" yesterday morning at the Park Avenue Baptist Church, Park Avenue at Sixty-fourth Street. He attacked the present-day tendency to question the divinity of Jesus Christ, saying:

"The Deity is secure without any debate; it is witnessed by those who have walked in the footsteps of the Lord, by the testimony of those who have given their lives to be burned at the stake, and by those who have walked in the Light."

WANTS FIGHTERS IN CHURCH

Father Connor Says Men Who Will Combat the Wrong Are Needed.

Preaching on the topic, "If Christ Were King, Would You Serve Him?" the Rev. Charles V. Connor, S. J., in his sermon at St. Patrick's Cathedral, Fifth Avenue and Fiftieth Street, yesterday morning, said:

"Right is always right; wrong is always wrong. What we need today is more men to fight the wrong, men with hearts of gold and souls of steel. There are too many churchly reformers, mollycoddles and gloom spreaders in this day and age and not enough great churchmen. Christ was no weakling; He was a real man!"

Father Connor said "the religion of the don't" was false in the greater part, and that its propagators were not Christians.

URGES GODLINESS IN SELF-EXPRESSION

The Rev. O. C. Hopper Scores Premature Strivings to Express the Self.

BLAMES MODERN PARENTS

Character Must First Be Formed and Divine Impressions Received, He Says.

Special to The New York Times.

CRANFORD, N. J., Dec. 12.—The Rev. O. C. Hopper Jr., pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Cranford, said in his sermon this morning that the kind of self-expression the world needs "is the self-expression that is God's impression."

"We honor the man or woman who has found the truth," he said. "When we are in possession of the fundamentals that have made our present leadership and civilization we may well demand the right for self-expression.

"But it is the operation of that same spirit and tendency that has ever put itself forward as thwarting the operation of the spirit of God in man. It was this same desire for self-expression that caused the prodigal to go out into that far country to spend himself in riotious living. This is just what many of our youths and adults are doing this day under the guise of self-expression.

"We can find the cause of this modern tendency in the parenthood of today—lack of emphasis on the home life, lack of interest in the house of God in worship and in prayer, lack of application in childhood to the principle of strenuous discipline—not to break the child's will, but to guide and control it along proper lines.

"What we are forgetting is that man, spiritually, has been made in the image of God. That character, coming from the Greek, means to engrave, not only on the physical, but on the moral, mental and spiritual part of personality. When we are sure that we have the fundamentals in our thinking and living, our personalities may well express themselves, and a waiting world will follow this leadership.

PASTORS DISBELIEVED BY TOO MANY, HE FINDS

Bishop Umbreit Says if People Trusted Preacher Like Doctor, Churches Would Be Full.

"If people today had as much confidence in their preachers as they have in their dentists and doctors our churches would be full," Bishop S. J. Umbreit said yesterday morning, in his sermon at the First Evangelical Church, 424 West Fifty-fifth Street, where the eighty-sixth anniversary of the foundation of the church in New York was observed.

"Preachers are spiritual experts," he continued. "But too many people disbelieve them. People are prone to say, 'Oh, I know as much as he does.'"

Referring to a recent visit to Germany, Bishop Umbreit said an international hate was smoldering and occasionally breaking into flame

"I don't want to criticize any national anthem," he continued, "but I observed that if the 'Watch on the Rhine' had not been sung for so many generations the French would not hate the Germans so bitterly. So it is here. The constant singing of the song, "Marching Through Georgia," is one of the reasons why our 'solid South' is so solid. Such songs are breeders of hate. They are dynamite wrapped in brocade."

RELIGION AS HOPE IN CRISES

Dr. Lathrop Asserts Many Believe but Are Unaware of It.

Many people today are unaware of what it means to be religious, declared the Rev. Dr. John Howland Lathrop in his sermon yesterday morning at the Unitarian Church of the Saviour, Pierrepont Street and Monroe Place, Brooklyn. He spoke following the twelfth annual presentation of Bibles from the Alice Davol Memorial Fund to eleven children of the parish who have reached the age of seven during the last year.

Many who believe they are religious are not, said the minister, and at the same time, many who are religious are not aware of it.

"I hold," Dr. Lathrop asserted, "that man or woman to be religious who has a hungry soul, some deep desire, some ardent craving after something far beyond anything that now is."

Dr. Lathrop said that the time to find out if a man was religious was during some great crisis of his life. At that time his religious expression would be the expression of a hungry soul crying out passionately to God. The cry of "My God," uttered at such a time, said the minister, was a real prayer, a deeply religious utterance. If some one cried out "God help me!" at a time when vision was needed to overcome some obstacle, continued the minister, the expression was a spontaneous cry to God for guidance.

"In extreme crises," said Dr. Lathrop, "all sophistication vanishes. We need at this time more utterances during crises."

In addressing the children who received Bibles, Dr. Lathrop asked that they accept the Bible as the greatest of all books, and that they study it carefully.

PRAISES PERIODICAL CLUB.

Bishop Murray Says Organization Sent Out 11,000 Bibles in Year.

The Right Rev. John Gardner Murray, Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church, praised the work of the Church Periodical Club of the Episcopal Diocese of New York yesterday afternoon in a sermon at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

"Progress in any movement is not very noticeable in these days of modern hustle and bustle, but the Church Periodical Club can look back on great achievements since its inception thirty-nine years ago," the Bishop said. "Motivated by a desire to serve God, its members have taken up the work of distributing both secular and sacred literature all over the world."

The organization distributed 11,000 Bibles last year, he said, and it expects to send 33,000 Christmas cards.

THRONGS AT HARVARD STIRRED BY FOSDICK

90 Per Cent. of Christianity Is Pagan, He Says—Sees Renaissance in Church of Rome.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 12.—The Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist Church, New York City, stirred audiences of more than a thousand Harvard students who crowded the University chapel and the Paine Concert Hall of the college today at two services, morning and afternoon, to hear the Modernist leader.

Answering questions, Dr. Fosdick said: "I do not believe in Christianity. I believe in the spirit of Christ, not in this vast snowball which has been gathering size and momentum for twenty centuries, and which has gathered much rot as well as pure snow. Ninety per cent. of it is pagan.

Speaking on the "Future of the Church" in the afternoon, Dr. Fosdick declared that the Church of Rome is destined to grow, not to wane; that a renaissance is taking place within it. He touched on the possibility of joining Protestant sects.

"There isn't a single live issue between the various Protestant sects," he said. "I am a Baptist, but there isn't any difference worth an intelligent man's consideration between the beliefs of my sect and those of the various other Protestant denominations. The various sects may possibly continue forever, because of traditional sentiment, coherence, memory and emotion will serve to bind them.

"However, there isn't a rational reason for their continuance. They are an absurd expense and they clash in their missionary activities in the Orient. It isn't good buiness for one small city to have a dozen Protestant churches, all supported by the subscriptions of the citizens."

Dr. Fosdick declared the Protestant reformation had taken much beauty out of the churches, both in their services and architecture. Although paying tribute to the reformation, he also said it had accentuated dogmatism.

At the morning services in Appleton Chapel hundreds were unable to gain admission. After Dr. Fosdick closed, he was forced to rise several times to acknowledge sustained applause.

DR. SLATEN DISCUSSES 'MENACE OF MUSSOLINI'

Sees Problems in Successor for Duce and "Patriotism That Works Overtime."

"The menace of Mussolini," whom he characterized as "the creator and personification of Fascism, a defiant and excessive nationalism, which stands for the ruthless suppression of the individual in the interests of the State," was discussed yesterday by the Rev. Dr. A. Wakefield Slaten in the West Side Unitarian Church, 110th Street, east of Broadway.

"The menace of Mussolini, as I find it uttered by apprehensive observers, appears in two forms," said Dr. Slaten. "There is first the question, what will happen when Mussolini is no more? As one Italian put it to an interviewer: 'We are not worried about Mussolini, we are worrying about his successor!' That is the vice of dictatorships and one-man Governments.

"Another thing that arouses apprehension is the growth in Italy of what seems to them an excessive nationalism that is, a patriotism that works overtime.

"I believe Mussolini is a menace both to Italy and to the peace of the nations, because under his leadership there is apparently growing up in Italy a defiant nationalism; because in the Corfu incident he acted hastily and inadvisedly, sowing the seeds of future conflict; because he holds deliberate parliamentary procedure in contempt, and because his utterances betray a reckless assertion of the will to power."

Christmas
for Bridge Players

NOW that the bridge players are at their favorite work on a full time schedule, it seems a bold step to detract their attention from bids and revokes and such, but this charming bridge set of combined tray, cup and saucer provides its own excuse for the interruption, and besides, we think it a very good Christmas suggestion.

If you ever tried to balance a teacup and plate, you'll appreciate the convenience of this combination. You can equip a bridge table for as little as $8.

MARY GARDEN SINGS IN SPEYER HOME

Prima Donna, Friend of Late Mrs. James Speyer, Aids Women's League for Animals.

GIVES A VARIED PROGRAM

Many Society Notables in the Large Audience—Recital Nets $4,000 for Hospital.

There was a representative gathering yesterday afternoon in the music room of James Speyer's house at 1,058 Fifth Avenue, where Mary Garden of the Chicago Opera Company gave a recital in behalf of the New York Women's League for Animals. Since the death of Mrs. Speyer five years ago Mr. Speyer has continued his interest in the affairs of the league which Mrs. Speyer founded in 1911. In memory of Mrs. Speyer there was founded the Ellin Prince Speyer Hospital for Animals in Lafayette Street, which is maintained by the league.

Miss Garden was one of the friends of Mrs. Speyer and that friendship prompted the recital yesterday, Miss Garden giving her services for the recital which will net $4,000. Mr. Speyer introduced Miss Garden to the audience. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Gouverneur Morris and Mrs. John Dyneley Prince received the guests.

Miss Garden's program included "Les Berceaux," by Fauré, and "Tes Yeux Bleus," by Massenet, for her first number. This was followed by "The Steppe" and "Le Rossignol," by Gretchaninoff, and "Beau Soir," by Debussy.

Her accompanist, Joan Dansereau, a young musician who came here recently from Nice, played piano solos by Granados and Debussy. Miss Garden finished the program with two songs by Reynaldo Hahn, "My Ship and I" and "The Swing." The only operatic air on the program was "Depuis le Jour," from Charpentier's "Louise," an opera in Miss Garden's repertoire which she has sung with great success in Paris and New York and many other cities. Her encores included the "Habanera" from "Carmen" and "Coming Through the Rye."

In the audience were many friends of the late Mrs. Speyer. There were present her nephew, John Dyneley Prince, American Minister to Yugoslavia; Mrs. Minturn Pinchot, Mrs. Reginald de Koven, Mrs. N. Thayer Robb, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Z. Gray, Mrs. James Muhlenberg Bailey, Mrs. George Leary, Mr. and Mrs. George Leary Jr., Dr. and Mrs. Edgar Thomson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. MRS. EDGAR BRIDE OF COUNT MERCATI Widow of Newbold LeRoy Edgar Marries Once Grand Marshal of the Greek Court.

KNOWN FOR HER CHARITIES

Former Marie Manice of New York Honored With Legion of Honor—Couple to Sail for America.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—A marriage of considerable international interest took place today when Mrs. Newbold LeRoy Edgar of New York became the wife of Count Mercati, one-time Grand Marshal of the Greek court. The simple ceremony, attended by close friends of the couple, was held in the picturesque private chapel at St. Cloud which belongs to Prince George of Greece.

Countess Mercati was Miss Marie Manice of New York. In France she is well known for her philanthropic work both during and since the war. She is among the comparatively few American women who have been honored by France with the Legion of Honor. The Children's Hospital at Château Chavaniac-Lafayette in Haute Loire was founded and directed by her.

The marriage plans of Mrs. Edgar and Count Alexander Mercati became known here last week. The bride has been active in New York social life for many years. Since the death of her former husband, three years ago, she has been spending much time in Europe, mainly in Paris. She is the sister of Mrs. Henry Martyn Alexander of Tuxedo Park.

Count and Countess Mercati plan to sail in a short time for America. They will spend some time at her country home in Tuxedo Park. Count Mercati's first wife was Miss Harriette Wright of Cleveland, and by that marriage there were a son and two daughters. The former Countess Mercati is now the wife of Baron Emerich von Pflugl and they live at the Château de Bellerive in Geneva, Switzerland. The children of Count Mercati, who live with their mother, are Count Leonardo Mercati and the Misses Atalanta and Daria Mercati.

Count Mercati and his bride have been friends for a number of years. He has been making his home in Florence and Paris for some time, and is widely known among members of the American colony in the French capital.

TO AID CRIPPLED CHILDREN.

Card Party Tomorrow for Walter Scott Free Industrial School.

Many reservations have been made for a card party to be given tomorrow afternoon at the Waldorf-Astoria in aid of the Walter Scott Free Industrial School for Crippled Children, of which Colonel Walter Scott is President.

The proceeds will be used for the running expenses of the school, which not only provides transportation for the pupils, but supplies hot lunches, medical and surgical care and supplies and clothing. It cares for crippled children without regard to race, creed or color, and teaches them from kindergarten through the grammar grades, so that they may be self-supporting. The school was founded by the late Mrs. Arthur Elliot Fish.

Mrs. Nicholas N. Pond is chairman of the party. On the committee with her are Mrs. Mullin Wayne, Mrs. Albert Canfield Bage, Mrs. F. J. Blodgett, Mrs. F. Elwood Briggs, Mrs. Edward Davis Jones, Mrs. Alton Brooks Parker, Mrs. Walter H. Wheeler, Mrs. Charles Thorley, Mrs. J. Franklin Kehoe, Mrs. M. L. Bearns, Mrs. George W. Powers, Mrs. Minnie Newman and Mrs. E. P. Jenkins.

Tickets are obtainable at the school, 55 West Sixty-eighth Street, or at Mrs. Pond's home, 246 West End Avenue.

NO GAIN MADE BY YOSHIHITO

Emperor of Japan Remains Critically Ill, Tokio Learns.

TOKIO, Monday, Dec. 13 (AP).—Emperor Yoshihito's condition has not improved and he remains critically ill, unofficial advices indicate. The Prince Regent and his wife planned to stay overnight at Hayama, where the Emperor is a patient, but to return here tomorrow and then make their residence in Hayama indefinitely. Prince Takamatsu and Prince Sumi, third and fourth sons of the Emperor, also will go there, and Prince Chichibu, second son, is arranging to return immediately from England.

Because of the uncertainty, the Genro (Elder Statesmen) have decided to remain at Hayama and the Cabinet has opened a branch office there.

Three warships are anchored off shore and police are guarding the entire vicinity owing to the presence of the numerous important personages.

Stores to Aid Philanthropic Fund.

Ten per cent. of next Wednesday's gross receipts in four of the Huyler stores will be devoted to the Tenth Anniversary Campaign Fund of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies. Mrs. Isaac Kubie, Associate Chairman of the Women's Division of the Federation, is Chairman of the Tithe Day Committee. Among those who will act as saleswomen and hostesses are Mrs. Sidney C. Borg, Chairman of the Women's Division; Mrs. Felix M. Warburg, Mrs. Horace Saks, Mrs. Irwin Untermeyer, Mrs. Edgar Bernhard, Mrs. Isaac Forsch and Mrs. Herman Frauenthal.

Dorothea Weeks's Bridal.

Invitations have been sent out by Mr. and Mrs. George W. Weeks of 740 Pelhamdale Avenue, New Rochelle, N. Y., for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Dorothea Weeks, to Robert S. Mapletoft, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Mapletoft of 362 Clifton Avenue, Newark, N. J. The ceremony will take place Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the Church of Transfiguration and will be performed by the Rev. Dr. Randolph Ray.

WEALTHY SPINSTER, 80, TO WED MAN OF 34

Miss Larsen, Whom Coolidge Honored at Norwegian Festival, Is Bride-Elect.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 12.—Miss Georgianna Larsen, 80 years old, wealthy descendant of the Norwegian who led the first pilgrimage to this land since the days of Leif the Lucky, and Frederick M. Ackerman, 34, descendant of a revolutionary soldier and pioneer in Rochester, will be married this week.

Just when the marriage will take place the couple, who obtained their license yesterday, decline to tell.

Miss Larsen sprang into prominence at the recent Norse-American centennial celebration in St. Paul. It developed that her father, Lars Larsen, first Norwegian to settle in Rochester, led the first Norse contingent to come to America since the ancient Norsemen. President Coolidge commended Miss Larsen after addressing the gathering, chatted with her for an hour and was photographed with her.

MISS CARPENTER ENGAGED.

Miss Gibb made her début two years ago. She is a graduate of the Spence School and is now a student at Barnard College. Mr. Neely is a graduate of Princeton University and of the Pennsylvania Law School.

COLONEL SMITH BURIED.

104th Field Artillery Escorts Body of Its Former Commander.

A military funeral was held yesterday afternoon for Colonel Merritt H. Smith, wartime commander of the 104th Field Artillery, National Guard, and former chief engineer of the Bureau of Water Supply, who died on Thursday at Harbor Hospital, 667 Madison Avenue, after two months' illness.

The regiment formed at the armory, Sixty-eighth Street and Broadway, at 12:45 P. M. and marched to the Church of the Heavenly Rest, 67 East Eighty-ninth Street, where the services were held. Coadjutor Bishop Herbert Shipman, former chaplain of the regiment, officiated. After the services the coffin was placed on a caisson and the regiment escorted it to 125th Street, where the funeral party took train for Kensico Cemetery. The caisson was followed by the Colonel's riderless horse.

Former Mayor Hylan, Major Gen. Summerall and many former military associates of Colonel Smith were at the services.

Moriz Rosenthal's Recital.

It might be well if more of the great pianists who visit this city would play in halls of smaller capacity than the huge auditoriums like Carnegie. The smaller halls, whether or not they bring such substantial financial returns, certainly bring the pianist and the music closer together. Presumably Moriz Rosenthal was unable to engage one of the larger auditoriums for his recital of yesterday afternoon—the audience that overcrowded Aeolian Hall testified to this—but the result was one of the most satisfying occasions in which Mr. Rosenthal has taken part for some seasons here.

The audience had the opportunity of hearing the pianist, who in his youth was praised principally for phenomenal virtuosity and spirit, show with an intimacy and completeness that would have been impossible in a larger place the poetic side of his temperament. This aspect of Mr. Rosenthal's playing has become always more conspicuous of late years. Yesterday he played the sonata of Beethoven, op. 31 in E flat; the Chopin B minor sonata; another group of Chopin Preludes, Etudes and the Waltz opus 42, and finally a Borthiewick Etude, Albeniz's "Triana," and the two electrical concert pieces of Rosenthal, "Papillons" and "Soirées de Vienne."

Mr. Rosenthal played Chopin with a mastery which involved a rubato never exaggerated, intuitive in its logic and impulse, and a style less like a carefully planned concert performance than a poet's improvisation. This was particularly true of the Chopin B minor sonata. Customarily the sonata is played in too formidable and portentous a manner. Then the listener laments that Chopin had not the classicist's mastery of the sonata form, and all the rest of it. But the B minor sonata is not an epic or even, necessarily, a tragedy; it is a piece of exquisite, often tortured, feeling, a fantasy, a troubled dream. The interpretation had the poignancy of something so fleeting that it could not be captured or delayed in its fated flight. It was a series of fugitive images, sometimes compact of power and import, more often a play of memories, hopes, regrets, and this with the distinction of style, the aristocracy of expression and taste, which characterizes Chopin whether he is writing a nocturne or a summons to battle. It was also ravishing pianism—this performance—of a lovely singing tone, an employment of touch and pedal that avoided modern exaggerations and found everything necessary for artistic expression within the limits that must have been set by Chopin's style and Chopin's instrument. He was before Liszt, and he was well content with the natural and not the overdeveloped resources of his piano.

It was playing to remember. When an artist of Mr. Rosenthal's generation and interpretive maturity appears it is possible not only to derive much pleasure, but also some new ideas, even about Frederic Chopin!

The English Singers.

A program which included a number of Christmas motets and carols was given by The English Singers for their third New York concert of the season, yesterday afternoon in Town Hall. The composers of the motets were William Byrd ("Praise Our Lord"), Vittoria ("O magnum mysterium") and Sweelinck ("Hodie Christus natus est"); the carols were setting of verses concerning the Nativity by Peter Warlock (Philip Heseltine), Michael Pretorius and Rutland Boughton. Madrigals, folk songs and canzonets, most of which had been sung before in this city by these artists, completed the concert.

The performances emphasized again the unique traits which have given The English Singers, in so short a time, such high reputation. The treatment of text, the musical phrasing, rhythm and shading were the outward signs of the inward grace by which these singers achieve such vivid and significant re-creation of the artistic spirit of England's past. And yet the word "past" is misleading, particularly since some of the composers on yesterday's program, notably men like Peter Warlock, whose real name is Philip Heseltine, and Vaughan Williams, are alive and productive today. The fact is that the art of the English singers covers the evolution of many generations of musicians in England. It is, in the first place, racial in its emphasis of vocal rather than instrumental music, and effects of ensemble in place of those of the individual performer. And there is a second fact, proved by many items of the programs, that living English composers have accomplished a rebirth of the old musical spirit of England with a sincerity, a simplicity and rectitude which is probably not equaled by any other national school of composers in the world today.

A case conspicuously in point was that of the "Corpus Christi" setting for the voices a capella by "Peter Warlock." The harmonic texture of this music is highly modern, but what a spirit and what an effect! The music might be as old as the fifteenth century, so far as fresh and archaic feeling is concerned; meanwhile, the ear apprises the listener that modern dissonance is at work, and that many a progression which is bold or harsh, or both, is employed by the composer with such craft and imagination that it evokes an effect and a mood of other days. This is done, not theoretically or historically, but in terms of beauty and feeling. Musicians would find many a point of interest in the harmonization; the listener knows only that "Warlock" has done a supremely eloquent thing, that he appears, with all his modernity, to speak with the spirit of his ancestors.

The "Corpus Christi," perforce, was repeated. The more familiar settings of folk songs by Vaughan Williams were "The Dark-Eyed Sailor," "Bushes and Briars," the Wassail Song and the "Turtle Dove," added to the program as one of many encores. Here again is the renaissance of a national art.

Much more could be said of the individual beauties of the works performed. They were expressive in many instances of the season and welcome for that; they also expressed something more, that outlasts the seasons, changes of ideas and customs—something essential in great music, springing from the very soil, revealed and made intelligible by the insight and conviction of the interpreters. There was a tendency, at times, to inaccurate intonation, but it was not persistent and it was not present sufficiently to dim the glory of the occasion. There was an audience larger than the hall could comfortably hold, and many were turned away.

Newman Shows Views of Venice.

E. M. Newman showed vivid pictures of Venice and its Adriatic neighbors last night to an audience that filled Carnegie Hall to capacity for the fifth of his series on "Sunny Italy." The final travel talk was followed with close attention through palaces associated with Byron, Browning and Wagner, color views of old masterpieces of art and motion pictures of Venetian canals and the "taxicab" traffic of the gondoliers.

"Peggy-Ann" to Open on Dec. 27.

"Peggy-Ann," a musical comedy with book by Herbert Fields, and music and lyrics by Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart, will open at the Vanderbilt Theatre on Dec. 27 under the direction of Lyle D. Andrews and Lew Fields. Helen Ford and Lulu McConnell will head the cast, which also will include Betty Starbuck, Edith Meiser, Lester Cole and Jack Thompson. Robert Milton is staging the book and Seymour Felix the dances.

Violinist and Soprano in Recital.

Francesca Cuce, soprano, assisted in a concert given by Illuminato Meserendino, violinist, last evening at Chickering Hall. The singer, who appeared after three years' absence, was heard in Respighi's "Nebbie" and airs of classic and modern Italian composers. Mr. Meserendino played music from Vieuxtemps to Kreisler and, with Frederick Kahn as pianist, the sonata Op. 30, No. 2, of Beethoven.

Opera Concert for Emergency Fund.

A crowded house rewarded the first of the Metropolitan's own "emergency fund" benefits at the opera concert last night. Mr. Bodansky led an all-Wagner program, with airs and ensembles from "Rienzi" for Mme. Matzenauer, "Tannhäuser" for Rethberg and Taucher, "Walküre" for Rethberg and Laubenthal, and the "Meistersinger" quintet with these last and Miss Telva and Messrs. Meader and Ludikar.

Charlotte Lund in Opera Recital.

Charlotte Lund at the Princess Theatre last evening gave an enjoyable opera recital from Thomas's "Mignon," which she illustrated with a dozen of the composer's melodies. Miss Lund was again assisted in duets by Messrs. Ljungkvist and Pavey. The opera is to be revived at the Metropolitan on the return of Lucrezia Bori.

LARGE RECEPTION GIVEN FOR MME. SOREL

Dr. and Mrs. Leland Eggleston Cofer Are Hosts to Visitor From France.

Dr. and Mrs. Leland Eggleston Cofer gave a reception yesterday afternoon in their apartment at 563 Fifth Avenue for Mme. Cecile Sorel of the Comédie Française. Mrs. Cofer during the World War passed much time in Paris and founded the Society for the Fatherless Children of France, in the work of which Mme. Sorel was associated with her. More than 300,000 orphans were cared for. In appreciation of Mrs. Cofer's services, the French Government bestowed on her the Medal of the Legion of Honor and the Gold Medal of Foreign Affairs, which latter honor has come to but four women. Recently Mrs. Cofer endowed a bed in the French Hospital of this city in memory of the fatherless children of France.

The guests at the reception included Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. P. Pell, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Rogers, Mrs. William G. Rockefeller, Mr. and Mrs. J. Theus Munds, Mrs. Morris de Peyster, Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler Schieffelin, Mr. and Mrs. Theron Strong, Mr. and Mrs. I. N. Phelps Scheiffelin, Mrs. Arthur Ryle, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Rogers, Mrs. Thayer Robb, Mrs. William Ross Proctor, Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Procter, Mr. and Mrs. Stowe Phelps, Mr. and Mrs. A. Mansfield Patterson, Dr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Pool, Mr. and Mrs. Allison Wright Post, Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Morris, Mrs. Henry Whitney Monroe, Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Morice, Mrs. R. Burnham Moffat, Mrs. Ambrose Monell, Prince and Princess Georges Matchabelli, Colonel and Mrs. Frank Browne Keech, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kelly and Mr. and Mrs. William Adams Kissam.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Jameson, Shipley Jones, Miss Louise Idelin, Mrs. Morgan Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Francis V. L. Hoppin, Erskine Hewitt, Mr. and Mrs. Beekman Hoppin, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Gallatin, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gould, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis B. Gawtry, Mr. and Mrs. deWitt Clinton Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Harkness Flagler, Mr. and Mrs. Harris Fahnestock, Miss Muriel Wurts-Dundas, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Ashton de Peyster, Miss Mabel Choate, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Cartier, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Foster Carey, Sir Harry and Lady Armstrong, Lady White Todd, Count and Countess Alfonso P. Villa and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Tucker.

Mme. Sorel and Count de Segur will be the principal guests at a reception and tea at Columbia University next Friday afternoon.

CHALLENGE TO MME. SOREL.

Yvonne Printemps, Noted Actress, to Bring 70 Stunning Gowns.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—New York will be treated soon to another elaborate expression of the French dressmaker's art when Yvonne Printemps, popular Parisian actress, accompanies her husband, Sacha Guitry, to America for a Christmas Eve premiere of one of a series of Continental plays. One of the best known establishments has just placed the finishing touches on seventy of the "most beautiful gowns ever made."

Prominent members of the artistic and theatrical worlds had a glimpse of the gowns yesterday and it was the unanimous opinion that even blasé New York would sit up and take notice when the pretty wife of the famous French actor appeared in the creations. It is an open secret in theatrical circles that the trip of Mlle. Printemps is regarded as a direct challenge to the amazing wardrobe which Cecile Sorel, star of the Comédie Française, took with her to New York. As soon as she signed the contract to appear, Mlle. Printemps issued orders to her favorite dressmaker to go one better than had been done for the picturesque Cecile Sorel. Hence this sort of artistic contest between the two to see which can cause the greater amazement and the louder praise in the new world.

Whatever sensation Mlle. Printemps may provoke in the fashion sense, New Yorkers certainly will see the two of the best artists of the contemporary French stage when she and her talented husband make their initial American appearance. They will sail on the Leviathan next Tuesday.

MARY LEWIS APPLAUDED.

Metropolitan Opera Soprano at Her Best in English Songs.

Mary Lewis, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, gave a recital at Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon. The Hall was well filled, and there were additional seats on the platform. Lester Hodges gave valuable assistance at the piano. Miss Lewis was heard in a regular recital program, classic Mozart, German Lieder, French, English and operatic encores.

Miss Lewis's voice does not seem yet to have found all its possibilities; this could be ascribed partly to nervousness, and partly to a vocal production which prevented the free egress of the higher notes and which occasionally sharpened them. Miss Lewis has not yet assimilated the classic style, although the runs in Mozart's "Alleluja" were done briskly and brightly, showing promise of future development in this direction. The singer's German group was uneven in quality, Brahms's "Die Mainacht" being by far the best from all points of view, though the diction left something to be desired in the matter of consistent vowel sounds.

The audience was very enthusiastic in its applause, recalling the soprano, who gave "The Lass With the Delicate Air" as her first encore. Miss Lewis, on her return to the platform, explained that the throbbing of some machinery under the platform had caused her annoyance.

She was much more composed and at her ease in the French songs which followed; Debussy's "Recueillement" was the favorite in a much applauded group. The encore was the Valse arietta from "Romeo and Juliet."

The fourth and last group in English evidently gave her hearers great satisfaction; every word could be heard, and the voice gave the effect of being used in its natural setting. For an encore Miss Lewis sang Musette's waltz from "La Bohème," a number which could have been very appropriately embodied in the program.

CONCERT OF BEETHOVEN.

Philharmonic Orchestra's Program Fills the Metropolitan.

An all-Beethoven program was given by the Philharmonic Orchestra, Willem Mengelberg conductor, yesterday afternoon in the Metropolitan Opera House. This program had disposed of the seating capacity of the Opera House in advance of the performance. It consisted of the Egmont Overture, the Pastoral and the Fifth Symphonies. The tributes paid Beethoven this season in the performances of special cycles of his works and what not are formal observances; they are far less impressive than the fact that almost all of the works that are being brought forward in connection with the centenary of Beethoven's death figure constantly on concert programs, whether or not it is a year of centenary, and constitute one of the greatest musical attractions for the public.

This was obviously the case yesterday. Mr. Mengelberg gave familiar readings of familiar music. The readings and the music gave a satisfaction beyond description to the audience, and over all was the spirit of Beethoven.

Major Biddle at Hippodrome.

Major A. J. Drexel Biddle will appear at the Hippodrome this week in command of the United States Marines combat team.

OLSHANSKY A FINE ARTIST.

Russian Baritone Creates a Vivid Mood in Each of His Songs.

Bernardo Olshansky, baritone, gave a recital at Aeolian Hall last evening before an audience composed principally of Russians. Max Rabinowitch was at the piano. A program in various tongues was sung in an interesting manner, although the only language in which M. Olshansky seemed to be at home was Russian. In spite of the strangeness of his French, English and Italian, he succeeded in creating a vivid mood for each of his songs, using a well perfected and useful mezza-voce, in strong contrast to a rough and vibrant forte. Some of his numbers stood out with special distinctness, like Folconieri's "Villanella," for its melodious beauty, or Respighi's "Nebbie" for its sombre and concentrated drama.

Two chansonettes by Hélène de la Boeuf, presented for the first time, were applauded for their pleasing setting. "Le Charbonnier," by Paladilhe, was sung dangerously at the top of M. Olshansky's voice; for one short phrase he lost the tonal thread, but he overcame the difficulty and ended fortissimo.

The Russian group, which included the "Song of the Flea," was greatly applauded and resulted in an encore, Tchaikovsky's "Night." "It Is Enough," the air from "Elijah," retained its pathos and grief in M. Olshansky's interpretation.

Sings Airs of "Madame Butterfly."

Alberta Carina, soprano, appeared at Steinway Hall yesterday afternoon, playing her own accompaniments at the piano as she sang the airs and told the story of Puccini's "Madame Butterfly." A promised tenor failed to assist, but Helen Lanvin joined the singer in the flower duet and Sanford Schlussel was the pianist for that number.

MAYOR GUEST AT REVEL.

The Butt of Many Gibes at Green-room Club Celebration.

Mayor James J. Walker was "jest of honor" last night at a special revel given in his honor by the members of the Green Room Club in their clubhouse, 19 West Forty-eighth Street. All evening the city's Chief Executive was the butt of jokes and skits aimed at him by his hosts.

The Mayor, the last speaker, retaliated in part for the gibes he had received. Then becoming serious he told the more than 200 actors, stage directors and producers who were present that the night club curfew law had been sponsored by him because he believed 90 per cent. of the 6,000,000 persons in the city were law-abiding and respectable and wanted it put into effect.

"I am not playing the rôle of Jimmy Walker now," the Mayor continued, "but a part written by 6,000,000 people, and I will play it as they want it played, not as I might play it if left to my own inclinations."

S. Jay Kaufman, columnist, was master of ceremonies and Harry Reichenbach "roastmaster." Irving Berlin, who arrived late, was forced to sing one of his own compositions in spite of his protests.

Others who took part in the program were Roger Wolfe Kahn, Dr. Sigmund Spaeth, Harry Hershfield, Horton Spurr, Wilton Lackaye, Lowell Sherman and J. Robert Rubin.

Catholic Actors' Guild to Meet.

A Christmas meeting of the Catholic Actors' Guild will be held at the Cort Theatre next Friday afternoon at 3:15. Daniel Frohman will be the guest of honor and the principal speaker will be Myron C. Fagan, author of "The Little Spitfire," which has been adopted as the Guild play for the month of December.

FRIARS HONOR COMEDY PAIR

Give a Dinner to Bobby Clark and Paul McCullough.

Bobby Clark and Paul McCullough, best known to theatregoers as [illegible] Clark and McCullough, were honored by the Friars last night when a testimonial dinner was given them at the clubhouse in West Forty-eighth Street. Speeches were made by well-known Friars, including Arthur (Bugs) Baer, Wells Hawks, Harry Hershfield, Walter C. Kelly, Lionel Atwill and Jack O'Hay. William Collier, Abbot of the club, was master of ceremonies.

One of the unexpected features of the dinner was the singing by Irving Berlin of a song of thanks which he wrote, in lieu of a speech, at a Friars party in his honor thirteen years ago. It was followed by a stage entertainment.

Both Clark and McCullough, in their talks, told of their association, which began some twenty years ago when they ran away from their home town, Springfield, Ohio, to go with a circus. They recalled the vicissitudes of their joint theatrical career, which came to a climax this season when they were starred in "The Ramblers." The proceedings were broadcast by WGBS.

Sea Salvagers Adopt Arbitration.

The Merritt-Chapman and Scott Corporation, sea salvagers, have adopted commercial arbitration under the United States Arbitration Act to settle claims, the American Arbitration Association announced yesterday. Its salvaging is unique in that the rate of pay is determined after instead of before the work is done. Heretofore the selection of a salvage claim involved the filing of a suit in court or an application under the arbitration rules of Lloyds in London. The object sought in the new policy is to obviate the expense and delay of court proceedings in this country or the inconveniences of arbitrations abroad.

THE SCREEN

By MORDAUNT HALL.

Terrier a Hero.

STRANDED IN PARIS, with Bebe Daniels, James Hall, Ford Sterling, Iris Stuart, Mabel Julienne Scott, Tom Ricketts, Helen Dunbar, Ida Darling, George Grandee and Andre Lanoy, adapted from the play "Jenny's Escapade," directed by Arthur Rosson; "Ludwig van Beethoven," celebrating the anniversary of the composer's birthday; "The Dennis Sisters"; Jesse Crawford, organist; "The Four Seasons," staged by Boris Petroff. At the Paramount Theatre.

For the first time since its doors were thrown open, the Paramount Theatre is a house of mirth, the merriment being created by the wild antics in Bebe Daniels's latest comedy, "Stranded in Paris," a film version of the play known as "Jenny's Escapade." Not a little of the fun is contributed by a dog, an animal that is just a little bit more of a Sealyham than a fox terrier. He is once referred to as Lafayette, but the producers, despite the fact that he is virtually the hero of this chronicle, have not dignified his presence by so much as a mention on the program.

Lafayette is extraordinarily sagacious and he understands much that mystifies the human characters. He is perfect in his loyalty to the heroine, Julie McFadden, to whom he attaches himself the second he notices her wandering around a Paris, Ky., conception of Paris, France. Even in his mischievous moods Lafayette serves his young mistress well and he does his utmost to help her out of a compromising situation. As an actor Lafayette steals the glory from both James Hall and Ford Sterling, two of the highly paid principals in this production. And in the end Lafayette, perhaps realizing that heroes are necessary to pictorial stories, appears to be thoroughly in sympathy with the happy ending.

Miss Daniels, as Julie, goes through the picture in a rollicking fashion. She is a poor girl, who is the fortunate winner of a ticket to Paris, which has been dropped by an airplane in an exploitation scheme to advertise a brand of perfume.

As the tale skims along Julie is beheld in the French capital, the victim of an ignominious apache with boundless nerve. Later Julie is mistaken for the Countess Pasada, who apparently has a habit of traveling incognito. The mere fact that Julie is offered a magnificent suite in a hotel does not dismay her any more than does the arrival of a half dozen trunks filled with dazzling gowns. Complications really begin when the Count Pasada, impersonated by Mr. Sterling, arrives and is told to go to his wife's suite. But even this might have resulted in mere humiliation for Julie had not the real Countess herself appeared upon the scenes with a pistol. She was obviously only too eager to fire. As it is, the Countess makes matters decidedly uncomfortable for Julie and the poor Count, who in this instance had certainly not courted any such adventure.

Mr. Sterling gives a relatively sober and consequently effective portrayal of the Count's dilemma. James Hall is pleasing as Robert Van Wye and Mabel Julienne Scott makes things lively as the Countess.

Although this film is frequently fractious, it achieves its purpose in giving one a generous amount of fun.

Boris Petroff furnishes an interesting stage production called "The Four Seasons," in which there are some capable acts.

A Coney Island Blonde.

THE GIRL FROM CONEY ISLAND or JUST ANOTHER BLONDE, with Dorothy Mackaill, Jack Mulhall, Louise Brooks, William Collier Jr. and others, based on Gerald Beaumont's story, "Even Stephen," directed by Alfred Santell; overture, "Sixth Hungarian Rhapsody"; Mark Strand Frolic," with Pauline Miller, Amanda Brown, Irving Aaronson and his "Commanders"; "There He Goes," a comedy with Harry Langdon. At the Mark Strand.

Quite a number of titles in the past have been appended to the current pictorial attraction at the Mark Strand. This feature now emerges with the distinction of a double-barreled designation, "The Girl From Coney Island" or "Just Another Blonde." Among its previous names was "The Charleston Kid," and incidentally it is an adaptation of Gerald Beaumont's story, "Even Stephen."

The blonde in this transcript of a certain phase of life is Dorothy Mackaill. The brunette is Louise Brooks. The brace of heroes are both dark. They are portrayed by William Collier Jr. and Jack Mulhall.

This is a story in which the dual title means something, for it does refer to Coney Island, besides having a blond heroine. It is a yarn without a villain; a tale of two friends, and one of them, Kid Scotty, makes the sacrifice.

A wise old negro told the hero's mother that her son was in the sporting goods business, working from 7 to 11. Actually, James O'Connor at that moment derived his livelihood from shaking dice in Coney Island. Like most of these young men who are caught in the opening chapter sowing their wild oats, James takes stock of the error of his ways and forthwith banks a mere matter of $4,000 and accepts a decent position. Hence for the balance of this tale Mr. O'Connor was making himself as sympathetic as possible. He goes up in an airplane with Joanne Cavanaugh (Miss Mackaill) and does not appear to be in the least nervous, not even when it becomes known that the under-carriage of the machine has been detached through a brush with the telegraph wires.

A most natural scene is that in which scores of persons are beheld running to the spot where the airplane is supposed to have turned turtle in landing. There is the ambulance plunging over the rough ground, the groups of people here and there converging to the one centre, and finally the glimpse of the wreck and an unconscious girl.

Scotty does most of the good work in this picture and in the end loses Joanne. He appears, however, to be quite happy when he embraces Diana O'Sullivan (Miss Brooks).

"The Girl From Coney Island," or "Just Another Blonde," is a well directed picture. The producer, Alfred Santell, reveals imagination, but occasionally he permits maudlin expressions to decorate the screen for a protracted period. Mr. Santell here has succeeded in doing his task so that comparatively few subtitles are necessary.

Miss Mackaill's acting denotes confidence. She, like William Collier Jr., appears to understand what she is doing. Mr. Mulhall is acceptable. Miss Brooks is attractive as Diana, and she has benefited by Mr. Santell's direction.

One of the surrounding numbers on the program is Irving Aaronson's Band, a versatile group, who sing and dance as well as play. They were loudly applauded yesterday afternoon by the audience that overflowed the seating capacity of the theatre.

Other Photoplays.

The film feature at the Hippodrome is "Corporal Kate," with Vera Reynolds.

"Chained," a German drama, is the attraction at the Fifth Avenue Playhouse.

At the Cameo the features are "The Gorilla Hunt" and "Old Bill," the latter based on Anatole France's "Crainquebille."

Final Fund Dinner by Frohman.

The last of "Ten Nights in a Star Room," originated by Miss Rita Kissin, executive director of the Actors' Fund campaign, was given by Daniel Frohman Saturday night at his studio atop the Lyceum Theatre. Among the guests who entertained were Allison Skipworth, George Hassel, Taylor Holmes, Adrienne Dori, James Wolf, Craig Campbell, Hazel Glenn and Anne Yago. About 200 persons attended the supper and entertainment, among them Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Judge W. Bernard Vause, Sophie Irene Loeb, Brandon Tynan, James T. Powers, Prince and Princess Matchabelli and Dario Rappaport.

JEWISH THEATRE GUILD PAYS HONOR TO DEAD

Memorial Services Held for Members Who Have Died Since Guild Was Formed.

Tribute was paid to the memories of Jews prominent in the theatre who have died since the inception of the Jewish Theatrical Guild at the guild's annual memorial services held yesterday afternoon at Shaare Zedek Synagogue, 212 West Ninety-third Street.

The program, which was impressive, was under the direction of William Morris, President of the guild; Harry Cooper, Corresponding Secretary; Loney Haskell, Recording Secretary, and a Memorial Committee. Among the speakers were Sam Forrest, general stage director for Sam H. Harris; Mr. Morris, W. D. Weinberger and Rabbi Emmanuel Eisenberg. There was a musical program by Dorothy Jardon, Gertrude Weider, Cantor Israel Breeh and an orchestra and choir.

The memory of each of the departed members was recalled by Mr. Cooper. Among them were Jules Mastbaum, Philadelphia theatre owner, who died last week; Houdini, Ben Welch, Jake Isaacs, Jack Rose, Oscar S. Straus, Jacob P. Adler, Joseph L. Weber, Lou Payton, Sigmund Breitbart, Max Welly, Aaron Hoffman, Ed Bloom, Leon A. Berezniak, Eddie Mack, George W. Lederer Jr., Louis Hurtig, Louis Hirsch and Barney Bernard.

"I am mindful of the duty we, as Jews, owe to our departed brothers and sisters," said Mr. Morris in his brief address. "A member of the guild is never forgotten, and this annual memorial is a tribute we pay to our dead. To the families and relatives of the deceased the Jewish Theatrical Guild expresses its solemn obligation to perpetuate the memory of their loved ones each year."

Delegations from the Friars, the Lambs and the National Vaudeville Artists' Clubs were in the audience, as were the families of Barney Bernard, Louis Hirsch, Houdini and Ben Welch.

SCHUMANN-HEINK RETURNS.

Singer Due Here Today for Her "Golden Jubilee" Appearance.

Mme. Schumann-Heink returns to New York this morning, midway in her "golden jubilee" tour of 20,000 miles, to be resumed presently for forty more concerts from here to the Pacific Coast. She appears in this city with the New York Symphony next Thursday and Friday and later in the Wagner "Ring" cycle at the Metropolitan.

The singer made her first public appearance in Graz, Germany, fifty years ago, when she was a girl of 15, fresh from the school of the Ursuline Convent at Prague. She is now 65, the mother of seven sons and daughters and grandmother of ten. Her own mother was an Italian, her father a Bohemian, and she was born in the former Austrian empire in 1861. Today American audiences rise to greet her at her concerts, an honor paid hitherto to Mr. Paderewski.

"It is nothing remarkable," the singer said in an interview as to her long career. "I am not old. Look at Lilli Lehmann, over seventy and still appearing at opera festivals. Anna Bishop appeared in concert when she was eighty.

"I am as happy as a child to think I can still do the parts of Erda and Fricka in Wagner's great operas, but I do not think it is anything phenomenal. I hope to do it ten or twenty years from now."

Tony Sarg's Marionettes Coming.

Tony Sarg's Marionettes will begin a New York engagement of two weeks on Wednesday evening, Dec. 22, at the Edyth Totten Theatre. During the holidays there will be daily matinees at 3 o'clock and morning performances on Christmas and New Year's Day at 11 A. M.

"Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves" has been dramatized from the old Arabian Nights story by Knowles Entrikin, author of "Seed of the Brute."

"All Square" on Christmas Night.

Bide Dudley's play, "All Square" is being produced by the Association Players of the Young Men's Hebrew Association. It will open at their headquarters, 148 East Ninety-second Street on Christmas night.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The Moscow Theatre Habima begins its engagement at the Mansfield in "The Dybbuk." The organization has two casts, the first of which will perform tonight and Tuesday, and the second on Wednesday and Thursday. They will continue to alternate in that fashion.

"Howdy King" will also open tonight at the Morosco Theatre.

"Beyond the Horizon" moves to the Bijou Theatre tonight. It will be under the management of Sidney Ross, with whom will be associated Kenneth Macgowan, former director of the Actors' Theatre.

According to a cable from A. H. Woods, who is in Paris, the French composer, Raoul Labis, will accompany the Guitrys to America.

A revival of Arnold Bennett's "The Great Adventure" will be presented at the Princess Theatre on Dec. 22 under the direction of Reginald Pole.

"The Donovan Affair" is in its last week at the Fulton Theatre.

Cecil Sorel will act "La Dame Aux Camelias" at next Saturday's performance instead of "Le Misanthrope," as previously announced in The Times. She will be seen in "Le Misanthrope" tonight. A tea will be given in Mme. Sorel's honor at Columbia University on Friday afternoon.

J. C. Williamson has purchased the Australian rights for the two Schwab and Mandel productions, "Queen High" and "The Desert Song."

Hilda Ferguson has been added to the cast of "Yours Truly," opening in Detroit on Dec. 27.

Weber and Fields are again returning to vaudeville for a seven weeks' engagement, starting at the Orpheum Palace Theatre, Chicago, on Jan. 23. They will appear in New York in February.

Julius Bledsoe, negro baritone, last seen in "Deep River," will play the leading role in the Provincetown Playhouse's production of "In Abraham's Bosom."

Max Reinhardt and Rudolph Lothar, German dramatist, are scheduled to arrive in New York today on the Deutschland. Reinhardt will go to San Francisco to stage the rehearsals of "The Miracle," while Lothar comes to supervise the rehearsals of his play, "The Command to Love," which is scheduled for production here in January.

Edward Ellis will be in "Chicago," the Jeanne Eagels play now in rehearsal.

David Vardi and Eva Yoalit are to appear in a dramatic recital at Town Hall on Jan. 24. Mr. Vardi directed the Neighborhood Playhouse's production of "The Dybbuk," which will be revived this week.

The Winthrop Ames version of "Snow White" will be the January production of the Children's Saturday Morning Theatre at the Princess. "Pinocchio" will be postponed until later in the season.

Brandon Peters has been engaged for "The Devil in the Cheese."

An organization called the American Grand Guignol, which is under the direction of Georges Renavent, plans to present translations of various Grand Guignol thrillers at the Grove Street Theatre in January. The opening bill will probably consist of "The Claw," "The Last Torture" and "Maid of All Work."

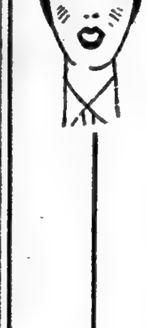
THIS WOMAN BUSINESS



—LONDON Says—
To have written this play at all is a feat, but to have written it at Mr. Levy's age is a marvel. Mr. Levy has an almost inexhaustible flow of wit and humor; an author who may turn out to be a genius. —St. John Ervine, England's leading critic, in Observer.
A most amusing and witty comedy, a brilliant play. —Daily News.
The play kept the house in a continuous roar of laughter, and is one of the most sparkling of modern plays.—Daily Graphic.

—BOSTON Says—
A charmingly unique comedy—a play everyone should see at least once and its bright text will bear a second and even a third hearing.—Boston Post.
Clever comedy. Dialogue full of witty flings. Seldom is a comedy so well acted in every instance.—Boston Herald.
A great deal of smart satire and pungent wit.—Boston Globe.

—NEW YORK Says—
Shining entertainment; clever, witty, wise and free from platitudes; excellently cast; a most cheerful evening. A right good time is assured to all callers at the Ritz.—Eve. World.
A "wow" across the sea and Broadway seemed to take to it at once. From curtain to curtain, laughter was never lacking. A sparkling fabric threaded with witticisms of a tart order, burnished with clever characterizations.—Garrick, Eve. Journal.
In a word, O. P. Heggie is a gorgeous actor. Thorpe, Graham and Rigby were all extremely good.—Dale, American.

It Satisfies . . .

So many of the people who see The Ladder write in to say that not only does the play entertain and thrill but that the "final effect is one of exultation." The supreme test of a play is met when it satisfies the audience. Thousands have found that happy satisfaction in The Ladder. Form your own opinion.

A proven treatment for COUGHS

WHEN you take PERTUSSIN to relieve your cough, you are taking one of the most widely used and effective cough remedies, known to every practising physician and pharmacist.

It is a most satisfactory treatment for stubborn coughs, because (1) it quickly relieves the cough spasms, (2) it soothes the inflamed throat and bronchial tissues, (3) it is absolutely harmless and, (4) most important of all, it helps Nature to hasten recovery by clearing the air passages of germ-laden phlegm.

Sold by all druggists in large and small bottles.

RADIOLA 20
in Musical Reproduction

The challenge has been taken up. People everywhere have been testing the Radiola 20, in comparison with other sets. Testing as the experts do . . . listening awhile to Radiola 20, and then with ear accustomed to its clear reproduction, switching over to another set. Then the difference shows up clearly. Thousands have made the test—and proved the point. And in thousands of homes everywhere, the continued test of use has shown up more good points.

It is not only in musical reproduction and clear speaking voice that Radiola 20 excels. It is twenty times as selective as the ordinary radio set. It is more sensitive than larger sets using a greater number of tubes, and reaches out far, for distant stations. It is simple to operate—a single control brings in near stations, program after program—and small verniers give sharp accuracy on distance tuning.

BEATEN BY HOLD-UP MEN.

Atlantic City Grocer in Hospital From Fractured Skull.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 12.—Held up by three men in his store at 9 South New Hampshire Avenue shortly before 1 o'clock this morning, Samuel Hoch, 30 years old, a grocer, was badly beaten when he refused to turn over his money. He was taken to the City Hospital suffering from a possible fractured skull.

Hoch was preparing to close up when the men entered with caps pulled over their eyes. One asked for a package of cigarettes, and when Hoch turned to get it he was stunned by a blow from a lead pipe.

"Turn over your money or we'll kill you," one of the other men, who also held a piece of heavy pipe, demanded. Hoch yelled, and all three men jumped on him and began beating him with the pipe.

Patrolman Da Grossa and several men came running to the store in answer to Hoch's screams in time to see three men fleeing.

TRIES DRASTIC DRY MOVE.

Federal Government Seeks to Sell Seized Brewery Property.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 12.—The most drastic action taken by the Federal Government here in its effort to enforce the prohibition law is contained in a suit filed in the Federal Court for the Western District of Pennsylvania, asking not only for the condemnation and destruction of a distillery seized by the Internal Revenue Department, but also for seizure of the property upon which the violations were committed and for the sale of the property at public auction, the deed to be given to the purchaser by the Government.

Heretofore, only the violators have been dealt with, but if this action is upheld by the Court the real estate owners will lose their property. The forfeiture of real estate in connection with illegal distillers is practiced by the Federal courts of West Virginia, but it never before has been tried here.

$2,055 IN BEDROOM FLOOR.

Searchers Find Bills and Silver in Home of Illinois Recluse Farmers.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12 (AP).—A hole in the bedroom floor of the home of the late John and Edward Flynn, recluse farmers of a Chicago suburb, today revealed to searchers $2,055 in currency and silver.

John Flynn, aged 72, died on Friday of pneumonia, and a little later his brother Edward, aged 70, shot and killed himself. Heirs believed the aged truck farmers had assets of more than $60,000 and search for the treasure was instituted Saturday.

The cache was disclosed as seekers were preparing to abandon their hunt. An old box was upset, revealing the hole. Search was continued, heirs believing a large sum of money is hidden in the house.

$25,000 Given for Armenian Relief.

A total of $25,000 was given for the relief of the surviving victims of the earthquake in Russian Armenia at a dinner last night under the auspices of the Armenian General Benevolent Union of Greater New York, at the Hotel Commodore. It is proposed to raise $150,000 through the 200 branches of the organization in this country.

WILL DURANT ASSERTS WOMEN HAVE APED MEN

Says at Temple Beth-El This Was Result of Freedom From Home-Making and Maternity.

Why the modern woman is modern; wherein she differs from the woman of other times; and the ethical import of her being modern—these and other problems were discussed by Dr. Will Durant, author of the "Story of Philosophy," at Temple Beth-El, Fifth Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street, last night. Dr. Durant was brought to the Temple by the Men's Club of the Temple.

Dr. Durant placed the responsibility for the modernity of woman on the industrial revolution. The invention of machinery, he said, brought woman into the factory, thereby undermining the home. And with the destruction of the old type of home life, there followed, as a corollary, the fact of birth control. With her interlocking functions of maternity and homemaking partly taken away from her, woman was left free to imitate man. And many women, according to Dr. Durant, have imitated the profanity, the vulgarity, the skepticism and the cynicism of men, as well as the intellectuality of man.

The speaker said he admired woman's dress—declared, in fact, that she was a century or so ahead of man in the matter of wearing easy and becoming clothes. On the other hand, he declared the old-fashioned woman to have been healthier than the present-day city breed.

Dr. Durant suggested that the more fundamental concerns of woman might be the rearing of children and the building of homes. In particular he attacked the idea of late marriage for men, saying that thus some women got husbands who had become brutalized. "If I were God," he declared, "I would bend my energies toward the restoration of early marriages."

PANAMA DEPORTS CHINESE.

Finds 64 Entered as Farm Laborers Working Elsewhere.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, Dec. 12.—The deportation of sixty-four Chinese has been ordered by the Secretary for Foreign Affairs of Panama for having entered the republic on false pretenses.

Although Chinese immigration is forbidden absolutely by the present law, under a former law they could enter as agricultural laborers upon payment of $50, or for other employment on payment of $300.

Those now being deported entered as agricultural laborers and then engaged in other employment. The cost of their deportation is being charged against the persons responsible for their entry.

The Foreign Office has announced a possible modification in enforcement of the new immigration law respecting West Indian negroes along the Costa Rican border, in order to avoid abandonment of the banana plantations of the United Fruit Company on the island of Bocas del Toro.

NEW PRINCETON DORMITORY

Work Started on Lockhart Hall, to Be Finished by 1928.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 12.—Work has been started on a new dormitory at Princeton University, the gift of James H. Lockhart of Pittsburgh, Pa., who graduated in the class of 1887. The new building will be on the west side of the campus, north of Foulk and Henry Halls, and will fit in with the recent development of the northwestern end of the campus.

With the completion of Lockhart Hall, 83 per cent. of the undergraduates in the university will have rooms on the campus. Princeton's building program since the war has increased the number of students living in dormitories by 10 per cent. and it is expected that within ten years the entire student body will be housed in dormitories.

The new dormitory will have rooms for sixty-seven students and is expected to be ready for occupancy by February, 1928.

TELLS YOUTHS TO STAY EAST

Specialist Advises Students of the National Farm School.

BOYLESTOWN, Pa., Dec. 12 (AP).—Reversing Horace Greeley's advice to young men to "go West," Nicholas Schmitz, extension specialist of Pennsylvania State College, today advised them to remain in the East.

Dr. Schmitz addressed the students of the National Farm School at the annual corn show, which brought city boys in competition as corn growers. He asserted that the East offers greater opportunities for the boy graduating from a farm school.

Students from the East won a majority of the prizes at the show, the list including N. Tankenbaum and M. Berick, New York City; H. D. Toland, Wilmington, Del.; Joseph Brown, Columbus, Ohio; A. Zolotor, Kansas City; J. Weinberg, Albany, N. Y.; David Wiland, Cincinnati; B. E. Osen, Cleveland; R. Holloway, William Weiss, H. Brick and H. Semel, Philadelphia.

SHOW BY SING SING INMATES

"The Bits of 1926" Will Be Given for the Public This Week.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Dec. 12.—Fifteen hundred inmates of Sing Sing saw the opening performance by prisoners this evening of the musical revue "The Bits of 1926." It will be given to the outside public for five nights starting tomorrow.

One of the inmates who heartily appreciated the chance to see the show was Ambrose Ross, who was released from the death house, where he had spent twenty-six months, when Governor Smith commuted his death sentence to life imprisonment. He was to have been executed Thursday night, after one of the performances. His life was spared because he assisted the State in solving the robbery and murder of Ernest Whitman in a bank hold-up in Bellmore, L. I.

The show consists of a melodramatic skit, comedy, songs, dancing and various vaudeville stunts. Men play the parts of women. The proceeds will be used for worthy purposes for inmates and their dependents.

CRIPPLES TO SEE SANTA.

Troopers to Bear Newark Children to View Christmas Float.

This afternoon at 3 o'clock, twenty-four members of the Essex Troop will carefully lift the same number of children from their beds in the Home for Crippled Children, Newark, and will take them outside to see Santa Claus. With Santa Claus on a motor float will be six reindeer and Ikwa, an Eskimo from Alaska.

The Home asked Bamberger's store, which brought the reindeer and their leader to the city to transport the group to Clifton Avenue so that the cripples might see them. As there is little snow, the reindeer, Ikwa, and Santa Claus will be forced to ride on the float.

HOLIDAY TRADE BRISK IN MID-WEST

Many Lines Reflect Healthy Conditions and Retail Trade May Break Records.

WINTER CONSTRUCTION GOOD

Prosperity in Manufacture and in Banking Is Shown by Increased Dividends.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—The outstanding feature of the week was the increased buying of holiday goods by the general public, giving retailers a large and satisfactory business and wholesalers a good run of reorders to replenish broken stocks of retailers. This, coupled with the appearance of orders for 15,000 to 20,000 freight cars, a large number of passenger cars and for track supplies, made a satisfactory week all around. It is estimated that the car orders in sight require more than 220,000 tons of finished steel, in addition to large tonnage in other steel.

Production by the steel industry in the West exceeded shipments and business so far in December compares well with November, which was the largest for that month since the war. Structural buying in addition to larger inquiries from the automobile interests tends to give a better tone to the steel trade. Indications are that, with a liberal percentage of new buying being for delivery in the first quarter of 1927, the year will start with a fairly satisfactory volume of tonnage in hand. The pig iron situation is quieter all around with values easy and with iron pipe prices $1 lower. Finished steel shows a disposition to shade values in some instances for December deliveries and to hold them strong for the first quarter of the next year. The increase in the unfilled tonnage for November was larger than expected and reflects an increase in bookings late in the last month.

Despite the cold weather and increased consumption of fuel greatly enlarged supplies of Eastern and Middle West coal have brought an increased disposition on the part of speculative holders and those without orders for loading coal, to accept price concessions to move their holdings. Local building operations and the movement of building materials were delayed by unfavorable weather, yet indications are that Winter construction will be about up to the average of the past few years, with possibly a moderate reduction.

Increased activity developed in the wholesale and retail distribution of dry goods as compared with the previous week and last year. Road sales of Spring goods, however, by wholesalers, were smaller than a year ago. The holiday trade among the retail stores is steadily enlarging with indications of reaching a heavier volume than any other year.

That there has been good business for manufacturers, business houses and banks this year is shown by the increase in dividends and the extras declared of late by many corporations and banks. The weekly statement of the Chicago Seventh Federal Reserve Bank shows an easy money situation, with a drop in loans of around $22,000,000 for the week, a gain in gold reserves, a reduction of $13,000,000 in deposits and a gain in the ratio of reserves of 2.6 per cent. to 68.9, compared with 69.9 a year ago and 78.6 per cent. two years ago. Loans at present are $144,800,000, against $121,900,000 last year. Gold reserves are $381,508,000, against $336,854,000 last year, and deposits $322,000,000, against $328,111,000 last year.

OPEN SPRING SILK LINES.

Embroidery on Georgette and Compose Weaves Among Them.

Composé fabrics of three types feature the Spring lines of silk which the Wechsler-Barber Silk Company will open today. In the group is a novel dress fabric showing eyelet embroidery on georgette, with plain fabric dyed exactly to match and so provide the composé treatment. Moiré composé weaves showing the ombre effect in two colors in the same piece of goods are also outstanding. These goods are dyed first and then moiréed and have the crispness of taffetas. These moiré fabrics are intended for dance and party frocks. The idea is further developed in composé satins, for dance and afternoon frocks.

Executives of the firm explained the late opening as due to their desire to have the trend of the goods market for Spring settled before they offered their new lines. Prices were said to be lower and in accordance with the recent reductions in the cost of raw silk.

In its other offerings the firm is giving much attention to sheer silks. It is showing a chiffon-finished georgette in 85 shades to retail at $1.50. Its crêpe lunette is now priced to retail at $2.95. Modeena is a new crêpe of the romaine type. Goddess crêpe is also being offered, as in the 8000 chiffon suede. An entirely new crêpe showing the Shantung effect, but made of all silk and washable, is called Nubia. It is priced to retail at $3. The firm's 79 Madison crêpe of soft bloom has a weave that is between those of a flat and Canton crêpes. The firm's pure dye crêpe charmant is quoted to retail at $3.95.

In satin crêpes the firm is introducing a weave that possesses a slight "pebble" in the face, making it appear somewhat like a satin Canton. Satinadoré is continued at reduced prices. The firm is offering only one flat crêpe.

Executives of the firm commented on the likelihood of a strong Spring vogue for silk coatings. Three heavy satins are being offered for this use. Featured in a novelty coating is a moiré brocatelle.

Full ranges of colors are offered in all of the fabrics, the shades being those of the Textile Color Card Association.

WILL ROGERS CHOSEN MAYOR

Beverly Hills, Cal., His Home Town, Honors Cowboy Humorist.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 12 (AP).—Will Rogers, cowboy humorist, has been selected Mayor of this city, his home town. The announcement came today in the form of an elaborate proclamation issued by the Beverly Hills Chamber of Commerce and duly authorized by the Board of Trustees.

Mr. Rogers, notified in New York of his appointment, replied that it was a surprise.

"If I go in, there must be reform," the lariat thrower wired to Douglas Fairbanks, first citizen of this community. Will's home town is making preparations to welcome the cowboy Mayor, who is expected to return here on Dec. 21.

FISHER AND HOLMES DEBATE

Professor Wants Us in League, Pastor Does Not.

Professor Irving Fisher of Yale University attracted a capacity audience of 1,500 persons to the Community Church, Thirty-fourth Street and Park Avenue, in a debate last evening with the pastor, the Rev. John Haynes Holmes, on the advisibility of the United States entering the League of Nations.

Professor Fisher said the League had proved its efficacy by settling seven international disputes that might easily have precipitated a world war, and that refusal of the United States to lend its aid was the only reason that it was not stronger.

Dr. Holmes termed the League "a speck on one of the wheels of the chariot of war," and a camouflage behind which the evil doings of European politicians were hidden. No league can do good, he said, until international law is rewritten to outlaw war as a crime and the present diplomatic system in Europe and economic imperialism ended.

DRONE BEE HAS 13,800 EYES.

It Needs Them, Says Scientist, to Watch the Queen Bee.

SPOKANE, Wash., Dec. 5 (AP).—The drone bee can ogle his queen with 13,800 eyes; the bee that does the dirty work about the hive has 6,400, and the queen bee needs only 4,900, since the rest of them do most of the looking, says Dr. D. A. Slocum, bee expert of Washington State College.

Husbands who rush to divorce courts for relief from wives who deceive them may learn a few things from the drone, Dr. Slocum declares. The drone's principal duty is to keep a vigilant eye on his queen, and with the optical equipment nature has provided that's easy.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Easier Money in the Light of Last Week's Treasury Financing.

Next to the highly spectacular achievement of the franc in crossing 4 cents, thereby more than doubling the low price of July 20 and overtopping the price of any day since Nov. 30, 1925, the rise of the investment bond market was the real event of last week. That the average price of typical selected bonds should for the first time have reached the highest price since 1913 gave a certain historical interest to the market. It plainly reflected the money situation.

Last week's successful offering by the Treasury, to effect its quarterly financing of $200,000,000 nine-months certificates at 3¼ per cent., was commonly accepted as reflecting official expectation of easy money during that period. The very recent rise of several long-term national war bonds to the highest price in their history, at which they yield barely 3⅛ per cent. to the investor, appeared to indicate similar expectation by bankers and investors. Both incidents caused comment on the exceptionally high rating which now attaches to the American Government's credit.

That inference is obvious enough, but it would hardly be correct to measure the respect of the world for American public resources and public faith by the variation, favorable or unfavorable, of the interest rate on its obligations at a given moment. Money rates on the open market have a good deal to do with it. If they did not, then the fall in price of the 4¼ per cents to 82, in May of 1920, would have meant increasing doubt of the public credit. That price represented a net yield upward of 5 per cent., which is more than the older United States bonds yielded to investors at the price of the panic of 1873. At the end of 1920, indeed, the Treasury had to pay 6 per cent. interest on a one-year loan.

But money was lending then at 8 per cent in Wall Street.

As a matter of fact the rate of 3¼ per cent., fixed for last week's short-term offering, was not by any means the lowest of the present period. In March and June last year the Treasury placed short loans of $450,000,000 and $125,000,000 at 3 per cent.; in June and September, 1924, it had to pay only 2¾ per cent. on short loans of $193,000,000 and $391,000,000. Yet the actual rating of the public credit is higher now than then; if for no other reason, it would be so because $1,600,000,000 of the $21,000,000,000 public debt of 1924 has subsequently been redeemed and canceled.

The prestige of the United States and of the Treasury is almost certainly higher than was the status of Great Britain and the Bank of England thirty years ago; yet the 2¾ per cent. British consols of that period sold on the London Stock Exchange in July, 1896, at 114, the high price of their history. That made the yield to purchasers approximately 2⅜ per cent., or less than our war and post-war loans have ever yielded. But the London bank rate stood at 2 per cent. for nearly nine months of that year. In 1904, when the bank rate averaged 5 per cent. and the Boer War had necessitated increase of the British public debt, consols declined to a price which yielded the buyer 3 per cent.

The inference, therefore, that last week's 3¼ per cent. rate on a successful nine-months Treasury loan foreshadows continued easy money, as the more convincing. Considering the part which relatively low money rates have played in the prosperity of the past two years, such assurance is important. That a period marked by immense expansion of financial and industrial activity should also have been characterized by relatively easy money (a coincidence rarely if ever witnessed before the war) has perplexed many observers. It has, indeed, been a subject of careful examination in the Government's annual reports.

Secretary Mellon ascribes the phenomenon to our great gold reserve, our people's accumulated savings, our lower prices, efficient transportation, "hand-to-mouth buying" and the absence of speculative practices in our trade—all of which influences act to increase the scope and capacity even of an unchanged reservoir of credit. Secretary Hoover, approaching the question in another way and considering Mr. Mellon's six contributory influences as effect rather than cause, explains the ease in money by the very great and real increase of banking capacity. This has enabled the banks to provide without trouble for expanding requirements of legitimate trade, and has made possible the smooth working of industry.

Continuance of that situation into 1927 would logically bring about three results. One would be absence of such serious trade reaction as results from tight money, industrial speculation and overaccumulation of unsold goods. Another would be unabated strength in the market for high-grade home investments. The third would be increase rather than decrease in the amount of capital placed at the disposal of European reconstruction.

Conditions in Europe's money market will promote that movement as surely as conditions in our own. While our Treasury is placing nine-months bills at 3¼ per cent., the British Exchequer is paying more than 4½ for a three-months issue. While our Reserve Bank rate stands at 4 per cent., the bank rate at London is 5 per cent., at Berlin 6, in Italy, Austria and Belgium 7, and at Paris 7½. The course which the movement of American capital will take next year is unquestionable; the only uncertainty in the matter is, to what extent the general resumption of European gold payments will result also in a really large movement of American gold to Continental Europe.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

*Assessed Valuation (1926)	$12,017,607
Net Bonded Debt	4,307,398

Population – 17,500

*County property in Florida is assessed at a very small fraction of its real value; for example, the assessed valuation of the City of Sarasota (the County Seat) exceeds $50,000,000.

The above bonds were authorized by an election and are direct obligations of Sarasota County, payable from unlimited taxes and have been validated by the Circuit Court, which renders their legality incontestable.

Dividends payable quarterly February 1, May 1, August 1 and November 1.

Each Preferred share now to be issued, will carry a warrant entitling the holder, while a Preferred stockholder of record, to purchase for each share, two shares of Common stock at $37.50 per share on or before December 31, 1928 and at $45 per share thereafter up to and including December 31, 1931. Against these warrants, 40,000 shares of Common are reserved.

From the letter of Mr. A. F. Harris, to be Vice-President and General Manager of the Harris-Seybold-Potter Company, we summarize as follows:

History and Business

The Harris-Seybold-Potter Company will succeed The Harris Automatic Press Company of Cleveland, Ohio, the largest manufacturer in the United States of offset lithographic and envelope presses, which is acquiring by purchase the business and properties of The Seybold Machine Company of Dayton, Ohio, the largest manufacturer in this country of paper cutting machines, and the Premier & Potter Printing Press Co., Inc., of New York, a leading manufacturer of offset presses and flat-bed presses. The Company, therefore, will have a well diversified line of products essential to the printing and lithographic industry.

The management of the Harris-Seybold-Potter Company will continue in the hands of experienced executives, all of whom have been closely identified with the various companies for many years.

Customers

Customers of the new company are located in practically every civilized country and include the official printing and engraving establishments of many of the leading governments as well as printers, lithographers, bookbinders, publishers, paper and envelope manufacturers, box and carton manufacturers, stationers, paper dealers and many industrial establishments in other lines.

Earnings

Consolidated net earnings of the three companies for the last four fiscal years (fiscal year ended June 30 for the Harris and Seybold companies being combined with fiscal year ended the previous December 31 for the Premier & Potter company) after depreciation but before interest and Federal taxes, as certified by Ernst & Ernst, were as follows:

Fiscal Year	1926-25	1925-24	1924-23	1923-22
Net after depreciation	$933,581	$778,566	$1,016,075	$995,672
Net after present bond interest and Federal taxes	703,747	569,659	775,105	757,456
Per share Preferred	$35.19	$28.49	$38.76	$37.87

Four-year average earnings are equivalent, after present bond interest and Federal taxes at the present rate of 13½% to over five times dividend requirements on the Preferred stock and $5.50 per share of Common. Combined sales of the three companies for the first ten months of the current calendar year were in excess of those for the corresponding period a year ago.

Assets

The pro forma consolidated balance sheet of the company, based on the balance sheets of June 30, 1926 for the Harris and Seybold companies, and of August 31, 1926 for the Premier & Potter company, after giving effect to the present financing, all as certified by Ernst & Ernst, shows current assets of $3,873,280 against current liabilities of $455,779, a ratio of over 8 to 1. Net tangible assets as shown in the balance sheet after allowing for funded debt are in excess of $3,800,000. If effect were given to recent appraisal of sound value of the fixed assets, net tangible assets would be increased by more than $1,107,000, to $4,900,000 or $245 for each share of Preferred. The above is exclusive of valuable patents, good-will and water rights of the component companies.

Preferences and Sinking Fund

This stock is preferred as to assets and dividends and is entitled to 7% Cumulative dividend. It is callable, in whole or in part, at any time on thirty days' notice at 110 and accrued dividend. Beginning with the calendar year 1932, the company will redeem annually, by purchase or call, 3% of the largest amount of the Preferred stock at any time outstanding, provided current assets are 200% of current liabilities and 100% of all liabilities.

These shares are offered "when, as and if issued and accepted by us," subject to stockholders' action and to approval of all legal matters by our counsel.

Price $100 and accrued dividend to yield 7.00%

REACTION IN FRENCH TRADE HAS BEGUN

Violent Rise of Franc Has Stopped Foreign Orders for French Merchandise.

SHOP SALES SLACKENING

Business Public Ascribes Situation to Changing Value of Currency, With No Hint at Stabilization Point.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—The existence of a "trade crisis" as a result of the rapid rise and extremely violent fluctuations in the franc is now undeniable. All French exporters declare that they have virtually ceased to receive any new orders from abroad and shop sales have practically stopped. The public, in fact, has virtually suspended buying.

Automobile works and textile factories have begun laying off workmen and slackening economic activity appears to be general. In financial and commercial circles dealers would have resigned themselves to a crisis of changing values and falling prices through which they might have attained stability of exchange. But they consider a crisis of violently fluctuating rates without stabilization to be deplorable. What is happening is, in the view of such business men, the direct result of the fact that stabilization is for the moment recognized as out of the question.

France's Reaction and Recovery.

All these facts were illustrated by last week's market for the franc. The rise encountered active resistance at the beginning of the week and a fairly strong reaction occurred. There was evidence that sales of foreign securities and resultant purchases of francs had ceased and quotations for such foreign securities on the Paris Bourse again went above London parity. Therefore, for almost the first time since the continuous recovery of the franc, the Paris market actually bought securities abroad.

Poincaré's speech to the Chamber of Deputies on Wednesday checked this reaction and resulted in violent recovery of the franc, sterling falling to below 128 francs, as against 125 on Tuesday. Although Poincaré's declarations were not precise, the financial public concluded from them that he favors revaluation of the franc without assigning any limit to the rate.

Market May Be Uncontrollable.

It is true, all Paris bankers now consider that stabilization of the franc at the present rate would be impracticable, and for that reason argue that the actual stabilization rate will be higher than the present market. But it was also pointed out in financial circles last week that Poincaré has now set machinery going which he cannot stop.

Nevertheless, last week's later rise in the franc seemed to expert Paris bankers to have been overdone. None of them affirms that the movement has certainly reached its limit, which will be determined by the market's own tendencies. But it is believed that the limit must be approaching.

RECOVERY IN BRITISH COAL TRADE IS SLOW

Production Has Speeded Up, but Marketing Is Surrounded With Difficulty.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The coal situation is quickly getting back to normal, so far as the reopening of pits is concerned. The trouble is that more coal is now actually being produced than can be sold. That is mostly due to the fact that no one wants to buy on a falling market. Prices are in point of fact still prohibitive for many industrial purposes.

The latest official returns up to Nov. 27 show that for the month ended on that date, the coal output amounted to 232,400 tons, with 455,034 miners working. In the month preceding the commencement of the strike the output was 908,800 tons, with about 1,100,000 miners employed. Under present conditions, however, the individual output is considerably higher than before the strike.

STABILITY IN STERLING.

Dutch Market Ascribes Prolonged Firmness to Gold Standard.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 12.—The remarkable stability of sterling exchange, now as in the period of the coal strike, is ascribed by Dutch bankers solely to the reinstallation of the gold standard. This is believed to have prevented the serious fall in sterling which was widely predicted as unavoidable after the strike began, unless the sterling market will be supported by sacrifice of the bank's gold reserve. The gold standard had the important effect of eliminating speculative influences from the sterling market.

It is not expected here that the Bank of England will lose much gold in the near future, its decrease of £98,000 last week being considered wholly unimportant.

Russia Plans 9½% More Oil Output

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—Russia's oil production program during the new business year 1926-27 is officially stated as 9,832,000 metric tons, or 9½ per cent. more than in the past business year.

POINCARÉ'S ATTITUDE ON FRANC CRITICIZED

European Markets Deplore 'Policy of Drift'—Predict Stabilization Below Present Price.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—To London it appears plain enough that stabilization of the franc is not an early objective of the French Government. The policy of allowing the franc to drift, however, even though it is toward higher levels, finds scant support in this market, where exchange stability is placed before everything else.

In France it is evidently feared that an economic crisis must follow the revalorization policy; but the French Government does not seem to share this view, thinking that the country can withstand such difficulties as may arise. Months of uncertainty probably lie ahead, during which time, as financial London sees it, France will suffer the pangs of deflation experienced by other countries who have got back to the gold standard with less ambitious ideas concerning the value of their currency.

Berlin Doubts High Stabilization Rate.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—German authorities on currency conditions are inclined to believe that the French franc cannot be permanently stabilized at a higher rate than 150 to the pound sterling. Otherwise, they think, domestic gold prices in France will be considerably above international prices.

It is admitted that stabilization immediately after continuous depression would have been technically more difficult than after a rise. But this consideration is believed to be outweighed by the peril of complete stagnation to French industry if the franc is stabilized too high.

Amsterdam Predicts 150 or 175.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 12.—Although the franc rose still higher last week, with the pound sterling at one time commanding only 123 francs, Dutch bankers do not believe that a formal stabilization at a higher rate than 150 francs per pound would be feasible. In some quarters a rate even of 175 is predicted, the ground being that revaluation at a higher rate would be too great a detriment to the public finances.

All accounts show that French industry has been severely hit by the present upward movement. The French motor car trade is suffering badly from the fluctuations of exchange. In the textile industry unemployment is increasing rapidly and many other industries are already running on short time.

PARIS MARKET AT SEA AS FRANC FLUCTUATES

French Bankers and Merchants Unable to Know What to Expect Next.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—The financial public is now in a state of entire perplexity as to the probable movement of the franc. It was pointed out last week that, if the Government were to indicate the maximum rate at which it had decided to stabilize, it would place an insurmountable obstacle in the path of the rising franc. The fixing of such arbitrary rate would be easily possible with the help of the Bank of France.

The public would then know that no rise beyond that figure could be expected, and therefore would no longer have the present incentive for recall of exported capital. Since such return of capital constitutes at the moment practically the sole influence behind the further rise of the franc, its disappearance would entirely change the market's tendency; it might indeed be difficult to fight against the violent reaction which would ensue.

This course, however, Poincaré has positively rejected in his speech to the Chamber, leaving the whole situation in doubt.

LONDON HOPEFUL ABOUT THE GOLD MOVEMENT

Continent Still Getting Half of Arrivals From Transvaal—Change Expected Next Month.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—London bankers admit that it is still difficult to gauge the future of gold exports. There appears to be comparatively little risk in withdrawals from the Bank of England, but the state of the exchanges is often no guide as to what is likely to happen to gold arriving on the open market.

For instance, none of the Continental exchanges was down to the theoretical gold point, yet well over half of the new gold went abroad. Nevertheless, the inclination is to expect gold to reach the Bank of England in larger quantities after the turn of the year, in which case as soon as the worst effects of the coal strike have passed, the Bank of England rate will probably be lowered.

KEEP UP EXPORT PRICES.

Policy Approved by German Steelmakers—Output Curtailed.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—Westphalian steel producers declare that the present German export prices must be maintained. They approve the new action of the International Syndicate in reducing the "output ration" for the first quarter of 1927 by 1,500,000 tons.

Bearing on the export situation, sales of potash during the first eleven months of 1926 were 1,004,036 metric tons of pure potash as against 1,166,534 in the same months of 1925.

EUROPE BELIEVES IN BRITISH RECOVERY

Continental Markets Look for Early Recapture of Lost Export Trade.

SUPPLY SHORT OF DEMAND

European Coal and Steel Output Has Been Inadequate—May Be a "Boom" in Coal Industry.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—British exporters are evidently taking energetic measures to recover the Continental coal market. The first British deliveries have already arrived in Rotterdam. Germans consider that Great Britain will entirely recover its export trade, but think that the process may take a half year.

Reichert, Director of the German Iron and Steel Association, estimates that the strike caused a decline of 3,500,000 tons in British pig iron production and of 4,500,000 in steel, against which the Continent increased its own pig production by only 2,000,000 tons and its steel output by 2,500,000. From this, Reichert infers that there is still a heavy deficit which insures good business to Germany as well as England for many months.

The outlook for British iron and steel exports is considered less favorable. British prices for bars, structural forms and sheets are reported to be £2 or £3 per ton above the Belgian rate, and therefore it is expected that British manufacturing consumers will continue to import from the Continent.

Many Industries in Good Position.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 12.—Expectations of substantial British trade recovery are generally entertained in this market. The British cotton industry is favored by the lower prices for raw materials, and its shipping trade is benefited by the high freight rates which have partly compensated for losses during the strike. Shipbuilding also has received large orders lately involving work for about twelve months ahead.

This favorable opinion is greatly influenced by belief that great arrears exist in filling legitimate demands from several industries. Very great demand for coal is expected, visibly leading to a boom period. Somewhat the same situation may exist in iron, steel and machinery.

On the whole, Dutch bankers do not believe England's loss of foreign markets will be of indefinite duration, because British manufacturers are highly regarded in the world market, and, therefore, ought soon to regain their old position. Some reserve is expressed regarding the scope of recovery, and it is felt that the coming activity will necessarily be exaggerated after so long a stoppage, but, after six months of declining British trade, revival on the renewed access to fuel supplies is deemed not at all improbable.

France's Rise Favors British Sales.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—Financial people here believe in coming recovery in British trade. The advance of the franc has certainly been highly favorable to British trade, which had for a brief time been impaired by French competition, not only on the world's markets but in England itself.

The same favorable effect on British trade may be expected from Belgian stabilization.

FRANC'S 'BUDGET RATE' AND 'STABILIZED RATE'

Tuesday's Misunderstanding of Poincaré's Speech—How 150-Franc Rate Was Fixed.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—There appeared to be some misunderstanding on foreign markets of Poincaré's remark in his budget speech of Tuesday that 150 francs to the pound sterling would be established as the conversion rate for the next budget. The pound sterling had been selling on the open market around 122½ francs. But the 150-franc rate was an arbitrary basis for Treasury calculation and had no reference to stabilization.

In the budget estimates, which are naturally drawn up in francs, the Finance Minister some time ago selected the rate of 150 francs to the pound, as a basis for estimates in francs of payments that the Treasury would have to meet in foreign currencies next year. The rate was chosen arbitrarily, and, therefore could not be taken to indicate anything definite regarding Poincaré's plans.

The market, however, drew another inference. Poincaré has declared that the Treasury had bought enough foreign exchange in recent weeks to cover all foreign due dates next year. Consequently, contrary to statements made in the Chamber and in the press, Paris bankers are agreed that continuing rise in the franc cannot procure any further saving to the Treasury in its foreign debt service, because the funds required for 1927 have already been obtained at rates which, it is estimated, average dearer rather than cheaper than 150 francs to the pound.

LONDON BANK GETS GOLD.

Gained £452,000 Net Last Week—£480,000 More Coming.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Gold taken in by the Bank of England during the past calendar week was £462,000 in bars from South Africa, bought in the open market. The bank gave up only £10,000 in sovereigns for Holland.

There are further immediately impending gold arrivals from South Africa amounting to £480,000.

To be Dated January 1, 1927 To Mature January 1, 1947

Coupon Debentures in denominations of $1,000 and $500, registerable as to principal only. Interest payable January 1 and July 1 without deduction for normal Federal income tax not exceeding 2%. Redeemable, in whole or in part either at the option of the Company or through the operation of the Sinking Fund, on any interest payment date at 102 during the first four years, 101½ during the second four years, 101 during the third four years, 100½ during the fourth four years, and par during the last four years. Principal and interest payable in United States gold coin at the Head Office of

and
GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, Trustee.

The following information has been summarized by Mr. John D. Ryan, Chairman of the Board, and Mr. Cornelius F. Kelley, President of the Company, from their letter to us regarding this issue:

The Chile Copper Company through the Chile Exploration Company, of which it owns all the Capital Stock, controls the largest known deposit of copper ore in the world. The deposit lies in close proximity to seaboard thus permitting substantial economies in transportation. The occurrence of the ore deposit near the surface permits unusually economical mining operation by the use of electric shovels. The copper produced is of an exceptionally high quality and the cost of production is the lowest of any large-scale producer of copper in the world.

The properties are now producing at the approximate rate of 220,000,000 lbs. of copper per annum, but this production does not give effect to additional capacity about completed which it is estimated will increase the aggregate capacity to more than 375,000,000 lbs. Based upon a capacity of 375,000,000 pounds of copper per year, the ore reserves, which have already been developed, are sufficient to last over seventy years.

The location and nature of the deposit, the character of the development and the economy of the operating methods utilized, comprise an exceptional combination of conditions which distinguish the entire property as one of the outstanding producers of copper in the world.

The proceeds of this issue of Debentures will be applied to the redemption on April 1, 1927, of the existing 6% Convertible Collateral Trust Gold Bonds, Series A, now outstanding in the amount of $34,990,500.

These Debentures will be direct obligations of the Company and will be issued under a Trust Agreement which, among other things, will provide (a) that the Company will not make any pledge of or create any lien or charge on any of the stocks or obligations of the Chile Exploration Company now or at any time owned by it without securing these Debentures equally and ratably therewith and (b) that the Company will not cause or permit the Chile Exploration Company to mortgage or pledge any of its fixed assets or the stocks of its subsidiary companies or to issue any bonds or other funded obligations unless all the evidences of debt or securities so secured or issued shall be acquired by the Company, except that additional property may be acquired subject to mortgages, indebtedness incurred in the usual course of business may be secured by pledge of personal property, and obligations may be incurred in the usual course of business, all as provided and defined in the Trust Agreement.

The Trust Agreement will provide for a Sinking Fund operating semi-annually after the first five years, which will retire all the Debentures by maturity.

The average annual income available for interest and Federal taxes after depreciation for the three-year and nine-month period ended September 30, 1926, amounted to $14,309,217 or 8.17 times the annual interest charges on these Debentures. The additional development of the properties will increase the capacity to 375,000,000 lbs. of copper per year. Conservatively assuming an annual output of 360,000,000 lbs. of copper and a market price of 13c per pound, it is estimated that the income available for interest after Chilean and Federal taxes should amount to over 12 times the annual interest requirements on this entire issue of Debentures.

The equity behind the Company's funded debt is represented by 4,391,330 shares of capital stock, of a par value of $25 a share, of which stock more than 50% is owned by the Anaconda Copper Mining Company. Dividends on this stock have been paid since March, 1923, at the annual rate of $2.50 per share and present market quotations for this stock indicate a market equity of over $150,000,000.

We offer these Debentures, if, as and when issued to and received by us, subject to the approval by our counsel of all legal proceedings in connection therewith. It is anticipated that delivery of Interim Certificates will be made on or about December 28, 1926.

Interstate Public Service Company

First Mortgage and Refunding 5% Gold Bonds, Series D

Due December 1, 1956

Price 96 and Interest, Yielding Over 5.25%

Dated December 1, 1926. Interest payable June 1 and December 1 at the office of Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., in Chicago and New York without deduction for the normal Federal Income Tax now or hereafter deductible at the source, not in excess of 2%. Coupon bonds in denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100.

For detailed information regarding these Bonds, attention is directed to a letter of Mr. Harry Reid, President of the Company, from which the following is summarized:

Territory: The Interstate Public Service Company, serves directly or indirectly 202 Indiana cities and towns with one or more classes of public utility service and operates an interurban line connecting Indianapolis and Louisville. Among the more important cities thus served are: Goshen, Lebanon, New Castle, Connersville, Aurora, Franklin, Columbus, Seymour, Bedford, Bloomington, Shelbyville, Jeffersonville, New Albany, Vincennes and Bicknell. The combined population of the communities served is over 320,000, and the territory served is well diversified, including as it does thriving industrial cities, excellent agricultural and coal lands and the extensive Indiana limestone industry centering about Bedford and Bloomington. The Company also owns extensive public utility properties in southwestern Indiana in the heart of the coal fields thus offering a large opportunity for the sale of electric power for mining purposes, from which source a considerable income is derived.

Security: The First Mortgage and Refunding Gold Bonds, in the opinion of counsel, are a direct obligation of the Company, and are secured by a mortgage covering as a direct lien all fixed property now owned or hereafter acquired. The Mortgage is a first mortgage on electric, gas and water properties, valued by examining engineers plus subsequent additions at an amount largely in excess of the First Mortgage and Refunding Gold Bonds to be presently outstanding. The Mortgage is also a direct lien, on the balance of the Company's property, subject to $2,100,000 outstanding closed prior liens, $27,000 principal amount of which will be deposited under the Mortgage and $62,500 held by the Company.

Earnings: During the twelve months ended October 31, 1926 net income before depreciation was $3,173,563. Annual interest requirements on the total mortgage debt to be outstanding are $1,473,979.

Management: The Company's operations are controlled by the Middle West Utilities Company.

YEAR-END STRAIN AWAITED IN LONDON

Nevertheless, Hoped Bank Rate Will Come Down When New Year Begins.

TRYING TO RETAIN GOLD

Continent Still Bidding in Open Market, but Bank of England Now Gets Part.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The end-of-the-year money pressure lies immediately ahead, but in the meanwhile the market continues to enjoy the benefit of the easy credit situation created by the Government's £50,000,000 disbursement as of Dec. 1. The Treasury borrowed heavily from the Bank of England to meet this disbursement, but it is now rapidly repaying these loans and the figures of the Bank return show market deposits none too high in view of the approaching year-end.

It is customary for pressure to develop the last week in December and the market is counting upon easy conditions until then. Discount rates are appreciably easier, owing to a plentiful supply of short-term credits, and the hope is expressed that early in the new year the position of the exchanges will have sufficiently improved to enable a reduction in the bank rate. There is more hope than faith in such a development, however.

Watching the Gold Market.

Sterling is barely holding its own, while here and there some less important gold exchanges have weakened considerably during the last few days. It was demonstrated afresh on Tuesday that Continental demand was not quite off, although buyers are apparently content to await only favorable opportunities for acquiring gold. One such opportunity occurred this week when an exceptionally large shipment of £1,250,000 gold arrived in London on the open market from South Africa.

With so much gold available, the price declined from a normal of 84s. 11½d. per fine ounce to 84s. 10½d., although even then some difficulty was experienced in getting satisfactory bids. America made inquiry, but while the exchange and the price at which the metal could be obtained were favorable, no fast boat was available, consequently nothing came of the inquiry.

Bank of England's Gold Reserve.

Germany finally bought £627,000 and other Continental buyers £79,000. The home trade took £60,000, while small quantities were taken by Egypt and India. This satisfied all demands and the balance of £462,000 was sold to the Bank of England, which does not pay more than the statutory price of approximately 84s. 9½d.

Currency notes at the end of the week aggregated £289,414,270, as compared with £285,783,420 one week ago and £284,726,654 two weeks ago. The highest of the year to date was £303,466,376, in the week ended May 21; the lowest £284,178,770, in the week ended Feb. 19. The expansion is the customary one, always anticipated at Christmas time, and which will probably continue until the end of the year.

LARGE LOANS IN GERMANY.

Both New Home Issues and Foreign Borrowings Have Risen in 1926.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—A report on foreign loans placed by Germany during the first eleven months of 1926 showed a total of 1,561,000,000 marks. This compares with 1,450,000,000 in the whole twelve months of 1925.

New home loans during the eleven months footed up 1,271,000,000, plus an estimated 1,200,000,000 in new mortgage bonds. Bearing on this absorption of new issues at home, current statements show that German savings bank deposits during the first eleven months rose from 1,629,000,000 marks to 2,531,000,000.

WHY REICHSBANK HAS STOPPED BUYING GOLD

Ascribed to Higher Ratio of Reserve and Movement of Exchange.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 12.—The cessation of gold receipts at the German Reichsbank, after 262,000,000 marks had been added in three months, is ascribed here to the fact that the institution's ratio of gold reserve, allowing for outstanding Rentenbank notes, had reached 40 per cent. Previous gold reached 40 per cent. Previous gold receipts by the bank were obtained partly from arbitrage operations in exchange, particularly from direct purchases independent of exchange rates.

These independent purchases were excluded when the bank's ratio reached its present figure and when, later on, the exchange market itself moved against Germany, gold arbitraging was no longer possible. The Bank of the Netherlands has refused to give out gold for export to Germany on the ground that Germany is still prohibiting gold exports. This attitude is taken despite the declaration by the Reichsbank president that his institution will give out gold for export whenever the exchange rate against Germany warrants such action.

Reduction of the Reichsbank rate at the end of December is still expected.

Berlin Cites "Market Conditions."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—The cessation during the two past weeks of increase in the Reichsbank's gold reserve is understood here to be due solely to market conditions. These have lately operated against arbitrage purchases, based on exchange rates.

During the last few months, purchases of this sort had played an increasing part in fixing the basis for the bank's gold imports. Before that time, the bank had invariably bought outright in the foreign markets.

HOPES AND DOUBTS OF BRITISH INDUSTRIES

Optimistic Over Longer Future, Uncertain of Immediate Results —Prices Hard to Quote.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—December is the annual financial cleaning-up time in London. Until coal prices are stabilized again, considerable difficulty will be experienced in restarting the big industries. The demand exists, but "firm prices" cannot yet be quoted owing to the important influence of coal upon production costs. While the near outlook is not particularly promising for substantial trade revival, the longer outlook is now regarded as distinctly hopeful.

The textile trade thinks itself on the eve of a big revival. Raw cotton prices are now probably not far from bottom and big things are expected from the Indian market, while in all other directions, except China, good business is promised. An immediate large increase in general exports is not expected, but steady improvement in the trade balance is looked for.

BERLIN MARKET LOWER.

Many Stocks Declined 10 to 20 Points During Past Week.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—The Berlin Boerse was weak and uncertain last week, being affected by fear of higher money and by the decision of the Disconto Bank to restrict the carrying over of credits. On Friday there was a further sharp all-around fall in prices.

Declines between Dec. 4 and Dec. 10, with fractions committed, were as follows: Deutsche Bank, 189 to 176; Disconto Bank, 178 to 165; Hamburg America, 185 to 162; North German Lloyd, 176 to 158; General Electricity, 175 to 153; Farben Industrie, 384 to 306; Siemens & Halske, 214 to 185; Vereinigte Stahlwerke, 157 to 137, and Aschersleben Potash, 163 to 135.

DRIFT TO HIGHER MONEY AT BERLIN

Plan to Remove Exemption of Foreign Capital From Tax May Influence Market.

MAY CHECK FOREIGN LOANS

Financial Berlin Hopes, However, That the Other Inducements May Supersede Objection to Taxation.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—The Berlin money market ended the week in increasingly comfortable position; but it was noticed that day to day interest rates, after an unusually sharp rise at the end of November, declined relatively little. The reason assigned was the increasing of borrowings to prepare themselves for the year-end settlements.

Tendencies toward a tighter money market will be intensified by the Government's Federal and tax exemption on foreign loans. It is considered certain that advances of foreign capital to Germany will at first decline, and, since part of the foreign money borrowed for capital purposes was used temporarily to provide the general money market, the effect of such decrease would be obvious.

The Tax on Foreign Loans.

The tax hitherto exempted on foreign loans was the so-called "capital yield tax" of 10 per cent., which, according to the law was payable by the foreign bondholders. The 2 per cent. capital emission tax had also been reduced on foreign losses to one-half of 1 per cent.

Bankers are inclined to think that future American lenders will reconcile themselves to the reimposed tax, basing that conclusion on the rapid rise of German loans on Wall Street, also on the increasing strength of the German home market for capital. For instance, the Prussian mortgage institutions have just announced an issue of 6 per cent. bonds at 94, the outstanding 7 per cents. having already reached par.

Controlling the Money Market.

Reichsbank President Schacht's new measure against the excessive ease in money, the offer by the Gold Discount Bank of 100,000,000 marks of bills drawn on itself on the open market, which is allotted to the bidders of the lowest discount rate, had some effect last week. Profits will then be invested by the Gold Discount Bank in 7 per cent. Rentenbank mortgage bonds, against which the new 7½ per cent. mortgage loans will be given to agriculture.

The result promises soon to transform the superabundant short-term money into a long-term credit, of which there is still a shortage.

MARKET'S COMMENT ON ARMSTRONG TROUBLES

Request for 'Moratorium' Forced by Trade Depression and 'Peace-Conversion' Errors.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—The request for a five years moratorium on payments on all but a small portion of its priorlien capital by the Armstrong-Whitworth Company, the famous engineering, shipbuilding and armament firm, was no great shock to the markets.

It was recognized as necessary if a receivership were to be avoided. The company's difficulties have arisen largely from the extreme depression in the "heavy industries," but partly also from the failure of some of its schemes for replacing the normal Armstrong business with peace-time production. It is believed in banking and business circles that other large steel undertakings also have capital reorganization schemes under consideration.

General Gas & Electric Corporation

Substantial Growth in New Jersey

THE New Jersey Power & Light Company, a subsidiary of the General Gas & Electric Corporation, supplies electricity to a large section of the State of New Jersey, covering an area of approximately 1,500 square miles and serving 123 communities. This territory extends from within 30 miles of New York City on the east, to the Delaware River on the west, and from the New York State line on the north to within 20 miles of Trenton on the south, and is a part of one of the greatest industrial sections of the country. That the growth has been rapid during the past few years is evidenced by the increase in the sales of the Company, which in 1923 were 22,191,511 K.W.H. and for year ended October 31, 1926, were 76,325,871 K.W.H.

This growth, however, is expected to be even more rapid during the next few years. To care for increased demand and to anticipate the additional large power requirements, work has already been started by the New Jersey Power & Light Company on a large modern steam plant (ultimate capacity 200,000 K.W.) at Holland, on the Delaware River, 8 miles south of Phillipsburg, N. J. This plant when completed will add another large generating unit to the important transmission system which centers in this territory and forms an important part of the Boston-Washington Zone of the Superpower Survey as made by the Department of the Interior of the United States Government a few years ago.

A large 110,000-volt transmission system sub-station has been constructed at West Wharton, N. J. This forms a hub from which radiate heavy tower lines to the north, connecting with the large transmission systems in New England, New York State and States further west, and over which systems current has recently been sent from Boston to Chicago. Similar lines also extend from New Jersey to the west, to connect with the Pennsylvania-New Jersey system which includes the territories of the New Jersey Power & Light Company, Pennsylvania Edison Company and Metropolitan Edison Company, all controlled by the General Gas & Electric Corporation. These systems in turn already connect with others of Eastern Pennsylvania.

Arrangements have been made for connecting the West Wharton sub-station with large systems of the eastern part of New Jersey, which in turn are already connected with the comprehensive systems of greater New York City and suburbs. These large interconnected transmission systems, serving thousands of square miles, secure their power supply from the most modern generating stations, which are providing in advance for the rapid expansion sure to come in the near future.

Similar transmission systems are in the course of construction in the territories of other companies controlled by the General Gas & Electric Corporation. These companies serve a total population of over 2,215,000 in seven Eastern and Southeastern States.

American Refrigerator Transit

5% Equipment Trust Certificates, Series "F"

Maturing in equal amounts in annual instalments from December 1, 1927 to December 1, 1941 both inclusive.

Bearer certificates of $1,000 each with privilege of registration as to principal. Warrants for the semi-annual dividends at rate of 5% per annum payable June 1 and December 1.

H. B. Kooser, Esq., President and General Manager of the American Refrigerator Transit Company, in a letter to the undersigned, dated December 9, 1926, copies of which may be obtained from the undersigned, writes in part as follows:

"All stock of the American Refrigerator Transit Company is owned by Missouri Pacific Railroad Company and Wabash Railway Company. The Company is, and has been for the last 45 years, engaged in the business of furnishing refrigerator cars to railroad companies for transportation of all perishable freight. The Company maintains a soliciting organization for the purpose of securing traffic. The demand for refrigerator cars has always exceeded the supply and this demand is rapidly increasing, due to the increased production of various perishable commodities.

The Company's net revenue for the year ended December 31, 1925, after payment of property taxes, available for fixed charges, depreciation ($597,915) and Federal income tax, amounted to $1,838,000. It is estimated that the net revenue, after payment of property taxes, for the year 1926, available for fixed charges, depreciation and Federal income tax, will be approximately $2,241,000, or $403,000 more than the amount earned in 1925.

The Company's only outstanding funded indebtedness, in addition to this issue of Equipment Trust Certificates, is $3,663,000 of 6% Equipment Trust Certificates maturing in instalments of $333,000 annually on July 1st of each year from 1927 to 1937, and $3,445,000 of 5½% Equipment Trust Certificates maturing in instalments of $265,000 annually on November 1st of each year from 1927 to 1939. The current assets of the Company are largely in excess of the current liabilities. In addition to the equipment pledged as security under any Equipment Trust, the Company owns 5,200 steel underframe refrigerator cars in first class condition, conservatively valued at $7,800,000.

The Equipment Trust Agreement will provide that until the payment in full of the principal of and dividends upon all of the Equipment Trust Certificates outstanding, the American Refrigerator Transit Company will not mortgage, pledge or in any way encumber any equipment now owned by it.

The Certificates are to be issued by the Bank of North America & Trust Company, Philadelphia, as Trustee under an equipment trust in form to be approved by you. There will be vested in the Trustee title to new equipment costing approximately $6,144,000, including the following:

2,000 40-ton capacity Steel Underframe Refrigerator Cars.

Pending the delivery of the equipment, cash equal to the principal amount of the certificates is to be deposited under the Equipment Trust Agreement to be withdrawn from time to time as equipment is delivered to the extent of not more than 75% of the cost thereof. All the said equipment is to be leased by the Trustee to American Refrigerator Transit Company at a rental sufficient to pay the principal of the certificates and the dividend warrants as they mature. The payment of the principal of the certificates and the dividends thereon will be unconditionally guaranteed by endorsement upon the certificates by the American Refrigerator Transit Company."

The undersigned offer the above Certificates, in equal amounts of all maturities, subject to prior sale, as follows:

Constructive Auditing

An independent audit is to be regarded always as the means to valuable advice from the auditor or auditing firm.

Too often, auditing service ends with the report of the financial condition of (name) as of (date).

Auditors should be equipped—and should be employed—to offer recommendations in connection with method, policies, financing, etc.; to furnish comparative statistics intelligently prepared; to point out how mistakes and waste may be eliminated, and pitfalls avoided.

Of course, every audit should be a detailed Audit. But whether it be Detailed, Semi-Detailed or Balance Sheet, it can, and should be made to, serve as the basis not only of the financial report, but also of constructive help.

With the business man's appreciative understanding of this help, and the cooperation of progressive Public Accountants, Auditing becomes Constructive and offers its greatest value.

GINNINGS NOW CHIEF FACTOR IN COTTON

Will Be Watched Closely for Basis of Revising Estimate of Production.

WEATHER LOWERS QUALITY

South Believes Carryover at End of Season May Total 9,000,000 Bales.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 12.—While the Government's final estimate of the cotton crop of 1926 was the outstanding feature of the past week in the cotton market, it actually caused less disturbance to prices than might have occurred on any ordinary day with no greater incentive than the weather. The estimate of 18,618,000 bales of 500 pounds gross weight was rather smaller than the trade had been led to expect, and the first effect on the market was an advance of 28 points on January.

The market's ultimate reaction to the Government's estimate was unfavorable, however, and by Thursday prices had sagged off more than 60 points from the high point touched immediately after the bureau report was issued. Traders took the view that an estimate of 18,618,000 bales, if confirmed, actually meant a supply with linters included of fully 20,000,000 bales.

This amount, added to the carry-over from last season, meant a total available supply to meet the world's requirements of 25,000,000 bales. Even should consumption reach the highest estimates of 16,500,000 bales, the carry-over at the end of the season would be in the neighborhood of 9,000,000 bales, or as large as it was in 1921.

The total ginned to Dec. 1, that is 14,644,966 bales, was, like the estimate, under expectations and later in the week there was a disposition to believe that the ginnings to Dec 1 hardly justified so large an estimate as that issued by the Government. The ginnings will be watched closely from now on as in the event that the output of the gins should fall short from period to period of the amounts expected, there will be a tendency to scale down the official estimate.

The unfavorable weather which has prevailed during the week, particularly in the Western belt, where most of the unpicked cotton remains, has had a tendency to lower ginning expectations. The bad weather has undoubtedly lowered the grade of the unpicked cotton and should it continue it would naturally have a tendency to reduce the amount ultimately picked, although many traders are skeptical about much cotton being abandoned in the fields for any reason.

STOCK AVERAGE HIGHER.

"Fisher Index" Makes Week's Rise About 1 Point.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 12.—The weekly index of Stock Exchange prices compiled by Professor Fisher and based on the week's fifty most active industrial stocks, reckoned on their average of 1925 as 100, is 165.5 for the past week. This compares with 164.6 for the week before, 162.1 two weeks before, 164.6 three weeks before, and 160.6 four weeks before.

The average of 178.9 on Oct. 2 was the highest of the year to date and was also higher than any reached in 1925; the lowest thus far in 1926 was 121.1, on April 17.

NO HIGHER FOOD DUTIES.

Question of Advance Deferred Three Months by Germany.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—The Reichsrat has sanctioned the Cabinet's proposal to prolong the present food duties. They will, therefore, be in force during the three months ending March 31.

As a consequence, the higher duties prescribed by the Swedo-German commercial treaty will not come into force.

NEW LOANS ARE STILL GOING WELL AT LONDON

Last Week's Issue Oversubscribed —Stock Exchange Surprised at Investors' Receptiveness.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—New capital issues continue to find a ready response in most cases. The New Castle Corporation's loan of £1,500,000 in 5s, offered at 99½, was immediately oversubscribed. The impending Bulgarian Loan of about £300,000 is expected by London to be eagerly sought, while there seems little doubt that the forthcoming offer of 4,500,000 £1 preference shares at par by the Amalgamated Press will get a good reception.

This demand for new securities is particularly interesting because the public remains very apathetic toward existing securities. The stock markets are suffering from pre-Christmas inertia, with considerable but normal liquidation proceeding in connection with the year-end closing up of speculative accounts. At this period of the year banks invariably tighten their purse strings, while all other big lenders prepare to show their balance sheets in as liquid a state as possible at the year-end. Stock speculators thus frequently find themselves forced out of weak holdings through lack of the usual credit facilities.

Variations in German Prices.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—The wholesale price index in Germany as of December 8 stood at 131.3, comparing with 130.6 on November 24 and 133 a month ago.

SURPRISES AT FRENCH BANK

Last Week's Unexpected Rise in Deposits and Fall in Note Issues.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 12.—Last week's return of the Bank of France caused surprise. It showed that bills discounted decreased 1,300,000,000 francs as a result of belated provincial bank returns. The Treasury repaid nothing during the week to the bank, yet note circulation, in which an increase due to provincial returns had been expected, decreased 37,000,000, following its unusually small increase of 69,000,000 in the settlement week which had preceded.

Private deposits, as reported last Thursday, rose 457,000,000. This increase is considered unquestionably due to the great increase of funds deposited in the bank by the Caisse d'Amortissement, representing the proceeds of new subscriptions to defense bonds.

HOPEFUL OF GERMAN TRADE

All Industries Improving—Large Orders by the Railways.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 12.—The Prussian Trade Ministry reports improvement in practically all of the country's industries. In particular, production of chemicals is increasing. Owing to the smallness of stocks on hand of American cotton, the drop in price caused no losses. Iron and steel export prices are weakening.

The Federal railroads have decided on a five-year program contemplating construction to cost 500,000,000 marks. The expedient of a "car constructors' trust" plan has been extended so as to embrace thirty firms instead of the original seven.

MEMPHIS, TENNESSEE, is the largest city in the State and one of the largest inland cotton markets and hardwood producing centers in the world. Because of its location in the heart of the famous Mississippi Valley and its railroad and water transportation facilities, Memphis is the financial and commercial center of one of the richest agricultural sections in the United States. Nine trunk line railroads, three belt lines and the Mississippi River afford excellent transportation facilities.

THESE BONDS, issued to provide funds for extensions and additions to the present Water Works System, constitute direct obligations of the entire City, secured by its full faith and credit and are payable from unlimited ad valorem taxes against all the taxable property within the City.

Legality approved by Messrs. Thomson, Wood & Hoffman, New York City.

Answering the Question—

"Why Buy Bonds on Warehouses to be Constructed?"

EXISTING warehouses are, for the most part, old converted buildings adapted to warehousing, but designed and located for some other purpose. These warehouses, at best, offer inferior, inadequate, make-shift facilities and are expensive to operate. Their success, under such handicaps, is a clear indication that warehousing is an essential industry.

The modern warehouse and cold storage plant is located at a strategic point and in a community where there is a real demand for its facilities. The desirability of the location and the demand for space are carefully checked before construction is decided upon, by warehouse engineers—specialists in this business.

The warehouse engineers, after consultation with the experienced operating management, then design the plant, with docks, elevators, railroad sidings, loading platforms and office layout arranged for the greatest possible saving of time and labor. Great care is taken to install the safest, best and most efficient cold storage and ventilating equipment and to insure adequate insulation for heat and moisture regulation.

An experienced warehouse man, who has been profitably operating a warehouse and cold storage plant in a large city, stated that if this particular warehouse had been properly designed and constructed according to the best modern practice, a saving of some $70,000 a year in labor alone would have resulted.

Public necessity demands the construction of modern, fire-proof warehouses and cold storage plants, particularly at strategic transportation points, with rail and water facilities, to serve, not only the local communities, but other large centers of congested population.

$70,575,000 BONDS ON MARKET TODAY

$35,000,000 Offering of Chile Copper Company Forms the Principal Part.

$20,000,000 BERLIN ISSUE

Interstate Public Service Co. Represented by $10,000,000—Memphis Financing Water Works.

An issue of $35,000,000 of Chile Copper Company twenty-year 5 per cent. gold debentures at 96¾ to yield more than 5.25 per cent. by the National City Company and the Guaranty Company heads the list of offerings today. Proceeds of the Chile Copper issue will be used to redeem on April 1 $34,990,000 of 6 per cent. convertible collateral trust gold bonds outstanding. The debentures will be direct obligations of the company and will be issued under trust agreements providing a sinking fund operating semi-annually after the first five years, which will retire the issue by maturity.

Through the Chile Exploration Company, the Chile Copper Company controls the largest known deposit of copper ore. The deposit is near the seaboard and is close to the surface of the earth. The properties are now producing 220,000,000 pounds of copper annually. It is expected the aggregate capacity will be increased to more than 375,000,000 pounds.

Public offering will be made today of $20,000,000 Berlin City Electric Company, Inc., twenty-five-year 6½ per cent. sinking fund debentures by a syndicate headed by Dillon, Read & Co. and including Hallgarten & Co., Halsey, Stuart & Co., the International Acceptance Bank and Mendelssohn & Co. of Amsterdam.

The Berlin City Electric issue is priced at 98, to yield more than 6.65 per cent. The debentures will mature in 1951, and, in addition to redemption at par for the sinking fund, are redeemable in whole on thirty days' notice at 102½ and interest on or before Dec. 1, 1931, and thereafter at 100 and interest.

Offering will be made of $10,000,000 Interstate Public Service Company first mortgage and refunding 5 per cent. Series D bonds by Halsey, Stuart & Co., A. B. Leach & Co., Inc., and Hill, Joiner & Co., Inc. The bonds mature in 1956 and are offered at 96, to yield more than 5.25 per cent. The company serves 302 cities in Indiana, either directly or indirectly. Included in its territory are industrial cities, agricultural and coal areas and the limestone industries about Bedford and Bloomington. It is controlled by the Middle West Utilities Company.

In addition to the foregoing, issues of $5,575,000 of new bonds in the transportation and municipal divisions will be offered, making a total of $70,575,000.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. announced the purchase of $4,500,000 American Refrigerator Transit 5 per cent. equipment trust certificates, series F, which they are offering, subject to prior sale, in equal amounts of all maturities at 100.15 and interest. The certificates will mature in annual instalments from Dec. 1, 1927, to Dec. 1, 1941, and will be secured by 2,000 new forty-ton capacity steel underframe refrigerator cars, costing approximately $6,144,000, of which 25 per cent. is to be paid in cash by the company.

Public offering is being made by George H. Burr & Co. and Seasongood & Mayer of a new issue of $500,000 City of Memphis, Tenn., 4½ per cent. water works bonds. The issue is due serially from July 1, 1931, to 1966, inclusive, and is priced to yield from 4.25 to 4.50 per cent. The bonds are exempt from all Federal and Tennessee State income taxes.

George B. Gibbons & Co., Inc., are distributing a new issue of $400,000 City of Nashville, Tenn., 4½ per cent. bonds, priced to yield 4.25 per cent. The bonds are legal investments for savings banks in New York and are tax-exempt.

Seasongood & Mayer are marketing $175,000 Village of Mamaroneck, N. Y., 4¼ per cent. gold bonds, due annually from June 1, 1931, to 1965 inclusive. The yield is 4.15 per cent.

Eastman, Dillon & Co. will soon offer $1,000,000 Baker-Vawter Company first mortgage serial 6 per cent. gold bonds to mature from 1927 to 1940.

EXCHANGE IRVING BANK MAKES DEBUT TODAY

New Consolidation Begins Its Operations With Resources of $600,000,000.

The former Irving Bank and Trust Company and the American Exchange-Pacific Bank will open for business as one institution for the first time today. The twenty-five offices of these banks now form part of the American Exchange Irving Trust Company. In total resources it is the third largest bank in New York City and the largest trust company in the world. It begins operations with resources of more than $600,000,000 and a capital investment of approximately $60,000,000, of which capital represents $32,000,000 and surplus and undivided profits about $28,000,000.

Lewis E. Pierson and Harry E. Ward, Chairman and President of the Irving Bank and Trust Company, hold those positions in the continuing institution. Lewis L. Clarke, formerly President of the American Exchange-Pacific Bank, is Chairman of the Executive Committee. There are three Vice Chairmen of the Board, Alexander Gilbert of the former Irving, whose active banking career covers more than sixty years, and Walter H. Bennett and Theodore H. Banks, both of whom were Vice Presidents of the American Exchange-Pacific.

Between the close of business at noon on Saturday and the opening today every outward evidence of the consolidating institutions has disappeared from all the banking offices. Signs on the windows and the buildings carry the name American Exchange Irving Trust Company. Details of operation have been arranged so that the service may be uninterrupted.

Mr. Pierson and Mr. Ward will continue to maintain their offices in the Woolworth Building and Mr. Clarke also will have his office there. Of the twenty-five banking offices, eighteen were former Irving offices and seven were operated by the American Exchange-Pacific. The out-of-town office and the foreign office, both in the Woolworth Building, are organized to supply banking facilities, respectively, to customers located in the United States outside of New York City and to customers in foreign countries.

STEEL IS ENTERING HOLIDAY DULLNESS

Fall in November Ingot Production Offset by Steel Corporation's Increased Rate.

NEW YEAR MORE DOUBTFUL

Trade Uncertain Concerning Buying After First of Year, When Inventories Are Completed.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 12.—The rather unfavorable November steel ingot production report has been partly offset by information of the Steel Corporation operating at an increased rate this week. The monthly report, which appeared at the middle of the week, showed November steel production at 80 per cent., against about 87 per cent. in October, indicating a rate at the close of November of under 75 per cent., but it appears that in the past few days the Steel Corporation has been producing at about 81 per cent. Independents may not have increased their operations, but there does not seem to have been any decrease.

In only one year of the past five has November failed to show increased steel production over October; hence a November decrease cannot be considered an ordinary seasonal one. Either the natural year-end decrease has come earlier than usual, for reasons unknown, or there is underlying this seasonal swing a more prolonged swing. On the latter assumption, however, a further decrease in steel mill operations should now be seen, and current reports do not indicate it.

In the individual lines there are divergent indications in the news of the week. Freight car buying and fabricated structural steel work are looking up at the moment. So is automobile trade buying of steel. But the looking up is from such a low level that it does not count for much. Agricultural implement works are not increasing purchases at this time to the extent that would be necessary if there were to be the recently predicted speeding up in implement production immediately after Jan. 1.

Estimates run from 15,000 to 20,000 as the number of freight and passenger cars now under inquiry, this being a large volume compared with conditions in the past few months. The freight car shops have been almost out of orders for cars, although they do a fair business in repair work.

Estimates have ranged up to 100,000 tons as the amount of fabricated structural steel work pending, and one summary of the week's lettings ran up to 35,000 tons. Both figures are high compared with recent experiences.

A dip in mill operations late in the year is not in itself important. The eyes of the trade are on the new year. Recent precedents have all been along the line of a new year opening up with a prompt increase in steel production, representing in part prompt buying after inventory taking and in part preparation for Spring trade.

Last January, steel production was at practically 50,000,000 tons a year, or at 89 per cent. of the capacity rating. Against such a production, buying would necessarily have to begin at about this time and there is no sign of any such thing. It may be taken as altogether probable that the new year will not open with as much activity as was seen this year.

WEEK'S SLIGHT DECLINE IN COMMODITY AVERAGE

Now Lowest Since Third Week of October—93⅜% Below the January Maximum.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 12.—Professor Irving Fisher's index number of American commodity prices for the past week, based on 100 as the average of 1913, is 149.0, comparing with 149.5 the preceding week, 149.4 two weeks before, 149.2 three weeks before and 152.9 four weeks before. It is now the lowest since the third week of October. The highest average for the year to date was 159.7, on Jan. 30; was the lowest, 147.2, on Aug. 21, which was also lower than any reached in 1925.

The highest weekly average reached in 1925 was 164.4, on Jan. 31, which was also higher than any reached in 1924; the lowest was 154.1, on May 2. The highest percentage since the war was 247, in May, 1920; the lowest, 130, in January, 1922.

Crump's British index number, as dabled for the past week, is 144.5, which compares with 145.1 the preceding week, 145.3 two weeks ago, 146.4 three weeks ago, and 146.0 four weeks ago. The average of three weeks ago was the highest since Jan. 9, when it stood at 146.7, the high point for the year to date; the lowest average thus far in 1926 was 138.1 on June 19.

The index number of average Italian prices, compiled and cabled by the Chamber of Commerce at Milan, was 634.5 for the past week, compared with 638.1 the week before, 643.4 two weeks before, 645.2 three weeks before, and 638.1 four weeks before. The average of 692.9 for the week ended Aug. 28 was the highest of the year to date and was also higher than any reached in 1925; this week's average is the lowest.

For the full month of November, the Italian index number is 641.1. This compares with 654.2 for October, 680.5 for September, and 691.3 for August. The average for the month of August was the highest monthly average of the year to date; the lowest was 636.4 for the month of April.

COTTON EXPORTS INCREASE

Excess Over Last Year Is Expected to Continue.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 12.—Exports continued to run ahead of last season during the past week as they have now for many weeks and the excess in the amount shipped to foreign countries over last year is now 561,886 bales. It seems reasonably certain that this excess over last year will continue to grow as port stocks are close to 3,000,000 bales or nearly 700,000 bales in excess of last year at this time. While without doubt some of the stock at the ports is being held in storage there until prices improve the great bulk of it will eventually be exported.

While it is claimed that good progress is being made in securing pledges to curtail acreage next season that phase of the situation is attracting but a moderate degree of attention in market circles so far.

Bonuses for Bank Workers.

Directors of the Longacre Bank have authorized Christmas bonuses to employes on the following scale: Two years' service, 10 per cent.; one year, 5 per cent.; six months, $50; less than six months, $25.

WHEAT HERE SOUGHT BY THE OLD WORLD

Export Demand Reported, Although Prices Are Higher Here Than Elsewhere.

EUROPE NEEDS GOOD GRAIN

Speculatively, the Wheat Situation Looks Weak to Some of the Traders.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—Wheat prices in the United States are relatively higher than in Canada, Argentina or Australia; yet a fair export business is under way in American wheats, with indications of large clearances the balance of this month and possibly for the first part of January. Beyond the latter period, unless there is a decline in the next thirty days that will put our prices on a more competitive basis with other countries, we may not be able to do much export business.

There is one fact, however, that stands out and is being considered by exporters and grain trade leaders, that is the necessity of Europe getting a liberal quantity of high grade dry wheat to mix in with the large supplies of low grades, tough and damp wheats, partly from this country, but largely from Canada. The wheat can be milled to better advantage, it is understood, through these mixtures and make any grade of flour that customers may desire. It is not believed, however, that millers in the United States, who have large contracts for flour for months to come, will be able to do much export business in competition with millers in Canada and in the Southern hemisphere, unless they use these mixtures to an unusual extent, and some doubt is expressed as to whether they can succeed even under such conditions.

Speculatively the wheat situation looks weak to most traders because of Argentina, Australia and Russia shipping more wheat than general trade expectations, which tends to create bearishness. So far the professionals have not been able to make much headway in getting prices down, which many in the trade believe creates an unfavorable situation for this country, as other exporting countries have liberal supplies that apparently must be sold in Europe, which needs large quantities of foreign wheats, but is in a position to dictate prices to sellers in importing countries.

December wheat at one time last week was liquidated freely by shorts who advanced it to even with May. This brought out free selling by longs to take profits and depressed values to 1⅝ cents discount from the May. Millers have owned and are understood to still control a large part of the December wheat in all the leading markets, and are in a position to dictate prices to the short interest, especially in Chicago. Their influence in all leading markets is regarded as stronger than ever before, as they are a controlling factor.

Movement of wheat from the country to primary markets is the lightest at this time in five years and choice high gluten and protein wheats are held at good premiums, while soft red Winters, which constitute the bulk of the contract stocks here, are ½ to 2 cents over December and are being delivered on December contracts. There are only about 300,000 bushels of hard Winter wheats of all grades in public houses here, which places the holders of December in a strong position, provided they care to stand for a delivery of the cash grain. December wheat closed today at $1.37 to $1.37¼, May $1.38⅝ to $1.38⅝, July $1.31⅛ to $1.31⅛, showing losses for the week of 2 to 2¾ cents.

Nation-wide Banking

IT is not merely a matter of course that 40% of our deposits come from national business organizations whose main offices are located outside of New England. There are definite reasons why the Shawmut Bank's depositors include such organizations as these:

AMERICAN AGRICULTURAL CHEMICAL COMPANY
AMERICAN EXPRESS COMPANY
AMERICAN RADIATOR COMPANY
ARMOUR & COMPANY
CALIFORNIA FRUIT GROWERS EXCHANGE
INTERNATIONAL PAPER COMPANY
RICE-STIX DRY GOODS COMPANY
SEARS, ROEBUCK & COMPANY
SWIFT & COMPANY

These organizations have selected the Shawmut because they find here a banking service especially useful to concerns located at distant points.

The Shawmut is one of the twelve largest National Banks in the United States. You will find here facilities that only a big bank can give. You will also find a sincere, able effort to be helpful in every practicable way.

RAIL RATE HEARINGS STIR ALL CANADA

Each Province Represented at Ottawa Inquiry to Adjust Freight Schedules.

WEST WANTS A REDUCTION

Increased Earnings of Roads a Factor Also in Bringing Carriers' Problems to Fore in Dominion.

OTTAWA, Dec. 12 (AP).—The increased net earnings and car loadings of the Canadian railways, the threatened strike and subsequent peaceable settlement of the wage dispute with the conductors and trainmen and now the final sitting of the freight rates case before the Board of Railway Commissioners have brought railway questions sharply to the fore in Canada during the latter part of this year. The settlement of the conductors' and trainmen's wages at slightly less than the 8 per cent. increase they had asked to bring them in line with the similar grades in the United States was announced a few days ago.

The cumulative net earnings for all the larger railroads in this country for the nine months ended Sept. 30 was $[illegible], as compared with $36,-[illegible] for the same period last year. In spite of the delay in the Western harvest due to the unfavorable weather the car loadings have also shown an increase. The total up to Dec. [illegible] was 2,995,655, as against [illegible] for the same period last year.

The hearing now proceeding before the Board of Railway Commissioners to adjust the railway rates affects all parts of the Dominion and most of the provinces are directly represented by counsel. The inquiry is being held under the authority of an order in council passed in June, 1925, as a result of claims and counter claims between the provinces, shipping interests and the railways as to discriminations in the freight schedules.

Suspension of Old Act.

In 1897 the Crow's Nest Pass act granted specially reduced rates to Western Canada grain moving east and certain commodities westbound to the farmers and townspeople on the prairies. Under the War Measures Act the Crow's Nest Pass law was suspended from 1919 to 1922, when it further was suspended as far as westbound commodities were concerned, but reduced rates on grain moving east were brought back.

This led to a protest which was an outcome of changed conditions on the Pacific Coast. When the act was first passed there was no considerable grain export business via Pacific ports and no provision was made for special rates on export grain going in that direction. However, great quantities of grain are now shipped to the Orient and through the Panama Canal. Accordingly, British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan claimed the same reduced rates on westbound grain as prevailed on the eastbound, which the railways objected to on the contention that it cost more to operate through the mountains.

British Columbia has been shipping considerable quantities of fruit, particularly apples, to the markets of the prairie provinces, Ontario and Quebec. British Columbia accordingly is also asking that schedules on eastbound fruit be fixed with a view to developing this interprovincial trade.

The provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island objected to the rates on their products going to Central Canada and also asked that special consideration should be given in the schedule to encourage Canadian shoppers to route their products through Canadian ports.

Hearing to Be Protracted.

In addition to the above, several lesser points of contention were referred to the Board of Railway Commissioners, which has been taking evidence in various parts of Canada and has now returned to Ottawa to conclude the case. The arguments are expected to extend well into the Winter, perhaps until March.

After the order in council was issued the board brought in a lower schedule on grain going to Pacific ports. The board divided on it and there was considerable opposition from the shipping interests at the head of the lakes and the railways. However, it is expected that the judgment of the Commissioners at the conclusion of the present inquiry will cover this and all the other rate troubles which have agitated the shippers for so long a time.

In a country with such broad expanses as Canada with comparatively sparse populations, the freight rates have a lot to do with the general prosperity, and accordingly the finding will be awaited with great interest.

COMMODITY PRICES.

Last Week's Cash Markets Were Irregular—Highs and Lows Intersperse List.

There was a good deal of irregularity about the trading in last week's cash markets, this bringing three articles to new highs for the year, while still another reacted to a record low. Changes were noted in all groups, advances and declines interspersing the grains, groceries, dairy products, provisions, metals and textiles.

In the grains, oats reached a new high, corn also showing strength. Losses were reported in wheat, rye and flour. Butter also established a new high, but eggs dipped on heavy receipts near the week-end. Sugar was another to reach into new high ground, with coffee reactionary and at a new low. Provisions were heavy, as were the metals. Spot cotton showed a slight gain over the week by a rise on Saturday. Rubber also recovered at the week-end, after early irregularity.

Saturday's closing wholesale cash prices for commodities in the New York market, unless otherwise noted, were:

Provision Markets at Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—Liquidation and short selling in a poorly supported market carried lard prices down over 50 cents for the week, with the finish at the bottom with net losses of 47½ to 57½ cents. Loose lard, which recently was 10 cents premium over December, closed at a discount of 40 cents, at $11.45, with January at $12.05 and May $12.07½, the latter losing part of its premium during the week.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Trading in the foreign exchanges last week, so far as activity and rate changes were concerned, continued to centre in the French and Italian descriptions. Both established new high prices for the year on a tremendous turnover which engaged the attention of bankers and dealers here and abroad.

A good deal of the stimulus for the rise was traceable to operators on the Continent, for despite the even tenor of the march back to normal financial and industrial conditions there were those who were speculatively depressing the exchanges on the slightest pretext.

This was fairly obvious in the case of the franc when a misinterpreted dispatch concerning the pound basis for the franc for budgetary purposes led to heavy selling, only later to develop into hasty repurchases on a refined reading of the document.

In the lira, a drive against the "shorts" by agencies affiliated with the Government turned the week-end trading into a speedy reaction upward. Traders familiar with the manoeuvres in both the franc and the lira intimated that London, Amsterdam, German and Swiss speculators were severely drubbed on the transaction.

The movement in sterling and the Continentals was more orderly, as these were on the outside of the influences affecting the French and Italian. Business in these descriptions was dull and rate changes narrow. In the silver currencies there was a strong undertone with the rise in the metal, while the Brazilian milreis suffered a sharp decline on reports of a stabilization under the prevailing market price. Canadian dollars were also easier, this dovetailing with the closing of navigation and the flow of funds this side of the Dominion line.

SALES MANAGER

An old established Midwest manufacturer of electrical specialty household appliances and electric ranges is desirous of securing the services of an experienced, high grade sales manager.

To a man who has a record of accomplishment, not necessarily in the electrical field, a splendid opportunity is afforded. Compensation will be in the form of a salary, plus bonus, for accomplishment, with the further possibility of a stock interest in the company.

PUZZLED BY UNFILLED STEEL TONNAGE REPORT

Pittsburgh Thinks Bookings Are Generally Below Shipment—December May Show Decrease.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 12.—The United States Steel Corporation's unfilled tonnage statements, showing increases for three months in succession, with November bringing the largest increase, does not contradict the assumption of relatively moderate steel production in the next few weeks, and into the new year. The Steel Corporation's increase in unfilled obligations in November was 123,786 tons, making a total increase in three months of 265,112 tons. This three-month period largely coincided with the annual rail-buying movement, in which movement the Steel Corporation booked in the neighborhood of three-quarters of a million tons, while its rail shipments in the same time were but a fraction of that amount.

In all the other classes of steel, taken as a whole, the bookings must have fallen quite short of the shipments, and as there were about 10 per cent. lower shipments in November than in October, with only a slightly greater gain in unfilled tonnage, the November bookings, outside of rails, must have run quite below those of October. October shipments ran fully 45,000 tons a day, while November shipments cannot have been much above 40,000 tons daily.

For the December unfilled tonnage showing there may be a fair amount of rail business still to be formally entered, as there was a heavy distribution late in November and there will probably be quite a tonnage of tin plate entered for delivery in the half year. Even at that, however, an unfilled tonnage loss is likely to be shown unless there is a considerable volume of first quarter contracting in other lines, and at present there is not much indication that buyers will contract.

STEER PRICES REACH HIGH POINT OF YEAR

Lambs Drop to 1923 Level, the Lowest in Twelve Months.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—Yearling steers advanced 25 to 50 cents at Chicago and the top was $14, the highest of the year, while at St. Louis $15 was paid, or $1 more than at Chicago. Heavy beef steers were off 25 to 50 cents, with the top around $12.50 and the average for all beef steers $10.50, or 10 cents lower than the previous week, compared with $9.65 last year. Cheaper grades of beef were without material change.

Hogs finished the week 10 to 20 cents lower, with the top at $11.90 at the close, and the week's average $11.75, or 15 cents lower than the previous week and 95 cents above last year. Shippers bought 61,000 out of the 180,000 received. Quality averaged good.

Lambs are down to around the lowest of the year, with a loss of 25 cents for the week, bringing prices down to the low level of 1923. An average of $12.55 was made, a loss of 5 cents for the week and of $2.20 from last year. An average of $5.90 for sheep showed a loss of 15 cents for the week and nearly $4 from last year.

Cattle receipts at Chicago for the week were 69,400, against 68,150 the previous week and 78,237 last year. Hog receipts were 36,000 less than last year, while the run of sheep and lambs were 90,200, or about the same as the previous week, and 3,500 less than last year.

Estimated receipts of cattle at Chicago for the coming week are 74,000; hogs, 215,000; sheep, 76,000. Arrivals last year were: Cattle, 74,289; hogs, 189,000; sheep, 71,187. Two years ago Monday Chicago had a record run of hogs, 122,744.

MONTH'S EXPORTS OF STEEL DECLINE

Shipments for October Below September, but Maintain Year's Average.

IMPORTS SHOW DECREASE

Of the 172,070 Tons Leaving the Country North and Central America Take 88,517 Tons.

Exports of iron and steel products from the United States in October declined from the September total, but maintained the monthly average of the current year, while imports declined both from September and the monthly average, according to Department of Commerce figures contained in the Iron Trade Review.

The October total of exports was 172,070 tons, as against 182,071 tons in September. Imports totaled 81,830 tons in October, as compared with a September total of 85,484 tons. Shipments for the first ten months of this year totaled 1,749,029 tons, as against 1,449,229 tons in the same period of last year and 1,762,571 tons for all of 1925. The ten months' imports aggregated 954,272 tons, as compared with 777,630 tons in the first ten months of last year and [illegible] tons for all of 1925.

Of the 172,070 tons exported in October 88,517 tons went to the North and Central American countries, Canada taking 60,659 tons. Japan continued the second largest buyer of American steel products, receiving 27,071 tons. Cuba was third largest, with 8,269 tons, and Mexico fourth, with 5,910 tons.

The following table shows the various iron and steel exports for October, as compared with September and for the first ten months of this and last year:

Belgium and Germany supplied more than 50 per cent. of the imports in October, 21,217 tons coming from the former country and 21,574 from the latter. October pig iron imports, which declined but slightly from September, and which are far below the monthly average for the past year, came mostly from Germany, while Holland shipped 4,000 tons in the month.

OPTIMISTIC ON HALF OF 1927

Continental Bank Sees Active Business in First Six Months.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12 (AP).—In a statement discussing the trend of business, the Continental and Commercial Bank tomorrow will say, "good business is in prospect for the first half of 1927."

"There is no reason to expect other than the usual seasonal variations in money rates," the statement adds. "The January rate should ease off a bit, likewise the February rate. In March there will be a seasonal firming, but the April rate should recede again. Not until July should the rate begin to show signs of working up toward the Autumn peak.

"The opinion that something like the usual seasonal variation in money at an easy level may be expected—this is one of the main reasons for expecting business activity, good business during the first half of 1927."

FARMERS SELL CORN AS MARKET PRICE RISES

Bulls Take Advantage of Increased Offerings and Profit Taking to Buy.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—Sentiment in the corn trade is mixed. A number of strong operators who believed corn was too low recently took the buying side and succeeded in advancing prices 7 cents largely by forcing shorts to cover. With December corn up to 75 cents the past week and May up to 84 cents a change came in the way of increased offerings from the country and in profit taking by scattered holders. The few traders who are bullish took advantage of the weak spots to accumulate increased holdings.

There is a limited general commercial demand for corn, which works against a large bull movement. Farmers in Illinois took advantage of the advance in prices to market corn more freely and primary receipts increased nearly 2,000,000 bushels last week, but were unusually small for this season. Quality of corn this year is irregular, with a great deal of cob rot in some sections, and the effects of root rot are visible in the corn in a considerable area in Iowa. Unless radical measures are taken to control this root rot, experienced parmers in that State say it is likely to have serious effect. December corn closed today at 74⅝ to 74½ cents; May, 82⅝ to 82½ cents and July, 84⅝ cents, being ⅛ of a cent higher to ⅝ of a cent lower as compared with a week ago.

WEATHER FAIR FOR CROPS.

Snow Protects Winter Wheat and Corn Husking Is Advancing.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—Winter wheat has had a moderate snow protection in the Ohio Valley and parts of the Middle West and the cold weather is not regarded as having affected the crop so far. In the Southwest conditions are good. Rain is needed in Northwestern and Central Western Kansas, while other sections have sufficient moisture and fields have dried to an extent that they can be pastured.

Corn husking in the Middle West is well advanced, while in parts of the Ohio Valley and eastward unfavorable weather delayed field work and there is more corn in the fields than at this time in recent years. In Iowa good progress was made, with irregular yield and quality. Considerable root rot has developed and in parts of Central Iowa the drought of last August and the early frost in September have made the corn light and decreased its feeding value so that it requires three bushels to attain the same results as two did last year. More cattle are on feed than last year.

ADDS 11 THEATRES TO CHAIN

Universal Buys Picture Houses Seating 7,000 in Seattle.

A chain of eleven motion picture theatres in Seattle, Wash., has been acquired by the Universal Chain Theatres Corporation. The theatres, which add nearly 7,000 seats to the Universal's capacity, have been operated by the Pacific Theatres Company.

With the acquisition of these theatres the Universal's chain is increased to 261, with an aggregate seating capacity in excess of 215,000, of which twenty-three theatres with a seating capacity of nearly 40,000 are under construction. The Universal already operates fourteen theatres in Portland, Ore., and vicinity and two in Eugene, Ore.

In the last few weeks nine new Universal houses have been placed in operation, including theatres in Cleveland, Ohio, and Lowell and Springfield, Mass. It is expected five additional houses will be opened before Jan. 1.

$2,000,000 STOCK OFFERING.

Harris-Seybold-Potter Co. Puts 7% Preferred on Market.

Offering of $2,000,000 of 7 per cent. preferred stock of the Harris-Seybold-Potter Company is being made today by Hornblower & Weeks and R. V. Mitchell & Co. The stock is offered at 100 and accrued dividends, and is callable, in whole or in part, at any time at 110 and accrued dividends.

Each share of the preferred will carry a warrant entitling the holder to purchase, for each preferred share, two shares of common stock at $37.50 per share on or before Dec. 31, 1928, and at $45 per share thereafter and up to and including Dec. 31, 1931.

Adams & Peck have sold privately 2,500 shares of cumulative 7 per cent. preferred stock of P. Lorillard Company, Inc., at a price to yield 5.95 per cent. The preferred stock is followed by $32,000,000 of common stock.

CHRISTMAS SAVINGS RISE.

Philadelphia Reserve District Reports $39,080,499 on Nov. 15.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 12 (AP).—Christmas savings deposits in 1,084 banks and trust companies in the Philadelphia Federal Reserve District aggregated $39,080,499 on Nov. 15, the Reserve bank said in a statement tonight. This was an increase compared with 1925 of about $3,500,000. Of the total $31,453,662 was on deposit in Pennsylvania institutions and the rest in Delaware and that part of New Jersey included in the Philadelphia Federal Reserve District.

Philadelphia, with deposits of $10,886,267, showed an increase over last year of 22.2 per cent., while the State outside of this city increased 4.7 per cent. New Jersey's increase was 10.7 per cent., and Delaware's 14.3 per cent. Total deposits in New Jersey banks were $5,343,937 and in Delaware $353,076.

MORE TIME FOR DEPOSITS.

Committee Hopes to Reorganize American Writing Paper Co.

Holders of 90 per cent. of the first mortgage bonds, more than 99 per cent. of the claims and more than 55 per cent. of the outstanding shares of preferred stock of the American Writing Paper Company have deposited their holdings with the Reorganization Committee, under the plan of July 1, 1926, George C. Lee, Chairman, reports. Undeposited bonds, claims, preferred stock and certificates for preferred may be deposited without penalty until the close of business on Dec. 28.

If the properties of the company are acquired by the committee at the auction sale on next Dec. 27 and 28, an effort will be made to effect the reorganization as soon thereafter as is practicable, Mr. Lee said.

$3,500,000 BUILDING PLANNED BY N. Y. U.

School of Education Structure Will Be Started Soon in Washington Sq. East.

DEAN J. W. WITHERS PRAISED

Credit Is Given to Him for Expansion Program—Three Buildings to Be Razed for Project.

New York University is about to erect a $3,500,000 building in Washington Square East to house its School of Education, it was learned yesterday. The building, to be between fifteen and twenty stories high and to accommodate more than 800 students, will be paid for out of the university's centennial fund.

Stretching the length of the block from Fourth Street to East Washington Place, it will house, according to present plans, a complete model high school, two swimming pools, a gymnasium, a cafeteria and an auditorium. Every classroom will be an outside room.

The proposed addition will cover approximately one-third of a square block, and, to make room for it, three university buildings now standing will be torn down. They are the Press Building, housing the university's printing press; the university book store and offices, the Music Education Building and the building now given over to offices and classrooms of the School of Education. The first two of these are six stories high, the last ten.

Faculty members of the university paid tribute to Dean John W. Withers as being the one responsible for the expansion of the School of Education. He had formulated plans for the building, it was said, and these will be forwarded to an architect shortly. No definite date for beginning work has been set. Dean Withers's interest in the new project was emphasized by his recent refusal to accept the Presidency of the University of West Virginia.

Tin Declines 20 Shillings a Ton—Lead Meets New Inquiry and Closes Higher.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 12.—Plantation grades were dull and barely steady in the rubber market during the past week. Smoked sheet spot and December sold from 1s 6¼d to 1s 6⅛d to 1s 6⅜d and buyers; January from 1s 6¼d to 1s 6⅜d and buyers; January-March from 1s 6⅝d to 1s 6⅝d and buyers; April-June from 1s 7¼d to 1s 7⅛d and buyers.

Para grades were unchanged. Hard fine spot was quoted at 1s 4¾d, soft 1s 2d and ball 11½d sellers.

In the tin market the East reported 100 tons sold at £305 to £305 10s, c. i. f., a decline of 20s.

The market here opened easier for forward dates and near metal was in steady request. The close was steady and unchanged for cash, with three months 15s lower. Sales were 800 tons cash at £306 15s to £307; December, £304 to £303 10s to £305 15s; January £302 10s to £303 to £300 10s to £302 10s; February £299 to £298 to £299 10s to £297, and three months, £297 to £296 10s.

The settlement price was £307. English closed steady at £306.

The production of tin in the Federated Malay States for November totaled 4,148 tons, bringing the total for eleven months to 42,228 tons, which compares with 42,401 tons in the same period last year.

Lead met a better inquiry and closed 2s 6d higher for near and forward months. Sales were 800 tons December at £28 17s 6d; January £29 to £29 1s 3d; February £29 3s 9d and March £29 5s. The settlement price was £28 17s 6d.

English closed steady and unchanged at £30 5s.

Kuppenheimer's 1926 Profit.

B. F. Kuppenheimer & Co., Inc., reports for the year ended Oct. 30, 1926, a net income of $700,874, after Federal taxes and depreciation. This equals $5.90 per share on the common stock. It compares with $461,887, or $3.06 per share for the year ended Oct. 31, 1925.

TO TRADE IN OATS FUTURES.

First Addition to Wheat Likely on Produce Exchange Soon.

There is a strong probability that futures trading in oats will be added to the activities of the New York Produce Exchange in the early part of 1927, according to B. H. Wunder, President of the exchange.

"When the grain futures market was organized it was planned to take up wheat first, and as the market broadened and developed to add other grains," Mr. Wunder pointed out. "A majority of the membership now feels that the time has arrived when the activities of the market can be extended by permitting trading in oats as well as wheat futures with Buffalo delivery.

"The members have already voted to amend Rule IX by adding a fourth section, permitting trading in oats futures. The amendment now has to go before the Board of Managers, and, if adopted, trading in domestic oats for future delivery can be inaugurated early in January."

DEVICE CUTS DERAILMENTS.

Railway Association Adops Non-Slip Drawbar Cotter Pin.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12 (AP).—Train derailments resulting from faulty cotter keys in car couplings are expected to be appreciably decreased by the invention of a non-slip drawbar cotter pin by K. F. Nystrom, engineer of rolling stock of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, the company announced today.

The pin, forming a positive lock and preventing the coupler separating from the car, has been approved by the American Railway Association. Failure of the drawbar cotter pin has been one of the serious causes of derailments, a recent report of the American Railway Association said. Adoption of the pin by the association makes it available to all railways without patent or royalty charges.

Cuba Redeeming Bonds.

Holders of Republic of Cuba external loan thirty-year sinking fund 5½ per cent. gold bonds have been notified that $1,885,300 principal amount of these bonds has been drawn for redemption by lot on or after Jan. 15, 1927. Mario del Pino, Acting Consul General of Cuba, has issued, with the redemption notification, a list of the numbers of the bonds to be redeemed. The redemption price will be 100.

BUSINESS IN PARK AV. BRINGS MORE PROTEST

Association Says Changing of "Number One" Has Been Held Illegal in Court.

The Park Avenue Association made another protest yesterday against the invasion of Park Avenue by business and said that the right to use the term "No. 1 Park Avenue" for the building at Park Avenue and Thirty-second Street was not yet definitely established.

"One Park Avenue" is the title used by the office building which was sold the other day to the Hoagland Corporation for $15,000,000. During the last two years it was the subject of a controversy in the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, in which Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, a resident at Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street in a residence called "No. 1 Park Avenue," and Henry Mandel, builder of the office structure, were the chief antagonists. Mr. Mandel won eventually when the board extended Park Avenue southward two blocks, but the Park Avenue Association said yesterday that the matter had been carried to the Supreme Court and that Justice Joseph M. Proskauer had held this resolution illegal, not having been passed at a proper session and because it failed to provide for the renumbering of the avenue. Court proceedings to review the decision of the board, it was said, are pending.

"The Park Avenue Association asserts," said the statement, "that Henry Mandel is the business invader of Park Avenue and that his business operation is threatening to commercialize this famous thoroughfare. Joseph Beihilf, its counsel, declares that the city Administration appears to be aiding and abetting this desecration. Recently Mandel was successful in securing permission to erect a twenty-one story and pent house office building at Park Avenue and Fortieth Street upon a modification of the zoning law restricting this residential section."

ASSAILS INSTALMENT PLAN.

Dr. Mitchell of Johns Hopkins Predicts Harm From System.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 12.—Discussing the tremendous growth of instalment buying in this country, Dr. Broadus Mitchell, associate in Political Economy at Johns Hopkins University, expressed the opinion today that American bankers are growing apprehensive of the instalment plan, and the country just is beginning to realize that its associates are practically limited to those who are tied up to it financially.

He continued: "Almost $10,000,000,000 was involved in this type of purchasing in the United States last year, according to conservative estimates. Security for all this credit is based, not on tangible assets, or even skill, as has always been demanded as a sine qua non of credit in the past, but merely upon the chance that the weekly payroll of the country will continue at its present volume, or increase.

"Figures covering New York State, but not yet compiled for the country, show a lower purchasing power per capita this year than last. The National Association of Credit Men has roundly condemned the system, and bank presidents are not more favorable to it, but being more closely linked with it are more careful in their expressions.

"We may be able to ease down gradually, but first or last the system will be our undoing. Even if there is not a sudden break, there will be heart burnings in millions of homes."

SPINNERS BUY LIGHTLY.

Decrease Due to Northern and Canadian Mills.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 12.—Spinners' takings of cotton are not turning out as large as had been looked for and Secretary Hester's figures for the past week make mill takings only 305,000 bales as compared with 561,000 for the corresponding week last year. The mill takings for the season to date now total 6,766,000 bales against 6,561,000 last season. The moderate increase over last year to date does not warrant much hope of the larger estimates of consumption being realized.

The falling off in mill takings is due mainly to the smaller takings by the Northern and Canadian mills. Southern mills have considerably increased their takings as have also foreign spinners.

The movement of the crop into sight continues to fall off slowly, the total for the past week reaching 716,937 bales, as compared with 775,553 during the preceding week. The total amount of the crop marketed to date has now reached 11,140,000 bales as compared with 10,387,000 last year.

Electric Refrigeration Building.

Formation of the Electric Refrigeration Building Corporation under the laws of Michigan has been announced. The company will build a steel and concrete factory and an administration building on thirty acres of land in Detroit at a cost of $3,150,000. The undertaking will be financed with first mortgage bonds to be offered by Prince & Whitely and a banking group.

TRIM FOR BUILDING, SO MUCH A PACKAGE

Nation-Wide Program Launched to Sell Interior Woodwork Like Soda Crackers.

CHECKS THEFT AND WASTE

Hollow Tile Prices Advance on Spring Delivery—Ice Catches Brick Men Short.

Nation-wide merchandising of interior woodwork on the principle of modern soda cracker distribution and sale is one of the innovations 1927 will introduce to the building industry, according to Allen E. Beals in the current Dow Service Daily Building Reports.

Patent and copyright applications have been filed in Washington; and, in Chicago, before the week closed, a national distributer of fine house trim and millwork closed with the New York projectors of the idea to stock dealers from coast to coast with a new waste-and-mar-proof method of retailing interior woodwork for most any kind of building. In effect, it gives building material dealers without trim mills many of the advantages of yards with the well equipped sash, door and mill working appliances.

There is a home-harmony side to this novelty in building material purchasing that has been strangely neglected heretofore, but the projectors of the package idea of selling interior woodwork have seized upon it.

It seems that when most newly-weds move into the newly-built homes their wedding-gift furniture quite often conflicts with the trim they have more or less casually chosen. The furniture man, therefore, has been the harmonizing mainstay of the perplexed householders and has charged for his furniture accordingly.

Under the package plan the newly-weds' and the old-timers' homes will be built around their motley furniture by the simple process of ordering from the building material dealer so many packages of Philippine "mahogany," for instance, to match the parlor suite, a given number of packages of oak for the dining room, five of birch for the bedroom, seven of cypress for the spare room and halls, six pines for the kitchen and bath and of chestnut three for the porch.

Out of the forests, where the trim wood is cut, the logs are carted, dried and processed, then packed into long, narrow cardboard boxes, each containing clean wood trim.

Building material dealers have in the past paid freight and storage on much material that could not be used. Every car of mixed trim has meant to them a certain percentage of dead loss. Time has been lost cutting and fitting, assorting and assembling, all of which the home builder has had to pay for, and yet to him it has represented nothing but a continuous loss and waste for the life of the job.

Heretofore, when an order of trim has reached the dealer, eleven different patterns have had to be hunted for, assorted, measured, cut and delivered. In the new package plan, the necessary pieces are automatically cut at the mill from perfectly selected and cured woods. Long storage in open sheds is avoided, for it is then that the weather paves the way for future warping. The trim, carefully wrapped in cartons, prevents deterioration and marring. Each package will be plainly marked as to size, kind of wood, number of pieces in the package and what part of the trim it belongs to.

There is still another side to this innovation—the elimination of waste.

Builders and owners often have discovered, too late to save them the cost of re-ordering and re-setting, that important pieces of trim have been thrown out as waste or burned in the watchman's brazier, in the long, chill hours of the night. Trim lengths lying about the job awaiting use have their edges bruised or their surfaces marred and are often placed in the wall in such condition before being discovered by the owner. The construction of the package, with corrugated paper interior, prevents this damage and waste.

Pilferage is further minimized because checking is made easier and far more accurate. The compactness of the package makes it possible to store large quantities of the material in smaller space because the packages will stack much more securely than loose boards of varying surfaces and sizes.

The new way of selling trim extends the principle of handling heavy timber and lumber announced in this column early this year and which has since come into extensive use in this city.

The National Fireproofing Company at the week-end advised building material distributers of an increase in hollow fireproofing clay tile touching 8 per cent. over present quoted prices on deliveries after March 1, 1927.

Present delivered price quotations continue to apply on deliveries prior to the first of next March, however.

Hudson River common brick manufacturers have been caught with a freeze-up of navigation earlier than ever before, with only thirty-six barge loads under cover in this market. It is the earliest interruption of brick flow from this district to this market on record.

PRIZE CATS SELECTED.

Winners of 48 Ribbons Picked at Empire Club Show.

Ribbons were awarded to winners in forty-eight classes of cats at the thirteenth annual exhibition of the Empire Cat Club at the Waldorf yesterday. Mrs. Gertrude E. Taylor of Detroit was judge. The 186 entries included Persian, domestic shorthair, Manx and Royal Sacred Siamese cats.

Kopper Kettle Kashmiri, in the black female, open class, was judged the best black cat in the exhibition. She is owned by Arch E. Horne. The best white cat was White Hope of Hounslow, in the blue-eyed white male class. The owner is Mrs. F. E. Winkel. Mrs. Taylor will select the winners of the fifty-three remaining classes this afternoon and the final award of champion of all will be made tonight.

Bar Leaders to Speak Tonight.

The annual dinner of the Commercial Law League of America, to be held tonight in the Hotel Plaza, will be marked by addresses by William D. Guthrie, President of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York; former Judge Samuel Seabury, Judge Francis A. Winslow of the United States District Court; former Governor Charles S. Whitman, President of the American Bar Association; and Maurice P. Davidson, President of the League. Edward B. Levy, President of the League's New York branch, will be toastmaster and the speeches will be broadcast through the Municipal radio station.

CALLS STRIKE PLAN 'VAGUE.'

Head of Garment Union Names Three to Outline New Program.

The General Executive Board of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union met yesterday at the Hotel Cadillac and called upon Louis Hyman, Julius Portnoy and Joseph Boruchowitz, the Left Wing Vice Presidents leading the cloakmakers' strike, to give an accounting of "the tragic, costly and mismanaged strike," and their plans to meet the situation presented by the lockout of 20,000 employes in the sub-manufacturers' shops.

The leaders of the strike explained their plans and offered their defense of the conduct of the strike, which has resulted in a loss of $30,000,000 in wages in twenty-five weeks and has cost the union upward of $3,000,000.

After the explanation was made President Morris Sigman of the International Union, the parent body, declared that the plans of the strike leaders were "vague." He said the workers had suffered sufficiently and had wasted one season, and that the General Executive Board did not propose to see another season lost to employment. With the consent of the board Mr. Sigman appointed three Vice Presidents to draw up definite plans for the immediate future and to report at another meeting of the board at 2 P. M. today.

DENIES ARAB OPPOSITION.

Zionist Leader Assails Pritchett Report on Palestine as Biased.

The recent report on Zionism by Dr. Henry S. Pritchett of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, was characterized as biased by Emanuel Neumann, Chairman of the executive committee of the United Palestine Appeal, in an address last night before the Society for the Advancement of Judaism, 15 West Eighty-sixth Street.

"In fairness to the Zionists," Mr. Neumann said, "President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University, also President of the Carnegie Endowment, who made Dr. Pritchett's report public, should give us a chance to place our data before the endowment, so we may have an opportunity to correct the misstatements in the Pritchett report."

Mr. Neumann asserted that the Arabs are not opposed as a race to the Jews developing Palestine, and that the Jews are not attempting to force their economic or religious views on anyone in that land.

Dr. M. M. Kaplan of the Jewish Theological Seminary also spoke. A. J. Bromberg presided.

Ethical Culture School Drive.

The New York Ethical Culture Society will launch today a drive to complete its million-dollar fund to erect a Pre-Professional High School. The campaign committee has received $600,000, and a group of 100 will start solicitation for the remaining money.

JEWS PLAN MEETING HERE.

To Discuss European Oppression at Conference Next Sunday.

The anti-Jewish demonstrations in Rumania and other countries of Eastern Europe will be the subject of a special conference called by the officers of the American Jewish Congress at the Hotel Pennsylvania for next Sunday evening. The meeting will be attended by the Jewish members of the United States Congress and by leading communal workers.

Invitations to the conference have been issued over the signatures of Dr. Stephen S. Wise, President of the American Jewish Congress; Max D. Steuer, Chairman of its Advisory Council, and Carl Sherman, Chairman of its Administrative Committee.

"This conference," Dr. Wise explained yesterday, "is preparatory to an extraordinary session of the American Jewish Congress, which will be convened in Washington in February, 1927, at which the American Jewry, through its representatives, will give public consideration to the many vexatious problems confronting our people."

To Survey Charities in Brooklyn.

The Social Welfare Committee of the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce announced yesterday creation of a Charity Committee to study and report on social and charitable agencies functioning in Brooklyn and particularly to note appeals for unnecessary and duplicating charitable agencies.

REST—The location assures it. QUIET—In our own park of 300 acres. FOOD—The best the market affords. WATER—The famous Briarcliff water. AIR—600 feet elevation—ideal. VIEW—Overlooking the Hudson River and Ramapo Mountains.
LOCATION—33 miles from New York and one is far away from the restlessness, noise and dirt of a city that exhausts—to the repose, comfort and ease of a civilization that builds up and inspires.
VERANDAS—They surround the hotel, insuring fresh air and a walk regardless of the weather.
SPORTS FACILITIES—Every sport in season.
RATES: Winter rates are effective from November 1st to May 1st. For stays of a week or longer, a 50% reduction from regular rates is made—Corresponding reductions for shorter stays.
Come up—for a day, a week or longer. You will enjoy your visit, for I frankly believe that there is no hotel in the United States that combines more pleasingly the factors for comfort and recreation that add to a guest's enjoyment than

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.—STATE [illegible] CORP., Complainant, against 20 TO 22 WEST 72ND STREET CO., INC., AND FAIRFIELD OPERATING CO., INC., Defendants.—E 41-48.

TO THE CREDITORS OF 20 TO 22 WEST 72ND STREET CO., INC., and FAIRFIELD OPERATING CO., INC., the above named defendants:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that the undersigned has been appointed and has qualified as Receiver of the above named defendants, pursuant to decrees made by this Court and, respectively, October 30th, 1926, and November 11th, 1926, and duly filed in the office of the Clerk of this Court.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the decree dated October 30th, 1926, appointing the undersigned Receiver of the defendant, 20 to 22 West 72nd Street Co., Inc., which by virtue of the subsequent decree dated November 11th, 1926, is also made applicable to the defendant, Fairfield Operating Co., Inc., contains a provision as follows:

"ORDERED, ADJUDGED and DECREED that all such creditors of the defendant [illegible] and they hereby are directed to file with the Receiver at such office or place of business as said Receiver may designate, and within ninety (90) days from the date of this order, a duly sworn statement of all or any such claims as they, [illegible] the defendant, may have or assert against the defendant, and such statement shall be verified before any officer authorized to administer oaths by the law of the State where said claim is verified and such statements or claims shall, where the claim is evidenced by any written instrument, have such written instrument attached thereto."

You are required, pursuant to the provisions of the decree above mentioned, to file your claim with the undersigned Receiver at the office of David W. Kahn, Esq., his attorney, at No. 120 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, within ninety (90) days from the date of the first mentioned decree, to wit: on or before February [illegible], 1927.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that in the decree aforementioned is contained a further provision reading as follows:

"ORDERED, ADJUDGED and DECREED, that all such creditors as shall fail to file their claims with said Receiver as herein provided and within the time herein fixed shall be debarred from any share of, in or to the properties of the said defendant, and shall not be entitled to receive any share thereof, or of the proceeds thereof."

Dated, New York, November 16, 1926.

E. BRIGHT WILSON, Receiver.

DAVID W. KAHN, Attorney for Complainant and Receiver. Office and Post Office Address: No. 120 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York.

BERNSTINE & GEIST, Attorneys for Defendants, Office and Post Office Address: No. 276 Fifth Ave., Borough of Manhattan, City of New York.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York. WILLIAM DE LA ROCHE ANDERSON, Complainant, against [illegible] HOTEL COMPANY, INC., Defendant. [illegible]

The cause coming on further to be heard upon the final account of the receivers and their petition for discharge, and having been heard by counsel, and due consideration having been had, it is

Ordered that all creditors of the defendant, all creditors of the receivers, and all persons claiming to be such, and all persons in any way interested as creditors, stockholders, lienors or otherwise, show cause before the undersigned, at United States District Court Room Number 3, 233 Broadway, Manhattan, New York City, on the [illegible] day of December, 1926, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard:

1. Why all accounts receivable, other [illegible] in action, and any other property in the hands of the receivers, should not then and there be sold by the Court to the [illegible] bidder.

2. Why an order should not be made directing the receivers to pay and distribute [illegible] persons as are entitled thereto, all [illegible] in the hands of the said receivers, [illegible] referring it to a Special Master to hear and report upon any claim to such funds [illegible] may be disputed by the receivers.

3. Why the account of the receivers should [illegible] settled and passed, the receivers discharged of their trust and their bond cancelled, and why the said receivers should [illegible] such other and further relief as the Court shall deem proper; and it is further Ordered that the receivers give notice of this application by mailing a copy of this order on or before December 6, 1926, to all creditors of the defendant known to the receivers who have not entered into the plan and agreement of reorganization, and by mailing a copy of this order to all persons known to the receivers claiming to be creditors of the receivers, at their respective addresses as shown on the books of the defendant and on the books of the receivers, and by publishing a copy of this order in The New York Times on December 13, 1926.

Dated, Nov. 29, 1926.

EYES ON CHRISTMAS TREES.

Conservation Commission Guards Against the Gypsy Moth.

A record crop of Christmas trees and greens will be harvested this year, is the indication from the number of requests being received daily by the Conservation Commission at Albany for information on the regulations governing the importation of this material from the gypsy moth infested area of New England into New York State.

A trip through Western New England and other sections where a high percentage of the Christmas greens are gathered will already reveal stacks of evergreen boughs, trees and all descriptions of greens, ready for shipment, while long-distance carload shipments are already on the way.

The danger of transporting the gypsy moth on this material is not being overlooked by the Conservation Commission. The dead-line, over which this material must not pass, unless accompanied by a proper certificate of inspection, will be maintained again this year. The line extends east and west for some fifty miles along the Northern New York and international boundary and south from the Canadian border to Long Island Sound. Any attempt to bring trees or greens from north or east of this line, without proper inspection, is a violation of the quarantine regulations and the carrier is subject to fine, as well as loss of material.

Those regulations apply to a carrier of a small amount of material, as well as to those handling large quantities.

Transcontinental Air Mail

The transcontinental air mail service is operated in both directions daily, leaving Hadley Field (New Brunswick, N. J.) at 11 A. M., Eastern Standard Time, and San Francisco at 8:45 A. M., Pacific Time. The planes carry mail for intermediate points as well. Connections are made at Cleveland for Detroit, arriving Detroit 5:15 P. M., and at Salt Lake City, for Los Angeles, arriving Los Angeles 5:25 P. M. At Elko, Nev., connections are made for Pasco, Wash., and by rail from that point to cities in Washington and Oregon, arriving the morning of the second day after leaving New York City; and at Cheyenne, Wyo., for Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo, arriving the morning of the next day after leaving New York. Mail for points not on the air route is forwarded by mail trains from the nearest air mail station.

The New York daily closing time for the mail is 8 A. M., Eastern Standard Time, from the General Postoffice and 6 A. M. to 7:55 A. M. at the air mail letter boxes, painted red, white and blue, which are located in various parts of the city, depending on location.

Saturday's air mail from San Francisco has been delayed by weather and is expected to reach Hadley Field early this morning and will be forwarded to New York by rail.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 12.—Saturday's transcontinental air mail from New York arrived here today on time.

Sunday's transcontinental air mail running from San Francisco to New York was reported running on time into Salt Lake City, Utah.

Chicago and Southwest Air Mail

The New York-Chicago air mail is operated in both directions nightly, leaving Hadley Field (New Brunswick, N. J.) at 9:35 P. M., Eastern Standard Time, and Chicago at 8 P. M., Central Time. The planes carry mail for intermediate points. Direct connections are made at Chicago for Detroit, arriving Detroit 11:40 A. M.; for St. Louis, arriving St. Louis 9:15 A. M.; for St. Paul-Minneapolis, arriving Minneapolis 10:40 A. M., to connect by rail with points in North and South Dakota and Montana, and for Dallas, Texas, via Moline, Rock Island, Davenport, St. Joseph, Kansas City, Wichita, Oklahoma City and Fort Worth, arriving Dallas 5:35 P. M. Direct rail connections are made at Dallas and Fort Worth for points further south and west.

The New York daily closing time is 6:45 P. M., Eastern Standard Time, at the General Postoffice and 5:10 P. M., or a little later, at the air mail letter boxes, painted red, white and blue, which are located in various parts of the city.

Saturday's air mail from Chicago arrived at Hadley Field at 3:16 A. M. yesterday and was forwarded by rail to New York.

Young Helpers' League Brings Christmas Gifts to Be Distributed in Tenements.

THEY SAVED FOR A YEAR

Each Also Contributes a "Mite Box" at Meeting in Home of Mrs. John S. Rogers.

Each of 100 or more boys and girls of socially prominent families played Santa Claus to children of the tenements of the lower east side yesterday. They assembled with their gifts at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Rogers, 53 East Seventy-ninth Street, so that a committee could have time to arrange and distribute the presents. Some of the little gift-bearers appeared with their own offerings, while others who had donated as a family group had to use an automobile for the safe delivery of their presents.

For a year these children had collected and saved their funds for this benefaction. They are all members of the Young Helpers' League, an auxiliary of the New York City Mission Society, which conducts welfare work among the children in the district bounded by Rivington and East Tenth Streets, Avenue D and the East River.

Each Submits a "Mite Box."

In addition to the heaps of gifts, including the latest mechanical toys of all kinds and dolls, each boy and girl submitted for inspection a "mite box," containing cash collected throughout the year with which to pay the annual salary of the woman welfare worker in the district. It was estimated that the total of the children's contributions for this purpose exceeded $1,000.

While the meeting of these youngsters yesterday was described as a "Christmas party," they got no gifts themselves; they were merely givers. But they had an entertainment and a symbolical tree, at the base of which some of their gifts were heaped. Mrs. Horace Bigelow, who reminded the boys and girls that it was better to give than to receive, told them:

"You children whose parents are more favorably circumstanced are doing a fine thing in supporting this work. But the children of the downtown district are doing more for you than you are doing for them. They are teaching you the habit of giving, and thus aiding you to an understanding of the human and spiritual values of life, upon which your own happiness and success so largely depend."

Stephen Baker, President of the Bank of the Manhattan Company, acted as leader for the children in their singing of "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," and several hymns.

The committee of the party were Mrs. Rogers, Chairman; Mrs. George B. Agnew, Mrs. Henry Leroy Finch, Mrs. William E. S. Griswold, Mrs. Clarence C. Michalis, Mrs. E. Gouverneur Morris, Mrs. Ottomar H. Van Norden and Mrs. Bigelow.

STOPS DRINK, SAVES $1,000.

So Judge Lifts Yonkers Plumber's Probation at End of Six Months.

James Tole, who had been placed on probation in Yonkers City Court because he got tipsy six months ago, declared yesterday that he had saved more than $1,000 in six months. Judge Charles W. Boote thereupon granted Tole's application to be discharged.

Domestic Relations Officer Matthew Lesnick told Judge Boote that Tole had kept the terms of his probation. Tole is a plumber.

FOREIGN STUDENTS TALK ON LUTHERANISM

Four Nations Represented in Discussion of American Churches' Faults and Virtues.

The virtues and faults of churches in general and of Lutheranism in particular in the United States as viewed by foreign students in American seminaries and universities were sketched in a series of brief addresses by representatives of four nations at a round-table discussion yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the Rev. Dr. William F. Sunday, pastor of the English Evangelical Lutheran Church of St. James, Seventy-third Street and Madison Avenue. The views of an American student on the subject were also presented.

Lutheranism was held to be in a strategic position at present because its refusal to enter politics left it free in its own field. As a religious force it has not yielded so much to worldly influences but has retained most of the undiluted features that appeal to church-goers seeking religion rather than moral discussion, the young speakers agreed.

The speakers were Oswald Gockler of France, Orrin Kosmo, speaking for the American student; Miss Margita Borg of Finland, Miss Wai King Tsai of China and Tagafami Mikuriya of Japan.

ROBERTS SCORES OIL LEASE AS FALL AND DOHENY FRAUD VEILED AS A PATRIOTIC ACT

URGES JURY TO CONVICT

Prosecutor Says Defense Story of "War Peril" "Is Just Bunk."

LOAN SECRECY IS ASSAILED

Defendants Feared Ruin If $100,000 Deal Were Known, Roberts Declares.

JURY DEEPLY INTERESTED

Reply "Go Ahead" When Judge Suggests Adjourning—Hogan Will Sum Up Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, and Edward L. Doheny, the California oil operator, on trial in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, charged with having conspired to defraud the Government in the lease of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve, heard themselves denounced today as men who had deliberately and corruptly sought to defraud their Government, a man who had used patriotism as a camouflage for an oil deal profit, which it was estimated might approximate $60,000,000. It was Owen J. Roberts of counsel for the Government who so bitterly assailed the two men who stand at the bar of justice.

The plea of patriotism, declared Mr. Roberts, was just "bunk" and nothing more. And when Mr. Doheny testified that he had first heard of the Pearl Harbor oil proposition in October or November, 1922, he was not telling the truth, Mr. Roberts asserted. The record of the case from the files of the Government prove, he declared, that it was in October or November, 1921, a very short time before Fall signed the famous $100,000 from his codefendant.

The two big controlling factors in the whole case, argued Mr. Roberts, are the $100,000 transaction and the "preferential right" clause in the Pearl Harbor contract which gave to the Doheny interests the preference in the leasing of the Elk Hills reserve. It was not patriotism but "profit," exclaimed Mr. Roberts, that was at the bottom of the lease transactions.

Times Five on "Brown Bag."

The "little brown bag" used by Edward L. Doheny Jr. to carry the $100,000 from New York to Washington was another fact in the case which drew the fire of the Government prosecutor. The whole transaction was purposely shrouded in secrecy, said Mr. Roberts, because Doheny and Fall knew that if the facts became public "they would both be ruined."

The jury apparently was deeply interested in the impassioned argument of Mr. Roberts. Justice Hoehling had at 5 o'clock as the hour of adjournment, but when the hour came Mr. Roberts was still talking. Justice Hoehling asked the jury if they were ready to quit and back came a chorus in which five or six jurymen joined in: "Go ahead, go ahead."

So Mr. Roberts continued for another half hour. He said he would finish in the first half hour of tomorrow's session. As a result of Mr. Roberts's assault on their case the plan of the defense was changed tonight so that Frank J. Hogan will follow Mr. Roberts tomorrow.

William J. Lambert and Mark Smith will follow Mr. Hogan, and Wednesday morning ex-Senator Atlee Pomerene of Ohio will close for the Government. This means that the case will go to the jury Wednesday afternoon.

The morning session today was used in the presentation of requests for instructions to the jury. About half of them were granted by Justice Hoehling.

The court room was jammed to capacity and a line was standing outside waiting a chance to get in when Mr. Roberts began his summing up of the case.

Roberts Explains the Charges.

Opening his argument for conviction of the defendants, Mr. Roberts explained to the jury the nature of the conspiracy charged by the Government. He declared it was with a feeling of great relief that Government counsel transferred the responsibility for doing justice from their own to the shoulders of the jury. The case itself was of transcendent importance, he pointed out, because it involved, in great measure, the proper functioning of the American Government, and a verdict of guilty, he added, would mean that important functions of Government were tampered with by Doheny and Fall for purposes that were corrupt.

The word "conspiracy," Mr. Roberts said, implied wrong, not right. The purpose of the combination must be wrong, else, he added, it was not a conspiracy under the American system of criminal law.

"In this case," Mr. Roberts continued, "the indictment avers a conspiracy to have existed from July 1, 1921, to [illegible] 11, 1922. It is not necessary, I take it, for the Government to prove just when the agreement was entered into, if in the period and before the subsequent overt acts, you are

All Sons Born in Montpellier Inherit Title of French Baron

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Co.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 13.—Only a few people are privileged to be Kings. A somewhat larger number may be Princes, Dukes and Earls. There are titles of nobility which may be bought. Other spurious ones may be annexed. But few people know that it is open to anybody to make his son into an authentic Baron—provided arrangements can be made that the son be born within the boundary of the ancient provençal City of Montpellier.

This peculiar privilege dates from 1537, when the Baron de Caranette died, leaving all his worldly goods, including his baronial titles and rights, to the burghers of Montpellier and their heirs. Hitherto nobody appears to have taken much notice of the medieval Baron's will. Recently, however, a club was formed among the citizens and a legally constituted corporation was formed with the aim to register and uphold their rights.

It may be added—which may well make would-be Barons hesitate—that the correct designation for a citizen of Montpellier is a "Montpeasulan."

MOSCOW, Dec. 13.—Nothing gives such a dazzling impression of the incommensurable wealth of the Russian Czars as the display of their jeweled playthings, their precious childish toys, shown to the foreign correspondents today.

I have seen the imperial regalia of the British Empire, with the majestic Kohinoor diamond blazing sovereignty over India, with its 300,000,000 population, and the Cullinan, the world's largest diamond, to symbolize the free union of the British peoples, for it was a gift from the South African Dominion to King Edward VII.

I have seen the Russian crown jewels before, as I saw them again today—the magnificent crown; the superb blue-white Orioff 200-carat diamond in the handle of the sceptre; the square emerald of 153 carats, valued at $8,000,000, and another roundish emerald of nearly 200 carats, two and a half inches in diameter, and the world's greatest sapphire, 253 carats, whose worth is computed at $12,000,000.

All these are staggering enough, but they do not bring home to one what utterly unlimited money really means until one sees the dainty little model train made for Nicholas II as a souvenir of the opening of the Trans-Siberian Railroad. Then one begins to understand how fancy can play with gold and jewels if one owns outright. as the Czars owned, one-sixth of the whole surface of the globe. The train, eighteen inches long, has five gold cars and a platinum locomotive, all modeled to exactitude from the train wherein Nicholas inaugurated the Trans-Siberian, with a restaurant, bath and private chapel complete. It runs by clockwork.

Papers Said to Implicate Bratiano Disappear After Fire—Ferdinand's Days Are Numbered.

BUDAPEST, Dec. 13.—Out in the seclusion of Florica, his country home, twoscore miles from Bucharest, Jon Bratiano, "hereditary dictator" of Rumania, is fighting for his political life. His chief antagonists are five women of the royal house—Queen Marie, her daughters, the Queen of Yugoslavia, the ex-Queen of Greece and Princess Ileana, and Queen Marie's daughter-in-law, Crown Princess Helene, wife of the exiled Carol and mother of the 5-year-old Crown Prince Mihai (Michael).

These Queens and Princesses, however, are waging a triangular warfare among themselves, and on the side of Ferdinand's consort, against whom all the others save only Ileana are arrayed, stands Premier Averescu.

With the King at death's door, the Premier has started a secret palace intrigue against the omnipotence of M. Bratiano, his boss. In the event of little Mihai's accession to the throne he aims to supplant the ex-Premier's dictatorship with one headed by the Queen, but dominated by himself.

In this petticoat strife raging inside the palace, almost at the bedside of the King, two important developments have become known to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent. One is that following an underground demarche by the Rumanian Government, Queen Marie of Yugoslavia, Ferdinand's second daughter, has been requested by her husband, King Alexander, to return to Belgrade, and will do so within a few days. Her continued presence at Bucharest is deemed undesirable owing to her uncompromising championship of Carol, her elder brother, whose abdication as heir-apparent she wants revoked.

Incriminating Papers Gone.

The other significant happening is the disappearance from the royal archives of certain highly important documents relating to the Moldavian peasants' rebellion of 1907. These papers vanished from the King's private safe in the old palace while that building was burning early on Thursday morning. They are understood to convict M. Bratiano, who was Minister of the Interior at the time, of responsibility for the needless massacre of 11,000 insurgents. The disappearance of the papers is attributed to his agency, and far-fetched rumors are afloat that the palace was set ablaze for that purpose.

News messages recounting these occurrences were suppressed by the Rumanian censor, who permits the publication of nothing dealing with conflicts at the Court. Consequently this dispatch, which depicts the situation at Bucharest up to Saturday evening, is filed from Budapest without submission to the censorship.

Every intelligent Rumanian not directly benefiting through its continuance wants the passing of the King's life to be followed by a change in the present dictatorial régime, which is based on the political supremacy of M. Bratiano and a clique of powerful financial, industrial and agricultural interests at his back. Most of King Ferdinand's children share the antagonism to the ex-Premier's steamroller. Queen Marie hitherto has been on excellent terms with M. Bratiano. She has been dominated politically by the veteran statesman, but there are signs that she now desires to free herself of this tutelage and run things to suit herself.

Averescu Fighting Bratiano.

M. Averescu, whom M. Bratiano made Premier last Spring, manifests a similar tendency. He favors giving to the Queen a definite political status, either as a member of the Regency or as sole Regent, or even perhaps as the recognized successor of King Ferdi-

Pope Terms Styles Irreverent and Immoral; Asks Men to Oppose Trend in Women's Dress

ROME, Dec. 13 (AP).—Pope Pius XI took the stand today that what he termed the increasing immodesty in women's fashions constituted "an ugly, ruinous, catastrophic tendency, which Catholic husbands, fathers and brothers should attempt to check at all costs."

The Pope was addressing about 1,000 members of the Rome section of the Catholic Men's Association. Thanking his auditors for an expressed willingness to cooperate in the campaign against immoral and irreverent fashions, the Pontiff solemnly declared modern styles to be "irreverent, precisely because they are immoral, irreverent to human dignity, irreverent to body and soul."

"There is a phrase in holy writings," he continued, "which touches the basis of the matter, a phrase which God puts in the mouth of man when He makes him say: 'Lord, save me from an irreverent and shameless soul.'

"This body is sacred because it was created by the hand of God, sacred because redeemed by God.

"Catholic men perform a work, not only Christian but humanitarian, in fighting against immoral fashions, which constitute such an important matter nowadays. It is necessary that all who still have a sense of human nobility and dignity, not to mention Christian dignity, should agree and find a means of creating dams against a current so ugly and so ruinous and carrying so many catastrophes with it."

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. None of the cars was derailed and no passenger was seriously hurt.

Early Reports Alarming.

Early reports, telephoned immediately to New Brunswick, were so alarming, with statements of many dead and seriously injured, that ambulances were sent from Middlesex, St. Peter's and General hospitals, accompanied by Red Cross nurses and first aid supplies, but only two persons were found injured seriously enough to be taken to hospitals.

One of those injured was Mrs. Barbara Steinmetz of 3,325 Indiana Avenue, St. Louis, a passenger on the Commercial Express, who was on her way to visit her daughter, Mrs. Elsie Beffa at Madison, N. J. She was taken to General Hospital suffering from bruises on the body. The other person hurt was Nathan Williams, a negro Pullman porter of 28 Wilson Avenue, who was taken to St. Peter's Hospital for treatment for lacerations of the arms.

Those less seriously injured, who were treated and permitted to continue their journey, were:

BARNAT, Mrs. PAULINE, of 296 Hancock Street, Brooklyn.

CAMAROLA, CELESTE, 114 North Chelsea Street, Atlantic City, N. J.; shin hurt.

ESPOSITO, ANTHONY, 166 Clark Street, Jersey City, bruises.

FINN JR., JOHN, 10 years old, of 89 Varick Street, New York, a passenger on the Atlantic City Express, who received bruises on the head and legs when struck by a falling handbag.

GERALD, EMILY A., 160 East Ninety-first Street, Manhattan; bruised on head and hand.

GERLA, JEANETTE, 141 Forty-eighth Street, Union City, N. J.; injuries to right instep.

GREENBURG, PEARL J., 3 West Elm Street, Linden, N. J.; left side and neck injured.

HAFT, Mrs. SAMUEL, 61 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn; injured internally.

HAYES, LYDIA, 1,060 Broad Street, Newark, right leg hurt.

LEHEHAN, JAMES, Jr., 3 years old, of 2,820 Marion Street, the Bronx; right eye bruised and finger cut.

LUCKS, Mrs. SAMUEL, of 118 North Massachusetts Avenue, Atlantic City.

MACDONALD, ANNE M., 828 Washington Street, Hoboken; right leg hurt.

SCHWED, Mrs. B., 1,165 Park Avenue, Rochester, N. Y.; neck hurt.

SMITH, WILLIAM, a negro Pullman porter, contusions of the back.

WEIL, BERT, 152 Lexington Avenue, Manhattan, back hurt.

All these were passengers on the Atlantic City train. Those slightly hurt on the St. Louis train were:

FEIGENBAUM, Mrs. S., 5,152 Kensington Avenue, St. Louis, back hurt.

IRBY, OTIS, dining car waiter, body bruised.

JEFFERSON, KENNETH, dining car waiter, body bruised.

MAURER, W., 4,515 Delmar Street, Indianapolis, leg cut.

All the passengers except those taken to the hospital were transferred to Philadelphia Express No. 6, due at the Pennsylvania Station at 8 P. M. and to the Washington Express due at the Pennsylvania Station at 6:18 P. M., but neither arrived at its destination until 10 P. M., because traffic was held up in both directions and the tracks were not cleared for normal traffic until midnight.

Only the rear trucks of the last coach of the Atlantic City Express and the front trucks of the Commercial Express locomotive were derailed.

M. E. Pitcaris, Superintendent of the New York Division of the Pennsylvania, who supervised the clearing of the tracks, said he would hold an immediate investigation to determine the cause of the collision. Miller, the engineer, was reported to have been in the Pennsylvania's service for forty years and due for retirement next month.

FERRYBOAT IN CRASH; FOG HALTS 8 LINERS

1,500 on Municipal Craft Near Panic When Lighter Strikes It Off Statue of Liberty.

FOUR SHIPS AT QUARANTINE

Berengaria With 800 Aboard Stays Outside Harbor—Ferry Service Is Delayed.

For the second time in three days a dense, low-hanging fog settled down upon the harbor yesterday. Even at noon it was nearly as dark as twilight and lights flickered from the slowly moving harbor craft.

Incoming ocean liners, many of them crowded with passengers returning from abroad for Christmas, were forced to anchor at Quarantine or outside of Ambrose Channel. Ferryboat traffic was seriously delayed.

According to the Weather Bureau, the fog extended from North Carolina to Southern New England and as far west as the Ohio Valley and the Great Lakes.

One accident was reported. Fifteen hundred passengers on the municipal ferryboat Richmond were thrown into near panic when the boat was struck on the forward side by the lighter Sagamore, which suddenly appeared out of the fog off the Statue of Liberty. Twenty-five feet of the port side of the ferryboat was smashed and the guard rail was ripped away, but the passenger cabins were not damaged and no one aboard was injured.

Could Not Avoid Crash.

The Richmond, under the command of Captain John McCaffrey, was making its way through the fog and was off the Statue of Liberty when the lighter loomed into view. Three blasts were immediately blown on the ferry's siren, and the captains of both craft did everything possible to avoid a collision, but the boats were already close to each other and the lighter crashed into the ferryboat with a heavy thud.

The lighter apparently sidewiped the ferryboat. There was a sound of crumpling wood. Passengers were hurled to the deck. Joe Salino and Charles Canarda, drivers of ashcarts, were catapulted from their seats to the deck of the ferryboat. They were not injured.

Following the crash the passengers on both decks ran toward the bow. Many of them were prepared to jump overboard, but were restrained by deckhands, John Dusky, Walter Byron, Thomas Purcell and William Joyce, who assured them there was no danger and ordered them back to the cabins. The Richmond proceeded to her slip without assistance.

Altogether eight liners were unable to dock as a result of the fog. The Hamburg-American liner Deutschland the Di Giorgio fruit vessel Yoro and the Grace liner Santa Luisa remained anchored at Quarantine. The Cunard liner Berengaria anchored at the entrance of Ambrose Channel, the Cunard liners Andania and Aurania and the American Merchant liner American Shipper remained outside the harbor.

Only two vessels succeeded in docking. These were the Atlantic Transport liner Minnetonka, and the Panama Mail steamship Ecuador. They both carry passengers and mail. They reached Quarantine early and came up the river before the fog began to blow in.

The largest vessel held up was the Berengaria. She passed Fire Island at noon and managed to reach the entrance of the Ambrose Channel by 4:45. She has about 800 passengers on board.

The Deutschland reached Quarantine a little after 8 o'clock and was enveloped in the fog half an hour later. She had already been boarded by the health officers, customs and immigration officers. They left the vessel at noon on the Government launch and, unable to navigate back to New York through the thick fog, they finally made a landing at the New York Shipyards, a mile south of Rosebank, S. I.

Ferryboats Are Delayed.

The fog began to spread about 8:30 o'clock, and light southeast winds blew it in toward the city from the ocean and the New Jersey coast. As it reached the upper harbor it mingled with smoke. Light rain added to the murkiness and the fog became dense. Visibility was less than 1,000 feet according to the Weather Bureau.

The river traffic also was delayed. The ferry boats running between South Ferry and Thirty-ninth Street, Brooklyn, were thirty minutes late. The Staten Island ferries averaged twenty minutes behind schedule. The Hudson River ferry boats were from five to fifteen minutes late. The Ellis Island ferry boat suspended service for two and a half hours.

The North German Lloyd liner Columbus was scheduled to sail last night at midnight for the Channel ports and Bremen. At a late hour it was said at the pier that she probably would delay her departure until 5 o'clock this morning.

It was said at the Weather Bureau last night that the fog was expected to clear by morning.

STATE BOARD STARTS ON A TRANSIT PLAN; UNTERMYER TO AID

Lawyer to Be Special Counsel in Preparing Program for "Readjustment."

LEAVES ON SEA TOUR TODAY

But Will Study the Voluminous Records and Return for the Hearings.

BOARD TO SURVEY FARES

Aims to Keep Five-Cent Rate or to Fix Lowest Charge Possible—Governor Approves Move.

The Transit Commission announced yesterday that it would undertake the preparation of a transit "readjustment" plan, as required by legislative mandate, and had appointed Samuel Untermyer special counsel to aid in the preparation of the plan.

Mr. Untermyer, who will serve without compensation, will leave today on an around-the-world cruise on the steamship Belgenland, which he is likely to cut short to return to transit work here next Spring. In accepting the offer of retainer as special counsel, Mr. Untermyer said that no time would be lost by the commission because of his trip as he would take with him the record of 6,000 pages of testimony taken by the former Transit Commission in its investigation preparatory to the formulation of its unification plan and would familiarize himself with the subject before his return.

In the meantime the commission will consult the city authorities, the various transit companies, civic associations and individuals interested for the purpose of receiving suggestions and plans for the relief of the transit situation. The commission also will appoint junior special counsel, who will prepare this material for Mr. Untermyer on the latter's return, when a series of public hearings will be held. The period for the receipt of plans and suggestions has been fixed by the commission as within ninety days from tomorrow.

The Commission's Purposes.

The main purposes to be sought in a readjustment plan, according to the commission's statement, are the combination, rehabilitation, improvement and extension of existing railroads, the improvement of service, receipt by the city as soon as possible of sufficient returns to make its investments in subways self-supporting and bonds issued for construction exempt from the debt limit, and the continuation of the 5-cent fare or the fixing of the lowest rate possible consistent with fair valuations of the properties of the railroads and their safe and economical operation.

The decision of the commission to take immediate action toward the formulation of what its members prefer to call a plan of "readjustment," the term used in the statute, instead of a "unification" or "consolidation" plan, followed a series of conferences with Governor Smith in which the Governor gave his entire approval.

The three members of the commission, Chairman John F. Gilchrist, Leon G. Godley and former State Senator Charles C. Lockwood, were appointed by the Governor and are, naturally, friendly to him. The Governor was reported to have felt that Mayor Walker and the City Administration might possibly be too dilatory in proceeding with some plan for a transit readjustment, if the matter were left to them, and concurred in the desire of the Transit Commissioners to start the preparation of a plan at once.

Mr. Lockwood, who is Chairman of the Kings County Republican Committee, was reported to have been particularly insistent that the commission proceed at once with the preparation of a plan. It was Mr. Lockwood, formerly a member of the State Senate, who told his colleagues and the Governor that he had been informed that if no transit action were taken by some public body the Republican majority might decide on a legislative investigation of the transit situation in New York City and might hold up the proposed constitutional amendment by which the City Administration hoped to get authority to issue $300,000,000 in bonds for subway construction outside the city's debt limit.

Mr. Godley, it was said, was recently delegated to inform Mayor Walker that the Transit Commission intended to take the initiative in the transit sit-

SMITH MAKES PLEA HERE TO PUT POWER RESOURCES UNDER CONTROL OF STATE

Mayor 'at Home' in City Hall On Tuesdays and Fridays Only

Mayor Walker's "at home" days in the City Hall hereafter will be Tuesdays and Fridays only. The Mayor announced last night that, owing to growing pressure upon his time, all callers desiring to see him in person, unless by previous appointment, would have to be limited to the two days named.

"I have had to come to this decision," declared the Mayor, "because of stress of official business. On Monday the day is devoted to the regular session of the Committee of the Whole of the Board of Estimate. On Wednesday the Sinking Fund Commission meets and its affairs occupy my time, and on Thursdays come the regular weekly sessions of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. On those days I also find it necessary to meet and confer with department heads and special committees, and to perform other routine duties of the Mayoralty office."

HEARST IMPORTING A SPANISH CLOISTER

10th Century Structure Is Being Brought Here Stone by Stone.

FOR CALIFORNIA ESTATE

Will Be Re-erected There—Shipped Despite Opposition of Segovia Villagers.

ST. JEAN DE LUZ (France), Dec. 13.—One of the most valuable romanesque cloisters in Spain, dating from the tenth century, is being taken, stone by stone, to California. Arthur Byrne, former curator of the Hispanic Society of New York and author of many books on Spanish art, was in charge of the work and is now on his way back to New York. His wife, who is also an expert on Spanish art, assisted him.

The cloister was situated in a village in the province of Segovia. One hundred workmen began the task of painstakingly demolishing and packing it several months ago and two shipments have already arrived in the United States.

The cloister was part of a Cistercian monastery founded on a site given by the first Count of Castilla, Fernan Gonzales, to the monks of Arianza before 970. It belonged to a simple-minded farmer who, ignorant of its real value, sold it for a comparatively small sum. His father came into possession of the beautiful work of art when church property was taken over by the State in 1837 and sold to private individuals to raise funds for the national Government.

Twice during the work of removing the cloister, the villagers, banding together drove the workmen away on the ground that foreigners were robbing the community of its greatest treasure. After long negotiations, however, the Government permitted the work to continue and sanctioned the shipment to California. The censorship was, nevertheless, brought into play and it was not permitted to write about the matter.

The cloister will be the only precious work of art allowed to leave Spain, for a law passed two months ago prohibits further exportation of works of art and ruins, athough several other items of cloisters had already been sold for shipment to the United States, including the Miranda house of Burgos for 15,000 pesetas.

Mr. Byrne is accompanied to America by Count de Las Almenas, for whom he will sell in America one of the finest collections of Spanish furniture and works of art. Count de las Almenas refused an offer of 1,000,000

PRESSES AUTHORITY PLAN

Wants a Body Akin to That Supervising the Port of New York.

COULD FINANCE ITSELF

Believes It Could Produce Power at Price to Enable Operation Without a Loss.

HOOKER IN SHOALS PLEA

Urges Cooperative Agreement With Business Men to Develop Nitrogen Primarily.

Governor Smith outlined his plan for a power authority to develop the State water-power resources last night in a speech before about 800 persons at a dinner of the Survey Associates, Inc., publishers of The Survey and The Survey Graphic, at the Hotel Astor.

He proposed that the power authority be created by the Legislature as an instrument of the State, like the Authority of the Port of New York, with the power to finance itself by issuing bonds against earning power, and to make contracts with private companies for the distribution of power. The question whether such a power authority would be able to produce and distribute power at a price that would make possible its operation without loss, he declared, he was willing to submit in advance to a group of non-partisan power experts.

Credits Hughes With Theory.

Governor Smith heatedly denied charges that his program was socialistic, and asserted that the theory of State ownership and State control of water-power development originated not with himself but with former Governor Charles E. Hughes. The fundamental principle of his program, the Governor said, was that the water power of the St. Lawrence and Niagara Rivers was the property of the State and should not be alienated even by lease for any period of time.

The Governor did not give as many details of his plan as had been expected, but devoted the larger part of his address to arguments in support of his general water power policy and in opposition to the present method of dealing with the water power problem. He argued that it was a business and not a political matter, charged that the members of the present Water Power Commission knew nothing about water power, and admitted that the make-up of the new Commission, which will have power after Jan. 1, will be even worse because it will not include the State Engineer in its membership. He emphasized that the State now has no properly equipped agency for the study of water power possibilities.

Answers a Dissenter.

At the end of his address, which took just an hour, Governor Smith volunteered to answer any questions that persons in the audience cared to ask. Only one man ventured to argue the question and the Governor quickly put him to rout. Identifying himself as S. Hamlin of Connecticut, this man suggested that the State already had the power "to distribute responsibility between stockholders and employes of a company so as to protect the rights of the people." Governor Smith replied that that might be true, but that if the water power was ever distributed over the State line, it might come under Federal jurisdiction just like the railroads in interstate commerce, and the State Public Service Commission would then find itself powerless to protect the people of the State.

Robert W. de Forest, President of Survey Associates, who presided, said it was the custom of the organization to have both sides of controversial questions presented, but that it had been unable to find any one willing to debate with the Governor. Amid the laughter of the audience, Mr. de Forest added: "People have tried that with disastrous results in the past."

Hooker on Muscle Shoals.

Elon H. Hooker, President of the Hooker Electrochemical Company, past President of the Research Corporation and an authority on hydroelectric development, spoke on the possibilities in the development of Muscle Shoals from the standpoint of the farmer and the general welfare of the United States.

Declaring that the high standards of living in this country will be threatened within the next ten or twenty years unless some means are found for replacing the great amount of nitrogen annually taken from the soil, Mr. Hooker advocated the Government controlling Muscle Shoals, but entering into a cooperative agreement with experienced business men for its operation to produce nitrogen primarily and power secondarily. Then the Government should conduct a propaganda to persuade the farmers to use concentrated fertilizer instead of ordinary fertilizer.

"Muscle Shoals has cost to date about $185,000,000," said Mr. Hooker. "It was built for two specific purposes: To manufacture nitrogen for

All Japan Prays for Emperor's Recovery; Prince Regent and Crown Princess at Bedside

TOKIO, Dec. 13.—The attention of all Japan is centred on the imperial villa at Hayama, where the Emperor, ill with pneumonia, is slowly growing weaker, though there is still some chance of his recovery. The imperial physicians are concentrating their efforts on strengthening the Emperor's heart, which is "weakening because of his reduced diet," according to the official bulletin.

The Prince Regent and Crown Princess went to Hayama today, intending to return this evening, but instead remained at the Emperor's bedside. The Premier and Cabinet also went to Hayama, where a branch office of the Government has been opened, but returned tonight after a conference in the presence of the Prince Regent with Count Makino, Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal; Viscount Iriye, Lord Chamberlain, and Minister Ichiki of the Imperial Household Department.

The latest official bulletin gives the patient's temperature 38 Centigrade, pulse 120, respiration 26.

The warship Yamashiro is anchored off Hayama in sight of the imperial villa.

The uncertainty of the situation is hurting business, which usually is at its best at this season preceding the New Year celebration. Sales of rice for mochi cakes, a special New Year food, are falling off and merchants in all lines are worried. All shrines throughout Japan are thronged with persons praying for the Emperor's recovery, many dousing themselves with icy water to call God's attention to their prayers. The press is being supervised to avoid unnecessarily alarming statements.

Ten Months' Strike at Botany Mills Ends; Passaic Textile Workers Ratify Agreement

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., Dec. 13.—The strike in the Botany Consolidated Mills here and the subsidiary Garfield Worsted Mills was settled tonight when 6,000 workers, meeting in the Ukrainian Hall in Passaic, ratified an agreement between Charles F. Johnson, Vice President of the company, and Thomas McMahon, international President of the United Textile Workers of America.

Tomorrow morning for the first time in ten and a half months there will be no picket line in front of the Botany mills. Except for legal holidays the line had been maintained continuously by volunteers from the ranks of the 7,500 who went on strike. It was in the Botany mills that the general strike was precipitated, tieing up most of the textile factories of the vicinity and causing frequent disturbances with the operators and police.

The Passaic Worsted Mill settled the strike as far as its workers were concerned several weeks ago. The employes who will still be on strike after tonight's settlement number about 6,000. Many of them, however, are believed to have found other work.

Under the agreement reached with the Botany mills the strikers win the right to organize in a legitimate association providing it is not of communistic origin or purpose. The right of collective bargaining is recognized, but both parties agree to submit to arbitration by a third party in any future dispute. The strikers specifically say that they do not demand the closed shop. The operators agree not to discriminate against the strikers and to employ no outside help until all the strikers are reemployed.

Gov. Smith Offers Plan for Settling Water Power Problem

explosives in time of war, and for cheap fertilizer in time of peace.

Nitrogen Loss on Farms.

"From the soil each year the farmer uses up 9,000,000 tons of nitrogen. By his own labor he returns 5,500,000 tons. The remainder, 3,500,000 tons, is not returned. It is lost and this loss is an annual one, and cumulative. The reason it cannot be replaced is because the farmer cannot obtain it. All of the nitrogen the fertilizer industry can supply from commercial sources to meet his deficit is 200,000 tons, which is one-seventeenth of the annual loss. This loss in terms of productive land is equivalent to 118,000,000 acres abandoned annually.

"But there stands Muscle Shoals, and here is what it seems to me can be done with it. Muscle Shoals can produce annually 40,000 tons of nitrogen, which can be made into about 2,500,000 tons of ordinary commercial fertilizer. But it can be made into concentrated fertiliser. This type of fertilizer has never been used in this country as it has in Europe, and for obvious reasons. It is fertilizer which contains to the ton about five times the plant food that ordinary fertilizer carries. That is, the so-called '2-8-2' of commerce contains now 240 pounds of plant food and the rest filler, whereas concentrated fertilizer contains 1,200 pounds of plant food to the ton. This kind of fertilizer can be made at Muscle Shoals and under proper administration of the plant under modern chemical methods this production can be increased. This is not difficult at all. It is being done in Germany and can be done here.

$30,000,000 a Year Saving.

"The marketing of it, however, is difficult, and it is the cost of educating the farmer to its use which has halted the fertilizer industry from producing it. The farmer did not need it, for his lands were naturally rich. So they manufactured a fertilizer which gave him one-fifth the plant food and he was willing to pay freight on the filler. But concentrated fertilizer will do his work for him, save him freight and labor, and can be distributed to him at a price which will save agriculture, it is estimated, around $30,000,000 a year on the present production of Muscle Shoals. It will just about cut his fertilizer bills in half and lessen his labor costs at the same time."

Mrs. Ann Dennis Bursch, of the Living Costs Committee of the National League of Women Voters, spoke on what power development means to the housewife in the release of women from drudgery by means of the electrified home. She said that public operation for hydroelectric power ought to have the same chance as private operation.

The general topic of the meeting was "Water Power and the Social Stake in It," and this aspect of the question was emphasized by all the speakers. The audience, which was about evenly divided between men and women, and was non-partisan in character, displayed a keen interest in the discussion. Governor Smith's address drew generous applause, although it was apparent that the entire audience was not in favor of his plan.

GOVERNOR SMITH'S SPEECH.

Governor Smith's address follows:

Somebody said when I entered the hall that we may want to ask some questions. I said: "All right, as soon as I am finished, if there is anything about this thing I don't understand and anybody asks me a question I can't answer, I will admit it." If I can answer it, I will answer it, so by way of preparation you can all get ready, because I take this to be not a political matter at all. I take it to be a business matter. I take it to be a matter of great concern for the people of the State of New York without regard to how they voted on the second of November, because Clinton County was Democratic for the first time since the Civil War, but that doesn't mean to say they have lost interest in the Republican plan of water-power development, and certainly New York hasn't.

It is a question of how best to do it, how best to bring about results. I thought the best way to put the question before you would be to go back a little bit into history and figure out for ourselves just what our treatment of this question has been in the past.

In the early days of power development from falling water, nobody was interested in it; in fact, few are today, when you speak of the eleven and a half million people who live in the State of New York, and it was the policy of the State to incorporate by act of the Legislature any company that desired to use the falling water of Niagara Falls or desired to divert water from the Niagara River above the Falls for power purposes.

Federal Intervention in 1882.

Well, we went pretty far. We were very liberal in our grants until in 1905 the Federal Government, fearing the ultimate destruction of the Falls themselves, reached their hand into the State of New York and by the provisions of what is known as the Burton act, called after the Congressman who introduced it, entered into a treaty with the Dominion of Canada as to how much water could be diverted from the Niagara River above the Falls.

That stopped for a little while the legislative grants to develop water power, and in 1907 there was passed at Albany an act incorporating what was known as the Long Sioux Development Company. The Long Sioux Development Company, I am given to understand, is no other concern than the same one that we looking for the license in Albany for development only last week.

In 1913 the Legislature repealed the grant of 1907. The repeal was litigated to the Court of Appeals, and the Court of Appeals sustained the repeal of that charter and allowed the Long Sioux Development Company to go into the Court of Claims and make such claim against the State as they felt they could for damages as a result of a repeal of their charter, and they received, I believe, some $60,000 that was engineering costs. So that an attempt as far back as 1907 for development on the St. Lawrence River between the years 1907 and 1913 resulted only in a nominal expenditure of $60,000 or $70,000 for plans.

Hughes's Proposal.

Immediately after the signing of the charter to the Long Sioux Development Company by Governor Hughes, the Governor realized how important was the grant given to that water power company, and he sent a message to the Legislature asking for the development of the remaining State water power possibilities by a plan that was to be submitted to the Legislature by the then Water Power Commission, specifically saying that the plan was to comprehend that development under State ownership and under State control. So that we find that the origin of the theory of State ownership and State control of water power development does not begin in the socialistic age in which I came to office, but belongs back to my socialistic predecessor, Charles Evans Hughes.

All this socialistic talk is with due deference and due respect for The New York Herald Tribune. They put me in the socialistic class because I had the nerve to follow what Hughes said.

Let us follow it along year by year and inch by inch from the time that the original policy was enunciated. In 1911 the old Water Power Commission that had duty placed upon it by law was merged with what we have today, the Conservation Commission. The Conservation Commission came into the Legislature in 1913 with a definite plan. It was a little bit early. I defended it. I talked for it as leader of the party on the floor of the Assembly, but it was a little bit early, and the plan was a little bit drastic and it required a great expenditure of public money and probably its defeat at that time was in the best interest of the State.

Too Early, He Thought.

I state that to you in order to establish my frankness in this matter. That was a Democratic theory, but I wasn't any too strong for it because I don't think the State was ready for it, not that it was wrong, not that anything connected with it was basically unsound, but it was a little bit early. You know as well as I do that in Democratic government you can get ahead of the parade every now and then too many blocks. You have got to be able to look around and see whether all of the members of the regiment are with you or not, and if they are not, you are not in so good because you have to have help.

Well, now, we will let that pass. In 1915, however, that statute was on the statute books of this State and it threatened the private power interests, because it still contained that basic principle of State ownership, State control. They couldn't repeal it and the only thing to do was to kill it by indirection, and it was killed by indirection by an amendment of the Conservation law that provided that no plan coming from that commission could be effective unless it had the approval of the Attorney General and the State Engineer. Neither of these two distinguished officials was very ready at that time to give any too much attention to power development, and by withholding their approval it was a dead letter statute. That is the real truth about it. There it remained until I arrived in Albany in 1919.

Wants Men With Ideas.

I am willing to admit that I had some fantastic ideas about this. They may not be all right. Nobody is perfect. I like the man that has an idea. I don't care what it is, as long as he has got one. We have suffered, the Lord knows, under men that don't have any, and nothing is worse than that in Government. As long as he can't do it himself, all by himself, let him have it, because there is that other balance wheel that in time will tell him whether he is right or wrong, or whether he must modify it or amplify it. It doesn't make any difference what I recommended in 1919, that is not here nor there. The editor of The Herald Tribune, in his edition of this morning's paper, was terribly exercised because I changed my mind. The best thing that can happen to his paper is for him to change it.

Every now and then it is well for us to gather around the board and decide on one thing, and that is that the past is dead, forget it. Let's deal with the present today. If we had to recount all the mistakes that have been made by our predecessors in the past in the handling of our governmental affairs, it would be a terrible thing. Why, there was a time when, down here in the basement of the City Hall, the original Board of Aldermen, that was known under some old Amsterdam Dutch name as Burgomasters, were discussing as to whether we were going to have highways or canals on Manhattan Island. Fortunately the fellow with the loudest voice and the best argument won out for street highways. If it wasn't for that, instead of automobiles, a man would have to be a good boat-puller or a good oarsman. You would be hiring an oarsman instead of a chauffeur to get up Broadway.

Sources of Firm Power.

That is past, and let's get down to today. This map was supplied to me and I thought it would be a good thing for me to use for illustration of our present situation. At Niagara Falls and on the Canadian border, because of the St. Lawrence River, we have what can be called the sources of firm power, firm power as against what the men that are versed in it refer to as dump power.

You have got to have the basic source of power to be able to accomplish anything. The New York Edison Company has a number of reducing stations and generating stations on Manhattan Island, but without the waterside stations the rest of them mean nothing. The great waterside station for the people of the State of New York and the great source of firm basic power, power available 365 days in the year, night and day, is on the St. Lawrence and in the Niagara River.

The river districts that are set up here are capable of a certain water power development, but they are useless, useless for the purposes of a State-wide power development unless they are supplemented by auxiliary steam plants, because they freeze up in the Winter time, and if you have any doubt about it come up to Albany, even today, and take a look for yourself at what is going on in the northern part of the State. On the St. Lawrence and the Niagara Rivers you have your day and night possible development 365 days in the year.

In accordance with our treaty with the Dominion of Canada, there is available on the St. Lawrence probably by the so-called two-stage development—those are technical terms (I have no real understanding of them myself; I will be honest with you, except that they call it the two-stage and the single-stage)—but I know that there is there the possibility of development of probably a million and a half of horsepower.

Cites Huge Possibilities.

Now I should like to translate that into terms that would be understood by everybody in the hall here. The Edison Company's waterside station at the foot of Thirty-sixth Street is lighting the whole theatrical district. It is making possible the glare of upper Broadway; it is supplying the electric current practically south of Fifty-ninth Street. It is able to take the peak load in the Christmas season and its possible maximum development is only 300,000 horsepower.

Now as 300,000 horsepower is to the whole lighting of Manhattan, figure for yourself the possibilities of a million and a half or two million horsepower on the St. Lawrence and the Niagara River, power enough not only for our State needs but also, I think I can safely say without too much of a technical knowledge of it, we could send it over the State lines into the New England States. So that power development in this State does not need to be restricted to our own needs, but we can supply our sister States with it.

Here we have today under State control and under State ownership the firm basic power that I speak of on the St. Lawrence and the Niagara River. Upon these rivers there are private owners that have the right to the water power that passes through the works that they are interested in, and in order to get that picture into your mind, we have got to go back a little bit into the early days, into the early history of water power use for manufacturing purposes.

Years ago industry found itself quartered upon the banks of these rivers because of the old-fashioned wheel that the water fell down upon, ground up the pulp to make the paper to carry on the industry.

Storage for Two Purposes.

However, we have fixed as a definite principle of government that we will store the water upon these rivers for only two purposes: First, for the prevention of the pollution of the stream itself; second, to prevent floods and consequent damage to property, so that the setting up of a reservoir for the control of these waters is in fact and in deed, so far as the law of this State is concerned, a public health problem and not a power problem.

Well, as far as I would be personally concerned, as far as I would care about it, I think it would be safe to say that if as incidental to the protection of public health from pollution or flood somebody is to be benefited by an even flow of the river, let them pay that cost, the setting up of that district, but don't let us make fun of ourselves and make a joke out of our own law and say that power companies, simply because they need additional water power, can have the State use its power of eminent domain to set up reservoirs to provide water for the power companies, and that is the reason why you read in The New York Sun that the Northern New York Power Company withdrew the application it made for the river regulating district on the Salmon River. What is it the business of the power company to ask anybody in this State to pledge their credit and their power of eminent domain to make additional water power for a power company? That is not the theory upon which we are running the Government. It would be all right for the city of Malone, on the Salmon River, to come in and say, "We no longer think that we need an even flow of the stream in the interest of the public health, but the New York papers told us that the attorney of the power company withdrew the application."

What has the power company got to do with it? This belongs to the people of the State of New York and not to the power company. If they are an incidental beneficiary, that is all right; we are satisfied.

How to Handle the Resource.

Now then, we come down to the all-important question of the State's present method of handling this resource. Here it is: We have got 2,000,000 horsepower possible and we have got a half a million horsepower possible in the regulation of these rivers without interference with any existing condition except the possibility of flooding of some part of our Adirondack lands, but the State itself can in the first instance determine whether or not they shall be flooded.

What is our present method of handling? We have no agency of this Government that deals with this question on its merits. Let us take its make-up. I said when we came here tonight that we were going to talk good, plain, ordinary, everyday, understandable English language so that the fellow over on Second Avenue and Eighth Avenue will understand it just as well as we do, Let us take the make-up of the so-called Power Commission. In the first place, it is made up of the Attorney General. The Attorney General is the State's law officer. What does he know about waterpower development? How many people voted for him for Attorney General with any notion in their mind that he knew anything about water power?

Let us take the Speaker of the Assembly. He comes from Chautauqua County and he is engaged in the business of growing grapes, a fine man. He is a great friend of mine. I take my hat off to nobody in Albany in my personal regard and respect for him. I like him—Joe McGinnies. What does he know about water power?

Take the Senate leader, Senator Knight from Arcade. He is a farmer in Wyoming County.

Take the head of the Conservation Department, an administrative officer, able to handle that department, there is no question about it, when it comes to the supervision of the care of our fish and game and of our forest preserves and all that, he is fine, but he doesn't know anything about water power.

Plan Came from People.

Now, then, where did the plan come from that was before this commission? According to the appropriation bill, they have one counselor at $6,000 a year and a Secretary at $4,000 a year. You can bet this hotel that neither the Secretary nor the counselor drew this plan up. Where did it come from? Under the State's present system the plan can only come from the people that want the power. They have the engineers; they have the money; they have the talent; they have the ability. They drew up the plan. Every line and every sentence that was in the report of the State Engineer and Surveyor of necessity came from the engineers of the power company that was seeking the franchise. They walked in and said, "This is the way to do it," and they called the roll and everybody said, "Aye."

Let me say that under the make-up of the new power commission it is not going to be any better ,and I say that with all the respect in the world for the commission that prepared the plans for the reorganization of the Government. In fact, it is going to be worse, because there is going to be no State Engineer on it.

Now let's take the make-up of the new power commission. Again we find the Attorney General, the State's law officer, and I think you will agree with me that the worst business men in the world are lawyers, the Conservation Commissioner and the Superintendent of Public Works: The Superintendent of Public Works is in direct responsibility to the Governor, and the Governor in turn to the people of the State, for an expenditure of more than $20,000,000 in a single year in the operation of the canal and the construction of roads and the maintenance of all the public buildings.

The State's law officer has the largest law office in the State of New York, with seventy-five or eighty assistants. The Conservation Commissioner is at the head of a large department of the Government that not only has to do with the Saratoga reservation but has to do with the enforcement of the fish and game laws, the protection of the forests and the acquisition of additional forest land for the preserves, and plus and above it all, under the reorganization, there has been put into his department control and supervision of the State's park system from Montauk to Niagara Falls. Those are the three men who in the next year are supposed to figure out a water policy for the State of New York. Why, you might as well put the duty on myself. I have got as much time; if I kept out of bed entirely and never ate anything and just kept working all the time, I could do it as well as these men.

Praises Colonel Green.

Therefore, for the sake of argument, let us admit this or let us contradict it. We haven't got any agency in this State today for any study of our water power possibilities, and any plan submitted to us must come from the people that want the water power. You can't have it any other way. There isn't a more diligent man in the State of New York than Colonel Green. I will give the Attorney General his full due. He is on the job.

The Conservation Commissioner doesn't belong to my party, but he is a good man. I will take the whole three of them and roll them into one and they can't do this job, because they haven't got time. If they do do it, then three great big departments of the Government along other lines of equal importance to all the people of the State must of necessity be neglected. So I think we had better admit that we haven't got any agency, and that we are just sitting back waiting for somebody to come in and tell us something.

Is it not possible for you to see in that set-up that I have just made why I opposed the present grant or the proposed grant? I opposed it for the one fundamental basic reason that it was not a license to defend anything. It was an option, that is all, and the Water Power Commission sat up there in all of their dignity and all of their lack of understanding of the thing and were ready to give something that the law didn't give them the power to give, and that was an option on the right to defend the water power.

At the end of three years, if nothing happened, all they had to do was to take a walk for themselves, and say, "Well, we don't like this," and all they paid was $75,000 a year to the State for its engineering and legal services, irrespective of what it might cost, that was the maximum that they were required to pay. That is almost like taling a fellow, "Here is the Hotel Astor, you can live in it for three years and get all the service there is to it and make the best you can out of it for your future. If you don't like it at the end of three years, bring it back to me and all you have to do is pay the gas bill."

Find Too Many Critics.

Well, I appreciate that it is the easiest thing in the world to tear down and to criticise. Everybody likes the man who can find fault with something and show it up in right terms, but at the same time they like to know that he has some other proposal. We are suffering a great deal in the State and the city and the country from the fellow who can find fault with what the other fellow is doing but has nothing to suggest himself.

Now I have something to suggest. In the first place, I suggest that we adopt the fundamental principle and that fundamental principle is that we are going to regard these water powers, these possible water-power developments as being the property of the State that must not be alienated even by lease for any period of time, because I have a kind of feeling against this business of being happy tonight and thinking that you are securing the State and the generations to come by some wise move that you make.

None of us cares anything at all about the man who doesn't learn by experience. Let us look a little bit into the past, see what has become of the ventures that our forefathers embarked upon, under the theory that they were protecting us. Let us take for example the charter of the New York Central Railroad. When the State of New York gave the New York Central Railroad the right to run through what is unquestionably today and what will in the future be the greatest industrial centre in the world, the Mohawk Valley, from Albany to Buffalo, they put a proviso in the charter that they were to carry passengers at the rate of 2 cents a mile. That charter is still a matter of record. Go over and see if you can buy a ticket for $2.

When I went to Albany first I got a ticket for $3.10, $3 for the 150 miles and 10 cents to the Vanderbilt family for going over the bridge. Today it is $5.25. What happened in the meanwhile? The State in the exercise of what it believed to be its sovereignty made that bargain with the New York Central Railroad, but later on the Federal Government, when it decided to regulate interstate commerce, said, 'One minute this road is an interstate road, and the lean and the fat must go together, and on those branches of the road where they don't make money you have got to make it for them on this branch.' That is the reason why you pay $5.25.

Says Agreement Means Nothing.

The legal end of it I am not going to discuss for a minute. I am frank to say that I have no understanding of it. What is more, I don't care about it. All I know is that that franchise agreement means nothing. I also know that when the Board of Aldermen, back in 1845, granted a franchise to the Hudson River Railroad Company to use Eleventh Avenue they gave the Hudson River Railroad Company a limited franchise, and I know that the State thereafter, in the exercise of its sovereignty, said that whenever two railroads amalgamate you can go into the office of the Secretary of State and fix the term of the franchise, so the New York Central Railroad, then chartered to run between Albany and Buffalo, amalgamated with the Hudson River Railroad and called themselves the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad, and they fixed the terms of their franchise at the modest term of 999 years, and only sixty-odd years of the 999 having elapsed, we might as well say that they have gotten Eleventh Avenue and everything that goes with it forever.

The point that I want to make is that we have no idea of what is going to happen in the future. We can't gauge it. We can't measure it. But if we alienate this property to any private interest, we are subject to all the hazards that come from actions in the future. It may be that the day may come when this power is sent over State lines, and we may have set up in Washington a super-power corporation, under whatever name you like to call it, and some court may decide that that is interstate commerce, and we can just sit down and have nothing to say about the rates that the power is going to be sold for on the premises that we own.

There is nothing socialistic or revolutionary about that. That is just appraising the thing as it is, on the experience of the past. Now, therefore, I say let us take these basic sources of power and say by law that they are to remain the property of the people of the State of New York. And if they mean anything to the private companies that want to develop them, they mean just as much to the State.

Now, let's get along on the question of State development. Some years ago, we had a notion about State ownership or State development as being entirely a State matter, and from that grew all this talk about the socialistic ideas of the proponents of State development. But we found out that it is possible to create within the State an agency of the State for the purpose of progressing public development without any responsibility to the State itself beyond the point that the commission establishes before they proceed the economic soundness of the development that they undertake.

Finds Nothing Socialistic.

Now, how any man that voted for the New York Port Authority or how any man in the Legislature that voted to set up the Port of Albany can talk about a power authority as a socialistic proceeding is more than I can understand. What is the difference? Here we were confronted at the Port of New York with a situation that required the expenditure of $250,000,000. Certainly the City of New York can't stand that. Certainly the State of New York can't stand it. Nobody asked the State of New Jersey to stand it. But what did we do? We set up an agency of the two States and we declared them to be a body politic incorporated. We gave them exemption upon their bonds from State taxation, and we declared their securities to be instrumentalities of the Government, and we put upon them the burden of going out into the public market and borrowing the money upon the proved economic value of the work that they were to perform.

Where did we get $14,000,000 from for the two bridges over the Kill van Kull from Staten Island to the State of New Jersey? What about the $20,000,000 that was bought up here at 4¼ per cent. in the last week to start the bridge across the North River from Washington Heights into Jersey? There is no State credit behind it. There is no pledge of the public funds. There is no obligation growing out of the public Treasury. They are all predicated upon their earning power, upon their ability to be able to produce returns that will pay interest on the bonds and amortize them when they are about to be retired.

Fortunately, we have no stockholders in these bridges. The stockholders are the people of the State of New York and the people of the State of New Jersey. They are our common property. We are not pledged for all time to come to pay something to the stockholders who received the stock as a bonus for the purchase of the bonds.

Is there anything too big about this undertaking that the same principle cannot be applied? Why can't the State of New York set up a power authority, declare by law that it is a body corporate and let it raise the money for the development of these water powers at the source, and after they have developed the energy sell it to the distributing companies at a price that will safeguard the interests of the State or the authority in its investment, and at the same time have some consideration for the ultimate consumer?

Legislature Would Ratify.

If this authority was to be set up by law and commissioned by law to proceed, it wouldn't work. Therefore, I have recommended what? That the plan that comes from that power authority be submitted to the Legislature for ratification, and by plan I have not in mind the blueprint of it or a picture of a power house or a picture of the St. Lawrence River or a picture of a dam that is built at Barnhart Island. By a plan I mean a comprehensive scheme that includes first construction, financing, and ultimate distribution of the power.

Now, what can be wrong about that? If there is such a power authority set up, it will be the first time that any State agency has made any definite study of the whole proposition in the interest of the State, because I think it is clear to everybody's mind that all plans so far submitted were submitted to the State by the interested parties.

What about the tunnel over to Jersey? Why, we could have any number of tunnels between here and Jersey if we would commission private individuals to build them. If this tunnel from Canal Street over into the State of Jersey is a success, and there isn't any doubt about it, you could get all the private capital from here to California ready to build another one. The receipts of that tunnel, based upon the present ferry charges across the Hudson River, will yield a return to both States in excess of our wildest dreams and imaginations about it, although it did cost $40,000,000.

Insists He Is Consistent.

Have I been consistent in my attitude on this? Why, of course, I vetoed bills that were accepted even by the Mayor of New York, that gave away private privileges to individuals to put tunnels under the North River. Look at the Bear Mountain Bridge. There you have got an obligation for all time to come of 8 per cent. upon preferred stock of that bridge. Why should the State of New York give to any small group of men the right to do something that the State can do itself? I don't understand that.

Now, somebody is going to ask me: Suppose it can't be done by the State, suppose that the power authority we organize isn't able to make contracts with distributing companies at a price that will guarantee the interest and amortization of the bonds. That is possible. I don't claim for this that it is going to just ride through the State in a blaze of glory and make everybody lay down and say I am the great power fellow. Why, I don't believe that.

Suppose it doesn't happen. Remember that the power authority, if created, is charged with bringing in a plan, and if I have the right to name them, you can bet your life that I will name the biggest men that I can bring to the service of this State, and when they speak they will speak with an authority that will make the people of the State believe that they know what they are talking about.

Now, if they come in and say it can't be done, then that is the time for us to invite the private companies in and say, "Gentlemen, we confess to our helplessness. This is not a governmental function. It is not something that can be fitted into the general scheme of Government. It belongs to private endeavor. It belongs to private enterprise. What are your best terms?" And let's then talk to them.

Confidence Is Necessary.

Now, what can the objection be to that? Who can stand up in Albany or in New York and say that there is any real reason why the State of New York should not set up this authority for what great purpose? For informing the Legislature and the people of the State upon the possibility of State or private control hereafter, it meaning as it must that there must be ultimate development, whether it comes under State ownership and control or whether it comes under private ownership and control, because if there is anything that democratic government needs and requires it is the confidence of the man on the street.

You have got to have him with you. You can sit around the table and talk all the fantastic ideas about government that you like, but if the man on the street isn't with you, it doesn't go. And you will bring him with you and you will bring him into line only when you are able to show him every side of the question, and one of the great sides that he wants to know is why he shouldn't own it as well as the man that seeks it privately.

Let's take the Port of Albany. Somebody in the audience tonight may say: "Well, you can't make a comparison between the Port of New York Authority and a proposed water-power authority, because, as far as the Port of New York is concerned, you are dealing with another State, and you have got here an interstate proposition."

Let's take the Port of Albany; that is not interstate, but is entirely within our own State. We have set up there by law an authority that will go into the market and borrow $25,000,000, supplementing an appropriation of a like amount from the Federal Government for the deepening of the channel between Castleton and Albany. Where is that money coming from? Not from the City of Albany, not from the State of New York, not from the Federal Government but from the people that believe and have reason to believe that a development of the Port of Albany will yield sufficient money in return to amortize the bonds and pay the interest on them. The same thing applies to the bridges between Staten Island and New Jersey. The same thing applies to the bridges over the Hudson River, and the people of our State and of our country have not been slow to take on faith and on promise bonds for an enterprise the financial ability of which has been demonstrated.

As part of a plan, there must be the demonstration on the part of the power authorities that it can carry the bonds. Somebody may say that it may need a little bit of money to start it. Fine! If the financial problem is all right, if the set-up is proper, why shouldn't the State itself make some little start upon a development that means so much to the people? We will get it all back. We will get it all back out of the bridges. We are going to get it all back out of the tunnel. While we are sitting here talking about a great big development like this that runs up into $260,000,000, how many of us know how much we really cut from our annual tax roll for this tunnel? Between 1919 and 1926 we put $21,000,000 in cash into it and nobody knows anything about it because we just put it up, that is all, and there it is. And we put it up in the first instance on faith, because there was some discussion as to whether or not that tube could be ventilated to a point where there would be safety in case of accident. Now that we are satisfied with it, everybody is going to go down when it opens up and ride through it out into Jersey and sing, "Three cheers for the Red, White and Blue, and we have got a great tunnel and we don't know how we got it."

Put Down as a Socialist.

Isn't it a strange thing that nobody raised this socialistic question when Mr. Mills suggested the State construction of these power houses? It is one of the funny things about our Government. While he was recommending that, he was put in the reactionary class. Then I came along and asked him to amplify his ideas about it, and I was put down as a Socialist. However, that doesn't belong in the argument.

Now, what do I want? What is the definite plan? Let us set up the power authority first by law, and let's declare by law that we propose to make this a body corporate with the right to issue its own securities against the proven economic value of the power that they propose to produce. Let them go to work. Let us for the first time have a State agency look into it instead of a State agency waiting for somebody else to bring the program to them. If when they arrive before the halls of the legislative body in 1928 they say that it is impossible and it can't be done then let's sit down and talk about private development, because then the public mind will be prepared for it. They will know from a competent authority that the State is unable to do it.

Now, that is a simple program; it is in line with the Port Authority program. When the Port Authority was created, it went up to the Legislature with a $250,000,000 program for port development, comprehending tunnels, bridges, electric railways between here and the Hackensack Meadows, but nothing happened or could happen until the Legislature gave approval to the plan.

Now, if there is anything better than that, if there is anything that goes further to satisfy the public mind about it, let somebody come along with it, but don't let's have a commission up in Albany that, by the nature of its make-up, can pay no attention to this subject, can have no time to give to it, but sits there waiting for somebody down in New York to tell them what they ought to do about it.

Now, I think I have outlined as clearly and fairly as I can the plan, and if there is anybody who wants to ask me anything about it, if there is anything that I said that is open to question, I will do the best I can to answer you.

Now, as a single engineering undertaking, it was just as much of a risk as would be the pledging of the credit of the State even to that amount in the development of dams and power houses for power on the St. Lawrence River.

Here is what I ask the Legislature to do—I ask the Legislature to set up a power authority that by its nature will fit in to the same picture that Charles Evans Hughes put the Port Authority into. He said: "It is not a branch of the Government; it is an instrument of it." I am asking for an instrument of government that will study this question and bring in to the Legislature a plan. I am asking that that plan be engineeringly—if that is a proper word—and financially sound, and that the man who suggests it will be able to show you where to get the money to build it and be able to show a contract for distribution of that power that will bring us sufficient return to the State to amortize the bonds and pay interest on them during their lifetime.

No New Venture for State.

It is no new venture for this State. We are in the power business now. I lose my patience at times; I am constructed as a naturally good-natured kind of fellow. I have gone through a whole lot in my time, but I lose my patience with things now and then when people get to talking about socialism.

Why, we own two power plants. Tonight, while we are here in this room, the wheels are humming around in two State-owned power plants, where we are generating electrical energy, and we are selling it to the Cohoes Light and Power Company and to the Adirondack Light and Power Company, and we are getting enough money from it to run the plant and give us 10 per cent. return on what we paid for the machinery. We aren't such bad business men!

I see Mr. Cooper there whispering something and I know what he whispered. He said, "They didn't have to build the dams."

Mr. Cooper—You are wrong there, Governor; I didn't say anything of the kind.

Governor Smith—You thought it, all right, because that is the argument that you made, that we didn't have to build the dams; but if we did, it wouldn't make any difference, because if we only got 4 per cent. instead of 10 we would be even. And the other 6 could be applied to the dams and in a very short time we would be drawing on velvet.

DEMOCRATS TO TRY TO FORCE TAX CUTS

Plan to Invoke Rarely Used Rule to Compel the House to Consider Their Bill.

REPUBLICAN AID REQUIRED

Thirty-six Must Join the 182 Democrats in Demand to Take Up the Measure.

PROGRESSIVE HELP LIKELY

Mellon and Treasury Officials Are Confident No Changes Will Be Made This Winter.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Democratic leaders in the House decided today to fight to the limit to force consideration of their tax revision proposals at the present session of Congress. To this end they will try to take advantage of an old but rarely used rule of the House which provides that a majority of the Representatives, by signing a formal petition, can take a bill from a committee and consider it on the floor. By this plan the Democrats hope to defeat the purpose of the Republican majority of the Ways and Means Committee to prevent only tax legislation this Winter.

Representative Garner announced that a petition would be put in circulation at once praying that the Ways and Means Committee be discharged from further consideration of the Garner Tax bill, and directing that, if the discharge be ordered, the House proceed at once to debate the measure. It requires 218 members, a bare majority, to secure such a discharge. There are 182 Democratic members of the House. The 36 additional signatures required must be obtained from the Republican side if the plan is to succeed.

Mr. Garner appeared confident tonight that the fifteen or sixteen Republican progressives would join the Democratic demand for immediate tax revision and that other Republicans, moved by agitation for repeal of the amusement and automobile levies, would rally to the movement in sufficient numbers to assure consideration of the tax bill.

Hull Urges Early Action.

Representative Hull of Tennessee, former Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, raised his voice today for early tax reduction as proposed by the Garner bill. He declared that under a peace-time tax law, treasury surpluses should be used in prosperous years to cut the public debt, but that this policy should not be entered upon until Congress had repealed some wartime "hangovers," like the automobile and amusement taxes.

Treasury officials expressed confidence that the decision of the Ways and Means Committee to put aside proposals for tax reductions or refunds and recommend that the surplus revenues during 1927 be applied to reduction of the public debt should be final. Secretary Mellon indicated that no further efforts would be made by his department to advance the cause of the refund proposal and that the whole matter would be left to the discretion of Congress.

Mr. Garner's determination to appeal direct to the House for a vote on his bill was made known following a conference in which Mr. Garner, Representative Garrett of Tennessee and other Democratic leaders took part. In the opinion of the conferees the 182 Democrats in the House unanimously favored the Garner bill.

"There are many Republicans besides the thirty-six that we need on the discharge petition who favor tax reduction, and we propose to give them an opportunity to go on record for it," said Mr. Garner. "Our plan, chief features of which are a reduction of the corporation tax rate to 11 per cent. and repeal of the automobile and other so-called nuisance taxes, will relieve taxpayers of about $335,000,000 of unnecessary tax burdens, and will give more people more relief than any other plan that can be put through at this time.

Points to Big Surplus.

"It is significant that in 1924, and again this year, when Secretary Mellon and President Coolidge were urging permanent tax reductions they made as the basis of their plan the fact that the Treasury would show a surplus. But in both years the surplus was far below the $500,000,000 surplus it is apparent we will have at the end of this year. Yet now, with a far greater surplus than that on which they based their earlier reductions, they tell us we can't make a further reduction.

"The truth is, as nearly everybody knows, that in those years Mr. Mellon and Mr. Coolidge were eager for tax cuts because they wanted the surtax rates on great incomes reduced. Now that these have been cut to a point where they know they cannot be further reduced, they have lost much of their enthusiasm for tax reduction. They aren't willing now to help us relieve the tax burden to the extent of $350,000,000, although they know 70 per cent. or more of the cut would benefit the average taxpayer.

"Either we are going to force a tax cut, to which the people are entitled, or we are going to let the country know where the responsibility lies."

Mr. Mellon reiterated his stand against changes in the tax rates during the short session as proposed by Representative Garner. Other officials expressed the opinion that it was a wise course to reduce the public debt as rapidly as possible. They stated, however, that the suggestion of a refund had been made to Congress because, under some circumstances, it also might be considered a wise course to let the taxpayers profit directly through a refund if the Government receipts were heavy enough to make provision for a large debt reduction and also for refunds.

Predict $550,000,000 Sinking Fund.

It was figured out today that the sinking fund, payments by foreign nations on their war debts and other items made applicable by law to public debt reduction, probably would total about $566,000,000 for the fiscal year 1927. If the surplus is $383,000,000, as estimated by President Coolidge in his budget message, and all surplus is applied to debt reduction, the total reduction under today's recapitulation would be $949,000,000.

Annual saving in interest on the public debt to the taxpayers, if a surplus of $383,000,000 is applied to debt reduction instead of being used as a refund, was estimated at about $15,000,000. It was pointed out that this saving would apply not only to 1928, but to all future years while the debt was being liquidated. Should it require twenty-five years to cancel the public debt, the saving over that period, as a result of the use of a $383,000,000 surplus for debt reduction next year, would be $375,000,000 if interest rates remained at about 4 per cent.

KING FAILS TO END YUGOSLAV CRISIS

Ministry Still Unnamed and Results of Party Rivalries Cannot Be Predicted.

BUT ALL OPPOSE ITALY

Harmony on This Point Does Not Relieve Strain Over Pashitch Death and Treaty.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELGRADE, Dec. 13.—The present political situation is pronounced by Yugoslavs, accustomed as they are to crises, to be one of the most difficult the country has known, both in its external and internal aspects. It remains in such a state of flux that the hardiest does not venture to predict what the next turn will take—except doubt of any significant development immediately.

This afternoon the King consulted former Premier Davidovitch, the leaders of the United Serbian Democrats and Bosnian Mohammedans; M. Pribitchevitch, leader of the Independent Democrats; Dr. Korosets, leader of the Slovenian Clericals, who controls that Province even more firmly than Stefan Raditch.

Unless the King makes a decision late tonight the crisis will be carried over to Wednesday, for by a long-established custom of the Karageorgevitch Dynasty the King never does any business of State on Tuesday. According to a local tradition a leader of the House of Karageorgevitch was killed on a Tuesday in the Turkish wars.

There is a possibility that the King may decide late tonight again to ask Premier Uzunovitch to form a "Cabinet of Sacred Union," but even so until he succeeds in such a task it would not throw light on an obscure situation, and the Cabinet itself would begin—as any Cabinet must at this stage —as an experiment to test the strength of many unknown elements.

An Attitude of Armed Peace.

Externally the one thing that seems most certain is that Yugoslavia will do everything to avoid an open break with Italy—and at the same time everything to neutralize the effects of Italy's new treaty with Albania and Italy's growing influence in the Balkans. In other words, an armed peace will be maintained.

Just how Yugoslavia will endeavor to neutralize Italy depends on what government is formed here and the results of the soundings already made in Paris, London and Berlin, and possibly in Moscow, Angora and Budapest.

What government is to be formed, or, what is more important, what general lines the internal situation will tend to follow, depends upon the effects the death of the Serbian and Yugoslav boss, Pashitch, will have on the one hand upon the policies of the Slovenian boss, Korosets, and above all on the Croatian boss, Raditch; and on the other hand on the unity of Pashitch's Radical party, which has hitherto assured Serbia's domination of the Triune kingdom.

The present Italian tension tends to unite all three southern Slav peoples on foreign policy, each having now its own particular bone to pick with Rome —the Slovenes, the Slovenian minority in Italy, the Croatians Fiume and the Serbians Albania.

Former Premier Pashitch's death, coming at such a moment, may thus eventually tend to mitigate the disintegrating influence it would have had if he had died in a period of less foreign tension. But as yet it is too early to judge.

The present meagre indications do not point to a resumption of the struggle for Federalism or for Separatism, with the bitterness hitherto marking it, but it does point to the Slovenians and Croatians using the opportunity to insist upon a more decentralized government.

Radical Leadership In Doubt.

Much depends upon Raditch, whose actions always are incalculable and who is now an insoluble enigma.

The foreign situation and the fear of losing the dominant position of Yugoslavia may also tend to restrain the struggle within the Radical Party for the succession to Pashitch as leader from splitting it into three fractions.

Here again, however, what indications as are now visible point the other way. It is believed that Mt. Pashitch himself preferred to have the Speaker of the House, Trifkovitch, succeed him, but Trifkovitch broke down yesterday under the strain of the funeral, and though his health is improved today his illness further complicates the situation.

The first effect of Pashitch's death has been the cause of the various groups within the party, which his dictatorial prestige held together, of accusing each other of worrying him to death by premature efforts to secure his mantle.

Any serious split within the Radical Party is certain to have far-reaching results on the internal situation in the direction of decentralizing the Government, strengthening the Slovenes and Croatians and—not to be overlooked—the authority and influence of King Alexander, who is more likely to prove the real successor of Pashitch.

Rumania Seeks Balkan Locarno.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 13 (AP).—Rumania is planning to offer its good services as mediator between Italy and Yugoslavia in their controversy over the Italo-Albanian treaty. This was announced today in diplomatic circles and published in the newspapers without eliciting any denial from the Government.

Rumania will propose a Balkan accord similar to Locarno. This is rather a delicate situation, owing to the fact that in September Rumania concluded a treaty of friendship with Italy while she was a member of the Little Entente, in which Yugoslavia is prominent and the disruption of which, reports say, is threatened by the Italo-Albanian accord.

The Rumanian Minister in Belgrade, Theodore Emandi, has been requested by the Foreign Office here, the announcement says, to present this viewpoint to the Yugoslavian Cabinet.

Rumania is desirous of avoiding a new orientation in the foreign poli y of Belgrade, which might place the two countries in different political camps. Rumania's main aim, it is declared, is to save the Little Entente at all costs.

ROME, Dec. 13 (AP).—The Albanian Government has conferred the Grand Cordon of the National Order of Bess upon Premier Mussolini for his part in concluding the recently signed Italian-Albanian treaty of friendship and arbitration. King Victor Emmanuel has conferred the Grand Cordon of Saints Maurizio e Lazzaro upon President Ahmed Zogu of Albania. Premier Mussolini and President Ahmed Zogu exchanged felicitations on the signing of the treaty, which they said would strengthen the ties of friendship between the two nations.

Lenroot Says Administration Will Let the Matter Rest.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin who led the Administration's fight for ratification of the World Court protocol, said today, after seeing President Coolidge, that the Administration forces would do nothing respecting the World Court situation.

"The Senate has adopted the protocol with reservations," he said. "This represents the attitude of the United States. If the other members of the Court accept the ratification, the United States will become a member of the Court. If not, it will remain out of it.

"I feel that the commonsense of the Court members will induce them to accept our position. If not, the Administration will do nothing and the action of the Senate will be allowed to die."

STORM GRIPS WEST; NINE DIE IN COLD

Rocky Mountain Region Thirty Below Zero —Schools and Public Buildings Closed.

AIR MAIL SERVICE STOPS

Wires and Trains Crippled as Cold Wave Advances Into the Central States.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 13 (AP).—With zero weather general over the Central West, nine persons dead in the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific Northwest, and the transportation and wire facilities crippled, the western half of the United States tonight was in the grip of the most severe cold wave of the season.

In the Rocky Mountain region, where the cold followed a heavy blizzard on Sunday, Montana and Wyoming had, respectively, low mercury readings of 31 and 30 degrees below zero and Colorado had 30 below today.

Three deaths, one in Montana and two in Denver, were attributed definitely to the storm, and it was feared George McNamara, a Civil War veteran, had perished near Sheridan, Wyo. Denver's minimum temperature of 7 below was the lowest in two years.

Westbound trains were running behind schedule in the mountains, the air mail service practically was at a standstill and wire service was hampered. Schools and public buildings in several Western towns were closed.

Saskatchewan and Alberta were digging out of ten and twenty foot snowdrifts, piled up last night by a forty-mile wind in what was said to be the worst storm there since 1907. Stockmen on the western slopes were warned to care for their cattle and sheep.

Alaskans still were fearful of the safety of persons in the Aleutian Islands and the adjacent mainland when radio stations remained silent tonight after a three-day storm. Since 6 o'clock Saturday night no word has been heard from the powerful naval station at Dutch Harbor in the Eastern Aleutians, which usually is in hourly communication with navy headquarters at Cordova.

Earth tremors in Southern and Central Montana occurred during the storm last evening, but no damage was reported. The quakes apparently centred in Manhattan, in the southern section of the State, where tremors caused heavy property losses in June, 1925.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13 (AP).—From the Aleutians to the Alleghenies Winter clamped its bitter grip today, accompanied by zero weather and heavy snow. Tonight the fall in temperature made itself felt across Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan, and the first below-zero weather of the Winter was promised before morning in all the Central States.

Drops of 45 degrees in temperature were reported from many communities. At Yankton, S. D., the temperature fell 66 degrees in eighteen hours, and the Weather Bureau forecast drops of 40 to 50 degrees tonight in parts of Illinois, Michigan and Indiana.

In Minnesota, where drifts ten feet deep were reported in places, passengers on a train bound for the Twin City waded a mile through the snow when the engine was derailed to a relief train.

A car ferry, aground on the rocks in Lake Michigan near Milwaukee, unloaded part of its cargo in a bitter northwest gale and tried to get clear while four vessels stood by to rescue the crew of fifty-three men.

SEATTLE, Dec. 13 (AP).—Two persons were killed near Tacoma, Wash., today when their automobile skidded on newly fallen snow and a man and his wife were crushed to death in Kitsap County, west of here, by a tree which crashed through the top of their car.

A woman and her daughter perished on a farm near Hanna, Alberta, while they were seeking another child.

COLD WAVE IS ON WAY HERE.

Temperature Will Be Lowest Tomorrow and Thursday.

The cold wave which is sweeping through the West, leaving a trail of dead behind, is headed for New York. It is expected to bring the coldest weather of the season this week, according to a warning from the Weather Bureau last night.

The cold wave is expected to be most severe here tomorrow night and Thursday morning. Temperatures below 10 degrees above zero are likely. The lowest point reached here thus far this season was 11 degrees above zero a week ago today.

According to indications last night, it will be cloudy today, with rain in the morning. This will be followed by a considerable drop in the temperature, accompanied by strong west and northwest winds. By tomorrow the mercury is expected to drop below 20. Some snow may accompany the cold wave, but no heavy fall is in sight now.

The advance of the cold wave is caused by the movement eastward and southward of the area of cold which was built up over the Canadian Northwest. When it has finnished with the Atlantic Coast probably it will sweep out to sea.

pesetas. He expects to realize thrice that amount in the United States.

Reported Bought by Hearst.

The purchase of the Spanish cloister now being brought to America is understood to be William Randolph Hearst and it will be erected on his estate in California. A large part of the structure already has arrived here and is being shipped west by the Hudson Forwarding and Shipping Company of 17 State Street.

A vast amount of preliminary work had to be done before the cloister, stone by stone, could even start on its way from Spain. The only means of transportation was by ox teams and it was necessary to build some forty miles of road to the remote site of the old monastery, before the heavy stones could be moved.

Mr. Hearst is in California and could not be reached last night to ascertain the details of his purchase. This, however, is the second medieval building he has purchased in the last year and a half.

In the Summer of 1925 Mr. Hearst bought St. Donat's Castle, in Glamorganshire, Wales. This is to be used by Mr. and Mrs. Hearst as a home during their visits to England. It is one of the most historic castles in Britain and dates back to the twelfth century. One of its long-ago owners was a Commissioner of Piracy, at whose order many a sea rover was strung up.

The castle, which has twenty bedrooms, eight bathrooms and a large banquet hall, has been restored and modernized in recent years.

Daily Style Hint For Well-Dressed New Yorkers

NEW YORK, December 14—During snow-and-blow weather a windbreaker jacket is almost indispensable alike at winter sports of all sorts and for country and the suburbs and the motor car. It serves as a sweater, but with a sportsmanlike spruceness all its own.

Windbreakers of imported tweed. Toasty-warm. Chamois-lined for extra protection. Raglan shoulders and sleeves of pure camel hair. Exclusive, but not expensive.

BUCHAREST SEETHES WITH ROYAL PLOTS

By LINCOLN EYRE.

band. M. Bratiano flatly rejects all these proposals. He wishes a "symbolic regency," composed of Prince Nicolas, the King's second son, for the dynasty; the Chief Justice for the law and the patriarch for the Church, headed by himself during the minority of the boy Mihai when he succeeds to the throne on his grandfather's death. Thereby M. Bratiano means to perpetuate his own power, for with so feeble a Regency he will be the real ruler. Thereby, too, he must clash with the ambitions of M. Averescu and equally with the ambitions of Queen Marie.

The ex-Premier's second strongest opponent is Helene of Greece, an amiable and attractive young Princess whom her husband, the ex-Crown Prince, deserted in favor of the titian-haired Mme. Lupescu. If Helene's son becomes King, she, as his mother, claims she ought to have some say in the Government of his realm, and her claim finds support in no less a personage than M. Titelescu, the Rumanian Minister to London and one of Rumania's foremost statesmen. Through his followers in Bucharest M. Titelescu has urged a Regency composed of the Crown Princess and himself. He proposes himself on the ground that he is affiliated with none of the political parties, and therefore stands above them all.

Elisabeth, the erstwhile Queen of Greece, sides with her sister-in-law against Queen Marie, but prefers to seek a reconciliation between Helene and Carol, of whom she is still extremely fond despite her abhorrence of the insult to the Greek dynasty involved in his desertion of his consort.

Elisabeth Accuses Her Mother.

Between her mother and Elisabeth there is a new chasm. The ex-Queen of Greece is widely quoted in court circles as the author of the most biting comments on Queen Marie's American tour. She is said to have accused her mother of forsaking the dying King "to promenade Mlle. Ileana through the world," and refuses to regard Ileana as her sister.

The youngest of the royal daughters is the least active in the intrigues of the Court. She remains devoted to her mother, and, apparently on her behest, has been telling her intimates that "it is a shame to make poor Nicholas a stupid old Regent when he would much rather be just a naval officer."

The Queen of Yugoslavia is openly and ardently a Carolist—which is why Premier Averescu probably in this case is wholly in accord with M. Bratiano in virtually having her deported from Rumania. She adores her elder brother and declares his morals to be no worse than anybody else's at the Bucharest Court, and insists that his right of succession should be restored to him. To this end she has tried hard to persuade King Ferdinand to see Carol before he dies, thus far, however, without success. King Ferdinand undoubtedly would like to have his erring son pay him a last visit, but his parental affections are not proof against the obstacles interposed by Messrs. Bratiano and Averescu and the Queen herself.

Ferdinand Failing Rapidly.

While the sovereign is feebly striving to keep alive—his days are inevitably numbered by the cancer eating into his intestines. Probably he is unaware of the feminine conspiracies surrounding him. He regards M. Bratiano and Prince Stirbey, whom he sees three times a day, as his most devoted friends, and will do nothing—such as recommending a change in the Regency, which only he can initiate—without their approval.

The factors which have made these men all powerful in Ferdinand's Kingdom are virtual control of the national finances and production, and consequent control of the country's corrupt political machinery, including the police and army, and these factors stand unaltered. If M. Bratiano caused the documentary file about the peasant uprising to be removed surreptitiously from the royal archives, it is merely another manifestation of his power. It also indicates that he and M. Averescu are at odds, for the papers in question long have been a bone of contention between him and the present Premier. The point at issue is whether M. Averescu, then Minister of War, or M. Bratiano in the Interior Department was guilty of needlessly slaughtering 11,000 rebellious peasants. When M. Filipescu, who during his lifetime was one of M. Bratiano's bitterest enemies, became Minister of War several years later he found the dossier dealing with this affair missing from the official files, and he charged M. Bratiano with having stolen it. M. Bratiano refused to give to M. Filipescu the documents, but he agreed to turn them over to the King, in whose custody they have been ever since until their disappearance from the royal executive offices during the palace fire.

Apparently, as part of his revolt against the hereditary dictator—so-called because Jon Bratiano's father occupied relatively the same position during the reign of Carol I, the first Rumanian King—Premier Averescu is conducting a policy of rapprochement with Italy, absolutely opposed to his predecessor's course. M. Averescu hopes Premier Mussolini will help him by ratifying a treaty recognizing Bessarabia as Rumanian, but meanwhile Bucharest's relations with both France and Yugoslavia are imperilled.

Tentative moves on the Premier's part to establish an alliance, evidently directed against M. Bratiano, between his party and the National Peasant factions which stand in the united Opposition, so far have been fruitless.

Bucharest "Normal with Intrigue."

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 13.—With King Ferdinand somewhat improved, to the extent that he was able to eat meat yesterday, the hectic passion with which the capital has pulsated during the last fortnight is slowly fading into the commonplace routine of customary local politics and intrigue.

For three days no new rumors have been afloat and there has been no new version of regency changes, all discussion regarding the latter having completely ceased.

The last of the correspondents of the big American newspapers have left, disappointed that "the show didn't come off."

The Parliamentary Opposition yesterday at a public meeting renewed the old impotent game of attacking the Government.

Only intrigue continues in full bloom and life in Bucharest is restored to normal again. The King and Queen are equally calm apparently and contented. From a person in the Palace I learn that the Queen reads in the evenings by a fireplace to the King from a diary of her American voyage, making the King's long Winter evenings short and pleasant by evoking images of the distant American wonderland.

Report Carol's Popularity Waning.

PARIS, Dec. 13 (AP).—The death of King Ferdinand of Rumania is now a matter of weeks—a few months at best—in the opinion of most reliably informed travelers reaching Paris from Bucharest.

These travelers affirm that the recent series of operations performed upon the sick monarch were only temporary expedients, and that the cancerous growth in the intestines, which is the real seat of the trouble, has not been touched.

Only the gravest form of surgical intervention, with desperate odds against the royal patient, would insure the King's improvement, and at the present state of affairs the surgeons decline to take such a step on the ground that it probably would result in the immediate death of Ferdinand.

Reports that former Crown Prince Carol will go to Bucharest to bid farewell to his father constantly are recurring, say the travelers, but they add it appears that while the King would like to see his son, Queen Marie and the Bratiano brothers, who admittedly hold strong sway over Rumanian political affairs, are strongly opposed to it.

In the upper classes of court circles Carol is declared to be extremely unpopular. This is true also as regards the army, where previously he had found his strongest support. Recent events, it is asserted, seem to have swung the pendulum against him. Nevertheless, say the travelers, there still is talk in Bucharest of a coup d'etat in the event of the King's death that would put the prodigal son on the throne he once renounced.

People Generally Apathetic.

Apathy, say those who declare they know conditions in Rumania, is the only way to describe the feelings of the lower classes and of the general populace. This very apathy, they say, would militate in favor of an energetic dictator with three or four thousand determined men at his call, should a coup be attempted.

"All a dictator would have to do," said one of the travelers who observed things carefully during his stay in the Rumanian capital, "would be to seize the public buildings, the railway stations and other strategic points in Bucharest, and, above all, see that the city was fed. The potential Rumanian dictator would need a Minister of Railways and Transportation more than regiments."

The best informed classes in Rumania, however, the travelers declare doubt whether Carol would have the resources to embark on such an enterprise as a coup, and they are expecting that, rather than an attempted coup, there will be a long struggle to alter the Regency. At present the Bratiano brothers are holding the highest cards, those closest in touch with the situation declare, and their decision is most likely to decide the fate of Rumania and its Hohenzollern dynasty.

Queen Marie is constantly at the bedside of King Ferdinand. She has not made any public appearance in the city since her return from the United States, except an incognito visit to the ruins of the Palace Royal in Bucharest, which was burned last week. It is reiterated that she hoped to become Regent in place of Prince Nicholas, but that so far she has met with most steady opposition from the Bratianos, who, for the present at least, are insisting on exact conformity with the spirit and letter of the decree of Jan. 4 last depriving Carol of his rights as heir to the throne and calling for the Regency as now constituted.

Kellogg Submits Data to Senate Showing That Settlement Upheld Our Rights.

$23,800,000 DUE ANNUALLY

Paris Agreement Calls for $13,100,000 on Army Costs and $10,700,000 on Claims.

PROVIDED IN DAWES PLAN

Secretary Says It Was Believed That This Would Be Most Advantageous to Us.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—The claims settlement agreement with Germany was reached without any modification of the rights of the United States, Secretary Kellogg informed the Senate in a letter transmitted today at its request.

The complete correspondence bearing upon the settlement was submitted with a covering letter from the Secretary under the terms of a Senate resolution adopted April 14 last at the instance of Senator King, Democrat, of Utah. Containing several thousand words, the report was transmitted by the President without comment.

Many Documents Submitted.

Much of the correspondence had been made public before and all was described as having been made public in text or essential substance. It is understood the Ways and Means Committee was made acquainted with the full correspondence in its consideration of alien property legislation.

The exhibits attached numbered nine and embodied:

Communications between the American Commissioner at Berlin relating to the negotiation of the separate peace treaty with Germany.

Similar communications with the American Embassy in Berlin in 1923 relating to the negotiations of the Mixed Claims Commission agreement with Germany.

Correspondence with the German Ambassador at Washington relating to property of German nationals held by the Alien Property Custodian.

Instructions to the American Ambassador at London in 1924 concerning the interest of the United States in participating in Dawes plan payments.

A letter from the American Ambassador at London to the Secretary General of the Interallied Conference of Aug. 8, 1924.

Correspondence between the American Ambassador at London and the British Government on American participation in the Dawes plan payments, Nov. 5, 1924, to Jan. 4, 1925.

Letter from Leith Ross, British representative at the preliminary meeting of experts, to James A. Logan Jr., American observer with the Reparation Commission, Dec. 2, 1924, and memorandum of Jan. 3, 1925, presented by the American Ambassador at London to Mr. Ross.

Telegrams exchanged by Secretary Hughes and American representatives during the Paris conference, January, 1925.

A copy of the Paris agreement, Jan. 14, 1925.

Kellogg's Covering Letter.

The text of Secretary Kellogg's covering letter follows:

Department of State,
Washington, Dec. 11, 1926.
The President:

The Secretary of State has received from the Secretary of the Senate of the United States an attested copy of Senate Resolution 198, of April 5 (Calendar Day, April 14), 1926, reading as follows:

"Resolved, that the Secretary of State transmit to the Senate, if not incompatible with the public interest, copies of all correspondence, notes, exchanges and communications which have passed directly or indirectly between the Secretary of State and the Government of Germany respecting the settlement and payment of claims against the German Government for indemnification on account of destruction of life and property of American nationals subsequent to Aug. 1, 1914, including the instructions given to Ambassador Kellogg, who represented the Department of State at the Paris Finance Conference, and also advised the Senate as to whether the State Department at the Paris conference or otherwise, agreed that the United States should assume the burden of the payment of awards made in favor of American nationals against Germany, and accept from Germany in subrogation of the rights of its own nationals, annual instalments of $11,000,000 for the payment of private American awards, and annual instalments of $12,000,000 in reimbursement of the costs of the American army of occupation of the Coblenz area on the Rhine, and in payment of other Government claims, as representing the entire obligation of the German Government to the Government of the United States in the premises, and, if the Secretary made such an agreement, to advise the Senate of the considerations which induced him to make the same."

Details Steps Taken.

In compliance with the resolution the Secretary of State has the honor to submit to the President the following response with a view to transmission to the Senate if his judgment approve thereof:

With respect to exchange with the Government of Germany relating to the settlement and payment of claims against the German Government for indemnification on account of destruction of life and property of American nationals subsequent to Aug. 1, 1924, the Secretary of State begs to say that on July 5, 1921, the department telegraphed to the American Commissioner at Berlin for his confidential information the text of the joint resolution of Congress approved July 2, 1921, declaring terminated the state of war which existed between the United States and Germany.

On the same date, the department directed the American Commissioner to ascertain by informal inquiry whether the German Government intended to raise any question as to any of the rights, interests and advantages stipulated for the benefit of the United States in the Treaty of Versailles, and whether the German Government would be willing to enter into a protocol confirming all those rights and privileges.

A series of exchanges of communications ensued, which culminated in the signing on Aug. 25, 1921, of the treaty restoring friendly relations between the United States and Germany. Copies or paraphrases of the messages exchanged between the Department of State and the American Commissioner at Berlin are attached, as exhibit A.

On Feb. 22, 1922, the American Chargé d'Affaires at Berlin reported by telegraph that he had been informed by the German Foreign Office that the German Government regarded favorably the establishment of a joint commission to adjudicate claims against Germany.

After further discussion by the two Governments of an arrangement for the adjudication of claims against Germany an agreement providing for the establishment of a joint claims commission was signed on Aug. 10, 1922. Copies or paraphrases of the communications exchanged between the Department of State and the American Embassy at Berlin, which resulted in the signing of the agreement mentioned, are attached as Exhibit B.

There are also attached as Exhibit C, copy of a note of Aug. 6, 1925, from the German Ambassador at Washington concerning the property of German Nationals held by the Alien Property Custodian, and copy of a note addressed to the German Ambassador by the Secretary of State on May 4, 1926.

With respect to "the instructions given to Ambassador Kellogg, who represented the Department of State at the Paris Finance Conference," the Secretary of State begs to recall the fact that the Dawes Committee, in making recommendations concerning the payments to be made by Germany, stated that these payments should be of an inclusive nature.

The report of the committee stated: "Before passing from this part of our report we desire to make it quite clear that the sums denoted above in our examination of the successive years, comprise all amounts for which Germany may be liable to the Allied and Associated Powers for the costs arising out of the war, including reparation, restitution, all costs of all armies of occupation."

The term "Allied and Associated Powers" clearly included the United States.

Conference in London.

On June 27, 1924, the Department forwarded to the American Ambassador at London instructions (Exhibit D) setting forth the expectation of the United States to participate in the proposed payments under the Dawes plan.

At the conference which convened at London on July 16, 1924, agreements were made among the allied Governments, and also between those Governments and Germany, for giving effect to the recommendations of the Dawes committee. That conference, however, did not distribute payments to be received from Germany under the Dawes plan, but it was decided that the question of distribution would be taken up subsequently at a meeting of the allied Finance Ministers and a representative of the United States, which it was then proposed should be held at Paris.

During the London conference, on Aug. 5, 1924, the American Ambassador at London, with the approval of the Secretary of State, addressed to the Secretary General of the conference a letter setting forth the interest of the United States in the allocation of the proposed payments. This letter is set forth as Exhibit E.

Preparatory to the Paris Conference the Department of State deemed it advisable to take up in a preliminary way with the respectivev allied Governments the question of American participation in German payments under the Dawes plan. To that end, the American Ambassador at London was instructed to present to the British Government a communication concerning the position of the United States in the matter. This communication, which was dated Nov. 15, 1924, together with subsequent correspondence with the British Government, is contained in Exhibit F.

Discussions by Experts.

There also are transmitted herewith as Exhibit C, copy of a letter of Dec. 23, 1924, addressed to Mr. James A. Logan, the American observer with the Reparation Commission, who had participated in a preliminary meeting of experts preparatory to the Finance Ministers' Conference, by the British representative at that preliminary meeting, Mr. Leith Ross, together with a copy of a memorandum dated Jan. 3, 1926, which the department instructed the American Ambassador at London to present to Mr. Leith Ross, who was then in London.

On Dec. 31, 1924, the Secretary of State instructed the American Ambassador at London to go to Paris and, in association with the American Ambassador at Paris, and with Mr. Logan to represent the United States at the financial conference which convened on Jan. 7, 1925.

On the basis of the instructions and exchanges mentioned above, and pursuant to further instructions as set forth in Exhibit H, the American representatives procured the inclusion in the Paris agreement, which was signed on Jan. 14, 1925, of provision for American participation in the payments to be received under the Dawes plan. A copy of the Paris agreement which was forwarded to the Senate on Feb. 3, 1925, is attached for convenient reference as Exhibit I.

The Paris agreement did not surrender nor modify any treaty right of the United States nor in any way limit the amount of the claims of the United States.

The agreement specifically provided (Article 27) as follows:

"The provisions of the present arrangement concluded between the powers interested in reparations do not prejudice any rights or obligations of Germany under the treaties, conventions and arrangements at present in force."

With respect to that part of Senate Resolution 198 requesting the Secretary of State to "advise the Senate as to whether the State Department at the Paris Conference, or otherwise, agrees that the United States should assume the burden of the payment of awards made in favor of American nationals against Germany," I may say that neither the Department of State nor its representatives, at the Paris Conference or otherwise, made any such agreement or commitment.

Nor was any agreement or commitment made "to accept from Germany in subrogation of the rights of American nationals annual instalments of $11,000,000 for the payment of private American awards and annual instalments of $12,000,000 in reimbursement of the costs of the American Army of Occupation of the Coblenz area on the Rhine and in payment of other Government claims, as representing the entire obligation of the German Government to the Government of the United States in the premises."

The Paris agreement, which provides for annual receipt by the United States of 55,000,000 gold marks (about $13,100,000), with priority in respect of army costs, and 2½ per cent., not to exceed 45,000,000 gold marks (about $10,700,000) in a normal year, in respect of claims submitted to the Joint Claims Commission, was negotiated because it was believed that participation in payments under the Dawes plan would be advantageous to the United States.

The Department of State is not committed either by the Paris agreement or in any other way to the release of any claim the adjudication of which has been agreed upon between the United States and Germany, except in so far as such claim may be discharged by payment thereof.

Respectfully submitted.

LORD GREY REJECTS LLOYD GEORGE PLAN

Asquith's Supporter Declares Ex-Premier Cannot Reunite the Liberals.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—David Lloyd George's attempt to reunite the Liberal Party under his leadership is apparently not to succeed. This was made clear by Viscount Grey of Fallodon, who, in an important speech on Liberal policy tonight, announced that it was impossible to accept Mr. Lloyd George's offer to bury the hatchet and reunite on a basis of mutual trust.

Lord Grey's statement makes it evident that Mr. Lloyd George will not be able to lead a united party. Lord Grey, who apparently has been selected by the Asquithian branch of the Liberal Party as the Earl of Oxford and Asquith's successor, seemed anxious, however, to have it understood that there was no question of setting up a schism.

He said that there was no question of party leadership or of establishing a separate section within the party, but that the Liberals had a right to know where their leaders stood.

He declared that it was impossible to say that they were making a fresh start with the unity that was broken last Summer restored, because it would not be true. Differences were sunk in 1923 in the interests of free trade and party integrity, he said, but three years had passed and there had not been unity. There had instead been very unsatisfactory negotiations about party funds in 1924, he added, but Lord Oxford and his friends had not been to blame for them.

Mr. Lloyd George's land campaign, continued Lord Grey, had created disunion in the party, but again the Asquithians were not responsible. He pointed out that during the crisis of the general strike Mr. Lloyd George had declined to meet the other Liberal leaders and said that they regarded that as intended to be a definite separation.

It was now suggested that past differences should be wiped out and that the party should come together on a basis of mutual trust. That, said Lord Grey, was absolutely impossible. He asserted that confidence had been destroyed and that it was now impossible to keep in step with Mr. Lloyd George.

It was not a wholesome thing, continued Lord Grey, for the party headquarters to be dependent on a fund supplied by one person, namely, Mr. Lloyd George.

Lord Grey said he did not like the suggestion that the Liberal ideal for the next election should be to hold the balance of power in Parliament and insist on terms with the Labor Party. That policy, he declared, would make the Liberal Party odious in the country.

Whatever the result of the financial negotiations, Lord Grey said that he and his followers intended to stay outside them, but that that would not affect their action in advocating Liberal policy and staying within the party. He said that they would go ahead in their own way with Liberal policies and trust that large public issues and the general agreement of the party about Liberal principles would restore unity if desired.

Lord Grey condemned Mr. Lloyd George's recent speech on China, stating that it would be detrimental to British interests and make the settlement in China more difficult.

CHRISTIE 'CLUES' LEAD TO BUNGALOW

British Police Find Woman's Tracks in Powder, Fur Coat and Poison Bottle.

NEAR WHERE SHE VANISHED

House Is Used in Summer for Novel Writing by Daughter of St. Loe Strachey.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 14.—The police are said to have received important clues today in their quest for Mrs. Christie, the missing American novelist, but it is more than possible that they will lead no nearer to a solution of the mystery than have innumerable other "clues" which have been investigated without successful results.

For the moment the police are concentrating on discoveries made in a bungalow situated in a lonely spot a short distance from Newland Corner on the Sussex Downs, where Mrs. Christie's deserted car was found. The owner of this bungalow is Major Williams-Ellis, son-in-law of St. Loe Strachey, the novelist and magistrate. Supposedly this bbungalow had not been occupied since last July. But in this lonely building have been found log ashes in fireplaces and other evidences of recent occupation.

Discoveries in Bungalow.

There also have been found a bottle labeled "poison lead and opium," fragments of a torn up postcard, a woman's fur-lined coat, a box of face powder, the end of a loaf of bread, a cardboard box bearing two addresses and two children's books. In an adjacent hut was discovered a fragment of a newspaper dated Nov. 29.

The attention of the police was directed to the bungalow by two people who reported mysterious appearances and disappearances in the neighborhood of a woman who, they declared, fitted the description of Mrs. Christie. Directly she was seen she vanished through the undergrowth. The police kept watch on the bungalow but apparently nobody entered or left it.

Last night they scattered powder outside the entrance to the bungalow and this morning found, it is stated, clear traces of a woman's shoes in the powder.

Fur Coat Adds to Mystery.

Major Williams-Ellis is as mystified as the police over their discoveries. The two books belonged to his children, but he could not account for the other articles found. His wife does not recollect leaving a fur-lined coat in the place.

"It wouldn't surprise me," said Major Williams-Ellis, "if the missing woman had gone there, for it is an admirable spot for novel writing. My wife writes her novels there and spends almost all her time there in the Summer months. But, although she is a novelist and we are near neighbors of Mrs. Christie, we have never met her."

These puzzling circumstances may have a simple explanation, but they are complicated by the statement from Colonel Christie that the fur-lined coat does not belong to his wife, either. It will be remembered that a woman's fur coat was found in Mrs. Christie's abandoned car.

The local police have not given up the search in other directions. Deputy Chief Constable Kenward is firm in his belief that the missing novelist—dead or alive—is not far from Newland Corner.

"It isn't a theory," he is quoted as saying, "it is a conviction founded upon definite knowledge."

He is now mapping out an area of forty square miles into sections and each section is to be systematically combed. All ponds, rivers and pools are to be searched. Kenward has accepted the offer of a diver to assist him.

"You may take it from me she is here and will be found here," Kenward said tonight.

Husband Believes Wife Alive.

Colonel Christie still remains convinced his wife is alive and many of her friends hold the opinion that she will reappear, probably in London, where it is thought she may be in hiding. The theory that she found her way to London disguised as a man has not been abandoned. According to one newspaper, the police have information which they refuse to divulge and which leads them to the view that Mrs. Christie had no intention of returning when she left home.

In the meantime the public is asking what was the secret and sealed communication which Mrs. Christie is alleged to have left with her secretary, to be opened only in case her dead body was found. Will its mysterious and important message ever be revealed?

This baffling enigma of Mrs. Christie's disappearance is not without its humorous features. One newspaper has offered $500 reward to anybody giving information that will lead to her discovery. The consequence is that many amateur sleuths have been hot on the trail of a woman unfortunate enough to bear a resemblance to the missing novelist and there have been some discomforting experiences for both tracker and tracked.

The Scotland Yard authorities have not yet been called in the Christie case, but they are assisting in the search for Miss Una Crowe, daughter of the late Sir Eyre Crowe, who disappeared on Saturday as if the earth had swallowed her.

She telephoned home after she had left to keep an engagement, saying that she would not return to tea and was going on straight to a dinner party. She posted a parcel of borrowed books back to their owner and she is stated to have taken a taxicab. But extensive inquiries have failed to elicit the slightest evidence as to her present whereabouts.

POLES AGGRIEVED ON GENEVA ACCORD

Complain Their Country Was Ignored in Understanding Reached With Germany.

RESENTFUL TOWARD LEAGUE

Warsaw Officials Assert Faith In It Has Been Shaken—Internal Problems Absorb Government.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, Dec. 13.—Polish factions of all complexions feel deeply aggrieved over the events in Paris and Geneva in the last few days in which Germany has won the fight she has been waging since the war to escape allied military control, while Poland was utterly ignored in the matter.

Official anger is due not only to the fact that Germany since her entrance into the League, has been basking in the friendship of the Allies, upon whom Poland implicitly relied, but it is considered that Poland has far more at stake than any of them. This is particularly urged, with the reasoning that there is no immediate danger of Germany launching an attack upon her Western neighbors, but that the present temper of the Germans as a whole is such that a pretext might be seized at any time to start an offensive eastward.

This latest snub from the League, as officials here call it, has almost wrecked the country's faith in it, and while it is impossible to withdraw summarily from the League, they say it will get the minimum of support from Warsaw in its future undertakings. There are big internal questions demanding the entire attention of the Government, and it is said to be the new policy to straighten out these first, relying upon the national unity which is expected to result in being a big factor in solving external problems and warding off outside dangers.

Chief of these internal matters is the question of national minorities and the Government went resolutely to work today to correct admittedly bad conditions, especially among the Ukrainians, who being 4,000,000 strong, constitute the country's greatest minority. The Polish Government in both Volhynia and Eastern Galicia is poorly organized and conditions there are such that frequent clashes occur. In the town of Vladimir last week 150 inhabitants were arrested as agitators and are being tried en masse this week. Another bitter fight is going on in Galicia over the Government's attempt to remove the university from the old Czech town of Peldibred to Kowel, against the will of the Ukrainians who insist upon its removal to Lemberg and its continuance as a private, instead of a public, institution.

Other troubles are growing more frequent among the 1,500,000 White Ruthenians in Northeast Poland, these having led Marshal Pilsudski to demand reorganization of administrative methods among the minorities. The reforms not only include administration, but living and economic conditions.

The authorities feel that the first important step is to assist a revival of industry in these districts and giving the people labor, food and schools, believing that political conditions will improve accordingly.

The importance of the new plan can be seen from the fact that nearly half of Poland's population consists of so-called minorities. Many of these are Jews and Germans. Because they are scattered throughout the country no measures can be taken that would effect them as a whole, but they are expected to benefit from the betterment of conditions among the massed groups.

Stresemann Says War Wouldn't Have Occurred Had League of Nations Existed in 1914

GENEVA, Dec. 13 (AP).—The World War would have been averted, Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany believes, if the statesmen in 1914 had had as many opportunities of getting together as they have at present through the League of Nations.

He voiced this view in commenting to The Associated Press on the success of the negotiations just concluded here which assured the organization of a League system of investigation in place of the interallied control of German armaments, to which his Government objected. Remarking that not only France, but all the former enemies of Germany, had contributed to this result, he continued:

"The first condition that made this possible is the existence of the League of Nations, which permits representatives of the Governments to confer frequently 'man to man' instead of depending on colorless exchanges of diplomatic correspondence.

"If the statesmen could have met for four or five weeks in 1914, just as the Foreign Ministers met at Locarno and Geneva, and discussed the situation frankly and unreservedly, I am convinced that the great war would have been averted.

"Here, then, is one great service performed by the League of Nations, which henceforth is destined to be a medium in arranging the affairs of Europe."

The League was necessary and useful for the prompt and harmonious reconstruction of Europe, he asserted, adding: "Europe simply cannot stand another war."

The Locarno security conference and the meetings in Geneva, he continued, had inaugurated a new system of philosophy in statecraft, and that was straight dealing. He paid glowing tribute to all his colleagues, representing other countries, with whom he had been negotiating.

He had special mention for Foreign Minister Vandervelde of Belgium, who, the German statesman revealed, played the rôle of mediator in the difficult negotiations.

"And don't forget," he concluded, "that Belgium was the country with which Germany during the war and because of the war was on very bad terms. M. Vandervelde's attitude is indicative of the new Europe, based on cooperation and conciliation."

Dr. Stresemann left by automobile for Lausanne this afternoon. He planned to board there the train for Berlin, which left Geneva at 6 o'clock tonight carrying the staff of the German delegation. The German Foreign Minister said he wanted to get a little air motoring up the shore of Lake Geneva before entraining for the trip back to Berlin.

"I'm tired," he remarked, "and perhaps the fresh air will lull me to sleep."

TURKEY TRIES SUASION TO END WOMEN'S VEILS

Kemalists Cautiously Test the Reaction of Appeal to Reason for Uncovered Faces.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 13 (AP).—In striking contrast with the sweeping prohibition of fezzes last year, the followers of President Mustapha Kemal Pasha are now cautiously opening an attack on women's veils.

The skirmish began last Fall in speeches by the President in which he exhorted women to show their faces. Now the battle has definitely begun in edicts promulgated by some of the provinces obliging women to uncover their faces. This experimental method will test the reaction among the women, who, especially among the poorer classes, are more fanatic in their traditions and on the whole less submissive than the Turkish men.

The Kemalists hope to insure docile unveiling by arguments that the veil is unhygienic and decreases the earning capacity of women. The Province of Trebizond recently started the reformatory ball rolling when the Governor signed an order forbidding the veil and Constantinople is expected to second the order soon.

The Anatolian Town of Polatli also jumped into the reform race by tabooing the local feminine garb, which consists of ankle-long bloomers, and tight bodices—relics of the ancient harem customs.

INDO-CHINA RADICALS DEMAND INDEPENDENCE

Editor Goes to Jail—Mob Storms Hospital and Governor Is Assailed by Paris La Liberte.

PARIS, Dec. 13.—From Saigon the Paris evening newspaper La Liberte, which is conducting a determined campaign against Alexandre Varenne, the Governor of French Indo-China, has received today a cable reporting the alarming growth of the autonomist movement and some rioting.

"The native press," says this cable, "is becoming more and more violent in demands for the independence of the Annamite people.

"A new autonomist newspaper has been suppressed and the publisher and editor are in prison.

"Yesterday morning 200 natives, mostly students in technical schools and Annamite soldiers' tried to storm the Cholon hospital, and they injured the guard and three policemen. Then fifteen arrests were made."

This message, which is designed to indicate that Varenne's governorship of Indo-China is causing dissatisfaction, indicates that the unrest of the Cantonese in China has spread southward in small measure into the French possessions.

BRIAND IS JEERED BY FRENCH ROYALISTS

They Resent Deal With Germany, but Railroad Workers Greet Him With Flowers.

PARIS, Dec. 13.—Foreign Minister Briand received a somewhat mixed reception when he arrived at the Gare de Lyon tonight from his crucial German disarmament labors in Geneva.

While a large delegation of railway workers from important French lines were presenting a beautiful floral offering to "the great artisan of peace" as they called him, 250 members of the Camelots du Roi—a militant royalist organization largely composed of boisterous young men—were fighting with a formidable array of police outside the station, where they had met by a secret rendezvous to demonstrate against M. Briand's disarmament policy at the Geneva Council meeting.

The royalists were finally dispersed, leaving twenty of their number in the hands of the police. The prisoners were taken to the station, where nine were held for investigation.

In the meantime, M. Briand was listening to the enthusiastic shouts of the railway men. One of the leaders read to him a formal address in which the veteran statesman was thanked in glowing terms for following the workingmen's ideal of peace and justice, to the end that their children might enjoy the social and peaceful fruits of civilization.

M. Briand was much moved by this expression of appreciation and shook hands with many of the delegation. By the time he reached his motor car the police had the would-be demonstrators well in hand and as the Foreign Minister drove away only a few cries of protest were heard.

Among those who welcomed M. Briand back to Paris was Herr von Hoesh, the German Ambassador, who as soon as the Foreign Minister stepped from the train rushed up and shook his hand.

BERLIN, Dec. 13.—Wild boars killed and ate two children who were on their way to school in Lüdenscheid, Thuringia, a searching party learned today. The children disappeared three days ago, and today fragments of their clothes and bones were found deep in the woods nearly a mile from the road leading to the schoolhouse. Hard frosts during the last few weeks have prevented the boars from raiding the fields and, as a result, large droves are becoming bolder and bolder. An appeal has been made to all in the vicinity to join the drive against the dangerous beasts.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Dec. 13.—Though the bush fires in the Dubbo and Cootamundra districts have been conquered, others broke out in parts of the North and South with redoubled fury on Sunday, and today the flames were sweeping forests and plains, leaving a trail of smoldering desolation.

So far there have been six deaths, and hourly reports are being received of homes burned, cattle roasted and many thousands of acres of crops and grass and bags of wheat destroyed.

One farmer was burned to death in a roaring blaze which covered 7,000 acres near Wagga-Wagga and roasted thousands of sheep. There are rumors that in several Riverina towns phosphorus sticks have been found, suggesting incendiarism. Some blame disgruntled unemployed.

Whipped by a fierce gale, fire on a one-mile front is sweeping from the forest country upon the town of Adelong, obliterating homes, crops and fences on the way. All available fighters have rushed out in cars and they are frantically fighting to save the town.

GERMAN DUELIST JAILED.

In Friendly Encounter Student Inflicted Wounds That Proved Fatal.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 13.—Though his opponent died from a wound inflicted in a friendly duel, a student named Kruschke has been sentenced to only five months' imprisonment in a test case of the newly enacted anti-dueling law.

The result of the case was awaited with the greatest interest in collegiate circles and students crowded the court galleries during the proceedings.

The evidence showed that proper bandages for head, neck and shoulders had been provided and that seconds and a physician were present during the fight.

Kruschke's schlaeger pierced the protecting gear of his opponent and inflicted a small wound which three weeks later caused his death.

The court took into account the accidental nature of the mortal wound but declared that the result of the duel was evidence that schlaegers were deadly weapons and, therefore, found Kruschke guilty of violating the anti-dueling law.

GERMAN CABINET LAUDS STRESEMANN

Thanks Foreign Minister for Obtaining Cessation of Allied Military Control Jan. 31.

PRESS ALSO PRAISES HIM

Sees in Geneva Agreement Another Advance Toward Settlement of Post-War Problems.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 13.—The German Government today expressed satisfaction at the progress made at Geneva and gave a vote of thanks to Foreign Minister Stresemann for his success in reaching an agreement with the other Locarno powers on the military control question.

Every effort is made in political circles to show gratification, though the much mooted question of Rhineland evacuation has not been touched and a new problem which was not contemplated, involving German industry, has been injected into the political situation. While politicians are painting Geneva as a victory for the Reich, the average layman feels that no definite decisions were reached, since even withdrawal of the Inter-allied Control Commission has a string attached.

That the question of the manufacture for export of half-finished materials available for war uses cannot be settled before the departure of the Control Commission is taken for granted in industrial circles and therefore the commission will be merely replaced by control in another form.

The reactionary papers, which changed suddenly from hostility to toleration or mild censure on Saturday after the leaders of the Nationalists and People's Party had held a conference, laud the progress made but regret, as the Preussische Zeitung does in an editorial, that "eight days were needed to reach an agreement without definite decisions when a few hours should have sufficed."

Theodore Wolf, in the Democratic Berliner Tageblatt, remarks that politics cannot progress by the seven league boot method and that the recent Geneva session denotes a definite step forward. England's commercial demands and M. Tchitcherin's attempt to bring pressure on German politics and industry placed Dr. Stresemann in a hard position, he says, and he intimates that Tchitcherin's attacks on English policies tended to sharpen England's demands concerning half-finished materials.

Germany's efforts to fulfill her obligations, he adds, are shown by the fact that only two questions are now troubling the Ambassadors' Council, whereas a year ago more than a hundred disputed points on disarmament were slated against the Reich.

The Boersen Zeitung, a reactionary financial paper, says:

"Germany has no grounds for rejoicing, but she can breathe again. One of the worst fetters of Versailles drops off by abolition of the Control Commission."

Dr. Stresemann's organ, Taegliche Rundschau, expresses firm belief that the unsettled questions can be adjusted in a short time by the diplomats.

The Dax, which is owned by the Government, declares that military control ends unconditionally on Jan. 31.

The Socialist organ, Vorwaerts, describes the Geneva session as a compromise, not a victory. It regrets that neutral officers were not chosen as heads of the League investigation commissions. It charges that it is War Minister Gessler's fault if the Control Commission was not recalled before, and that it was because of the Black Reichswehr and reactionary semi-military organizations that the commission was obliged to remain. Vorwaerts also regrets that the commercial question of export of war materials cannot be handled outside the political arena.

Dr. Stresemann will probably appear before the Reichstag Thursday. The Socialists' lack of confidence motion will not be brought before the Reichstag until the new year, during which time the Government hopes to reach an understanding with both the radical and reactionary parties.

TO BUILD TURKISH RAILROAD

Belgian Company Signs $20,000,000 Contract Under Guarantee.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 13.—The Turkish Government has signed a contract with a Belgian company, La Société Industrielle de Travaux, to build a port at Samsun, on the Pontic shore of the Black Sea, and to construct two railroads of standard gauge.

The first line will branch off from the Bagdad Railway at Ulu Kishla and run to Kaisarie, about seventy-five miles away, and the second will connect Sivas and Turkhal, about seventy-five miles off.

It is estimated that construction will take three years and the total cost, including the Port of Samsun, will be about $20,000,000.

The Belgians will receive an advance of $3,000,000 from the Government and the Agricultural Bank of Turkey will guarantee the regularity of payments. All the material will be supplied by the Belgians.

A Swedish group, with which Danish firms are said to be cooperating, is also reported to have signed a contract for the construction of two railroads, but official confirmation is lacking, although it is known that negotiations have been going on. It is stated that the Swedish group proposes to build a railroad from Diarbekir to Malatia and thence in a northeasterly direction, and another from Eregli, on the Bithynian coast of the Black Sea, to Angora. The latter line would handle a timber and coal traffic.

Since the ill-fated Chester concession of 1923 the Turkish Government has refused all offers of foreign help and has been building its own railroads out of its current revenue. The signing of the Belgian contract shows that the Government of Angora is once more willing to accept foreign assistance in the economic development of Anatolia.

CALCUTTA, Dec. 11—An English officer on the East Indian railway, named Lewis, has been killed by a man-eating tiger and his assistant, named Bathgate, severely mauled. They were seeking a beast which had terrorized the district of Bhandad and were attacked in a clearing. Mr. Bathgate made an effort to rescue Mr. Lewis, and the animal tore off the former's arm. It then turned, killed Mr. Lewis and escaped.

STAKED HIS FORTUNE ON PASHITCH'S WORD

Prof. Pupin Made Loan to Serbia in Her Darkest Hours, and Was Repaid, as Promised.

How he staked his private fortune in 1915 on the word of the late Nikola Pashitch, venerable Serbian statesman, that Serbia would pay, even though the Austrian Army was hammering then at its gates, was told yesterday by Dr. Michael I. Pupin, Professor of Electro-Mechanics at Columbia University.

The American inventor from the Balkans had become well-to-do and famous before that year, and Serbia was then without an agent in this country to act for her financially. Pashitch wrote to Dr Pupin, the professor recalled, telling of Serbia's needs, and asking if he would send the hard pressed country locomotives, steel cars, portable tracks, and some other supplies, including lard, footing up to about $500,000 in cost.

Dr. Pupin bought, pledging, he said, "far more than I had, myself, in absolute trust of Pashitch." He sent the supplies to Serbia. Then came the second Austrian invasion.

"I was facing disaster," Dr. Pupin said. "By October of 1915, the Government at Belgrade had apparently disappeared from the face of the earth. But I never lost confidence in Pashitch. As soon as he and his shattered army had reached Corfu, the Ottoman Bank at Paris sent me a check to make my guarantee good."

At that time the two men did not know each other personally, but knew of each other's work. They met at the peace conference, at the request of Pashitch. Dr. Pupin went to Paris because Pashitch urged that his knowledge of English and the American point of view would be helpful in carrying through the nation's program for restoration in the present kingdom. The success of Serbia's effort at the peace conference is history.

"He was a true Serb of the heroic age," was Professor Pupin's summing up of the dead statesman yesterday, "liberal and democratic, a friend of the common people but nevertheless profoundly devoted to the royal dynasty of Serbia."

Reputed to be the wealthiest man in the Balkans, Dr. Pupin said the statesman spent his eighty-two years in a life of simplicity, with no desire for luxury, doing service to his country.

THREE ELECTIONS IN FRANCE

Republican Candidates for Chamber Win by Big Majorities.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 13.—Socialists and Communists suffered a decisive defeat at the elections held in the North of France yesterday to replace three members of the Chamber of Deputies who died. In each instance the candidate of the National Republican Union was elected over his Communist and Socialist rivals.

Felix Coquelle, Vice President of the Council General; Jules Carlier-Caffieri, Vice President of the Farmers' Society of the North, and M. Coutelle, former member of the Superior Working Council, were the successful candidates. The first-named polled 123,000 votes, while the second and third received 122,000 each. Their closest contender, a Socialist, received 142,000 votes, while the Communists registered only 65,000 votes among them.

The new members are expected to uphold the policies of the Poincaré Government of National Union.

HERTZOG AMAZES SOUTH AFRICANS

Home From Imperial Conference, the Premier Makes Loyal Empire Speech.

GETS A GREAT RECEPTION

His Change of Front Called Beginning of "Political Earthquake," With Consequences Unpredictable.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CAPE TOWN, Dec. 13.—General Hertzog, Prime Minister, received a remarkable welcome at Cape Town this morning on his return from the Imperial Conference, and speaking at a civic luncheon he made the most important speech of his career.

He said emphatically that he no longer feared the empire. He confessed that he had been a lifelong opponent of imperialism and had feared the empire. That was because the empire had been represented as a sort of super-State. But this conception had been scotched by the Imperial Conference.

There was no question any longer of domination or superiority over the dominions, he said. Each was now free to follow his own will. That made all the difference to his thoughts of the empire, which would never be conceived of in future as a super-State over the dominions.

General Hertzog added a remarkable declaration about the English-speaking South Africans. He said they naturally felt love and reverence for the country of their descent. He would not share that feeling—it would be absurd of him to pretend to—but if he were an English-descended South African he would feel all the more love and respect for England as a country which through free institutions and commonwealth ties of them had brought her younger nations to being "as free as the motherland and at the same time standing in the closest tie of affection."

He added that South Africans of whatever descent were and would remain South Africans first, exercising their power of freedom in the interests of their own country. They could leave the question of separation from the British group to the problematical future.

The speech made the profoundest impression. It is revolutionary in South Africa to have General Hertzog justifying the use of the word "empire" and declaring that English-speaking South Africans can be full citizens of South Africa while retaining love and affection for Great Britain. This, if maintained, is the death knell of the old Engar creed that the Dutch were the real South Africans and all others were interlopers, which has been the root of racial enmities for years past. General Hertzog unquestionably spoke in sincerity.

He also went out of his way to disclaim personal credit for what the Imperial Conference had done, saying he did no more than the other dominion Ministers. It was also noticeable that he spoke of the Dominions as including South Africa in a way which would have been most uncharacteristic before he went to London.

The prevalent opinion is that his speech begins a political earthquake in South Africa, none knowing what will follow.

GREAT ITALIAN LINER IS LAUNCHED AT GENOA

Mussolini's Daughter Christens the Augustus of 33,000 Tons and 38,000 Horse Power.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENOA, Dec. 13.—Signorina Edda Mussolini, the Premier's daughter, today christened the steamer Augustus, the latest addition to Italy's transoceanic passenger fleet to be launched. The Augustus, together with the Roma, is the largest vessel in the Italian mercantile marine and the largest ship driven by internal combustion engines in the world. In fact, Italy, with the Augustus, Saturnia and Vulcania, possesses the three largest ships of this kind in existence.

The Augustus is a 33,000-ton ship, 703 feet long and 82½ feet wide. Its four screws are propelled by four groups of the Diesel type of internal combustion engine, developing a total of 38,000 horsepower and giving a normal speed of 21¾ knots.

Its hull is divided into thirteen watertight compartments. The lounge, reading rooms, dining rooms, &c., aggregate 22,000 square feet, while the decks cover an area of 40,000 square feet. The liner will accommodate 300 first class passengers, 500 second class and 1,500 third class, and will carry a crew of 500 men.

Construction of the Augustus has been a record for speed at Italian shipyards. In less than eight months from the day the keel was laid the ship was launched. The vessel is expected to sail on its first voyage in seven or eight months.

SEES COOLIDGE ON CHINA.

Owen Roberts of Stock Exchange Fears Bolshevism There.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Owen Roberts of the Foreign Council of the New York Stock Exchange today had a long interview with President Coolidge, during which he laid before him the situation in China and urged this Government to use its good offices to prevent the increase of Bolshevism in that country.

Mr. Roberts also saw State Department officials. He will soon go to China and will make a study of the governmental and financial affairs there.

"There is no question in my mind that Bolsheviam is gaining a stronghold in China through the Cantonese leaders," Mr. Roberts said. "In my opinion, this Government should view the present situation in China with sympathy and do what it can consistently to prevent the spread of Russian doctrines. Russia is aiding the Southern Government in every way."

CZAR'S JEWEL TOYS IN DAZZLING DISPLAY

By WALTER DURANTY.

statuette of Lenin, sitting with his head supported on his arm, looks down sardonically. In the background half a dozen minor custodians, in pocketless gray blouses, tightly buttoned at wrists and knees, stand impassive. On the table before us there are jewels outspread, estimated in value at a quarter of a billion dollars. And the little train scurries along, with its platinum locomotive doing everything save emit smoke. For Nicholas this was just one of many toys.

Then came a stickpin watch, made for Nicholas II as a masterpiece of Swiss craftsmanship. Less than a th' - of an inch in diameter, of pure gold, no thicker than a thin fingernail, it still keeps perfect time.

Then there is a little orange tree, eight inches high, in a mother-of-pearl tube, with ruby and pearl ropes squaring it off, emerald leaves, ruby fruits and diamond flowers. You press a button and the tree opens, showing a tiny enameled nightingale sitting on a golden bough, singing and flapping its wings.

There is a small golden peacock in a crystal Easter egg, which spreads an iridescent tail and walks up and down.

There is a small gold ornament, shaped like an archery target, where, if you press a finger on the bullseye a series of small ruby coverings of miniatures of the royal family around the target slide up, showing pictures.

Coach With Diamond Lantern.

There is a gold stage coach, whose wheels turn round, four inches long by an inch and a half high, with a twenty carat diamond hanging swinging like a lantern within.

There are a dozen gold and jeweled Easter eggs, from a beautiful example of filigree work, presented to Alexander II, containing an enameled world globe.

There is a six-inch long gold oval crusted with tiny miniatures of all the czars of Russia, given to Nicholas II.

Priceless little seed pearl snowdrops, with emerald leaves coming up through diamond snow, are all enclosed in an Easter egg of rock crystal.

A miniature of the German Kaiser, surrounded with diamonds on a golden snuffbox, lies alongside a glorious diamond chain of the Grand Master of the Order of Saint Andrew, dating from Catherine the Great, with a dozen large diamond plaques of Russian double-eagles ending in a four-inch square enamel portrait of Saint Andrew stretched on a golden cross.

A small golden rattle, with ivory handle, which Catherine the Great ordered for her children, lies by a little gold hat of the same period, of Stetson shape, with turned-up brim encrusted with rubies and diamonds, which the ladies of that period wore at the top of an elaborate chignon.

The finally astonishing piece is a paper-weight figuring the English Queen Victoria, in green jade, decorated with a diamond crown and the Star of India.

Mirror Made of a Diamond.

Czar Nicholas I, who fought the British in the Crimea, amused himself with a wide gold filigree bracket containing a Renaissance Venetian mirror as large as a wrist watch, made of a diamond slab an inch and a half by one inch, set like a piece of plate glass upon a polished steel background.

Soviet experts reckon that a 100-carat diamond was demolished to provide this priceless, thin, transparent slice.

Then there are ponderous binoculars presented to Catherine the Great by the Sultan of Turkey, eight-inch tubes of bright yellow gold encrusted with rubies and diamonds, weighing nine or ten pounds. This is almost the only piece of Catherine's treasure, which equaled in ugliness, from an artistic viewpoint, one of the possessions of the late unfortunate Czar in the shape of an oval medallion portrait of the Czarevitch set in diamonds, standing on a lapis-lazuli pedestal atrociously decorated with nouveau dolphins.

TO TEACH CONSTRUCTION.

Prof. R. F. Tucker Will Give M. I. T. Course Founded by L. J. Horowitz.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 13.—Professor Ross F. Tucker has been appointed in charge of the new course in building construction which will begin in Massachusetts Institute of Technology in February. The course was founded by Louis J. Horowitz, President of the Thompson-Starrett Company of New York, through a grant from the Louis J. and Mary E. Horowitz Foundation.

Professor Tucker is a graduate of the Institute of Technology in the class of 1922, and until recently was a member of the Thompson-Starrett Company in New York and Philadelphia. The new course, which is designed to qualify men for the building profession, will cover four years and lead to the degree of Bachelor of Science.

YALE GETS $5,000,000 OF NEW ENDOWMENT

President Angell Announces One-fourth of Fund Obtained Ahead of Campaign.

HE OUTLINES PURPOSES

These Are to Provide Better Salaries for the Faculty and for Larger Student Body.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 13.—The $5,000,000 mark has been passed in the campaign to add $20,000,000 to the endowment for teaching at Yale University, in advance of a general appeal to the alumni, according to a statement made today by President James R. Angell.

President Angell this afternoon addressed the members of the three Student Councils at Yale and a few officers of undergraduate organizations. He spoke in part as follows:

"After a prolonged study of the situation by the officers of the university and as a result of consultation with her alumni over a period of two years, Yale is planning to increase her endowments by $20,000,000. We desire to have all the friends of the university, and particularly her students, understand as fully as possible the circumstances which have impelled us to take this step.

"Despite a widely spread view to the contrary, Yale is by no means the wealthiest of American universities. Her endowments are much smaller than those of certain of her neighbors, her budgets are very much smaller and her salary scales, while well toward the front, are by no means the highest.

Seek Quality, Not Quantity.

"The present pressing necessity for additional resources arises chiefly from the very rapid increase in student attendance and the extraordinary rise in prices which has reduced the purchasing power of the dollar by more than half. While our endowments have fortunately been rapidly growing, they have not done so sufficiently fast to keep pace with the two factors mentioned.

"The need for added resources to be correctly evaluated must be brought into content with our policy of limiting attendance and selecting the most promising candidates applying within these limits, a policy which was adopted in 1923 in the common freshman year and in the Medical School, and which is now being employed in the School of the Fine Arts, the Divinity School, the Law School and the Graduate School. It will be seen, therefore, that we are engaged in no expansionist program. We are seeking quality, not quantity.

"We wish to devote the new resources to salaries and to the endowment of the library collections, with a few other minor provisions. Less than a fourth of the entire amount is asked for the graduate professional schools and the Peabody Museum. The remaining three-fourths is for the improvement of the conditions of undergraduate teaching, for the protection and upbuilding of the library and for the further development of such work as that of the Bureau of Appointments, primarily of value for undergraduates. Not one cent is to go for buildings.

There should be no misunderstanding in the mind of anyone who wishes to see Yale occupy an unchallenged position in the front rank of American universities. We cannot maintain the morale of our teaching staff, we cannot follow the wisest and soundest trends in education, we cannot keep the quality of the Yale life at the finest level of excellence, unless we have as a minimum the substantial addition to our means which we are now attempting to obtain. It is truly a finer not a bigger Yale that we seek."

1,000 Graduates Serve on Committee.

More than 1,000 Yale graduates have already agreed to serve as chairmen or members of committees to obtain the new endowment. Conferences have been held in 44 states, and local chairmen have been secured in more than 300 cities and towns throughout the country. Each of these State conferences was attended by a University officer who explained the purpose for which the new endowment is sought.

Plans of procedure call for a general intensive effort next Spring among all alumni and other friends of Yale. Detailed statements covering the work and needs in all of the schools and teaching departments of Yale will appear in a series of special pamphlets planned by the Executive Committee.

The Executive Committee, according to President Angell, has the utmost confidence in the ultimate success of the Endowment Fund Campaign, not only in raising the $20,000,000, but in bringing home to every graduate and friend of the university full knowledge of Yale's educational plans.

SAYS MAN RETROGRESSES.

Dr. E. G. Conklin Asserts Study Shows Evolution Has Ceased.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 13 (AP).—The progressive evolution of man has ceased, and whatever change is taking place at the present time is retrogressive, Edwin Grant Conklin, head of the Princeton Department of Biology, declared today.

Professor Conklin, the author of many works on evolution, said it was the opinion of many careful students of the subject that no modern race was the intellectual equal of the ancient Greek.

"Evolution, either temporarily or permanently, has halted," he said. "Since the beginning of recorded history there have been few and wholly minor evolutionary changes in the body of man, but what changes have taken place have been retrogressive. Chief among these are the decreasing size of the little toe and perhaps a corresponding increase in the size of the great toe, decreasing size and strength of the teeth and probably a general lowering of the perfection of sense organs.

"Even in the most distant future there may never appear greater geniuses than Socrates, Plato, Aristotle, Shakespeare, Newton and Darwin."

Dr. Conklin expressed his conviction that eugenics would not lead to progressive evolution, with the formation of new characters and the emergence of a new type of man, but only to new combinations and existing characters.

LAWRENCE COLLEGE TO FIT GIRLS TO WED

Founder Asserts Many Now Get Man's Education and Are Not Prepared for 'Real Career.'

TUTORIAL SYSTEM PLANNED

New School to Reduce Classroom Work — Graduates Will Receive Diplomas Rather Than Degrees.

One purpose of the Sarah Lawrence College for Women at Bronxville, N. Y., will be to train girls for marriage, its founder, William Van Duser Lawrence, indicated yesterday before leaving New York for his Winter home at Daytona Beach, Fla.

He criticized the education of girls by thousands in large colleges over a four-year term as "too mechanical." He asserted that many girls were receiving a man's education which they did not need, and found themselves upon graduation "unfitted for marriage, which is their real career."

In the new two-year Junior College, under a tutorial system which would reduce classroom work to a minimum, he said he hoped women would be trained "to live profitably and to become valuable members of their community and assets to civilization."

Mr. Lawrence is the founder of Davis & Lawrence, drug manufacturing concern at Bronx Boulevard and 238th Street, but retired from the business several years ago. He is the developer of the Lawrence Park section of Bronxville, and the founder of Lawrence Hospital there. His wife, in whose memory he is founding the college and giving it $1,250,000, was Miss Sarah E. Bates of Monroe, Mich. They were married on Aug. 22, 1867. Mrs. Lawrence died last May. Two married daughters survive her.

The Rev. C. W. Robinson, rector of the Episcopalian Church in Bronxville, who was named by Mr. Lawrence as a trustee of the new institution, said last night that while the founder had planned the college for some years, some of the ideas upon which it will be run were not his, but those of Miss Marion Coates, Principal of Bradford Academy, who will be the school's first President. The general idea of a Junior College, he said, was taken from Western States where such institutions were common and successful.

Mr. Lawrence, he said, had turned to President Henry Noble MacCracken of Vassar as a notable educator, for advice and other assistance. President MacCracken is to be Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the school.

Graduates of the college, the Rev. Mr. Robinson said, would receive diplomas rather than degrees, and its standards would be such that holders of diplomas wishing further higher education would be admitted as juniors in a four-year college or university.

YALE NEWS ATTACKS SECRET SOCIETIES

Alleges They Influenced the Selection of Junior Promenade Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 13.—Yale secret societies must reform or face possible abolition, according to The Yale Daily News, which asserts editorially that they have taken part too actively in the election of the Junior Promenade Committee, which was announced today. The clique development influences which now envelope the societies must disappear, The News says, for their own good. The news proposed the establishment of more eating clubs to break up the fraternity cohesion and that only the junior class be allowed to eat as a unit in the fraternities.

The elections to the Junior Promenade Committee are regarded at Yale as the chief undergraduate social honor and the balloting which took place among academic and Sheffield Scientific School members to select sixteen members of the class of 1928 polled a full vote. The selections were as follows:

ACADEMIC DEPARTMENT.
Dana Treat Bartholomew, Ansonia, Conn.
George Bart Berger Jr., Denver.
Dwight Brown Fishwick, Glen Ridge, N. J.
Charles Tiffany Bingham.
George Winthrop Haight, Pelham Manor, N. Y., Yale News Business Manager.
Arthur Clendenin Robertson, Cambridge, Mass.
Lancelot Patrick Ross, Scarsdale, N. Y.
Harold Wetmore Snow, Detroit.

SHEFFIELD SCIENTIFIC SCHOOL.
Gerald Van Cleve Baker, Toledo.
Edward Cornish Jr., Little Rock, Ark.
Lewis Waldo Klag, Detroit.
Sidney S. Quarrier, Short Hill, N. J.
Stuart Sanger, Fishkill, N. Y.
Otis Alvin Saunders, Cambridge, Mass.
Horton Spitzer, Perrysburg, Ohio.
William Adam Webster, Shelton, Conn.

Of the academic members Bartholomew is a Yale Daily News editor and varsity carsman; Fishwick, a football player; Bingham, an athlete and scholarship leader of the class as well as son of United States Senator Bingham; Haight is business manager of the Yale News; Robertson won the Ten Eyck Prize speaking last week of the Sheffield School members; Webster is the football captain-elect; Quarrier is both football player and carsman and Sanger is a football player.

Two members of the committee, Robertson and Saunders, hail from Cambridge, while no one was selected from New Haven.

Wed 63 Years, Advise Simple Life.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Dec. 13.—Mr. and Mrs. John Marks celebrated their sixty-third wedding anniversary here today, receiving friends and relatives. John Marks is 88 years old, and his wife is 82. Both are advocates of the simple life. "Folks live much too fast these days," Marks said. "And they don't live long. My advice to all is to live the simple life. It makes a difference."

ORDER RED LEADERS OUT OF CLOAK STRIKE

Executives of the International Union Form Provisional Body to Assume Control.

FIGHT ON PROPERTY LOOMS

Strike Head Defies the Union to Take Books—Officials Pledge Efforts to Return Workers to Jobs.

Convinced that the Left Wing and Communist leaders of the cloakmakers' strike "were unable to save the rank and file from continued subjection to a strike policy which has resulted in misery and suffering for 40,000 men and women and reduced the New York unions to a state of ruin," the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, through its General Executive Board, assumed charge of the strike and local union machinery yesterday.

The General Executive Board directed that as an emergency measure Louis Hyman, Chairman of the General Strike Committee, who is also President of the Joint Board of Cloak Unions, be ousted from both positions, together with his associates on the Strike Committee, Charles Zimmerman, Julius Portnoy and Joseph Boruchowitz.

International Union President Morris Sigman acted promptly and organized a provisional Joint Board with headquarters at his offices, 3 West Sixteenth Street, and provisional committees to take charge of the affairs of the seven unions of cloakmakers affiliated with the Joint Board.

The 20,000 cloakmakers who work for the American Cloak and Suit Manufacturers' Association, the submanufacturers, and who have been locked out since last week, received a promise that the international union officials would move promptly to get them back to work. Mr. Sigman will probably communicate with the contractors today and discuss their requests for an agreement similar to the one granted by the union to the inside manufacturers or for arbitration.

The international union directed the General Strike Committee, the officers and members of the joint board and all employes to deliver within twenty-four hours to the General Executive Board all books, records, documents, securities, moneys and all property of the union in their possession.

"Let them come and take it," Mr. Hyman declared last night from the offices of the joint board at Lexington Avenue and Twenty-fifth Street. Exactly what form the struggle for the property of the joint board, which owns the East Twenty-fifth Street building, and for the buildings owned by some of the local unions, would take, could not be ascertained last night. It became known that the international union was interested in the unprecedented expenditures amounting to $3,000,000 for strike purposes, incurred by the local officers.

The action of the General Executive Board yesterday was the result of a revolt among the strikers which began ten days ago when they met and demanded that the Communist leaders make peace with the contractors and the jobbers. At noon yesterday a thousand unionists gathered at Mr. Sigman's headquarters and pleaded with him to get them back to work and to assume control of the local unions, saying they were "penniless and starving." About the same time several thousand operatives locked out last week by the contractors gathered in front of Joint Board headquarters and called on Mr. Hyman to state his program for the immediate future. Mr. Hyman asked for a few days to submit his plans.

The General Executive Board's pronouncement to the cloak makers asserted that the strike leaders had abandoned every vital issue. It was alleged that the strike had been begun for the benefit of the Communist Party, "not to win concessions and better conditions by you, but to please the Communist politicians under whose heel they have been all the time."

The General Executive Board decided on its action at a meeting in the Hotel Continental where a committee consisting of Max Amdur of Montreal, Julius Hochman of Boston and Charles Kreinder of Cleveland reported on the local situation.

BATTLE AT STRIKE MEETING.

Left Wing Members Attacked When They Bar Anti-Communists.

A free-for-all fight between the adherents of the Left Wing and Communist leaders of the cloakmakers' strike and the anti-Communist leaders occurred in front of Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East Fourth Street, last night when entrance to a meeting of the Pressers' Union was refused to the anti-Communists. No arrests were made.

It took Captain Hanley of the Fifth Street Station, six patrolmen and five detectives some time to restore order. Six hundred men and women were in an uproar when the Communists were jeered for barring the anti-Communist members of Local 35, who asserted that the entire membership had been invited to the meeting.

Traffic was held up as the anti-Communists charged their opponents. Fists struck out, hats were smashed and collars torn. After the police sorted the two factions the anti-Communists went around the corner to Beethoven Hall, where they sent for their leaders. They carried President Morris Sigman of the International Union into the hall on their shoulders, pledged loyalty to the union in its fight against the Communists and applauded speeches by Julius Hochman, Salvatore Ninfo, David Dubinsky and others.

The Left Wing forces adopted resolutions attacking International Union President Sigman and demanding that the members of the General Executive Board resign. The Communists invited their friends to appear before Mr. Sigman's office at 1 P. M. today "and make a demonstration."

TWO FUR HOUSES WIN STAYS AGAINST UNIONS

Unlawful Picketing Halted by Court Order—Embroidery Workers Also Enjoined.

Three injunctions against labor unions and their members were granted yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Delehanty. Two were against the Joint Board of the Fur Workers' Union of New York and the International Fur Workers' Union of the United States and Canada. These were applied for by the Fifth Avenue fur houses of A. Jaeckel & Co. and H. Jaeckel & Sons, Inc., on the ground of unlawful acts by the officers and members of the union. The third was obtained by the Real Embroidery Company against the officers and members of the Bonnaz Embroiderers' Union, Local 66, of the International Ladies' Garment Workers, on similar grounds.

In the H. Jaeckel & Sons, Inc., suit it was admitted that the plaintiff's employes were not on strike, but the Joint Board of the fur union denied authorizing the picketing or other unlawful acts complained of, while the international union made no denial of the allegations. Justice Delehanty said the plaintiff was conducting an open shop and none of its employes belonged to any union. There is no question, said the Court, but that "unlawful picketing, interference with the employes of the plaintiff, threats, intimidation, force, violence and obnoxious and abusive language" were used, and that the Joint Board participated in such acts.

In the A. Jaeckel & Co. suit the Court said there had been no complaint by employes as to working conditions, so far as the firm knew, prior to Oct. 7, but on that day members of the union compelled many employes to go to the office of the union on the ground that a strike had been called, which, the Court said, was the first notice of a strike. Justice Delehanty declared employes had been compelled to picket against their will, after which many returned to work and others now wished to do so, but were prevented by the union.

Justice Delehanty decided there had been an unlawful attempt to unionize the store.

Granting the injunction to the Real Embroidery Company, the Court said that the plaintiff conducted a non-union shop. "As there was no strike, the union and the employes were not justified in picketing or interfering with the plaintiff's business," said Justice Delehanty.

O'Neill and Holmes Triumph.

John O'Neill and J. H. Holmes were the winners in the English billiard handicap tournament games at Hoppe's Academy last night. Holmes defeated James Taggart, 175 to 119, in seventy-one innings, and O'Neill won from Frank Stewart, 350 to 143, in forty-five innings.

ICE-BOUND IN STATE CANAL.

Sixty Barges in Danger Between Rome and Albany.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 13 (AP).—Sixty barges, laden with more than $1,000,000 worth of wheat, flaxseed and barley, are ice-bound in the State Barge Canal between Rome and Albany and face destruction or serious damage unless immediate steps are taken for their relief, Division Engineer William Acheson reported today. He said the situation was the most serious which has faced operators on the Barge Canal since its opening.

Six movable dams within the area occupied by the boats must be raised before further cold weather sets in, the engineer declared, but to do so will endanger the craft and probably bring about their destruction. The only solution, he believed, was to remove the cargoes over the ice, leave the boats crewless and then open the dams.

HARVARD HONORS LOWELL AT SEVENTY

University Marks Birthday of President With Gift and Testimonial.

THIRTY YEARS OF SERVICE

Deans Hail Progress Under His Regime—Angell, Hibben and Butler Congratulate Him.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 13.—Harvard University today celebrated the seventieth birthday of her President, Abbott Lawrence Lowell, at a special meeting of the several Faculties and administrative officers held at University Hall with President and Mrs. Lowell as guests of honor.

Professor Clifford H. Moore, Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, presented to President Lowell a silver bowl of the eighteenth century which bore the following inscription:

"Abbott Lawrence Lowell, from the teachers and other officers of Harvard University in grateful appreciation of his services and in testimony of their high regard, Dec. 13, 1926."

The Harvard Crimson, the undergraduate daily, today issued a special feature supplement which contained articles sketching the history of Dr. Lowell's career at Harvard during the past thirty years, thirteen as a professor of Government and seventeen years as President, succeeding President Eliot.

Messages of congratulation were received by President Lowell from President James Rowland Angell of Yale, President John Grier Hibben of Princeton and President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia.

Birthday Letter From the Deans.

At the reception Professor Moore read a letter of congratulation to President Lowell which was signed by the Deans of all departments of the university. The letter follows:

To President Abbott Lawrence Lowell,
Dec. 13, 1926.

Sir:

For nearly eighteen years Harvard University has grown and prospered under your presidency. You brought to your high office ripe experience of public service, of teaching, of scholarship, and, above all, a clear vision of what this university may accomplish in leading its students to love learning and the wisdom to discern the way.

Under your leadership scholarly attainment has become more attractive to young men here than ever before; and every part of the university has profited thereby.

From the college now go each year into our graduate schools large groups of young men who have already distinguished themselves as scholars. They are prepared to search out principles and to deal with the problems of a world that is ever new.

Such students are inspiring to their teachers and lead the way for their fellows. The increasing resort to our graduate schools and their recognized high accomplishments testify to their worth.

Academic Freedom Maintained.

Nor have you been unmindful of other things. In your Administration unprecedented gifts have been made to the university. The consequent material growth has secured better living conditions for students; it has provided larger means for teaching, and opened greater opportunities for scholars young and old to pursue their studies.

Faithful to our tradition, you have maintained freedom for both teachers and students to search for the truth and to report what they believe they have found. With determined justice you have resisted every attempt to let prejudice or passion come between us and our ancient motto.

When your aims have been misunderstood, you have nevertheless gone forward with unfaltering courage and patience, confident that time would prove the wisdom of your purposes. This confidence has been justified. The success of the policies in which you have taken the lead here is proved by their adoption elsewhere; and the voice of mistaken criticism dies away.

Therefore, in grateful appreciation of your unselfish devotion, your wise and inspiring leadership, and your high personal character, we, your associates in teaching and administration, today offer our congratulations on the past and pledge you our loyal confidence for the coming years.

HARVARD-PRINCETON PEACE PARLEY OFF

No Reason Given for Break on Eve of Meeting Between the Undergraduate Committees.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 13.—The peace conference between two undergraduate committees of Harvard and Princeton which was scheduled to take place some time this month has been given up definitely, it was learned here tonight. The exact reasons for the failure of the conference to materialize as planned are not known. No official statement could be obtained from those in authority at Harvard.

"The conference between Harvard and Princeton for the purpose of discussing our respective grievances will not take place," was all that Leo F. Daley, President of the Harvard Student Council, would say.

The movement to promote a meeting between undergraduate groups from the two colleges involved came shortly after the Harvard-Princeton athletic break was announced. After some communication between Joseph Prendergast, President of the Harvard Senior Council, and Daley, President of the corresponding Harvard body, it was decided that each council should appoint a committee of five members and that the two committees should meet sometime in December.

Cappiello Defeats Millwood.

A. J. Cappiello came from behind in the final few innings to defeat H. J. Millwood at the Claridge Billiard Academy last night in the amateur three-cushion tournament in progress here. The score was 30 to 29 and the match required ninety-one innings. In the afternoon match F. C. Irving defeated A. L. Lewis, 30 to 22, in 110 innings.

Gifts of Lasting Value

Among the many interesting pieces for Christmas gifts in our new collection, we briefly mention a few of the outstanding ones; painted Louis XV and XVI bergères covered in soft-toned velvet and damask. A choice Italian Sansovino chest, typical ornament in unusually high relief with a grotesque head at either end of the facade. The splendid condition and patina of this piece recommend it to the connoisseur contemplating a lasting gift. Many fine Chippendale chairs in mahogany. One choice example shows curled acanthus leaves super-imposed on a moulded lattice. The stretchers are galleried and the front legs taper to a terminal foot.

BANTON FORESEES SPEEDIER TRIALS

Says He Will Soon Be Able to Cut Criminal Calendars to a Minimum.

LONG HOPED FOR GOAL NEAR

Only 710 Indictments Pending, He Asserts, Against 2,500 When He Took Office.

District Attorney Banton of New York County, speaking over WNYC, the municipal broadcasting station, told his radio audience last night that he would soon be able to reduce the criminal calendar to a minimum and reach the goal that he had been working toward for five years, namely, the trial within three weeks of a plea of not guilty of any one indicted for crime in this county.

"When I became District Attorney five years ago," said Mr. Banton, "there were nearly 2,500 indictments pending in this county. A person in jail might be tried in three months and one on bail in eighteen months. Today the calendar contains only 710 indictments. At the end of the Summer vacation there were only 660. This increase in one calendar is the result of alterations being made in the Criminal Courts Building. We now have only seven court rooms and only seven Judges can work instead of the nine Judges available.

"My idea is that the only deterrent to crime is certainty of detection and speedy and successful prosecution together with some sentence. The prosecution loses 80 per cent. of the value of the case if it is not tried in six months."

Mr. Banton went into great detail as to the manner in which he conducts his office, which he called the largest criminal law office in the world, with 221 persons on its payroll. He said the District Attorney was the "least understood and most talked of county official."

"How is the District Attorney's office misunderstood?" Mr. Banton asked himself. "First, many persons think that I am a detective. I am not. It is my job to prosecute, not to detect the crime. I allow the police to do their duty, and they are doing it well in the matter of detecting persons accused of crime.

"Secondly, I am not a collecting agent. More than one-half of the complaints received by the District Attorney are merely civil in their character, and are brought to him for the purpose of compelling some one to pay a debt.

"My arrangement with the Police Commissioner is that in all cases in which arrests are made before 11 o'clock in the morning, and in which the defendants are accused of burglary in its most serious aspects, robbery in the first degree, or of being gunmen, are presented to the Grand Jury that day, and if the defendants have criminal records they are indicted on the same day, not only for the crime of which they have been accused, but also of being second or subsequent offenders."

SHOPPERS NOW HAVE BIGGEST POLICE GUARD

Commissioner McLaughlin Says Protection Is the Best Ever Offered Holiday Trade.

Although no deadline has been drawn as in past years, there are more policemen on duty in the shopping area than ever before, according to announcement yesterday by Police Commissioner McLaughlin. Even the time-honored Monday morning "line-up" at headquarters has been suspended in order to release more men to safeguard the holiday shoppers.

Discussing reports that the operation of the Baumes laws had driven criminals from the shopping area, Commissioner McLaughlin said:

"There was never a time when there were more men and more equipment in the shopping centre to safeguard the shoppers and the shopkeepers than at the present time. In order to safeguard the shoppers and the storekeepers the 'line-up' on Monday morning was dispensed with and the motorization of the shopping centre is in effect. There are additional armored cars patroling the district and even the clerical forces have been put in the shopping centre."

The Fifth Avenue Association, Inc., issued this statement:

"There never was a time when the shopping centre received better protection than it is getting during the current holiday season. The Fifth Avenue squad of picked detectives has been increased in strength by the addition of a large number of plain-clothes men. The straight posts of uniformed police have been shortened materially and the entire Fifth Avenue section is patrolled more vigorously than ever by policemen in the new armored motorcycles.

"At a conference at Police Headquarters yesterday Captain Pedrick, Vice President and general manager of the Fifth Avenue Association, received the assurance of the Police Commissioner that there would be no let-up in the drive against criminal activity, and that no matter how beneficial the strict enforcement of the Baumes laws might be, police protection will continue to be maintained more aggressively than ever, in order that the crowds of shoppers thronging the streets of the midtown area and the valuable merchandise stocks carried for the holiday season may be accorded a maximum of protection."

LEARNS NAVY STRENGTH IS UNDER TREATY 5-5-3

House Committee Studies Effects of Budget Cuts in Executive Session.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP).—After it had received testimony that the American Navy is below the authorized 5-5-3 strength the House Naval Committee today held a two hours' session behind closed doors. Chairman Butler announced later that all members were pledged to secrecy, but he gave assurance that there was no reason for any one to become excited.

Representative Britten, Republican, Illinois, attacked the Director of the Budget for failure to recommend appropriations for three cruisers whose construction had been authorized by Congress. He said a Cabinet member had informed him that Director Lord had brought unfair leverage to bear in forcing these appropriations to be omitted.

Admiral Eberle, Chief of Naval Operations, recommended to the committee that the three cruisers and an additional dirigible be constructed, despite the failure of the Budget Bureau to recommend an appropriation.

Assistant Secretary Warner, in charge of naval aviation, testified that the budget had cut the initial request for the naval air service from $17,000,000 to $9,000,000. This, he said, would necessitate a material reduction in number of planes to be bought under the program approved last session by Congress.

Of a total of 134 submarines Admiral Eberle testified eighty were in condition to go into action immediately in case of a national emergency. He considered an annual expenditure of $164,000 for maintenance of forty ships out of commission was justified.

Japan now is leading the nations in submarine construction, the Admiral said, and to put the United States on a par with that country would cost $110,000,000. From a standpoint of national defense, he advised that such a sum might better be expended for the construction of cruisers.

GLOVES : IN THE NEW YORK MANNER

Goatskin Gloves

$2.65

FROM the Pyrenees, in Spain, come the skins from which these handsome gloves are made. Goatskins, because of the widespread demand for them, are now rather rare. The price of $2.65 is, we believe, very unusual for this quality. They are in the smart hickory shade, a tint of golden tan. Tough in service, but soft and pliant to the touch—an ideal Christmas gift.

61 BLUE LAW FINES LEVIED AFTER RAIDS

Bail of 23 Others Forfeited as Irvington Collects $168 for Sunday Violations.

BUS MEN DEMAND A JURY

Movie Counsel, Whose Reprisals Stir New Jersey Town, Will Seek Advice of Ministers.

Special to The New York Times.

IRVINGTON, N. J., Dec. 13.—Fifty-five of the ninety-eight persons who were arrested in Sunday's round-up of violators of the Blue law of 1854 pleaded guilty in court today and were fined $2 each. Twenty-three others failed to appear in court, and their $2 bonds were declared forfeited. Six denied their guilt, but each paid $2 in the end.

These were the fruits of victory for the Irvington movie theatre proprietors who, indignant that the Blue law had been invoked to close their places of entertainment, set about to make the purveying of delicatessen, the sale of cigars and the purchase of gasoline as hazardous as opening a movie theatre on the Sabbath.

Resting on these fruits, the movie men, in their throwback to Puritan days, denied that they planned to try to halt railroad trains next Sunday, or that they would seek to make Sunday a better day in any other place than Irvington. In fact, Herbert Kruttschnitt, gas-filling station monitor, threatened reprisals.

Mr. Kruttschnitt was before Recorder Frederic Stoddard this morning. He was one of the persons caught red-handed in violation of the Sabbath. He glared at Ernest P. Biro, attorney for the Stanley-Fabian Company, owner of a chain of movie theatres and one of the most active of Sunday's enforcement squad. The glares Mr. Kruttschnitt directed toward Charles Bechtold and John R. Clark, two other movie men, were equally concentrated.

He charged that Biro, Clark and Bechtold, in the very act of enforcing the ancient Vice and Immorality law—so old a statute that there is a legend hereabouts that it was written on papyrus—had themselves violated the law. Mr. Kruttschnitt argued that they were being paid by the Stanley-Fabian Company when they meandered about Irvington while the church bells were tolling and bought this and that.

But to get back to Recorder Stoddard's court. Even in the days when Irvington was three miles southwest of Newark and not merely a suburb of that city the court room never held such a crowd. It took the Recorder minutes to get to his bench.

$168 in Fines Rung Up.

In batches, the fifty-five persons who entered pleas of guilty paid their fines and departed. Then the twenty-three missing ones were ticked off and Recorder Stoddard directed the clerk to add their $46 to the $110 already in the cash register. Up stepped six hardy ones who declared themselves innocent, but the Recorder questioned them a while and then $12 was rung up on the register.

Then the cases of the four employes of the Public Service Corporation came up. These men, motormen or drivers of jitney buses, were caught in the very act of Sabbath violation. In fact, witnesses were there to say, if called upon, that the motorman had actually stopped the car to submit to arrest. But these men, employes of a great corporation, had a lawyer present. No sir, said this lawyer, his clients would not enter pleas of anything. They'd take a jury trial, if the Court pleased.

Recorder Stoddard had no objection to that, and the court room of well-wishers sighed mightily. They remembered that the motion picture men themselves, before they turned Sabbath enforcement officers, had demanded a jury trial. That was four weeks ago, and the jury was out only three-quarters of an hour before returning a verdict of guilty. Each of the four threatre managers paid a fine of $1 each. Hence the sighs, through the mournful chorus of which came the voice of Recorder Stoddard setting the jury trials for Dec. 21.

Reporters' Case a Quandary.

That left ten of the culprits to be dealt with. Among the ten were two photographers, caught taking pictures of the arrests on Sunday. The others were newspaper reporters.

Oscar Spitz, a reporter for The Newark Evening News, was the first of the newspaper men called to the bar. Before a warning could be made of Mr. Spitz, the Recorder pointed out that the blue law itself held that "persons engaged in editing, publishing and selling newspapers on the Sabbath" were not amenenable to the blue law.

Well, that little interpretation put things in a pretty way. It immediately brought up the questions, Do reporters edit, do they publish, do they sell newspapers? What do reporters do? The problem was put over for a week and another story.

Mr. Bechtold, in giving evidence against Charles Lindebloom, a storekeeper who was caught, disclosed that he had bought a box of cigars from Lindebloom for "60 cents." Recorder Stoddard looked up amazed. Then a panicky expression swept over his face.

"How big?" he asked.

"Oh," said Bechtold hurriedly, "just a little box."

"I just wanted to know," said the Court, registering relief; "I did not want any such cigars smoked around here."

Mr. Kruttschnitt came next. He was represented by an attorney, John O. Muller. It was Mr. Kruttschnitt who, decidedly angry when the raiders appeared at his gas station, demanded that the newspaper men be arrested when they took notes of his advent in the toils of the law. Mr. Beechtold testified that he had loitered near the gas station and had observed Mr. Kruttschnit sell five gallons of gasoline. Mr. Bechtold, making a good job of it, jotted down the license number of the machine that coughed away with the five gallons.

"Not guilty," said Mr. Krattschnitt, through counsel.

"But I saw him take a one-dollar bill," insisted Mr. Bechtold.

Ah, countered Mr. Kruttschnitt through counsel, that was a charge customer and the $1 was owed from another day and another transaction. But the Recorder did not see it that way, and then Mr. Kruttschnitt made his charge of violation against Biro, Clark and Bechtold. The Court advised him to make his charge in Police Court next Monday.

"I was not working," said Mr. Biro, with a smile." That was not work for me; that was recreation."

"You are only trying to make the law ridiculous," said Mr. Muller.

"Well," said Mr. Biro, "if that is the case, you are helping me by making this counter-charge."

After the court session Mr. Biro said he had no announcement to make with regard to his plans for next Sunday. He has an engagement to meet the Irvington Ministerium, an organization composed of all the Protestant clergymen of the town, next Wednesday. The meeting will be in the Elks' Club. He indicated that he would seek counsel of the clergymen and that his future probably would be guided by their wishes.

Henry J. Stanley, Director of Public Safety, who is not related to the Stanley of the motion picture theatre company, maintained a discreet silence.

BOWLBY BLAMES OFFICIALS.

Irvington Authorities Want Sunday Laws Repealed, He Says.

The authorities in Irvington, N. J., are trying to excuse themselves for failure to enforce the law, the Rev. Dr. Harry L. Bowlby, General Secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance of the United States, said yesterday in a speech at the annual meeting of that organization. The morning session was held at the Methodist Book Concern, 150 Fifth Avenue, the Presbyterian, Baptist, Episcopal and Methodist ministers' associations having all merged their weekly session with that of the alliance. Dr. Bowlby spoke at the afternoon session in the Episcopal Church of the Holy Communion, Sixth Avenue and Twentieth Street. Presiding throughout the day was the Rev. Dr. David G. Wylie, a Secretary of the Presbyterian Board of National Missions.

Dr. Bowlby announced that he and the Rev. Dr. F. W. Johnson, Secretary of the New Jersey branch of the alliance, would meet today with the pastors of Irvington and vicinity "and go over the whole issue."

"Public officials in Irvington want to so amend and revise the Sunday laws as to get them repealed," said Dr. Bowlby. The public officials responsible for the arrests on Sunday are "encouraging the making of the State's Sunday laws obnoxious," and those arrested "were in no sense violators of the Sunday law," he declared. "The officials want to so annul the laws of New Jersey that the State will have a wide open Sunday," he continued.

Dr. Wylie was re-elected President. To succeed the late Dr. David James Burrell on the Board of Managers the alliance elected his only son, the Rev. Dr. David DeForrest Burrell, pastor at Williamsport, Pa. All the other officers were re-elected.

SEVEN TRUSTEES QUIT DR. MOOR'S CHURCH

Protest Deacon's Authority Over Budget—Resignations Tabled by Church Members.

Seven of the nine trustees of the Madison Avenue Baptist Church, at Thirty-first Street and Madison Avenue, tendered their resignation last night at a meeting of the members of the church. Dr. George Caleb Moor is pastor of the church.

Charles A. Braider, who belongs to the minority group of two trustees opposed to the group of seven trustees who resigned, said that the majority groups was protesting against what it thought to be an usurpation of power on the part of the Board of Deacons of the church in assuming authority over the church budget, its employes and its membership. He declared that the majority of the church members, however, believed that the deacons were fully within their powers in assuming jurisdiction over these matters.

The group of seven trustees, he continued, demanded that three resolutions which conferred these powers on the deacons be rescinded. These resolutions were passed by the members in November. The members present at the meeting last night refused to repeal the resolutions and voted to table the resignations by a vote of 108 to 24, Mr. Braider said.

NECKWEAR: IN THE NEW YORK MANNER.

Thorndyke Poplins, $1.50 Ripple Cloths, $1 Branton Scarfs, $1.50

To every girl, every woman who thinks tenderly of some faulty, yet lovable male, we suggest that here she will find America's largest assortment of neckwear. In selecting her gift, she should consider that there are three classes of men—

1. Men who dress in a hurry, who yank their ties into tight knots, who wear out ordinary scarfs prematurely. For such go-getters, we have devised Ripple Cloths, the longest-wearing neckties that ever graced a masculine collar. $1.

2. Men who like a touch of gaiety in their dress, who pull their hats jauntily over one eye, who will still be young at fifty. Their eyes will kindle at the sight of our new Brantons—richly textured neckties, cheerfully sparkling with satin Jacquards. $1.50.

3. Men who would look dignified even in running trunks, who have travelled, who know the ways of the world. For such sophisticates, we recommend Thorndykes beautifully luxurious, enriched with the handsome moire designs hitherto confined to expensive French neckwear. $1.50.

In these three neckwear cloths alone, exclusive of our higher priced ranges, there are over five thousand smart effects. Stripes, figures, plaids, checks—blues, reds, browns, grays, greens, purples—light tones or dark—all the myriad shades known to modern color. What a tempting assortment to choose from!

STATE BOARD STARTS ON A TRANSIT PLAN

uation. The Mayor, who refused to comment upon the commission's action, is said to have been greatly pleased at having the commission take the transit problem off his shoulders at least for the present.

The selection of Mr. Untermyer was said to have been due to Governor Smith and Mr. Lockwood. Mr. Untermyer was counsel of the legislative Committee on Housing, of which Mr. Lockwood was Chairman, while he was in the State Senate. In the discussion of possible counsel Mr. Lockwood suggested Mr. Untermyer. Governor Smith immediately approved the suggestion, it was said. Mr. Untermyer only recently acted as advisory counsel to the Governor in the latter's dispute with the State Water Power Commission over the commission's proposal to lease power rights on the St. Lawrence a few weeks before the commission would go out of office.

The feeling among the Commissioners was that the selection of Mr. Untermyer was a happy one from their viewpoint. Belief was expressed by advisers of the Governor and Commissioners that, if there was a way to retain the five-cent fare Mr. Untermyer was as likely as any one to find it, and that if there were not there would be public confidence that Mr. Untermyer's aid would be effective in enabling the commission to make the best possible bargains with the transit companies from the viewpoint of the city.

The Commission's Announcement.

Announcement of the decision to prepare a plan and of the appointment of Mr. Untermyer was made in a statement by the commission as follows:

Under the law the Transit Commission is required to prepare a plan of readjustment for the relief of the emergency which the Legislature declared to exist and for the improvement of transit in New York City, the plan to contain such provisions as in the judgment of the Transit Commission would accomplish three main purposes.

1. The combination, rehabilitation, improvement and extension of existing railroads, so that service thereon may be increased and improved to the fullest extent possible.

2. The receipt as soon as practicable by the city of sufficient returns so that the bonds issued for the construction of the railroads may be exempt from the debt limit.

3. Assuring to the people of the city the continued operation of the railroads at the present or lowest possible fares consistent with the just valuations of the railroads and their safe and economical operation.

The former Transit Commission, after months of study and the taking of much testimony, submitted a statement and outline of a plan of readjustment, in September, 1921, and thereafter continued its investigations until May, 1926, but issued no further reports. The then City Administration failed to take any action upon the proposed plan.

The present members of the Transit Commission took office May 1, 1926, and have been continuously familiarizing themselves with the transit situation and have been engaged in the study and investigation as required by the law, except as this was interrupted by the strike on the Interborough system and other important pressing matters which came before the commission.

Asks Cooperation of All.

We are asking the full cooperation of all interested and of the public and to that end are now requesting the city authorities, the existing transit companies, the civic associations and all other persons interested to submit to this commission any and all proposed plans or suggestions of readjustment for the relief of the transit situation in this city. In view of the great importance of the subject and of the many interests involved, we realize that it will take considerable time to prepare these suggestions and we therefore ask that all such suggestions and plans be in our hands within a reasonable time, i. e., not longer than ninety days from Dec. 15, 1926. After the receipt of these suggestions this commission will digest them and confer with any and all bodies and citizens who desire to express their views. Public hearings will then be held at which the entire subject will be gone into thoroughly and a plan evolved for submission to the public authorities.

All concerned can secure such information as they desire from the commission, its engineers and legal department upon inquiry at this office. The work of preparing all the data and of studying and analyzing the information collected by our predecessors in the five years from May, 1921, to May, 1926, is now under way under the direction of the Commissioners, their chief counsel, chief engineer and their assistants.

We have also secured, at great personal sacrifice to himself, the consent of the Hon. Samuel Untermyer to act as special counsel. With his usual desire to aid the public welfare he has insisted upon acting without compensation. Mr. Untermyer is leaving on a trip tomorrow and is taking with him a copy of the record, containing 6,000 pages of testimony and the hundreds of exhibits and other data which were in the possession of and used by the old commission, in order to familiarize himself with the subject and be prepared to represent the commission as special counsel.

Acceptance by Untermyer.

Mr. Untermyer's letter, accepting appointment as special counsel, follows:

Dec. 13, 1926.

Hon. John F. Gilchrist, Chairman Transit Commission, 370 Madison Avenue, New York City.

My Dear Sir: Having regard to the stupendous problems you have in hand and to the overshadowing importance of your task to the future social, economic and financial life of our city, I have given careful consideration to your request that I accept a retainer as special counsel to your commission in connection with the formulation and putting into effect of a plan of readjustment of the transportation lines of the city.

As explained to you, I am sailing on Tuesday and for that reason hesitated to undertake the formidable task involved in this representation. However, my absence would in no way delay matters, because I fully appreciate that it would take considerable time for the city authorities and transportation companies, civic organizations and others interested to formulate and present to your body for consideration any and all plans and suggestions which they may have looking toward the solution of this problem, and the period which you have agreed to set of ninety days will be needed by those making such suggestions, and during that period I can make my preliminary studies.

I have decided, therefore, in view of your flattering expressions of confidence in my ability to be helpful in assisting you in solving this problem, that it is my public duty to yield to your request. It must, of course, be clearly understood that in line with my invariable custom in performing public services I shall not be asked to accept any compensation.

Outline of Procedure.

In order that the work may be efficiently carried out, we have agreed upon the following method of procedure:

1. Copies of the voluminous maps, engineering and other reports and the testimony and other documents appertaining to the history of the various stages of the city's transportation problems are to be delivered to me at once, so that I can take them with me and study them during the journey.

2. Realizing the necessity for prompt action in meeting the involved and intolerable conditions that are steadily growing worse, your board will, without delay, announce your intention of formulating a plan of readjustment and inviting the submission of plans by existing transit companies, public and civic bodies and others, with maps, surveys, routes, terms, costs, &c., to be filed with you within ninety days from the date of your notice, during which time your engineers and financial and other experts can survey the situation and analyze the various plans as they are submitted, so as to save as much time as possible, and that you are to keep me fully advised of all developments from time to time during my absence, to the end that every possible delay in the completion of this preliminary work may be avoided. Before this analysis shall have been completed I will have returned so as to lend such aid as is in my power in advising with you upon the tentative plan which you are to submit.

3. You are to appoint a junior counsel, to be associated with me in this undertaking, who can aid in the work outlined above.

4. After this work is done public hearings are to be held upon the various projects, with a view to the promulgation by your commission of a tentative plan. Testimony to be taken at these hearings should embrace every shade of opinion and will involve the free discussion of your tentative plan for the purpose of evolving a final plan, which should be determined and announced just as soon as practicable, taking into consideration the enormous amount of work involved.

Unless drastic measures of relief are now promptly taken and vigorously pressed the industrial growth of the city will be paralyzed, its prosperity brought to a standstill and the health and the comfort of its citizens gravely impaired. It is, of course, because of these factors that I have hesitated to act on account of my absence during the initial stages, but I am now converted to the view held by your commission—that this temporary action will not retard the work in view of the program to which we are all agreed, as outlined above.

Very truly yours,
SAMUEL UNTERMYER.

Mr. Untermyer said last night that he did not care to add anything to his letter. It was learned yesterday that several civic associations, which have declared previously for unification of the city's transit facilities, had already begun the preparation of plans and suggestions to be sent to the Transit Commission.

BUS AWARDS DUE BY JAN. 15.

Walker Says Successful Applicants Will Be Named and Policy Fixed.

Mayor Walker said yesterday at a meeting of the Board of Estimate that he expected the board to agree on the award of bus franchises, 116 applications for which are pending, not later than Jan. 15.

The Mayor explained afterward that he had meant that the board, by that time would agree not only on a policy as to whether bus operation should be borough-wide or city-wide, but also on the applicant or applicants to whom the franchises would be awarded. The actual award, because of the statutory requirements for hearings, would be made about four weeks after determination.

The Mayor's announcement was interpreted at City Hall as indicating that there had been at least a tentative agreement between the Mayor, who has favored city-wide operation, and Controller Berry and most of the board Presidents, who are believed to have favored making separate awards for each borough. It came in a discussion of representatives of the Eastern Parkway, Brownsville and East New York Transit Relief Association, Inc., which operates a bus line in the sections of Brooklyn named, and the Nassau Bus Company, which operates a line in the Rockaway section of Queens and in Nassau County. Both these companies are operating on temporary franchises which will expire on Dec. 31.

Representative Emanuel Celler of Brooklyn, counsel for the Eastern Parkway, Brownsville and East New York Company, urged that a franchise be granted the company instead of a temporary permit, because, if the latter were granted, his company might be enjoined by some subsidiary surface line company of the B. M. T.

"That smacks of blackjacking methods," said the Mayor. "We won't stand for that."

"Whom do you mean?" asked Mr. Celler.

"I mean the one who gets out the injunction," replied the Mayor.

James Shevlin, representing the Nassau Bus Company, urged the Board to grant to that company a four-year franchise. He expressed impatience and declared that he had been at meetings of the Board for months without getting action.

"You seem to have lost patience with us," the Mayor said.

"Wouldn't you?" Mr. Shevlin retorted.

"When I lose patience I try to conceal it," rejoined the Mayor.

It was finally decided to grant to each of these two companies a three months' franchise to enable them to continue legal operation, until the larger bus question was decided.

UPHOLDS LEGALITY OF SUBWAY CONTRACTS

The contracts for the construction of the new subway lawfully contain a "prevailing rate of wage" clause, according to a decision by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday. It upheld the recent opinion of Justice Levy in three suits brought by two taxpayers against the Boards of Transportation, the Board of Estimate and other city officials. Justice Martin dissented from the ruling and for that reason an immediate appeal will be taken to the Court of Appeals, said Isidor J. Kresel, attorney in two of the actions.

Two suits were brought by Jasper A. Campbell involving four contracts for which bids were asked by the Board of Transportation, and one action was filed by Frank H. Morse. It was asserted that the clauses in the contracts, inserted pursuant to the State Labor law, were unconstitutional because of uncertainty as to what constituted the prevailing wage rate, and that a waste of city funds would result, amounting to $1,000,000 in the case of one contract and $500,000 in two others. The sections on Fifty-third Street, between Second and Eighth Avenues, and on West Third, Bank Street and Sixth Avenue were involved.

Mr. Kresel argued that the question at issue was decided recently by the Supreme Court of the United States in declaring unconstitutional a similar statute of Oklahoma, in which uncertainty was found to exist, but Justice Levy declined to follow it on the ground that the Oklahoma law provided for criminal proceedings against contractors, whereas the New York law gave a civil remedy for each violation.

Justice Levy also said that while a law may be too indefinite to be made the basis of a criminal proceeding, "it does not necessarily follow that the policy of the State, maintained for nearly seventy years, followed by department heads and contractors, and sanctioned in principle by constitutional enactment, shall be entirely disregarded."

MRS. ROBINSON QUITS A WILSON MEETING

Sister of Roosevelt Walks Out After Challenging Creel on War President's 'Vision.'

CREATES STIR IN AUDIENCE

Arises to Demand Why We Did Not Enter War Sooner—People Not Ready for It, She Is Told.

Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson, sister of the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, created a stir at the Town Hall yesterday morning when in the midst of several hundred of Wilson sympathizers she questioned George Creel, former head of the wartime Committee on Public Information, on Woodrow Wilson's war policy.

Mr. Creel had been addressing members of the League for Political Education on President Wilson's career, describing his personality as it appeared to one close to him during the war. Picturing the lapse in idealism which followed the armistice Mr. Creel declared that Wilson's "vision" became what lay ahead, and that even before the Peace Conference "he saw the tragedy of disappointment ended." He ended by comparing President Wilson's "loneliness" to that of Washington and Lincoln, and said: "It is well for great souls such as these if, like Lincoln, they can die at the moment of their greatest achievement. There is nothing in all the world more savage, more cruel and inhuman than a people's reaction from its own idealism."

Offers to Answer Questions.

Robert Erskine Ely, director of the League, then announced from the stage that Mr. Creel would answer questions. Mrs. Robinson, dressed in black, had been occupying an aisle seat in the orchestra. In a voice that carried to every corner of the hall, she asked:

"If Mr. Wilson had so much vision, as you say he had, why did he not enter the war sooner and save thousands of lives?"

There was some applause, but it was drowned out by a buzz of excitement. Mr. Creel answered:

"He did not enter the war sooner because, for one thing, New York and the Atlantic seaboard are not America. It would have been utterly impossible to commit the American people to war any earlier. Congress, which has sole power to declare war, showed how it felt when it passed the McLemore resolution in 1916."

"The answer did not satisfy Mrs. Robinson. She shook her head and exclaimed loudly, "You didn't answer it!"

"But the President can't declare war," retorted Mr. Creel, pointing a finger at Mrs. Robinson. "Do you deny, Madam, that Congress has the sole power to declare war? My answer is that Congress would not have declared war in 1915 or 1916; the anti-war and pro-German sentiment was too strong."

Still Mrs. Robinson was not satisfied and again she arose with determination in her manner. "You are evading, not answering, this question," she declared, while, the clamor about her grew. "The President has the power of leadership. It is said that he kept us out of war; I want to know why he didn't lead us in sooner."

Mrs. Robinson Leaves Hall.

By this time Mr. Ely, the chairman, was struggling to keep order in the meeting. He waved his hand soothingly, tried to quiet Mrs. Robinson with polite words, and announced that the question had been answered. When other questioners arose with other cries Mrs. Robinson left the hall.

In his address Mr. Creel attempted to dispel popular beliefs about the personality of President Wilson. "It was the President's iron concentration to duty, his deep devotion to the task in hand, that made people imagine a cold-blooded thinking machine in the White House," he declared. The enmities President Wilson aroused, according to Mr. Creel, were "almost always the result of hurt vanities."

HONOR FATHER WYNNE, 50 YEARS A JESUIT

Catholics, Headed by Cardinal Hayes, Hear Educator and Discuss Church Position.

Catholics of New York, including Cardinal Hayes, joined last night at the Biltmore in paying tribute to the Rev. John J. Wynne on the occasion of his fiftieth anniversary as a member of the Society of Jesus. The Rev. Father Wynne urged that our educational system be arranged to bring about graduation from schools at an earlier age. Two speakers denounced the policy of Mexico toward the Catholic Church.

Cardinal Hayes, recounting a tour just ended which took him to California, Utah, Oklahoma and Denver, declared that the Church was never stronger in America than at the present time. Praising the work of the Rev. Father Wynne, he said that "if we had anything to do with canonization, Father Wynne would be canonized tonight."

Dr. Michael Williams, editor of The Commonweal, another speaker, declared that "the days of bloody persecution of and opposition to the Catholic Church are over, save for such sporadic barbarisms and savageries as have disgraced Mexico." He went on to say that religion's fight now centered in the schools and in the press.

John G. McTigue, President of the Xavier Alumni Sodality, which sponsored the reception, presided. Other speakers included the Rev. Michael A. Clark, S. J., President of the College of St. Francis Xavier and the Right Rev. E. A. Pace, Vice Rector of the Catholic University. All payed tribute to the Rev. Father Wynne, who said that "What is happening tonight overwhelms me."

Mrs. Taylor Admitted.

Mrs. Marbury Taylor, wife of Captain Marbury Taylor of Richmond, Va., formerly Georgette Leon, a French film actress, who was ordered detained on Ellis Island when she arrived on the Suffren on Sunday, was released yesterday afternoon after a short hearing before a board of special inquiry. She reached the city on the 4:30 Ellis Island boat, and told reporters that only perfunctory questions had been asked of her. Captain Taylor characterized the affair as "an outrage."

$128,362,000 ASKED TO AID AGRICULTURE

Appropriation Bill Carrying $80,000,000 for Highways Reported to House.

ESTIMATES CUT $4,774,000

Measure Provides $2,944,440 for Assisting Education in Cooperative Farming—New Bureaus Created.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP).—Creation of two substitute bureaus to separate research and regulatory activities of the chemistry and soil divisions of the Department of Agriculture was provided for in the department's appropriation bill, carrying $128,362,000, reported today by the House.

Of the total amount appropriated nearly $80,000,000 was for maintenance of Federal aid highway systems and many millions more were allowed for continuing the war against insect pests. The total was $77,512 above current funds but $4,774,000 below budget estimates.

Secretary Jardine appeared before the House Appropriations Committee which drafted the bill and recommended consolidation of the Bureaus of Chemistry and Soils into the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils. He said that to the new bureau would be transferred all the research activities of the two units, while a Food, Drug and Insecticide Bureau would be created to conduct the regulatory or police work.

Appropriations for the two new bureaus totaled only $30,000 more than for the original divisions. The increase will be used in investigating plant-dust explosions and farm fires, which last year cost 3,500 lives and $150,000,000 in property, and in enforcement of the Naval Stores act.

Material increases over current funds provided $450,000 more for additional endowment for agricultural experiment stations, making the total $1,920,000; $1,200,000 for eradication of tuberculosis, total $4,878,000; $100,000 for blister rust control, total $471,500; $300,000 for eradication of European corn-borer, total $685,100, and $180,300 for Japanese beetle control, total $405,000. The bill authorizes the Bureau of Animal Industry to pay for condemned paratubercular cattle. The committee said it was necessary to destroy immediately cattle found suffering from the disease, which stimulates intestinal tuberculosis.

The Weather Bureau's part in supplying information to commercial aviation caused a $38,600 increase in its appropriation of $235,580 for investigation of atmospheric phenomena.

To continue the department's contracts with farmers' cooperatives the bill provides $1,424,000 for farmers' cooperative demonstrations, $1,300,000 for cooperative agricultural extension work and $220,440 for the cooperative marketing information service of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

DORCHY MUST GO TO JAIL.

Kansas Labor Leader Loses Last Plea Before Supreme Court.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—August Dorchy, Kansas labor leader, must go to jail for ordering a strike at a coal mine in that State, the Supreme Court decided today.

Dorchy, who was convicted for violating a section of the act creating the Kansas Court of Industrial Relations, was sentenced to pay a fine of $300 and serve six months in jail. He appealed the case to the Supreme Court, which recently decided against him. His counsel then filed a motion for a rehearing and this the Court denied today.

Dorchy's case is one of several to come before the Supreme Court, all involving the constitutionality of the Kansas Industrial Court act, some of which were decided against the State tribunal. Dorchy was Vice President of a miner's local. The charge against him was that he and Alexander Howatt, President of the organization, used their official positions in violation of the law to induce miners employed by the George K. Mackie Fuel Company to strike.

SENATE SENDS BACK POISON GAS TREATY

Recommittal to Committee, on Borah's Motion, May Kill the Protocol.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Without a roll call the Senate today recommitted to the Foreign Relations Committee the treaty extending the Washington Arms Conference agreement on the use of poison gas to nations now signatory to the agreement. This, it is generally believed, means the death of the treaty, although its proponents insist the recommittal was merely a strategic retreat to gain time.

The original signatories to the treaty against poison gas were Great Britain, France, the United States and Italy, but the treaty which has been before the Senate would have included many European nations. France has not yet ratified the Washington agreement, but if she did so the United States would be bound to the original compact.

Representative Hamilton Fish Jr. of New York, one of the committee which drew up the preamble of the Constitution of the American Legion, wrote Senator Copeland today deploring the Legion's stand against the treaty.

TWO TRAIN WRECKS IN JERSEY HURT 33

Ohio, bound from Washington to Jersey City, to pass a signal light at Hopewell, near here, at 5:04 P. M. today, derailing three of the ten cars and slightly injuring twelve passengers and Pullman porters.

The train, driven by George Rule, a veteran of thirty years, was approaching Hopewell slowly because of the fog, or else, it was thought, the wreck might have been serious.

The fog was so thick it was hardly penetrated by the headlight of the engine. The signal was said to have been burning as warning that there was a train ahead at the station. The engine ran into the derailing switch, which was thrown to protect the train ahead, but, oddly, the engine did not leave the track. Only the combination baggage and smoking car, a day coach and a Pullman left the rails and ploughed for nearly 100 feet along the roadbed, throwing the passengers and porters to the floor and inflicting bruises and cuts.

R. B. White, President of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, was a passenger on the train in a private car which was at the rear of the train. He was unhurt. He summoned Dr. Theodore Pierson, who is Mayor of Hopewell, to attend to the injured passengers, and later supervised the transferring of the seventy-five passengers to Train 618, on which they were taken to Jersey City.

None of the injured persons required hospital attention. They were:

HARRIS, HARRY C., porter of 2,004 Fifth Avenue, New York; scalp wound.
MORGERE, Mrs. FRANK, of 80 Broad Street, Newark, N. J.; cuts and bruises.
MECHLEN, Mrs. W. H., of 402 East Eighteenth Street, New York; bruises.
HERRON, ISAIAH, negro porter of St. Louis, Mo.; lacerations of right arm.
JUSTICE, LEWIS, negro porter.
HAROLD, J. W., negro porter.
TORRENCE, EDWARD, negro porter, Washington, D. C.
ERICKSON, FRANK, Brooklyn, passenger.
CATTER, RICHARD, negro porter; burned.
LEWIS, LEW W., negro porter.
BLACKWELL, BIBIE, negro porter.
BROWN, CHARLES, negro porter.

Parted Train Brings Delay.

Train No. 13, a westbound local from Jersey City, held up traffic near Stelton, N. J., last night for an hour when a drawbar of a rear coach was pulled from its fastenings, causing the train to part. Other trains, including the Manhattan Limited, helped propel the severed train into Metuchen and cleared the track for traffic.

Earlier traffic was tied up for a few hours in the yard of the Hudson & Manhattan and Pennsylvania railroads on West Side Avenue, Jersey City, by the stalling there of a self-propelling steam shovel. This tie-up, which lasted for twenty minutes, affected all the tube trains to and from Exchange Place, Jersey City.

Roberts Says Sole Aim of Fall and Doheny Was Profit

satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the plan or scheme or agreement was entered into by the defendants for the purpose and objects which I have been discussing and which are set forth in the indictment.

"Now, I want to take up with you the facts in this case more or less in their order of occurrence, because I think we will have an easier time to understand the sequence of things and see the significance of particular events if we get them in their own setting of time, rather than picking one here, one there and one another place from time to time.

"Before we came to what happened in this case, let me say a word, if I may, about whom you have here as defendants in this case. Let us go back to the year 1921. Who are the defendants? What manner of men are they? Let us take Mr. Doheny. Mr. Doheny, it is admitted, yea, proclaimed, was a great and powerful and wealthy citizen of the United States. He himself proclaimed that to loan $100,000 meant no more to him than to loan $25 or $50 to a common man.

Says Doheny Used Money's Power.

"He himself proclaimed in the Senate testimony that was read to you that he might just as easily and with as little inconvenience have loaned Albert B. Fall $1,000,000 as $100,000. Mr. Doheny realized, used, I submit, the power of money. Take the story he himself told in the Senate testimony; how he employed, before he left the Cabinet, Mr. Lane, a Cabinet Minister, at $50,000 a year; how he employed an ex-Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. McAdoo, at $50,000 a year; how he employed a man, Leo Stack, to get him a lease on Teapot Dome from Secretary Daniels; how he paid $5,000 to George Creel, as he says, to use his influence with Secretary Daniels to get the lease; how he said in the Senate testimony, 'We can employ anybody we please.'

"A person who has money to pay for services and has something to do can employ somebody to do it for him.

"Mr. Doheny was a man at that time, I submit, who did not realize the wrong that it was to have financial dealings with an officer of the Government with whom his company was to have business dealings. What does he say to you himself? He says to you from this witness chair that he saw nothing wrong and he sees nothing wrong now with loaning money to a man with whom he was going to negotiate Government contracts.

"Now, in viewing the parties in this case, as we go over them, you ought to hold always in your mind that picture of the man who was dealing for these contracts and leases.

"Then, as to Secretary Fall. According to everything you have heard here, an impecunious Cabinet officer, a man anxious to get additional property next his own, and a man whom Mr. Doheny thought and felt had the disposition of these great oil reserves of the United States. There are the two men who are before you as defendants.

"Now, what did Mr. Doheny want? What did he want back there in 1921? I take it from his own mouth and nowhere else what it was he wanted at that time. He says that his company at that time owned in fee or in lease, held 16,000 or 17,000 acres in California.

Sought Additional Leases.

"That is about half the size of this Government Reserve No. 1; and he said they had over 200 producing wells, but he added this: 'But they did not produce much.' He had wells but a small production of oil.

"He admitted, in answer to my questions, that in order to have a complete organization out there in California—if you remember, he had no refinery there and no pipe line there; that in order to have a complete organization out there and a complete oil business, a California refinery and pipe line would be valuable to his companies.

"He admitted that he was desirous in the years 1921 and 1922 of enlarging his business by getting additional leases; that he was familiar and had been since 1900, I think he said, with that great oil territory which lies in reserve No. 1. He admitted that he paid $750,000 for this small United Midway lease, with drilling derricks and whatever there was there, the lease that was granted in 1921, in July, at the same time Mr. Dohney's first lease was granted, on the 55 per cent. royalties.

"He admitted before the Senate committee, and he said in referring to this alternative bid, that the alternative bid constituted a waiver of profits and recompense provided it gave the company an opportunity to extend its California petroleum business through the acquisition of additional oil territory, and then he added, 'whenever the Government saw fit to open those reserves'.

Outlines Three Periods in Lease.

"I want to discuss these facts if I may, under three broad headings, and I am going to call those three periods: First, the period of preparation, the period where the thing was getting ready; second, the period of negotiation; and third, the period of consummation.

"The first period of ready-making runs from the Spring of 1921 until about Dec. 11, 1921. The second runs from about Dec. 11, 1921, until after the contract of April 25, 1922, was signed; and the third period in which Mr. Doheny got all that he originally started for, runs from April 25, 1922, to Dec. 11, 1922, when that great territory was leased to his company.

"First, let us take this period of preparation. No man can do anything wrong until he has an opportunity to do it. Secretary Fall had no opportunity to do anything until the thing of which I shall speak to you in a moment. By act of Congress this reserve was placed in the custody of the Secretary of the Navy for conservation, lease, and so on, in his discretion.

"That was done in 1920. March 4, 1921, Mr. Harding came into office. Mr. Fall came into office on May 21, 1921. An executive order was made by President Harding. Confessedly if that order had not been made we would never have been here in this case.

"You have heard the evidence that shows that it put, and Secretary Fall believed that it put, the making of leases in that reserve and the administration of those reserves in his power and in his sole discretion. You have heard his letter to Mr. Doheny, written within a month and a half after that order was made on July 8, 1921."

This was the letter in which Mr. Fall wrote Mr. Doheny that there would be no probability of further interference by navy officials, as he was by direction of the President going to administer the naval reserves and that he had so informed Secretary Denby.

"So Secretary Fall," continued Mr. Roberts, "had the administration of the reserves and he had formulated a plan which would use royalty oil for tankage."

Discussed Matter With Doheny.

Next Mr. Roberts quoted from the testimony of Dr. H. Foster Bain, formerly Director of the Bureau of Mines, who had testified that in October, 1921, Fall had stated that he had talked the naval fuel station project over with Doheny and that he was satisfied Mr. Doheny would make a bid.

"That is late in October, 1921," declared Mr. Roberts, "and I may add again a good many times, there was not any Japanese war scare then as far as Mr. Doheny was concerned. That was not what was causing him to satisfy Secretary Fall; he would make a bid. But we have it from Mr. Doheny's own mouth that Secretary Fall had taken it up with him late in October, or early November, and I asked Mr. Doheny, and Mr. Hogan asked him about it. In his testimony at this trial Mr. Doheny testified the matter of the tankage problem at Pearl Harbor was first brought to his attention in October or early November, 1922.

"Now what was the policy at that time, right when those interviews were taking place, right when Mr. Doheny was assuring Mr. Fall that he was enough interested in that as a business proposition to bid on it?

"What was the policy agreed upon by the navy and the interior? Keep this letter in mind, Oct. 25, 1921. You have heard it read several times, setting out the policy of the navy and the Interior with regard to drilling these reserves. I will not read it all. It is from Secretary Denby to Secretary Fall:

"'That the Interior Department will exercise its best efforts to obtain for the navy as large royalties and as favorable terms as practicable by public competition or otherwise.'

"You know how the words 'or otherwise' got into it. You heard it from the witness stand. Fall asked that it be inserted. Men, if those words 'or otherwise' had not been put into that letter you or I would not have been here today, because if the leasing of that reserve had been limited by the policy laid down here to public competition there could not have happened what has happened in this case.

"Now Secretary Fall had the letter gone over with him before Robison finally prepared it for Denby's signature. There is no dispute that Robison prepared it.

"Now we run on. Doheny's company had a lease on 55½ per cent. royalty up in the northern part of Little Section 1 there in the eastern end of the reserve. Doheny was interested as a business proposition in this tankage. Doheny wanted oil territory. I do not have to convince you of that. He said it.

"Now what happened? In the month of November, while these men were discussing this Pearl Harbor project, while they were discussing Mr. Doheny's becoming a contractor with the Government, something happened, and I do not have to tell you what it was. You know. At the same time Secretary Fall was discussing with Mr. Doheny his note for $100,000, and Mr. Doheny was saying that if he needed it he would let him have it.

"And on Nov. 29 Secretary Fall telephoned from Washington—where else we do not know—I mean whether from the Interior—I will venture it was not from there—to Mr. Doheny that he could use that money now.

Reviews Cashing of Check.

"Doheny, on the morning of the 30th of November, instead of sending the money, instead of getting the money himself, arranged at his bank, of which he was a partner—Blair & Co., an enormous banking house—arranged there that his son would come and get that money, and the son drew his check on the son's and his wife's joint account for that money, and Blair & Co. sent their check out to the First National Bank and got $100,000 in bills. And there that money was put into a little brown satchel and taken by Mr. Doheny's own son, accompanied by his private secretary, to Washington, and carried to the Wardman Park Hotel to Mr. Fall's apartment, and there turned over to him.

"But I want to say a word to you about that transaction. If I called you up for a loan of $100,000 you would probably say, 'Yes, come up and get it. It will be ready for you.' You would certainly say, 'I will send you down a check for it.' You certainly would not go through the manoeuvres and actions that were gone through here. I leave it to you.

"Here is Mr. Doheny, a man in the largest way of business in the United States, probably one of our richest men, and having had much to do with this sort of thing, a partner in Blair & Co. If this were the innocent transaction that he tells you it is—a ring on the telephone to Blair & Co.. 'Is this Blair & Co.?' 'Yes.' 'Transfer $100,000 to Albert B. Fall at the Riggs Bank in Washington.' Hang up the phone—that would be all.

"But Blair & Co. would then have a record of it. The Riggs Bank would have a record of it, and it could have been traced where it came from and to whom it went without the slightest trouble. He could have sent a cashier's check, as we call it, over, which is just like cash. Any bank would. Mr. Doheny admits all that. He says it would have been just as easy. I tell you, gentlemen, it would have been an easier way to do it than the way he took.

Loan Entered in No Book.

"Now what is the fact about it? One hundred thousand dollars may be $25 or $50 to Mr. Doheny, but certainly a loan would be noted in a book somewhere, and Mr. Doheny says this was never put in his books of account.

"And then there is this enormous amount of cash. Mr. Doheny says that he was afraid of wreckage on the railroad and so on, and yet he takes his own son and puts him on a train with $100,000 cash in his satchel and sends him to Washington with it. Extraordinary? Why, certainly it is extraordinary.

"And then another extraordinary feature. He sent it by his son. He admitted in your hearing that he had plenty of trusted employes in New York whom he would have trusted with this much money and whom he could have sent.

"And when I asked him, you will remember, why he sent his son, you remember his reply. He said he sent his son because he said he was trying to break him in to manage his business and affairs. Well, to send a son with a satchel with $100,000 to hand to somebody is a queer way to break him in to learn how to manage money and affairs. It simply is an explanation that don't explain.

"Why did he send his son? Two reasons; if he sent his son, no other human being knew of the transaction but his own blood. If he sent his son to go to Wardman Park Hotel, where Mr. Fall lived—the Dohenys, as you heard here, had lived there, were well known there, known to be friends of the Falls—no comment on that, no notice taken of it that young Mr. Doheny should call on Mr. Fall.

"Absolute wiping out and obliteration of evidence of the transaction.

Flouts Secrecy Explanation.

"Now, then, why was all that secrecy observed, gentlemen? Do I need to argue to you? Do I need to labor that kind of question with you intelligent men? It was concealed because if it had become public these men knew they would be ruined.

"But there is more than that about it. Mr. Doheny says that Fall was necessitous and he knew it. He said that Fall could not pay this money back promptly and he knew it. And yet he asked a demand note. And the demand note means that the day after he lent Fall the money he could walk in and lay down the note and say 'Fall, give me back the money. Pay me.'

"Why did he take a demand note? If Fall could not pay for a long while, if it were a reasonable and proper transaction, why not a year note, two years' note? But, gentlemen, with a demand note he held the whip hand over Fall."

Mr. Roberts assailed at length Mr. Doheny's story of having torn the Fall note in two parts.

"I don't know that anybody will ever know just why that note was torn," he said. "It was torn for some purpose. I am inclined to believe it was torn so that Mr. Doheny could say he had no paper of Mr. Fall's, no note of Mr. Fall's, because he was careful to say that with the signiture off it was not a note.

"If he thought there was nothing improper about this transaction why did he claim his privilege against self-incrimination in Los Angeles in the suit against the Pan American company, an equity suit?"

Decries Patriotism Plea.

"What is there," he asked, "in this story that this was a great patriotic thing, that this was a man giving something to his country? He was to get paid for it. He was to get interest on the proposition. He was to get out of it what?

"He got this royalty oil; and it stands uncontradicted in this record that out of the royalty oil that came to them from this Pearl Harbor work they made $791,000, which, after all, is a pretty fair profit on a construction job."

Mr. Roberts attacked the testimony of Admiral Robison at another point, saying that he made no effort to arouse the patriotic fervor of the other companies.

Anticipating that the defense would say the navy acted under an executive order Mr. Roberts said:

"I don't care whether the executive order was good, bad or indifferent, Doheny got the reserve. He got it through this corrupt transaction."

He asserted, in connection with the part Admiral Robison had in the matter, that he suspected that Fall and Doheny "chuckled a good many times" over the way they were "running everybody." Then he asked what kind of patriot a man was "who carries away with the American flag around it 59,000 acres of oil lands in a lease."

"The preferential right," he continued, "did not have to go into the April 25 contract to save us. I don't see how it would save the nation to take away $100,000,000 in profits from these lands. I don't see how there is any patriotism about a thing like that. If you do, acquit them."

"Mr. Denby never did know this story, and he does not know it now," asserted Mr. Roberts, who said he was not criticizing Mr. Denby if he trusted things to Admiral Robison, but, he declared, "no man should come here and take responsibility for something he does not know about."

LIQUOR AS MEDICINE RULING UNDER FIRE

Committee of Doctors to Seek Reversal of Limiting Decision by Supreme Court.

SAYS IT HAS FALSE BASIS

Poll of Physicians, It Is Declared, Showed 51½% in Favor of Use of Alcohol Medicinally.

An attempt to have the United States Supreme Court reverse its decision making it unlawful for any physician to prescribe more than a pint of whisky in ten days to a patient will be made by the Committee on Constitutional Rights, headed by Dr. Samuel Lambert and Dr. Alexander Lambert. The committee will plead that the opinion read by Justice Louis Brandeis was based in large part upon a misstatement.

The purpose of the committee was announced last night by Dr. Thomas C. Chalmers, a member, at a meeting of the Society of Medical Jurisprudence at the Academy of Medicine. It was the offshoot of a discussion of a paper by Leo J. Hickey, a Brooklyn lawyer, on the growth of public instruction in physiology which stressed the deleterious effects of alcohol on the human system, and which, Mr. Hickey said, showed the steady growth of anti-liquor agitation since 1886.

Says Alcohol Is Favored.

The misstatement by Justice Brandeis, said Dr. Chalmers, was that the poll of physicians by the American Medical Association showed a majority opposed to the use of alcohol as a therapeutic. The poll actually showed a majority of 51½ per cent. in favor of the use of alcohol, he said.

The opinion was also largely based upon another argument, which Dr. Chalmers said was shameful to his profession, that a large number of physicians had been abusing the right of prescribing whisky and had been writing prescriptions to be used to obtain liquor for beverage purposes. While this was undoubtedly true in relatively few cases, he said, it would be ended by a law already drafted which would deprive any physician found selling prescriptions of his license to practice medicine.

"The Supreme Court decision was a surprise to the American Medical Association and to the Committee on Constitutional Rights," said Dr. Chalmers. "The decision was five to four, a split decision, which we think does not carry much weight. Justice Brandeis's decision was based on two misstatements and misconceptions. The poll showed a small majority in favor of the use of alcohol, and therefore Justice Brandeis was mistaken. He also stated that a large number of physicians have prescribed alcohol for beverage purposes, and therefore should be refused the right to prescribe it as a drug. That is false as to 139,000 physicians in the United States."

He Prescribes Alcohol.

"I prescribe alcohol in my practice and I shall continue to prescribe it, but never since the Volstead act went into effect have I prescribed it except as a therapeutic agent. There is some dispute as to its value in certain cases, but almost none as to its value in sensis, influenza, pneumonia, diabetes and certain other diseases. Sometimes the patient needs a pint in one day instead of a pint in ten days, and if it is not prescribed the patient will suffer and possibly die.

"This case isn't closed. The committee won't lay down. Samuel Lambert isn't that sort of man, neither is Alexander Lambert and the others of the committee who have aided in bringing this suit.

"The Supreme Court has said that Congress has the right to declare what is a drug, how much of a drug the physician can prescribe. It says I can prescribe one pint in ten days and no more. Congress says we may not practice medicine as we have been taught to do it. Do you recognize the seriousness of that?

"I am not pleading for beverage alcohol. We don't want the saloon back. All I want is medicinal alcohol. We also need a pure whisky, which when it is prescribed will bring the therapeutic effect we need. We want whisky five years old, of 44 per cent. alcoholic content, guaranteed by the Government, distributed by the Government through Government agencies, so when we do write a prescription we will get a real drug. I am glad to see that a law embodying just about these requirements, with the exception that the whisky would be four years old, will probably be submitted to Congress with the approval of the Government and Mr. Wheeler."

DEPARTS TO SEE BORAH.

Committee to Discuss Reopening of Textile Investigation.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., Dec. 13.—A committee to confer with Senator William E. Borah on the possibilities of reopening the Congressional investigation into the textile industry left for Washington this afternoon. The committee included Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Thomas McMahon, Theodore Dealy, Ellen Dawson, W. Jett Lauck and Mercer Johnston.

The members will meet Senator Borah tomorrow morning and discuss a reappearance of a mill strike inquiry by the Senate Committee on Manufactories, which was suggested last March by Senator La Follette, but the plan fell flat out.

SMITH SEES SON ADMITTED TO BAR

Governor Sits on the Bench as Alfred E. Jr. Is Sworn In With Record Class of 256.

WOULDN'T MISS IT, HE SAYS

Youth Plans to Continue as Clerk for Present—Eleven Women Among the Candidates.

With his father gazing in admiration Alfred E. Smith Jr. was admitted to the bar of New York State yesterday afternoon. The son of the Governor was only one of a record-breaking class of 256 to be sworn in before Presiding Justice John Proctor Clarke at the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. He wore morning dress, which tradition holds is the correct garb for such an occasion. Among the 256 candidates admitted were eleven women.

During the administration of the oath and the delivery of a brief homily on law and ethics the Governor sat on the bench between Presiding Justice Clarke and Justice Victor J. Dowling. "I wouldn't miss it for anything," he said. "This is the first time for the boy, and I've never seen it done before myself." After the ceremonies the Governor and Alfred Jr. faced a battery of cameras in Twenty-sixth Street, and then Alfred Jr. went back to the law offices of John J. Curtin and John J. Glynn in the Woolworth Building, where he has been a clerk for some time. Mr. Glynn is an uncle by marriage.

Plans for Future.

Regarding his plans for the future the Governor's son said he intended to stay where he was indefinitely and work into "the general practice of law." Asked whether he expected to try a case in the near future he answered: "Better not say anything about that. If I said I expected to try a case in two weeks or a month people might think I was crazy about myself." Of politics he said: "I haven't given it a thought."

Those who accompanied Governor Smith to see his son sworn in were Daniel J. Riordan, J. A., E. J. and W. F. Kenny, John J. Curtin, T. J. Marra, Robert Fitzmaurice and Sergeant W. Roy. The character committee which passed the candidates consisted of John G. Agar, Chairman; Lewis Delafield, Wilson M. Powell, Alan Fox and Henry L. Sherman. Edward M. McInnes, Clerk to the Character Committee, and John J. Gallagher, Assistant Clerk of the Appellate Division, prepared the new attorneys for their admission.

The eleven women admitted were Margaret P. Flanagan, Beatrice Friedman, Teresa Hammer, Margaret Fuller Karlin, Betty H. Kaye, Irene C. McNamara, Irene R. O'Crowley, Mabel E. Palmer, Dora C. Silver, Caroline K. Simons and Anita Streep. The men were:

CENSUS DISCLOSES AMERICA IS DEVOUT

Questionnaire in 150 Newspapers Brings Admission of Belief in God by 89%.

ENGLISH RATE IS LOWER

London Nation's Survey 1,024 of 1,849 Denied Belief in a Personal Deity.

America apparently is somewhat more religious than England, judging from the first returns made in answer to a questionnaire sent out in connection with the campaign on religion being conducted by the Church Advertising Department of the International Advertising Association, of which the Rev. Charles Stelzle is President. Fifty thousand answers had been sent in during the first week, which ended yesterday, by newspapers which published the questions.

The ratio of belief to disbelief was almost the same in answer to all questions, and in nearly every case was somewhat higher than the same ratio in England, where questionnaires were recently circulated by The Nation, The Athenaeum and The Daily News. The question, "Do you believe in immortality?" brought affirmative answers from 85 per cent. whereas in England The Daily News received affirmative replies from about 63 per cent.

Result of Questionnaire.

The questions and the percentage of the answers was given out by Mr. Stelzle as follows:

1. Do you believe in God? Yes, 89 per cent.; no, 11 per cent.
2. Do you believe in immortality? Yes, 85 per cent.; no, 15 per cent.
3. Do you believe in prayer as a means of personal relationship to God? Yes, 84 per cent.; no, 16 per cent.
4. Do you believe that Jesus was divine as no other man was divine? Yes, 77 per cent.; no, 23 per cent.
5. Do you regard the Bible as inspired in a sense that no other literature could be said to be inspired? Yes, 80 per cent.; no, 20 per cent.
6. Are you an active member of any church? Yes, 70 per cent.; no, 30 per cent.
7. Do you regularly attend any religious service? Yes, 70 per cent.; no, 30 per cent.
8. Would you be willing to have your family grow up in a community in which there was no church? Yes, 21 per cent.; no, 79 per cent.
9. Do you regularly have "family worship" in your house? Yes, 40 per cent.; no, 60 per cent.
10. Were you brought up in a religious home? Yes, 88 per cent.; no, 12 per cent.
11. Do you send your children to any school of religious instruction? Yes, 67 per cent.; no, 33 per cent.
12. Do you think that religion in some form is a necessary element of life for the individual and the community? Yes, 90 per cent.; no, 10 per cent.

These answers were in reply to a questionnaire printed in 150 newspapers in forty States last week, by The World in New York. Only one-half of these papers had reported up to yesterday morning, and only a few had completed counting their ballots. Many of these newspapers will continue to print the questionnaire this week, and other newspapers will begin to print it today.

Few Intellectuals Admit God.

The answers sent to The Nation in London differed from the results of the present questionnaire, because the magazine's circulation is largely among intellectuals, a large percentage of whom are agnostics. Of 1,849 persons answering The Nation's questions, 1,024 denied belief in a personal God. The question of belief in a "personal God" was modified to a belief in God in the present questionnaire, making it possible for those who do not believe in a personal God to reply in the affirmative if they believe in any conception of God.

The London Daily News question as to a belief in a personal God was answered by 9,921 readers in the affirmative, and by 3,686 in the negative. "Do you believe in immortality?" brought 10,161 affirmative answers and 3,178 negative answers. Those who believed the Bible to be inspired outnumbered those who did not by two to one, whereas in the present questionnaire they outnumbered the negatives by four to one.

"The figures indicate that interest in religion differs greatly in various parts of the country," said Mr. Stelzle. "In the South, for example, the people are extremely orthodox in their views. They very generally accept such doctrines as of immortality, the divinity of Jesus and the inspiration of the Bible, and they are strong for the Church.

"Much the same thing is true of the smaller cities in the Middle West, which are made up largely of retired farmers or those who have moved in from the farm, and who can now comfortably attend to their religious duties.

"But in the larger cities the returns indicate a greater indifference to religion. However, previous studies have demonstrated that the percentage of church members is greater in the cities than it is in the country. This is borne out by the fact that the percentage of church members shown in the answers to the questionnaire is larger than it is for the country as a whole."

ETHICS OF LAWYERS IN BUSINESS CENSURED

Guthrie Says Some Prey on the Poor as Collectors, in Address to Law League.

The ethics of some lawyers in business drew the fire of William D. Guthrie, President of the Bar Association of New York City, in an address last evening at the annual banquet of the Commercial Law League of America, at the Hotel Plaza.

"There are, unfortunately, in all of our States," he said, "an ever increasing number of lawyers who are unfit to be members of their profession, lawyers, who should never have been admitted to its ranks or who, having been admitted, have shown themselves to be untrustworthy and unfit for the profession.

"Many of them, acting in connection with irresponsible and disreputable collection agencies, make a prey of the necessities of rich and poor. You are able to meet this evil, in part, by furnishing reputable and responsible collection service; but the Bar Association must labor at the source and see to it that better mental training and qualifications are required of those seeking admission to the profession.

The league is composed of lawyers and men engaged, to a large extent, in the collection end of commercial law.

Ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman, President of the American Bar Association, discussing the lawyer in business, declared that the ethics of commerce were not so high as those of the legal profession and that lawyers leaving their own field placed themselves open to dangers.

Closer relation between business and the law was urged by Maurice P. Davidson, President of the league, and by former Judge Samuel Seabury, President of the New York County Lawyers' Association. About 400 members and guests were present.

LAGUARDIA SEEKS DATA ON MEXICO

Resolution in House Asks State Department if It Inspired Dispatch on Red Activities.

WANTS FACTS BEHIND IT

The Associated Press Manager's Affirmation of Credibility of Source of It Is Recalled.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP).—The controversy over The Associated Press dispatch of Nov. 17 reporting the Government's concern that communistic tendencies in Mexico might be thrust into Latin-American relations promised today to get into Congress.

Representative LaGuardia, Republican of New York, introduced a resolution to direct Secretary Kellogg, if not incompatible with public interest, to inform the House regarding the origin of the dispatch.

Specifically, he wanted to establish whether any State Department officer requested press associations to send out a story concerning internal conditions in Mexico; whether a request was made not to reveal the sources of information, and whether the department had accurate information concerning Bolshevist activities in Mexico and regarding Mexico's attitude toward Nicaragua and Mexican activities in Central America detrimental to the United States.

He also asked if such information was given out at the department what official furnished it.

The LaGuardia resolution would direct the Secretary to answer four questions as follows:

"Did the State Department, through any of its officers, on or about the 16th day of November, 1926, request or suggest to the representatives of The Associated Press, United Press and The International News Service to send a statement or news item to their respective members concerning internal conditions in Mexico and alleged relations between Mexico and Russia?

"Did the Department of State, through any of its officials, on or about the 16th day of November, make any statement to the representatives of The Associated Press, United Press and International News Service concerning Mexico and request said news associations not to reveal the sources of information?

"Did the State Department have in its possession, on or about the 16th day of November, any authentic, accurate or reliable information concerning Bolshevist activities in the Republic of Mexico?

"Did the Department of State have in its possession, on ar about the 16th day of November, any authentic, accurate or reliable information relative to Mexico's attitude toward Nicaragua and Mexican activities in Central America detrimental to the interests of the United States?"

Speaking in New York last Thursday before the convention of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, Kent Cooper, general manager of The Associated Press, distributed a news dispatch reporting the deep concern with which, it said, responsible officials of the State Department regarded "the spectre of a Mexican-fostered Bolshevist hegemony intervening between the United States and the Panama Canal.

"This [information] came to The Associated Press in the usual course of news gathering in Washington from sources which it has a right to expect are well informed and correctly represent the views of the Government," Mr. Cooper said. "There was no reason to question the truth of the information transmitted, and investigation has developed none."

ASKS NO BREAK ON MEXICO.

Berlin Peace Society Directs an Appeal to Coolidge and Borah.

A cablegram, sponsored by Liga Gegan Koloniale Unterdrueckung, a Berlin peace organization, expressing alarm at the possibility of a severance of diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico, was received here yesterday by José Miguel Bejarano, Executive Secretary and Treasurer of the Mexican Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The message carried the names of members of the German, French and British Parliaments as well as those of Germans not connected with their country's Government.

The cablegram stated that the including message was being sent to President Coolidge and Senator Borah. Excerpts from that message follow:

"We cordially invite your Honor and responsible authorities of the United States to abandon the policy of interference toward Mexico and allow her to attain the political, economic, social and cultural emancipation to which she is entitled as an independent entity.

"We strongly and respectfully protest against any aggressive measures against the Mexican people, whose just cause is universally recognized by eminent intellectuals and progressive and labor organizations. We hope the United States Government will pursue a policy of moderation."

In an address yesterday before the Congregational Ministers' Association at 287 Fourth Avenue, Señor Bejárano urged that friendly delegations be sent to Mexico to learn actual conditions at first hand.

He declared that such delegations would be a means of increasing cooperation between this country and Mexico.

Dr. Henry Lewis presided at the meeting.

DIAZ IS EXPLOITER, SACASA ENVOY SAYS

His Government in Nicaragua Is Illegal, Dr. Vaca Asserts in Washington Statement.

OUR SHIPS CHANGE STATIONS

State and Navy Departments Silent on Admiral Latimer's Charge of Mexican Aid to Rebels.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Dr. T. S. Vaca, confidential agent here of the Sacasa Liberal revolutionary Government, today issued a statement in which he described as laughable the charge of Bolshevism which he said President Dias of the Consevative Government there had made against his opponents.

"It is natural," Dr. Vaca's statement said, "for the Dias Government to ask for the assistance of all the outside nations and to continue the campaign of misrepresentation that has been flowing from Managua for the last ten months.

"Nicaragua is a sparsely populated country, without labor or industrial problems of any account. The fact is that the Diaz régime is not only unconstitutional and the result of a coup, but also anti-Nicaraguan, since, judging from past performances, he has never done anything but to encourage the crudest exploitation destructive of that people.

"If the present Diaz régime were left to the people of Nicaragua alone it would get what it deserves."

Officials maintained silence today on the statement at Panama of Rear Admiral Julian L. Latimer, commanding the special service squadron in Central American waters, that there was no doubt about the report of the Sacasa Liberal revolutionary forces in Nicaragua receiving arms from Mexico to strengthen them in opposing the Government of President Diaz.

The Admiral was said, both at the State and Navy Departments, to have made no report of his views on that question to Washington.

Admiral Latimer's flagship, the cruiser Rochester, has passed through the Panama Canal to Balboa, on the Pacific Coast, and is preparing to go to its Nicaraguan station.

The cruiser Cleveland has been sent to replace the Rochester at Bluefields and the destroyers Brooks and Barry have been dispatched to Puerto Cabezas, the seat of the Liberal Government, to relieve the Tracy and the Whipple.

The movements are interpreted at the Navy Department as routine and due to the equipment needs of the naval craft stationed in these waters.

Arms From Mexico, Latimer Says.

PANAMA, Dec. 13 (AP).—Rear Admiral Julian L. Latimer, commenting on reports that the Liberals in Nicaragua were receiving arms from Mexico, said today:

"There is no doubt about that, and the Mexican Government does not deny that arms obtained in Mexican ports have been taken to the east coast of Nicaragua."

Mexican Aid Is Disclaimed.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 13 (AP).—Speaking on behalf of Dr. Juan Sacasa's Liberal Government in Nicaragua, which has been recognized by Mexico, Pedro Zepeda, the Liberal envoy here, has given emphatic reiteration of his denials that the Mexican Government supported the Liberals by armed expeditions.

The denial was prompted by a statement issued from Managua by President Diaz declaring that it was "understood from reliable sources that it is the plan of the Mexican Government that the vessel Superior, now being outfitted by officials of the Mexican Government with an armed expedition, should proceed soon to Nicaragua under the escort of Mexican gunboats for the purpose of making war against the constitutional Government of Nicaragua, over which I preside."

Señor Zepeda replies that the Superior was outfitted at New Orleans, that she reached Nicaragua four days ago, her arrival being, he says, officially reported by Rear Admiral Latimer and that she has already discharged her cargo of arms and ammunition for the Liberals.

Contrary to General Diaz's statement, he adds, no Mexican army or navy officers were aboard the Superior and no Mexican officials had anything to do with the affair or with any other Liberal expeditions, all of which have been financed and carried out by Nicaraguans alone.

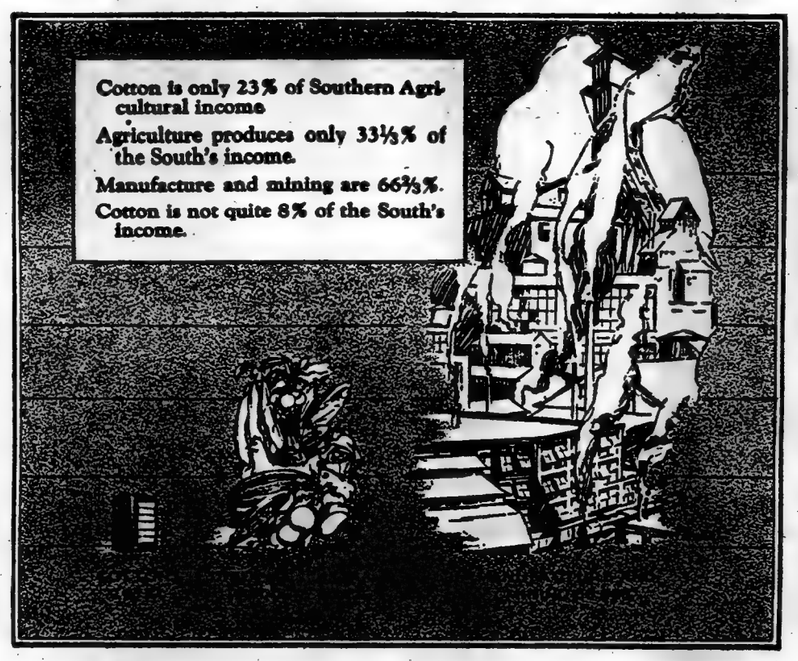
Here is the Truth about Cotton and the SOUTH



THE South's income for 1926 will be the highest in history.

Cotton is off—yes. But Cotton is only 23% of the South's agricultural income. And agriculture is only a third of the South's total income.

In spite of 12-cent cotton, the income from agriculture alone will show an increase of 185 million dollars over last year. And the income from manufacture and mining is twice the agricultural income.

Grasp the full significance of these facts. Let this truth sink in: The South's prosperity is no longer dependent upon the price of cotton. The South is prosperous as it has never been before.

COTTON is no longer an alibi for poor sales in the South. If you are not getting the volume you should, you must look elsewhere for the reason.

Those great American concerns that are serving the South as it should be served—from close by, are reporting good business. They have learned that Industry can no longer hope to serve the entire United States from any one point, however centrally located; they have established branch factories, warehouses, offices in the South.

More than 700 of the outstanding concerns in America, after a careful analysis of Southern cities, have chosen Atlanta as the point of greatest economy for distribution and for branch factory location. The ideal combination is here: Prosperous market. Low production cost. Unexcelled distribution facilities.

With Cotton Down, Income from Agriculture Increases

AGRICULTURAL INCOME for 1926 is nearly 200 million dollars—net—better than last year. Corn gained 216 million. Oats 72 million. Tobacco 22 million. Hay 89 million. These gains, with others, show an increase of nearly half a billion dollars with which to offset the loss in cotton values.

Take Georgia for example: The 1926 income from chickens and eggs alone totals nearly a third of the cotton-crop values. Georgia tobacco brought nearly two and a half million more than last year. Corn shows a five million dollar increase. And a substantial increase in peanuts, hay, sorghum cane and other agricultural products more than offsets the loss in cotton for this state. And Georgia is typical of the whole South.

The Industrial Bureau of Atlanta will be glad to survey manufacturing and marketing conditions from the standpoint of your business. This service is offered without cost or obligation, and your correspondence will be held in the strictest confidence.

Send for this Booklet which gives the experience of some of the 700 great concerns which have already come to Atlanta to serve the rich Southern market.

MELLETT'S WIDOW TELLS OF MURDER

Testifying at McDermott's Trial, She Recounts Editor's Death From Bullets.

BREAKS WITH HER ON STAND

Chief of Counsel Halts Testimony of Kascholk on Plot Against Canton Publisher.

CANTON, Ohio, Dec. 13 (AP).—Two of the State's most important witnesses in the murder of Don R. Mellett, crusading publisher of the Canton Daily News, were presented today to the jury trying Patrick Eugene McDermott, one of the alleged slayers.

Mrs. Florence Mellett, the Editor's widow, small and pathetic, with the youngest of her four children, four-year-old Jane, at her knee, unfolded the story of threats hurled into her home by Mellett's enemies.

Not long after she left the stand, Dave Kascholk, the State's chief informer, came from behind the bars of Stark County Workhouse to point an accusing finger at McDermott. Kascholk declares he was invited to take part in the murder plot, but declined.

He had just started his story when it was interrupted by strife between opposing counsel. Then court adjourned for the day.

Dressed entirely in black, Mrs. Mellett ascended the stand today holding the hand of little Jane. Frequently the child interrupted her mother's testimony with inaudible questions and Mrs. Mellett answered her in whispers.

The widow recited what had taken place at her home on the night of July 16. Friends had returned with her from a party and she was in the kitchen preparing a light lunch when Mr. Mellett said he was going to "put the car away."

"A moment after he had gone to the garage in the rear I heard one shot and then several," Mrs. Mellett testified. "I ran to the kitchen door and I saw my husband slumped down against the garage door."

She faltered in her testimony and then continued with a catch in her voice:

"I don't know why I let him go to the garage alone."

Kascholk probably will be the first witness tomorrow. On his testimony the State bases a theory of a plot against Mellett, formed out of a bootleggers' conspiracy, sponsored by Ben Rudner, of Massilon, and Louis Maser, of Canton, and joined by McDermott. Rudner and Maser are co-defendants.

Kascholk was testifying about a trip to Massilon with McDermott eight days before the slaying when court adjourned. They had gone there from Cleveland to obtain work, he said.

Before Kascholk's testimony continues, the Court will have to rule in a dispute between opposing counsel over the exact light in which the witness's testimony is to be regarded.

The State contends that there is nothing to show conspiracy on Kascholk's part as he gained his information only through association with those charged with the murder. The defense, however, argues that his testimony is irrelevant unless the prosecution is seeking to show his participation in the plot.

GIRLS WIN ON CO-EDUCATION

Swarthmore Debaters Defeat Men's Team From Wesleyan.

Special to The New York Times.

SWARTHMORE COLLEGE, Pa., Dec. 13.—The Swarthmore College coeds proved superiority in championing co-education by defeating the Connecticut Wesleyan debating team, composed of men, here this evening.

Ruby Sieger and Mary Wright of Swarthmore, representing the affirmative side of the question, that co-education, viewed as it exists today, should be adopted by colleges in the East, won over Paul Maier and Tilford Dudley by a 46-19 vote of the audience.

His subject was Greek drama and he emphasized the plays of Menander upon which he is writing a book. Johnson Chapel, which barely accommodates the student body, was so jammed that it was deemed necessary to exclude all those not connected with the college.

ARREST OF ORMISTON IS SOUGHT IN VAIN

Chicago Gets Request From Keyes, but Refuses to Act Without a Warrant.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 13.—District Attorney Asa Keyes of Los Angeles, who is here on a visit, today telegraphed State's Attorney Crowe in Chicago to arrest Kenneth G. Ormiston and hold him for extradition in the Aime Semple McPherson case.

"I will press the extradition of him when I arrive there," said the telegram.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—Kenneth G. Ormiston tonight rounded out another twenty-four hours in his Chicago sanctuary apparently with nobody willing to take him into custody.

State's Attorney Crowe today received a telegram from District Attorney Asa Keyes asking him to put Ormiston in jail.

Mr. Crowe asked Chief of Police Collins what he was going to do about it. "Why, nothing," replied the Chief. "I won't arrest him on the authority of a telegram."

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 13 (AP).—Deputy Prosecutor Dennison announced today he would ask the Grand Jury tomorrow to facilitate Ormiston's extradition. Nine witnesses have been subpoenaed to appear before the jury. The trunk seized in New York recently containing feminine apparel, part of which the District Attorney says belongs to the evangelist, will be exhibited to the jurors.

"The prosecution is in the same position as the man who caught a bear by the tail," said W. J. Gilbert, counsel for Mrs. McPherson. "He had an easy time getting him, but a tough time turning him loose. Ormiston looks like the bear in this case."

When You Catch Cold Rub On Musterole

Musterole is easy to apply and works right away. It may prevent a cold from turning into "flu" or pneumonia. It does all the good work of grandmother's mustard plaster.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made of oil of mustard and other home simples. It is recommended by many doctors and nurses. Try musterole for sore throat, cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back and joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet—colds of all sorts.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

EMANU-EL RESOLD; PRICE IS $7,000,000

Buyer, Joseph Durst, Banker, Will Replace Temple With 40-Story Office Building.

A $15,000,000 INVESTMENT

Winter's Profits Swelled by Deal—He Acquired Famous Temple for $6,500,000.

Temple Emanu-El, one of Fifth Avenue's famous landmarks, and the plot it occupies on the northeast corner of Forty-third Street, conceded to be one of the most valuable parcels of real estate of its size in the world, was resold yesterday. It brought a record price of almost $370 a square foot. Benjamin Winter, an operator, sold it to Joseph Durst, Vice President of the Capitol National Bank.

It is the intention of Mr. Durst, who purchased the property at a valuation of $7,000,000, to improve the site with a forty-story office building when he gets possession in May, 1928. This will bring the investment, including the cost of the proposed building, to about $15,000,000. In addition to a large cash payment Mr. Durst gave two modern commercial loft buildings located in the heart of the garment centre district, known as 242 to 252 West Thirty-sixth Street, a thirteen-story structure, and 229 to 239 West Thirty-sixth Street, a twelve-story building.

Temple in Valuable Area.

The temple site has a frontage of 104 feet on the east side of Fifth Avenue, adjoining the new addition of the Harriman National Bank, and 184 feet on the north side of Forty-third Street, a total of 19,047 square feet. Its sale marks another step in the development of Fifth Avenue, especially in the midtown section, where two monumental office buildings are now nearing completion. One of the latter is on the site of Delmonico's, at Forty-fourth Street, and the other is at Forty-fifth Street, the site of the Church of the Heavenly Rest.

Temple Emanu-El was purchased by Mr. Winter from the congregation last January at a valuation of $6,500,000, which established a record price at that time of close to $340 a square foot for Fifth Avenue real estate.

The contract provided for a cash payment by Mr. Winter of $2,000,000, a $1,000,000 mortgage at 4½ per cent. running for two years, while the balance of $3,500,000 was met by the transfer to the congregation of the Vincent Astor mansion at Sixty-fifth Street and Fifth Avenue.

Here the congregation plans to erect a new temple and twelve-story community centre. Another provision was that Mr. Winter turn over to the temple 75 per cent. of any sum in excess of $6,500,000 for which he might resell the temple up to May 1, 1928.

Two weeks after the contracts had been closed Mr. Winter announced he had resold the temple to William B. Ward, head of the Ward Baking Company, for $6,500,000.

Ward Turned Back the Property.

It was reputed that the buyer would improve the site with a skyscraper. Last May, however, Mr. Ward withdrew from the deal and turned the entire property back to Mr. Winter with a profit reported to be about $450,000. It was reported yesterday that negotiations are under way for the sale of the Henry White house, also an acquisition by Mr. Winter.

Byrne & Bowman, as brokers, negotiated the sale of Temple Emanu-El.

SMITH WILL ELEVATE JUSTICE PROSKAUER

Hopes to Name Him for Appellate Division—Dowling Is Expected to Preside There.

Governor Smith expects to designate Supreme Court Justice Joseph M. Proskauer to a place on the Appellate Division in the First Department, it was learned yesterday, and probably also Justice James O'Malley, or some other Republican Supreme Court Justice.

The two vacancies on the Appellate Division grow out of the retirement under the age limit at the end of this month of Presiding Justice John Proctor Clarke, a Republican, and William P. Burr, a Democrat.

Justice Victor J. Dowling, who has seen years of service with the Appellate Division, it was said, would probably be designated by Governor Smith as Presiding Justice to succeed Justice Clarke. Governor Smith had a conference with Justice Proskauer late yesterday.

ZURICH, Dec. 13.—The "Suicide Bureau" of the Municipality of Zurich—probably the only one of its kind in the world—has called upon all the inhabitants for aid in combating the present epidemic of suicides.

As soon as any one is heard making a threat to end his or her life, the bureau requests that it be notified immediately so that it may try to remove the difficulties prompting the desire to die.

The bureau has already dealt with 600 cases, of whom 200 attempted suicide a second time. The misery caused by losses in the late war explains most of the cases.

GETS FINAL PERMIT FOR HUDSON BRIDGE

Port Authority Receives War Department Approval—Plans to Call for Bids Soon.

BONDS ON MARKET TODAY

Syndicate Headed by National City Company Will Offer a $20,000,000 Issue.

The War Department yesterday officially approved the plans of the Port Authority of New York for the Fort Washington-Fort Lee Bridge. The Port Authority, at 75 West Street, was advised of this by telegraph and immediately began preparations for work on the $50,000,000 structure.

As soon as formal authorization is received from Washington, which is expected to be in a few days, the Port Authority will advertise for bids on the piers and other foundation work. It was said yesterday at the Port Authority office that work would begin early next year. While the piers are being built the Authority expects to let the contracts for the steel work.

Only Obstacle Is Removed.

The action of the War Department removed the last obstruction to the erection of the bridge, it was explained, and thus paves the way for the initial contract.

The new bridge will be of suspension type, with a span of 3,500 feet and a clearance over the river of 207 feet. It will cross the Hudson River between 170th and 185th Streets, but the exact place has not yet been selected.

The banking syndicate, headed by the National City Company, which received the award last week of $20,000,000 of Port of New York Authority New York-New Jersey Interstate Bridge 4 per cent. bonds, will offer the issue for public subscription this morning. The bonds are due serially from Dec. 1, 1936, to 1950, and are priced to yield about 4.20 per cent.

Announcement of the offering was made following receipt from Washington of news that the War Department had issued a permit for the bridge.

Others Are in the Syndicate.

The issue was awarded after the examination of bids submitted by a large number of Wall Street banking houses. Included in the successful syndicate, in addition to the National City Company, are Brown Brothers & Co., Harris, Forbes & Co., Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co. and White, Weld & Co.

The bonds are a direct and general obligation of the Port Authority and will be secured by a first lien on revenues and tolls arising out of the use of the bridge. The bonds are a first instalment of an authorized issue of $60,000,000 for the construction of the bridge. The States of New York and New Jersey are advancing $10,000,000 jointly toward construction of the bridge.

PARIS, Dec. 13.—The American medical profession was represented today at a solemn and impressive observance of the centenary of the death of Rene Theophile-Hyacinthe Laennec, one of the greatest benefactors of mankind, the inventor of the stethoscope.

A distinguished company of men from all the learned walks of life in France and doctors from many parts of Europe attended a requiem mass celebrated in Notre Dame Cathedral by Cardinal Dubois, and later the Academy of Medicine listened to speeches eulogistic of Laennec's contribution to science.

Professor Thayer of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, was the American present. The Academy thanked professor Thayer for three autographed letters of Laennec which he recently presented to the Academy's collections.

Laennec died in the manor house of his ancestors, in the village of Kerlouranec, Finistere, on Aug. 13, 1826. A simple ceremony was held there last August, but the official ceremonies were postponed until today.

...SECRET LEVIATHAN SALE

...mmer Reassures Senators—He Says, "No Man Can Afford to Buy and Run It."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Managing operators of Government merchant marine lines conferred today with Brig. Gen. A. G. Dalton, President of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, on the suggestion of the Shipping Board that operators report the profits under their contracts.

The Board did so through the resolution of Commissioner R. K. Smith of Louisiana, indicating that it contemplates a more efficient method of regulating contracts.

Plans of General Dalton for an extensive advertising campaign and the employment of traffic manager at various shipping centres to develop more business for Shipping Board lines suffered a blow today when it became known that Brig. Gen. Lord, Director of the Budget, will not allow the $1,000,000 needed. The Budget Bureau will insist that the appropriation for advertising and such purposes be kept to the present figure of $500,000. Whether the Fleet Corporation will urge its plan before Congress any way is not known.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP).—No action toward the sale of American merchant lines and the charter of the Leviathan and sister ships will be taken until Congress has had a reasonable opportunity to become informed of the situation, a Senate investigating committee was told today by Edward C. Plummer, Vice President of the Shipping Board.

After a long questioning, Senator Johnson, Republican, of California, Chairman of the committee, told Mr. Plummer the purpose of this hearing was to prevent any action until Congress has had such an opportunity.

"I don't think there will be any question of that," Mr. Plummer answered. "The Shipping Board does not want to put anything through in opposition to Congress."

Senator Johnson asked if the Board contemplated the sale of the lines, and Mr. Plummer replied that the apparent attempts to sell them were "feelers."

He did not believe a buyer for the Leviathan could be obtained, because "no man can afford to buy and run it."

Inefficiency in administering the Fleet Corporation due to frequent changes in the Chairmanship is one reason private interests can operate merchant lines at a profit while the Government operates at a loss, Vice Chairman Plummer of the Shipping Board testified today before a Senate investigating committee.

The witness cited the recent removal of Captain Elmer E. Crowley as Chairman, asserting he knew of no reason for the action and Admiral Benson said the same.

Senator Fletcher, Democrat, of Florida, called it a "Coolidge victory," while Senator Cousens, Republican, of Michigan, asked Admiral Benson if it were not "a frame-up in advance."

Admiral Benson said he had heard rumors connecting the President's name with the case, but that he did not feel he could discuss them. He said the British Government furnishes a naval subvention of $60,000,000 a year to the Cunard Line.

SON GETS OELRICHS ESTATE

Mrs. Theresa Oelrichs Also Left Trust Fund for Her Nurse.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Dec. 13.—According to the will of Mrs. Theresa Alice Oelrichs, admitted to probate here today, her large estate, which she received from her father, James G. Fair, passes to her son, Hermann Oelrichs. There is a stipulation in the will that should Mr. Oelrichs pre-decease the maker of the will or should he die without issue, Mrs. Virginia Vanderbilt, sister of the testator, will be the residuary legatee.

The will creates a trust fund from which $300 a month is to be paid to Antoinette Page, now in Paris, for life. Miss Paige was for a long period a nurse companion of Mrs. Oelrichs.

Mr. Oelrichs is made sole executor of the estate and letters testamentary were granted to him by the Court today. Bond was fixed at $900,000, with no surety required.

No specific mention is made of Rosecliff, her Newport home, and it passes to the son. It is understood here that he and his wife intend to occupy Rosecliff next Summer.

Buffalo Thief Snatches $2,500.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 13 (AP).—A youth today snatched a parcel containing $2,500 in checks and $101 in cash from Zelda Nabith as she was walking across the Michigan-Scott Street Viaduct en route from a bank to Eppolie Brothers, her employers, in West Market Street. Several men chased the thief, but he escaped.

WARNS OF FRAUDS IN ADVERTISEMENTS

W. E. Humphrey, Federal Trade Commissioner, Says They Lure $500,000,000 Yearly.

TO PROSECUTE MAGAZINES

He Tells Book Publishers That Those Who Aid Swindlers Are Equally Guilty.

The Federal Trade Commission in its warfare on fraud has determined to end the publication of fraudulent advertisements in magazines and newspapers, which cost the American public about $500,000,000 annually, Commissioner William E. Humphrey announced last evening at a dinner of the Subscription Book Publishers' Association at the Hotel Astor. The greater part of this vast total comes from the pockets of poor people, Mr. Humphrey declared.

The Federal Trade Commissioner, who also described the advance made by the commission since its rules were changed about eighteen months ago, asserted that the reputable publishers need have no fear of the body's campaign.

"We want not only to protect the public from these fakers and crooks," he said, "but we want also to protect the honest publisher from their unfair and dishonest competition.

Hopes to End Robbery.

"Our one purpose and our only object is to make it impossible for the frauds and fakers, swindlers and scoundrels, with the help of dishonest, unprincipled and mercenary publishers who share in the fruits of their crime to rob the sick and unfortunate, the credulous and the ignorant, of hundreds of millions of dollars annually. We hope and expect to put most of this vast army of crooks and parasites out of business.

"We know of no other way that this can be done except by stopping publication and circulation of these advertisements."

He said fabulous sums have been spent for worthless anti-fat remedies since "the female skeleton has become the fashion and for patent medicines for incurable diseases that are frequent and injurious, and often by holding out false hopes, keep the victim from real help until too late; beauty creams and lotions and cosmetics, that improve the pocketbook of the faker, if not the complexion of the user; fake industrial schools, holding out alluring promises for lucrative employment."

"I can produce today magazines that in a single issue carry not less than fifty of the vile, dishonest and indecent advertisement," he continued.

Courts Apparently Helpless.

"How can this gigantic evil be reached? The courts apparently are helpless. The action of the Post Office Department has been ineffectual. The efforts of the Federal Trade Commission so far have not brought encouraging results. We have tried to reach the originators of these schemes. We have accomplished something, but comparatively little. They are usually fleet and cunning crooks that engage in this business. When located, they fold their tents and silently vanish, and commerce business again in some new locality, under some new name.

"Why should the publisher, that for hire helps to rob the victim, escape? Can you imagine a criminal more dangerous to the public, capable of doing greater harm, lower in the human scale, and deserving less consideration?

"I have reached the conclusion that there is an effective and direct remedy. Proceed directly against the publisher. When we proceed against a magazine, or newspaper, those concerns cannot quit business as soon as a complaint is served upon them. With them it becomes a serious business—they must appear and defend the action. They cannot disappear overnight."

Another speaker was Frank H. Vizetelly, editor and lexicographer. At the opening of the twelfth annual convention of the association in the morning one of the speakers was George M. Wiley, Assistant State Commissioner of Education. He spoke of "The Home as a Factor in the Educational Program." Lansing F. Smith, President, presided. The convention will continue today with an address by Dr. C. H. Lane of the Federal Board for Vocational Education and the election of officers.

CITY BREVITIES.

The League of Nations Non-Partisan Association will celebrate its seventh anniversary at the Hotel Astor on Monday, Jan. 10. Its plans for next year include a conference on economics and another an disarmament.

After the usual delays and postponements and the formality of Ellis Island probation, the Habima Players of Moscow have strung up their canvas scenery and set up their eccentric props in the Mansfield, where they acted "The Dybbuk" last evening. Almost exactly a year ago the Neighborhood Playhouse made this exotic play by Ansky a treasury of organized acting in an adaptation for the English stage. Next Thursday, incidentally, the Neighborhood players will put on "The Dybbuk" again. The Habima performance is described as the "original version"; the spoken tongue is Hebrew, or, as one of the soothsayers reported in the lobby, a Russian-Lithuanian dialect constructed upon Hebrew. In spite of an eager audience, to many of whom Hebrew was not an unfamiliar tongue, the spoken words obviously did not matter particularly last evening. For the attention was naturally focussed upon a highly stylized type of acting developed to a state of plastic perfection. We have all caught hints of it in other performances directed by the innumerable Moscovians now rummaging around this country. The direction of the Moscow Art Theatre Musical Studio had been tarred a little with the same brush. But no other performance in this city has been so bold in its stylization, so daring in its treatment of details and so skilful in evoking the latent moods of a production.

In order to describe it one must report some of the details. First of all, the make-up is extraordinary. Faces are painted with curious designs, in high colors, not unlike grotesque masks; mouths are pulled out of shape by daubs of grease-paint; eyes are rendered almost uncanny by circles and arches; noses are pulled to a sharp point. The black gowns of the chassidim are crudely smeared with white at the edges. All the benches and chairs used in the synagogue and at the wedding breakfast are off centre; the angular treatment of the property extends even to the unpretentious scenery. The actors move about the stage with grotesque motions, with absurd attitudes; the lines of the human figure are broken up by stooping or leaning heavily to one side. And the voices of the beggars, the professional prayer men and the choruses in general are individually unnatural, stressed and strained. Divided into its various parts, like the individual scores for a symphony, the production would be thoroughly unintelligible.

When all these separate parts are pulled together in a symmetrical performance the effect is astonishing—as unreal as the mystic legend of the play, as profound in its searching of the emotions, supple, resilient and varied. Sometimes the terminology of music is used most effectively in the discussion of this style of acting. And to some purpose in the present instance; for the direction of "The Dybbuk" employs stringed music off-stage and voices in chorus for the expression of the play. More and more until the last act (when the Tzadik attempts to cast out the spirit from Leah) runs into operatic treatment with chants, organized singing off stage and even the intonation of lines. Acted in this vein, the performance descr'es what we may vaguely term the "soul" of "The Dubbuk." It is a method extraordinarily beautiful when it is perfectly welded and polished; it would be disastrous in less talented hands.

Comparisons with the Neighborhood performance are inevitable after the spectacle of last evening. And comparisons show that the Neighborhood performance is a very good one indeed, and the legitimate offspring of the Habima. For when the Neighborhood players came to mount the piece, already famous in Hebrew and Yiddish, they employed as director David Vardi, once a member of the Habima troupe. They could not have done better; the stylized treatment is surely the authentic expression of this mystic drama. If the Habima are bolder in their construction of the elements of the performance, surer of touch, more expansive and more colorful, the Neighborhood production has obvious virtues. To the present reporter, at least, the lighting on the Grand Street stage was more imaginative, and the scenery more illuding. Oddly painted canvas, geometrical designs flung across the wings and rudely proportioned altars in the Habima production doubtless have significance and purpose, but they do not stir the imagination.

The Moscow Theatre Habima was founded shortly after the 1905 revolution by N. L. Zemach for the acting of plays in Hebrew. It struggled through Tsarist persecutions in 1911 and Soviet disapproval in 1917. At that time it was championed by Maxim Gorky, Stanislavsky, Chaliapin and Nemirovitch-Dantchenko, whose names are all familiar in this country, and now it exists as a vigorous influence in the art of theatre expression. Several years ago with the Moscow Art Theatre we saw realism carried to the height of perfection. With the Habima we see a fresher method of group-acting, suited to dramas of a freer technique. Our stage may learn a good deal from it in the orchestration of producing.

STEFAN SOPKIN IN RECITAL.

Gives an Artistic Performance of Schelling's Violin Concerto.

Ernest Schelling's violin concerto, of which Efrem Zimbalist gave the first performance here last year, was played by Stefan Sopkin at a recital last night in Aeolian Hall, where the young violinist followed by a few hours the pianist-composer heard the same day. Mr. Sopkin, who has before given proof of artistic accomplishment, brought to the concerto a comprehensive phrasing and melodic line that suited its rhapsodic material, modern in restless harmony, yet offset by occasional full-keyboard figures, like the sweet harpstrings of the bards of old, in a highly important piano accompaniment played by Harry Kaufman.

Mr. Sopkin gave three numbers from Ernest Bloch's "Baal Schem," also new to some hearers. He and Mr. Kaufman were heard in the C-minor sonata of Grieg at the evening's start, while among later pieces were a "Havanaise" of Saint-Saëns and two arrangements by Sopkin of a Swiss lullaby and a Paganini caprice.

ROUGH AND READY FUN GALORE IN 'HOWDY KING'

There is a good deal of rough-and-ready amusement in the farce called "Howdy, King," acted last night at the Morosco Theatre, and in one respect at least the author and the producer have worked with sure hands. For in this tale a cowpuncher set among royalty—become royalty himself, in fact—nothing is permitted to sail over the heads of the audience. A good deal of "Howdy, King," brought laughter. But every line of it was understood.

The producer of "Howdy, King" is the miraculous Anne Nichols, and her name has come to be reasonable warrant that the play shall be understandable. The new piece is the work of Mark Swan, a farceur, frequently successful in the past, and it relates the story of an Arizona cowboy come with somewhat dizzy suddenness to the throne of a European kingdom. Setting the breezy talk and action of the ranch against the formality and gold braid of royalty, Mr. Swan has provided himself with an easy formula that bears a good deal of repetition, and gets it. If the play is written in accents unmistakable, they are likewise frequently accents hilarious.

For the further complication and embellishment Mr. Swan has provided a background of revolution, and strewn the whole with fiercely bearded dukes, American heroines, ermine robes, soldiers briskly at attention, the rattle of musketry, plot and counterplot. Add an American prizefighter who becomes the bodyguard of the new monarch; picture him elevated to a dukedom by a wave of that monarch's sword, and you have a good idea of the mood of the new play. Picture the monarch himself adhering to the native "Slipme-the-mitt" through the ceremony of presentation at court—and you will know instantaneously if you belonged in the audience that welcomed the play last night.

Minor Watson plays the leading rôle as it was written—broadly, accentedly and spiritedly. The entire cast, as a matter of fact, does all within its power for the play.

"Whiskey" From Painters' Thinner.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 13 (AP).—"Fruit Whisky" a concoction based on redistilled painters' thinner, is said by Federal prohibition agents here to be making its apearance in the holiday bootleg market. Samples are said to show a lower grade of alcohol than commonly circulates, with traces of wood alcohol. Its flossy name is declared by agent's to be no index to its probably injurious character.

MUSIC

By OLIN DOWNES.

Shura Cherkassky, Boy Pianist.

Shura Cherkassky, the 15-year-old pianist, who played last night in Carnegie Hall, is more than an imitative or facile young player, more than an infant phenomenon of the not infrequent description. There is no question of his exceptional gift; there is, however, a question of how far and fast his talent should be pushed at this time. To begin a program with the Bach-Tausig tocatta and fugue in D minor and the Lisst B minor sonata is a prodigious feat. It shows fingers, memory, an astonishing mastery of virtuoso effects. In the performance of the sonata it showed more; it proved that Mr. Cherkassky is now capable of understanding the subtler as well as the broadly dramatic phases of interpretive art and that he has assimilated much from masterly teaching. But the performance of the Bach-Tausig piece, a transcription very swollen and in bad taste, was noisy, forced and extravagant. Why a young pianist should immerse himself in such stuff, when there is a wealth of Bach literature conceived for his instrument, or its predecessors, is a question. It is probaby to be answered in terms of virtuoso effect, applause and the like, but how much has that to do with the making of a great artist?

The Lisst sonata gave the impression of an interpretation assimilated rather than one originating with the performer. That is to be expected of Master Cherkassky at this time. It was, nevertheless, a very creditable achievement which showed his temperament and his instinctive understanding of much that customarily lies beyond his years. Might not this achievement, impressive as it was in certain ways and justly applauded by the audience, have been allowed to stand and grow in the privacy of the studio while the performer turned his attention to music of less pretentious nature but at least equal musical value?

There was some good playing in the Chopin group, which included the F sharp major impromptu, the familiar A flat ballade—in which there was again unnecessary distortion and a sophisticated treatment of detail—and two of the waltzes. The A minor waltz, one of the finest of Chopin's works in this form, was played in particular with a simplicity and tonal beauty not always present.

Mr. Cherkassky was received with enthusiasm, he was recalled many times, he could have played many more encores than he did—which was wisdom on his part. He gave proof that his talent is not a superficial thing and that he has capacities for growth beyond his present astonishing demonstration. But he can well afford to go slowly. There is a recollection of a recital he gave some years ago—if recollection of the moment serves, he had not passed his tenth year—when he performed with a delightful naturalness, ease, tonal beauty and a sheer instinct for what was artistic. Such qualities can easily be hardened and the bloom of a talent rubbed off by forcing.

The French Opéra Comique Company began its fourth week at the Jolson Theatre last evening with Robert Planquette's operetta, "Les Cloches de Corneville" ("Chimes of Normandy"). This tuneful operetta was much enjoyed by a fairly large audience, which did not at all times catch the meaning of the dialect used by the rustics of the period.

E. Thomas Saligmac, the artistic director of the company, had carefully selected the principals, who were favorites already familiar to the New York public. Four of them have good voices; one of them, the Marquis (M. Hirigaray), an unusually good one, which made him the vocal hero of the evening. But the actor of the company is without dispute M. Servatuis, whose get-up as Gaspard was nearer to nature than many in front realized. His scene in the third act, when he was gloating over his hoard, was played with a seriousness that lifted it into the realm of dramatic art. Indeed, the principals in the operetta expend an amount of art, surprising in quality and refinement.

The Grenicheux of M. Foix was another of his light and amusing impersonations, served by a charming tenor voice of no great timbre, but of wonderful flexibility. The Germaine of Mlle. Evrard could be counted on as a type of the ingenue so dear to the French stage, pretty, with a useful soprano and an attractive personality. Mlle. Syril made the most of a solid, rather rough, but good-natured Serpolette. She fitted in the picture in a showy and effective manner.

The chorus, it must be said, was the weakest part of the company. It did not have the discipline expected of choruses in America, and sometimes interfered with the action of the play. There were also other distractions, particularly in the third act, when people could be seen through the tapestry screen during Gaspard's act, and the curtains in the wings harbored unauthorized spectators. These were minor details. The ensemble playing of the principals was a joy to watch.

Mention must also be made of M. Delamercie in the comic part of the Bailli. The conductors for the week will be M. Julien Clemandh, first orchestra chief of the Gaieté Lyrikue, Paris, and assistant conductor, M. Gerald Reynolds.

To Act 'Public Opinion' in English.

"Public Opinion," a play by Jax Gabel, Yiddish actor, will soon be presented in English at a Broadway theatre, it was announced yesterday by J. Luther Adler, son of the late Jacob P. Adler, and Edward Earl Kay. "The Great Moment," "Clear Conscience" and "The Woman of the World," all by Mr. Gabel, are also on the producers' schedule. Casting for "Public Opinion" will begin on Dec. 27.

URGES JEWISH ORTHODOXY.

Sophie Irene Loeb Speaks at Education Association Meeting.

Sophie Irene Loeb, President of the Child Welfare Committee of America, said yesterday that more orthodoxy and ceremony was needed among Jews in the practice of their religion. She spoke at a meeting of the Ivriah, the women's branch of the Jewish Education Association at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre. Unless Judaism were kept up among young people the religion would lose perpetuity, she said, and the spiritual motiviation behind many great accomplishments of Jews would be lost.

Florence Reed of "The Shanghai Gesture" told the audience that pride of race was fully as important as pride of religion for the Jew, and urged that racial pride be taught to Jewish children.

Mrs. Joseph Leblang, President of the organization, announced that it would be made national in the near future. Bernard Semel of the Jewish Education Association and Dr. David de Sola Pool, rabbi of the Spanish Portuguese Synagogue, were other speakers. Mr. Samuel Goldstein presided.

ALY IS ACCUSED OF ABUSING POWER

itor of Taxicab Weekly Says rivers Are Treated Unfairly by Police Deputy.

PPEALS TO McLAUGHLIN

manda an Investigation—Daly Denies the Charges and Refers to Records.

A charge that Second Deputy Police Commissioner John Daly was abusing the power of his office in the supervision of New York taxicabs was made to Police Commissioner McLaughlin in a letter given to the public yesterday by E. A. Brown, editor of The Taxi Weekly. Commissioner McLaughlin was asked to investigate Daly's conduct in office with a view to removing him if charges against him were substantiated.

The immediate cause for the letter, Mr. Brown said, was the serving of a summons upon a taxi driver last week and the man's trial on the charge of "failure to pay a debt." The case was typical, he said, of Deputy Commissioner Daly's permitting his office to be used to "badger, threaten and punish" drivers at the request of various companies in the taxicab business.

"So notorious have Commissioner Daly's trials become," said the letter, "that it is admitted throughout the industry that it is impossible to get anything like justice at his hands. Often he refuses to let witnesses testify or to read affidavits brought in defense of the accused."

Commissioner Daly's reply to Mr. Brown was a flat denial of the charges. He explained that the police of his bureau were confronted daily with complaints by taxicab companies and automobile credit associations that drivers who had obtained cars for a day or longer periods, partly on police credentials, had abandoned the cars either in the streets or in obscure garages, frequently after stripping them of all salable accessories. Sometimes the companies recovering their cars found long garage bills charged against them.

It was in the legitimate police function of breaking up this common practice and protecting the owners of taxicabs, Commissioner Daly explained, that his bureau had summoned drivers against whom complaints had been made. The case of a particular driver, whom Mr. Brown had cited in his magazine as summoned for "failure to pay debt," had been dismissed when it came to trial.

As to the allegation of unfair trials, it was pointed out that of the 4,300 drivers placed on trial within the year, only about 300 had suffered revocation of license, considerably more than half had been cleared and varying minor suspensions from driving had been the penalties for others. The facts that there were 34,000 taxis on the streets daily and 47,957 licensed hackmen in the city, were cited as showing that trials and penalties were few.

Officers in the Bureau for Licensing Public Hacks and Public Hack Drivers over which Commissioner Daly has charge asserted that police efforts to break up the practice of stripping taxis were being pushed as never before, and that friction with some of the taxi men had increased because of them.

MAX REINHARDT HERE.

Producer of "The Miracle" Accompanied by Karl Vollmoeller.

Max Reinhardt, producer of "The Miracle," and Karl Vollmoeller, its author, arrived yesterday on the Hamburg-American liner Deutschland, receiving a chilly welcome, for a dismal fog kept the liner anchored at Quarantine all day.

Mr. Reinhardt said they would go to San Francisco within a few days, "if the fog lifted." They wish to see the San Francisco opening of the sacred drama.

The German producer denied that he was planning to direct a German theatre in America.

Mr. Vollmoeller said that he was now writing a drama which would present Christ in reincarnated form. The scene is laid in Toledo, Spain. He was anxious to know whether American public opinion would object to his presenting the person of Christ on the stage, and said he hoped to discuss the matter with Cardinal Hayes, Bishop Manning and other religious leaders.

JEANNE EAGELS QUITS ROLE.

Succeeded in "Chicago" by Francine Larrimore During Rehearsals.

Rehearsals of "Chicago," by Maurine Watkins, in which Jeanne Eagels was to have appeared in the star rôle, were interrupted last Saturday to permit Francine Larrimore, now playing in "This Was a Man," to take over Miss Eagels's part, it was learned yesterday. Differences with several directors, it is reported, were the cause of Miss Eagels giving up the rôle. Sam Forrest, who directed her in "Rain," resigned after rehearsing several performances. George Abbott is now directing the company.

Attempts to reach Miss Eagels last night at her home in Ossining were unsuccessful.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company. By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 13.—Foreign films largely predominate in Germany, according to a report submitted to the Minister of Commerce by the Association of German Film Producers. The total home production has amounted to 584,000 meters since Jan. 1, while 743,000 meters were obtained from abroad.

Practically all came from the United States, only a small percentage having been bought in Russia, Sweden, France, Italy and England.

'The Nightingale' at Jolson's Jan. 3.

The Shuberts will present "The Nightingale," a musical play based on the life of Jenny Lind, at Jolson's Theatre on Monday evening, January 3. Eleanor Painter is starred in the production and Stanley Lupino, Thomas A. Wise and Ralph Errolle are featured members of the cast.

Peggy Wood is singing the title rôle during its Philadelphia engagement, but the Shuberts announce that she will withdraw from the cast at the end of the week and will later appear in another of their productions. Guy Bolton and P. G. Wodehouse wrote the book and lyrics of "The Nightingale" and Armand Vecsey provided the score.

U. S. MARINES EXHIBIT VALOR AT HIPPODROME

Major Biddle's Combat Team in Rough and Tumble Feats—Ernest Glendinning at Palace.

An excellent though abbreviated bill of vaudeville—abbreviated in the sense that it has to divide the program with a motion picture, "Corporal Kate"—is to be found this week at the Hippodrome. The chief item of the entertainment is the engagement of Major A. J. Drexel Biddle and his combat team of the United States Marines, who give some spectacular demonstrations, seemingly at no slight risk to their own personal safety. They go through the manual of arms, fence, fight with bayonets, do jiu jutsu stunts and generally have a rough and tumble time of it for ten or fifteen minutes. Last night several overseas organizations, the American Red Cross Club, the A. E. F. Entertainers Unit and the Women's Overseas Service League were represented in the audience, in addition to a number of well-known society people.

Another presentation of a somewhat elaborate nature is "Les Folies Rouges" which means—although there is no good reason why you can't guess it—"The Red Follies," and is appropriately set with backgrounds in which that color is the prevailing motif. An agreeable "flash" turn, "Les Folies Rouges," fits nicely into the show and prevents the bill from being as exclusively male as, say, the Harvard-Princeton fuss. Ed and Tom Hickey do well with their broad comedy, which contains the essence of vaudeville—and of good vaudeville at that. Moss and Frye, an amusing pair of negro funsters; Charles Derrickson, another of the more painless variety of musical comedy tenors, and Shireen, one of those minor marvels who sees without eyes or hears without ears or something of the sort, but manages to be quite entertaining, complete the bill.

Pat Rooney, Marion Bent and Pat Rooney 3d, are, as customary in their case, chief among the performers at the Palace where they present a series of song and dance specialties, assisted by Townsend and Bold, Muriel Stryker and an excellent sister team, the Van Joyces. A sketch a cut above the vaudeville average is "Selfishness," by Edwin Burke, in which Ernest Glendinning, Linda Ann Carlon and Booth Howard appear. Then there is Georgie Price in songs and stories for all those who like Georgie Price in songs and stories. Among other Palace items of interest are the amusing knockabout comedy act of Willie, West and McGinty, and Corinne Tilton, a new comedienne.

ANN MURDOCK GETS A DIVORCE IN PARIS

Actress Was Married Secretly Here to Harry C. Powers—Other Americans Freed.

PARIS, Dec. 13 (AP).—Mary E. Streit Horton has obtained a divorce here from Jerome L. Horton, whom she married at Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 22, 1917. Both gave Paris addresses. The decree was granted on ground of desertion.

A decree on the same ground was awarded to Ann Colman Powers from Harry Carson Powers. Both gave Paris addresses. They were married in Baltimore, Md., Aug. 4, 1924.

Marga Taxzi Vinton has petitioned for a divorce from Warren Jay Vinton, whom she married in New York April 12, 1921. The grounds for the petition were not made public.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 13 (AP).—Mrs. Ann Colman Powers, who was reported today as having obtained a divorce in Paris from Harry Carson Powers, is Ann Murdock, comedienne. Her secret marriage to Powers, a stock broker, was revealed in New York about a year ago when she sued her husband for $150,000 bonds which she said were given her shortly before her marriage.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 13.—Mrs. William Coxe Wright, prominent socially here until her removal to Northeast Harbor, Me., a year ago, has filed suit for divorce in Paris on grounds of desertion by her husband, a Yale man and well-known court tennis player, according to a private cablegram to relatives here today. Mrs. Wright is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John T. Carpenter.

OVATION TO PADEREWSKI.

Audience Hails Visitor to Concert of Schelling, Once His Pupil.

Mr. Paderewski was greeted twice by a rising audience that discovered Poland's former Premier as a listener at yesterday's Aeolian Hall matinee of Ernest Schelling and the Philharmonic Orchestra, under Willem Mengelberg. It was the third and concluding event of Mr. Schelling's series, in as many different halls, and it became the occasion of a spontaneous tribute by reason of the inclusion of Paderewski's pianoforte concerto in A minor as the program's central number.

The composer's entrance into Box 19, quickly noted by those in the balcony behind him, was missed by a larger part of the house on the floor below. These had their innings as the lights went up after the concerto. Mr. Schelling first shared several recalls with the orchestra's conductor and then both men pointed to Paderewski in the box above. There was a rush forward in the aisles, from all the rear rows till the audience had applauded and cheered the distinguished guest to satiety.

Mr. Schelling's performance was one of the utmost sympathy and understanding of a former pupil for his master's eloquent tone-poem. The music was notably effective in the opening allegro and again in the finale of authentic Polish dance themes, with their climax of contrasting melody in the broad style of a national anthem. The afternoon opened with Beethoven's concerto No. 5, in E flat, while in conclusion Mr. Schelling gave, with the orchestra, his own "Suite Fantastique."

Verdi's "Rigoletto" Sung Again.

Verdi's "Rigoletto" was repeated before a large audience at the Metropolitan last evening, ushering in the season's seventh week. It was Mr. Gigli's first return to the rôle of the Duke, previously done by Lauri-Volpi, while Mr. Danise again sang the title rôle, in succession to De Luca. Miss Talley as Gilda was a favorite with the house, as the young American has been in all three of the current performances of this work in which she made her début last season. Miss Alcock and Mr. Pinza also sang and Mr. Bellezza conducted.

African Gorillas and Savages.

THE GORILLA HUNT, a production made by Ben Burbridge in Central Africa; Charlie Chaplin's old comedy, "Dough and Dynamite;" "Bill," the film transcription of Anatole France's "Crainquebille," featuring Maurice de Feraudy. At the Cameo Theatre.

Although the edge has been taken off the thrill of big-game hunting pictures by the valiant efforts that have gone before, Ben Burbridge's film record of a gorilla hunt, now on view at the Cameo Theatre, is put forth with a sense of humor that adds zest to it. Besides the stretches devoted to the uncanny animals, the scenes depicting African savages are most absorbing. There are dusky gentlemen, who decorate their hair and physiognomies, who were deterred from making pot-roast of the photographers by a spoonful of salt and a safety-pin. The last named article is used as a nasal ornament, being fastened through the cartillage between the nostrils, to the intense pride of the cannibals.

There are also the pygmies, a race discovered by H. M. Stanley. They are extremely timid and rely chiefly on their accuracy with poisoned darts to keep off intruders. Their costumes are just about as extensive as that worn by Gunga Din. These pygmies permitted the explorers to come within the area of their queer abodes with cameras, but they were thumbs down on any rifles. Nevertheless, they participated in cutting up a giant elephant after it had been slain by the white men's weapons.

The savages were much puzzled by the phonograph, being apparently unable to decide where the owner of the voice was hidden.

Mr. Burbridge's party slew three giant gorillas, one weighing something like 450 pounds. Two of these were sent to the Belgian Government and one to the Smithsonian Institution. The explorer also brought away with him three young gorillas, one of which weighed 125 pounds and put up a good battle before he surrendered. Mr. Burbridge shows some amusing scenes with these animals, one of them being that of a young gorilla who insists on getting tangled up in a drum of film. Another gorilla has fun with an Irish terrier. It looks on the screen as if the two animals were playing, but the dog is rolled over easily by the baby gorilla. An extraordinary scene illustrates one captive gorilla trying to reach the branches of a tree. He is evidently thinking. He has a small box, which is not high enough for his intent, and as soon as he espies another box, he puts the two boxes on top of each other and his perspicacity is rewarded.

Another subject on the Cameo program is the French film version of Anatole France's "Crainquebille," which has been issued here under the title of "Bill" and "Old Bill." No matter how many times one views this picture, one is impressed by the masterly performance of Maurice de Feraudy.

Charlie Chaplin's old comedy "Dough and Dynamite" is another feature. It is ridiculous and the titles are written for children, but Chaplin is there, with his clever touches, such as brushing his clothes and one shoe.

Woodrow Wilson Film Memorial.

Under the auspices of a committee, of which Mrs. Charles L. Tiffany is chairman, the Woodrow Wilson Memorial Film was presented last night in Town Hall. The scenes of the past were stirring; memories of the conflict, brought nearer by living pictures, carried a strong appeal to the emotions. It would, however, have been far more effective if the titles of this series of events of the black yesteryear had been less fulsome, for the moving photographs told a great deal, perhaps far more than words themselves could recount. Here, however, Woodrow Wilson is referred to as a martyr, the great peacemaker and in various other rôles; perhaps his greatest admirers would have preferred a text that left the spectators with the thought in mind instead of having flattering terms thrown upon the screen.

This series of film news, arranged in the form of a picture, is indeed stirring. It causes one to reflect that here was a man who lived for years in the quiet of a university town and then became embroiled in politics, soon gaining the Presidency of the United States. Years that followed his more active existence appeared to be so full of great events that they passed in a flash. You see him energetic and hopeful at the time of America's entry into the war. You look upon his moving shadow at Brest, at the Peace Conference and at the shattered towns of the French front. Then he is seen in England, going back to America, where the film title writer accuses 7,000,000 of "US" of making Woodrow Wilson a failure in electing President Harding.

The scenes concerned with Woodrow Wilson's declining health, his last bow to the public and his funeral are impressive.

Many tributes to the War President were quoted on the screen.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Charles Purcell has been engaged for "Oh, Please," the Beatrice Lillie musical comedy which will be presented in New York next Tuesday. "Oh, Please," is being played in Atlantic City this week.

The Guitrys will sail for New York today on the Leviathan, and are scheduled to arrive here next Monday. A. H. Woods is accompanying them. Their American engagement in "Mozart" begins on Dec. 27 at Chanin's Theatre.

A special matinee of "The Master Builder" will be given on Friday, Dec. 31, by the Civic Repertory Theatre.

"Mayfair," which George C. Tyler and Basil Dean are producing, will open next Monday in Newark.

Mary and Florence Nash are appearing at B. S. Moss's Coliseum Theatre uptown in a sketch by Edgar Allan Woolf, "Fate's Messenger." They will be seen in the playlet at Orpheum Theatre, Chicago, next week.

Ellis Baker has replaced Phoebe Foster in "The Donovan Affair," in its final week at the Fulton.

The Cellar Players of the Hudson Guild, the only New York group to win a place in the Little Theatre Tournament last Spring, are opening their season next Sunday night with an Irish comedy, "Liz," by F. F. Cogley of the Abbey Theatre, Dublin.

Patti Harrold has been engaged for a musical comedy, "Judy," which John Henry Mears will produce.

A performance of Goethe's "Faust," Part 1, will be given under the direction of Rudolf Bach at the German Irving Place Theatre tonight.

A program of one-act plays will be presented by the Irvine Players at the Grove Street Theatre in Greenwich Village next Sunday afternoon.

Jacques Copeau will give a series of conferences in English and dramatic readings in French at the American Laboratory Theatre, 145 East Fifty-eighth Street, during January. The conferences will be held on Sundays at 5 P. M. and the readings on Wednesdays and Fridays at the same hour.

MUSIC NOTES.

The Brooklyn Orchestral Society opened its season at the Academy in that borough last night. Irma de Baun, soprano, sang airs of Mozart and Verdi, and Herbert Braham conducted works of Brahms, Handel, Humperdinck, Sinigaglia and Weber.

Dimitri Cuclin, violinist and composer, will give a program of his works this evening at Steinway Hall.

Katherine Bacon plays tomorrow at the Institute of Musical Art, followed next week by the Musical Art Quartet.

Justine Ward conducts a choir at Dr. Mauro Cottone's recital of ancient church music on Thursday at Convent Avenue and 150th Street.

The Hebrew High School Glee Club, under the auspices of the Bureau of Jewish Education, will sing Saturday evening in the Stuyvesant High School Hall on East Fifteenth Street.

MRS. CHAPLIN TALKS OF APPEAL TO ROME

Considers Annulment Plea to the Rota Tribunal—Won't Alter Divorce Plans.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 13 (AP).—Lita Grey Chaplin may appeal to the Roman Catholic Church tribunal in Rome for annulment of her marriage to Charlie Chaplin, film comedian.

The possibility that she may follow the lead of Consuelo Vanderbilt, the former Duchess of Marlborough, and Senator Guglielmi Marconi, the inventor, was expressed by Mrs. Chaplin last night.

"I have known my rights in such matters as an appeal to the Rota tribunal at Rome," the comedian's estranged wife said. "I have been informed that because Mr. Chaplin was a divorced man when I married him I am in a position to further these rights. However, I do not wish to go into a discussion of the matter at this time. Any statement must await the discussions with my attorney, George Beebe."

Mrs. Chaplin intends to return to the Roman Catholic Church, the religion of her childhood, which she forsook when she married the actor two years ago. She also wants to have her two sons, Charles Spencer Jr., aged 2, and Sydney Earle, 1, baptized by the Church, a matter over which she says she and her estranged husband disagreed.

Any religious annulment of her marriage to Chaplin which she might seek would in no way alter her plans to break the civil contract performed when the couple were married near Guaymas, Mexico, by a Justice of the Peace, Mrs. Chaplin explained. She has instructed her attorney to file suit for divorce and custody of their children.

$5,000 BRACELET FOUND.

Man Picks It Up in Central Park and Restores It to Owner.

While walking, yesterday, near the children's playground in Central Park opposite Sixty-fifth Street, M. A. Katts of 14 West Sixty-ninth Street, picked up a diamond bracelet valued at $5,000. Katts turned the bracelet over to Patrolman Garvey who took it to Lieutenant Pierce of the Arsenal Station.

A few minutes after Katts had left the station Mrs. Margaret Green of 71 Central Park West reported that she had lost a bracelet while on the way across the park about an hour before. She accurately described the bracelet as having thirty-five diamonds of one third of a carat each set in platinum. She said that the jewelry had been a gift from her father-in-law and was valued at $5,000.

Mrs. Green was directed to the Property Clerk at headquarters to redeem the bracelet in accordance with regulations of the Police Department.

WHAT LEADING CRITICS SAY:
To have written this play at Mr. Levy's age is a marvel. An author who may turn out to be a genius.—St. John Ervine.
A most amusing and witty comedy—a brilliant play.—E. A. B.
The play kept the house in a continuous roar of laughter and is the most sparkling of modern plays.—S. P. B. M.
A charmingly unique comedy—a play every one should see at least once. —Edward Crosby.
Seldom is a comedy so well acted in every instance.—Philip Hale.
A great deal of smart satire and pungent wit.—Charles Howard.
Shining entertainment; clever, witty, wise; excellently cast; a most cheerful evening. A right good time is assured to all callers. —E. W. Osborn.
A "wow" across the sea and Broadway seemed to take to it at once. From curtain to curtain, laughter was never lacking. A sparkling fabric threaded with witticisms of a tart order, burnished with clever characterizations.—Garrick
In a word, O. P. Heggie is a gorgeous actor. Thorpe, Graham and Rigby were all extremely good.—Dale.

NOT GOOD ENOUGH FOR US.

The latest achievement of the League of Nations in bringing perilous international controversies to a peaceful solution ought at last fully to silence thoughtless American sneers at it. In their attitude toward the League, its opponents in this country have steadily been singing a lower note. From the first until now it has been one long diminuendo. In the beginning, antagonists of the League fiercely denounced it as a wicked foreign invention. We ourselves, as President HARDING for a time believed, would set up the right kind of Association of Nations. But that was soon dropped. Little by little the League demonstrated that it was alive and functioning well. Thereupon its enemies in the United States began to patronize it as an institution which, after all, might be able to do a little good of a minor sort. Then came the stage when they frankly admitted that it was a useful agency for Europe. But it would never do for us. This is still said. The League is no longer bitterly attacked. It is benevolently tolerated. But the assertion is kept up that while it may do very well for Europe it is not good enough for us.

How long can this vain division of the world into two parts be seriously put forward? In the recent address of the British Prime Minister at the Guildhall banquet, he attributed to the League of Nations the chief credit for the great improvement in European conditions, of which he took note in his survey of foreign affairs. As a mere matter of record, and without any argument or appeal at all, Mr. BALDWIN alluded to "the growth of the League of Nations both in efficiency and authority" as the great outstanding event in the changing situation of Europe. What does that mean? It means that the League has shown itself able to remove friction between nations, to compose difficulties, to bring about a peaceful settlement of disputes which but for its good offices might lead to war, to intervene in such critical matters as the restoration of national finance in Austria and in Hungary, and to oversee the immense task of transporting and settling millions of refugees. Can Americans pretend that they have no interest in such things? Can they delude themselves into believing that they will never have foreign complications of their own in which they would like to have the aid of the League of Nations?

The plain fact is that when we declare the League of Nations to be good enough for Europe, we stand condemned when we go on to affirm that it is not for us. The League is "good" precisely because it does the things which it is good for us and all the rest of the world to have done. For Americans to refuse to have anything to do with this now approved instrument of rehabilitation and peace, is very much like rejecting some great scientific invention on the plea that it may be of benefit to Europe but is not good enough for us. The world is too much a unit to be cut into sections in that way, even by Americans.

THE PAROLE REPORT.

It costs the State of New York $1.06 a day to keep a man in the penitentiary, but the State cannot bring itself to spend more than 3 cents a day per man in operating a parole system that has now been thirty-seven years in existence. Such is the gist of the situation as described by Special Commissioner GEORGE W. ALGER in his report to Governor SMITH. The parole law is at present administered by a board consisting of the Superintendent of Prisons and two part-time Commissioners at $3,600 a year, with the assistance of four parole officers and a scratch clerical force. It is true that in keeping an eye on the career of 2,186 released prisoners the board has had the valuable assistance of a number of social welfare organizations. But obviously this volunteer service is far from sufficient to cope with the task. All that can be said is that without such assistance the parole system would have resolved itself into absolute chaos instead of suffering from a severe breakdown.

Commissioner ALGER'S report does not confine itself to inadequate and underfinanced machinery. He finds that the Parole Board has been the victim of too modest an interpretation of its powers and duties. It has assumed that the imposition of an indeterminate sentence constitutes a virtual mandate for the granting of parole at the expiration of the minimum term. Parole has thus followed automatically in the absence of "good and sufficient reasons" to the contrary. Mr. ALGER insists that the good and sufficient reasons must operate positively instead of negatively. The burden of proof is with the applicant. The Parole Board must, as provided by law, feel a reasonable probability that the released prisoner will live as a law-abiding citizen. What has happened, under the board's self-denying but mistaken policy, is that the indeterminate sentence has become a determinate sentence, fixed at the minimum.

It is hard, however, to escape the impression that the Parole Board's faulty theory is in large measure the result of absurdly inadequate financial support. Part-time Commissioners, a diminutive staff, an investigation concentrating on the last thirty days of a prisoner's term instead of taking the entire prison record into account—all these suggest what Mr. ALGER aptly calls a "moral gesture," instead of a serious function and agency. With a board of three Commissioners at an adequate salary and a staff of ten additional investigators and supervisors, such as Mr. ALGER suggests, the probabilities are that the board would not suffer from excessive timidity with regard to its own powers. The report shows for New York State what has been found in other Commonwealths, that the parole system has not really been tried out. For a real test of the idea Mr. ALGER suggests at least two cogent reasons. One would be the moral and social argument arising from the rehabilitation of offenders against the law. The other is the practical argument that abandonment of parole and the indeterminate sentence would mean overcrowding the prisons.

CATCHING UP.

At last the Treasury is gaining rapidly in the audit of income tax returns. Secretary MELLON reports that the fiscal year 1926 was "the most productive in the history of "the Income Tax Unit." He gives facts and figures in substantiation. The number of unaudited returns on June 30 was 742,740, as compared with 2,011,084 a year ago. During the same period the number of claims pending was more than cut in half. This is welcome news to the taxpayer, who in years past has been harassed beyond measure by delays in settlement. It is doubtless equally good news to Mr. MELLON himself, who year by year has seen the Unit painfully dig itself almost out from under a mountain of old returns, only to have a new avalanche descend on it.

"It is believed that the production "program of the Income Tax Unit "r the fiscal year 1927 will result "in bringing all work to a current "basis by June 30, 1927," Secretary MELLON now assures us. This prophecy has the sanction of performance, and taxpayers will be inclined to overlook their past miseries if it is fulfilled. The task the Income Tax Unit faced in its early years was indeed staggering, strongly resembling that of Sisyphus. Gradually the work was organized and coordinated and procedure simplified. A program of decentralization brought increasing relief to the central office at Washington: Collectors of internal revenue now audit locally returns showing a gross income of $25,000 or under. The revenue act of 1926 brought further relief by materially reducing the number of individuals required to file returns.

UNCLE SAM, COOK AND GARDENER.

Uncle Sam has long been interested in the food eaten by the millions of his nephews and nieces. Until recently, however, they have treated him with polite inattention. The excellent "literature" on every subject of interest to farmers and housekeepers which has poured out of the office of the Secretary of Agriculture long worked but slowly on the minds of its recipients. Today the work of the farm and home bureaus is making great headway, and throughout the country more attention is being paid to food, cooking and home economics.

In the annual report of the Bureau of Home Economics and of the Extension Service is the story of laboratory experiments and scientific investigations, with actual demonstrations of methods of preparing food. Furthermore, special efforts are being made to increase the quantities of fresh vegetables and fruits raised and used on the farms. By one of those strange quirks of human nature which makes milk a scarcity in the cattle country and coffee practically unobtainable in Java, the diet of the average farmer's family is usually deficient in vegetables. Correcting this by encouraging farm gardens not only improves the health of the family but often increases their income.

The research students have gone even further, and after establishing the fact that about 70 per cent. of the working hours of the farm woman is spent in the kitchen, have held contests in twenty-one States to obtain ideas for improved arrangements of the farm kitchen. As this sort of experimentation is coordinated with the work done by other organizations interested in farm welfare, there is certain to result a marked improvement of farm living conditions.

Perhaps the most encouraging aspect of all this work has been the spirit in which it is received by farmers. They were long distrustful of modern devices for saving labor and were slow to believe that scientific farming was worth while. Often they resented what they termed the "intrusion" of outsiders. But now they realize that what the Government farm agents have to teach is of actual value. They are beginning to understand that in place of the old attitude of isolation and individual independence is growing up a spirit of cooperation. Their interest is shifting from mere production to marketing. This means a readier adoption of devices to increase output and returns and to enable farmers to live in greater comfort.

ELEVEN DAYS TO CHRISTMAS.

A contributor to "The Hundred Neediest Cases" writes with his gift: "This is a most inspiring and beneficent work." In 1912, when the first appeal was made, New York City had a population of 4,960,948 and the assessed valuations of real and personal property amounted to $8,209,862,420. The sum raised for the Neediest in that year was $3,630.88. The following year the total was almost trebled. Year after year, because the appeal was an inspiration to those charitably disposed, the fund grew, until in 1925 the amount of $260,998.26 was contributed. The population of New York City had increased to 6,251,817, and the assessed valuations to $12,145,961,093. Never were the people of New York more prosperous, but never were unfortunate families that had lost their breadwinners or were stricken down by overwhelming sickness and disability more wretched.

Plenty still abounds in New York. There is no ebb of the tide of affluence. Something can be spared by nearly all of us for "The Hundred Neediest Cases." There must be 2,000,000 families in Greater New York making plans for the holiday season, and there is not one of them that would miss a contribution to the fund, of which a sympathetic woman writes:

> Of all the charities with which the world is full, this one has the greatest appeal and should receive all the support you ask for it each and every Christmas.

Eleven days remain before the coming of Christmas. As an institution "The Hundred Neediest Cases" is known far beyond New York. Contributions come from overseas. But the appeal touches us closely here. We know that every dollar of the fund is expended to relieve the most poignant distress by societies that charge nothing for their services, and we know that the relief is not alms-giving but home and character salvage, the getting of the disabled on their feet so that they may pass beyond the need of charity. It should be the pride of the people of New York to swell the fund every year. Eleven days to Christmas!

OUR LIBRARIES HERE AND ABROAD.

Much as the American Library Association is appreciated by the public, it is probable that there is but little general knowledge of the scope and character of a large part of its work. Grown people accept with the unreasoning faith of children the good that the libraries give, but are largely unaware of what an immense amount of well-directed industry goes on behind the scenes. In the December number of the association's Bulletin there are several reports which throw light on some of the interesting backstage activities.

One of great significance is the international relation maintained. The association itself is bi-national. Representatives of libraries in the United States and Canada are members on equal terms. Close contact is kept up with the advance of library affairs in Europe through the American Library in Paris. In Paris, too, is the new international library school which was opened by the association. A special connection with the work in the United Kingdom has grown strong during the past several years. A joint code of catalogue rules prepared in unison is still in general use.

The organization of a Chinese library association with the assistance of a member of the American Association has been going forward for a year and a half. In the jubilee of the American Library Association at Atlantic City fifty delegates from twenty-one foreign countries participated in a free discussion of world library cooperation. A sound foundation for the working out of detailed plans has been laid. Further progress will, it is hoped, lead to a scheme for the interchange of librarians and students, and to international bibliographies. A list of salary statistics attached without comment reveals a curious unevenness in the scale of different cities in this country. To take just one classification, department heads, it gives a basis for comparison. In New York the salaries range from $1,920 to $3,780. Few of the cities listed have a lower minimum, and many—Atlanta, Buffalo, Chicago, Detroit, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Minneapolis, Pittsburgh, Rochester, San Francisco, Seattle among others—pay no department heads less than $2,000. The New York maximum is also exceeded by numerous cities, some of which start lower. Boston is one of these. Cleveland both starts and finishes higher than New York.

THE GYPSY IMMORTAL.

Mr. FORD may not admit it, but probably most of us have in the unconscious a prejudice against "respectability." Condemned to the grooved life, we envy the free wandering brethren. So it is not JEAN RICHEPIN received among the green Forty. FRANCOIS COPPEE getting out of his sick-bed and going to the polls with his protesting doctor, to vote for this curious successor to ANDRE THEURIET, that interests us; not the poet, novelist, playwright, waxing in grace and glory from 1897 or '98. It is the gypsy RICHEPIN of the first thirty years. For, though born of middle-class folks, his father, as an army surgeon, may be called an official roamer; and if there wasn't gypsy blood somewhere in his line, JEAN'S looks belied him. His were the swarthy skin, the salient lineaments, the fuzzy-wuzzy "semi-lustrous" hair, the voice as of some resonant metal, the Oriental carriage, the passion for strong colors.

After five years in then unspoiled Algeria, his father, off for the Crimea, left the child and his mother in lodgings in Belleville, suburban then, but swarming with poverty, all sorts of sedition and rebellion and queer characters and fakers. The father came back from the Crimea. The son studied life precociously in many barracks and learned to beat the drum astoundingly; learned enough also to be head boy at 16 in the Lycée Napoléon and get a scholarship at the Ecole Normale. In the War of 1870 he was a gay soldier and a brave. It is pleasant to recall that he had been christened by a Zouave turned priest. Mustered out, he had to make a living by his muscles and his wits. Stevedore, sailor before the mast, collecting the impressions that were to be recorded in "The Sea," perhaps his strongest book of verse; usher, teacher of languages, actor, chief singer in a company of gypsies, he lived a succession of lives that seem like extracts from QUEVEDO, except that there is no rascality in them.

According to the legend, the manager's sister made him an offer of marriage. Not being domestic in his habits, and not caring for the alternative of being knifed, JEAN skedaddled. He turns up in the Latin Quarter in much jovial company and that of M. PAUL BOURGET. Even a generation ago, PAUL was gingerly. He ate little. He took tea. Doubtless he was dreaming of this year of his culminant fame. "The Friends of PASCAL" have lately assured PAUL, and he has accepted the assurance, that the prime honor of that philosopher is to have been the ancestor of the psychological novel and M. BOURGET. The coarser RICHEPIN and his comrades were not so abstemious. One day, when they accidentally had some money, they ate from noon till 6 P. M., each man, after long fasting, tucking away seven luncheons and three quarts of wine, one-franc Caeuaban.

Look at Gypsy JEAN as he came into a brasserie:

> His splendidly shaped legs were cased in tight-fitting cashmere breeches and patent leather hessians; the statuesque head was covered with a grayish Tyrolese hat, adorned with a crimson cord and tassels; the upper part of his finely proportioned frame in a dazzlingly white shirt of soft material, its collar thrown back over a black velvet jacket. The human athlete was accompanied by a canine one, a colossal Great Dane, as lithe and supple as his master, and a comely young woman, particularly trim and neat.

Don't talk to us about Les Jeunes-France and GAUTIER at the first night of "Hernani." They posed. JEAN was an honest Romantic and Rom.

"A FRIENDLY PLACE."

JOSEPH CONRAD tells of going many years ago to the Sailors' Home in London to try to find an old sailor, an able seaman named ANDERSON, but known as "Old ANDY," with whom he and Mr. JOHN GALSWORTHY had once spent forty days in a voyage in the Indian Ocean. "But for us two," he remarked, "Old ANDY'S very memory would have gone from the changing earth." But he was mistaken, for he found that there was a clerk on duty who said, "We know him very well," and then, opening an enormous ledger and running his finger down a page, gave the information that ANDERSON had gone to sea a week before in a ship bound round the Horn. CONRAD says that he went out glad to know that ANDERSON was "safely at sea," but also glad that he and men like him had a place on shore where the staff understood and liked the sailors, treated them with unobtrusive tact, with a regard for the independence of these men seeking shelter ashore and with no ulterior aims behind that effective friendliness.

What JOSEPH CONRAD said of this "friendly place" may be as truthfully said of the Seamen's Church Institute in South Street, fronting our own harbor. But so great is the demand upon it that it is unable to provide for all who seek it out. Annually upward of 100,000 merchant seamen are turned away into the night because there are no beds for them. To extend this shelter to all who find themselves homeless or friendless, the institute has undertaken to build an "annex" with enough beds to care for the increased number—1,500 nightly instead of but little more than half that number—in the hope that the means will be forthcoming to complete the building. The addition is now enclosed, but of the total cost, $2,750,000, there remains to be raised $1,500,000.

The night shelter is, to be sure, only a part of the hospitality, though an important part. The institute touches a million seamen in the course of a year. They come to it for their mail when on shore, they leave their baggage in its care, they take their meals in the cafeteria or dining room, even if they can't get a bed; they may leave their wages in the "bank" which the institute provides, and have clinical attention in case of illness or assistance in finding hospital care. In addition, instruction in navigation and other subjects is provided, religious services are open to all who choose to attend and entertainment is offered. The institute's greatest achievement is that it has "routed the crimp, the tout and "the boarding-house keeper who once "made this port the most terrifying "for seamen on the seven seas."

When the annex is finished there will be a great library and social room for the seamen's use, furnished and named in memory of JOSEPH CONRAD. If he could but come to 25 South Street, he would find as friendly a place as he did in Well Street, London, many years ago; and if he were still listening to the talk on the decks of ships in all latitudes, would hear the name of this institute "turn up frequently."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

The Christmas Tree Harvest.

If the advice of the American Tree Association be followed—to cut Christmas trees scientifically, so that they will provide effective and necessary "thinning" of forests—there can be little objection to the practice of using several million trees annually at Christmas time. Forestry of this sort can be made actually beneficial to the forests.

The danger lies in the all too common custom of dealers in cutting down trees without thought or skill where they are most easily found. Herein lies the real menace of the Christmas tree. In only a few parts of the United States are Christmas trees scientifically harvested.

One of the difficulties is that the spruces and firs are slow-growing. There is thus likelihood that the annual consumption of Christmas trees will exceed the annual crop which can be harvested without damage to the forests. The principal need is for careful planning and cultivation. When reforestation is properly carried out the process of thinning becomes indispensable at various stages of growth. This constitutes no waste. On the contrary, to use the cut trees for Christmas is to add to the profitableness of the forest.

Something in a Name.

Dean BROWN of Yale Divinity School rejects the Freudian complex as fantastic theory and a mere excuse for misbehaving. Professor EDWARD G. CONKLIN of Princeton presents a moderate defense for the complex. He admits the individual's ability to control personal behavior in part, but insists that life also produces circumstances beyond our control. "No two human beings are equally responsible, and a course of action which may be perfectly easy for one person may be absolutely impossible for another."

It is hard to see how one can disagree with Professor CONKLIN'S sober statement of a truth recognized long before the complexes swam within our ken. It is a statement of the traditional middle ground between free will and determinism, and in all likelihood it is a position which Dean BROWN would accept. What the latter obviously objects to, however, is the legalization, one might almost say the approbation, of aberrant conduct, which an impressive scientific term like "complex" conveys to a good many minds.

As a matter of fact, the world has usually been kind to individuals suffering from what is now called complexes, but was once upon a time called lack of self-control, partial or complete. It has made allowances for diseases of the will, even if the terminology was not very kind. People now have complexes about things concerning which they were once upon a time "queer." A man now has an anti-British or anti-meat-eating complex. Formerly he had an anti-British or pro-vegetarian "bug." On the whole, the world has been as tolerant of its "cranks" as we are asked to be to its complex-victims.

The Camera as Reporter.

Some will doubtless raise the charge of "Red propaganda" against the Soviet film, "Armored Cruiser Potemkin." That may, indeed, have been the intent of the "Sovkino" producers.

It is, however, but fair to concede that it is propaganda only as impartial journalism may be. In this instance the Soviet has not materially tampered with the facts. "Armored Cruiser Potemkin" is journalism in films—a record of what actually happened when the crew of the cruiser mutinied off Odessa in June, 1905.

The Soviet editors of the film rigorously suppress all individual and personal dramatics. There is no pure young Proletarian burning to avenge the wrongs of the people, no lovely factory girl shedding glycerine tears; nor does any portion of the action hinge on the achievements of an exceptionally intelligent German police dog. There is nothing of Hollywood.

The result is more contemporary and convincing than could have been achieved by any introduction of "what the public wants." Aided by artistic photography, the film carries a weight of conviction, a lesson in human solidarity, far more dramatic than anything within the ken of close-ups of the Red flag or of flaming subtitles. If this be propaganda, let Hollywood imitate it.

The New Old North American.

The first number of The North American Review under its new editorship appears in a different cover. A change of color or of printing is easy to achieve. The real question is whether there is to be found a quality which "doth apparel the apparel."

On this score the new departure is promising. There is no ostentatious infusion of spice or sensationalism in the magazine. The range of topics is wide, but the selection is discreet, and the aim apparently is to secure writers who are entertaining as well as authoritative. Certainly this first table of contents is such as to whet the appetite for more.

Whether a commercial success can be predicted for such a venture, no one but a rash man would undertake to say positively. Current experience in such matters would furnish arguments to give color to a prophecy either way. But all who retain a sentimental interest in the historic North American Review will hope that it may be not only rejuvenated, but given a new lease of vigorous life. The present editors may not believe that it is in them to command success, but at any rate they seem bent on proving that they deserve it.

PRE-LEGAL COURSES.

Two-Year Period of Study Called Wasted Time in Many Cases.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Seelman's letter on training candidates for the bar, which appeared in THE TIMES on Thursday, is a novel contribution to the thought on the subject. It is, however, one which commends itself to me as fair, practical, and effective to achieve that purpose which the American Bar Association had in mind in recommending that two years of college work be required as a preliminary to the study of law.

It is rare that one finds a discussion of this subject which is at once frank and which treats the subject upon its intrinsic merit and without reference to other purposes sought to be effected. The recommendations of the American Bar Association will never be adopted in the form in which they were presented, but the underlying spirit is likely to receive favorable recognition. Mr. Seelman's suggestions fully gratify this underlying spirit.

On the other hand, the two-year pre-legal is already in many instances becoming farcical. That is to say, the candidate for admission to the law school is held back for two years, which in the case of a mature student may work an unmerited hardship, and the period devoted to pre-legal study is frequently a waste of time.

I talked, two or three days ago, with a young man who is taking a pre-legal course to qualify him for the study of law. He will be nineteen years old when he completes it, and it will have consisted in a course upon botany, formal logic, Spanish, and international law. It need hardly be pointed out that formal logic is of little practical value. International law should be studied as a graduate law study, and not as a pre-legal study. Even if one could learn Spanish in a large class devoting a few hours a week to it, which is of course highly improbable, a smattering of that language would be of very little value to one practicing law in the United States. As to the value of botany as a pre-legal study, I make no comment.

I see no reason why the group of subjects selected by Mr. Seelman should not be required, and why the Board of Regents could not conduct these examinations giving the law student the privilege of submitting himself for them at any time prior to his application for admission to the bar. I do not feel that the concern of the bar is primarily with arbitrary qualifications for commencing the study of law as it is with rational qualifications for permission to take the bar examination.

The principal opposition which the American Bar Association program has met is due to the requirement that a law student shall now spend a minimum of six years, if attending an evening school, after he has completed his high school education, before he is permitted to demonstrate his fitness to take the bar examination. Impediments of this character are only to be justified upon the theory that no other remedy can be found for admitted evils, and the suspicion, of course, has been aroused that the purpose of these restrictions has not been with a single eye to the improvement of the personnel of the bar.

Legal education is becoming less and less the concern of the bar, and lawyers have been replaced by teachers who have many interests, professional and academic, which are not necessarily identical with those of the bar or of the legal profession.

AFTER ZULOAGA.

The feathery palms whose fingers point
Forever to the mounting skies,
Are shot with green and silver lights
As are Jocasta's eyes.

The tiger lilies that distill
Their hot, sweet fragrance everywhere,
Flare no more than the tawny mass
Which is Jocasta's hair.

The trumpet flower whose flaming bells
The bee, its wanton lover, sips,
Is not more brightly sanguine than
Jocasta's curving lips.

The jungle with its heady scents,
Its fiery noons, and blurred, blue bowl
Of night, knows moods like those that sway
Jocasta's complex soul!

THE LIGHT OF REASON.

Its Beam Is Turned on the Controversy Over Smith and Catholicism.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

While it is true that there are Protestants in all parts of the country who would not like to see Governor Smith or any other Catholic in the White House, THE TIMES is entirely right in saying that, since it would be difficult to elect any Democratic candidate for the Presidency without the support of the South, it is of particular importance to know, if possible, whether the South would vote solidly for Smith if he were nominated.

No one, of course, is omniscient on this question, but I, as a Southerner and a Democrat, would be willing to risk it. I may be mistaken in this, but I believe that Democratic sentiment is still so strong among Southerners, who have not forgotten how they were pillaged by carpet-baggers, scalawags and negroes in the evil days of Republican reconstruction, that if a campaign of education were skillfully conducted among them they could be brought to see that Smith's religion would not endanger the safety of Protestants in the South or anywhere else. It is a mistake to brand Protestants who object to a Catholic President as mere fools and bigots. For, while a few of them do deserve such characterization, the majority have simply inherited their anti-Catholic feelings from the old days, when theological hatred was at its height, and could easily be shown that their fears are unfounded at the present time.

As mere samples of the kind of facts that could be laid before them, consider the following:

A prominent historical scholar, once a member of the Yale Faculty, said recently, at a dinner party at the University of Virginia, that he had had a very interesting conversation with about ten or a dozen Catholic priests in Washington, and that, while they all admire Governor Smith, they were unanimous in the hope that he would not be nominated for the Presidency. Is not this unanimity convincing proof of the fact that the Catholic priests are not plotting to use Smith as a tool through whom the American Government can be handed over to the tender mercies of the Pope? Evidently these priests are like Sir Robert Walpole in the opinion that it is well to let sleeping dogs lie. They have no desire to stir up the animals and risk having a yelping pack at their heels.

Consider also the fact that the late Chief Justice White was a Catholic. Cannot Southerners be made to see as well as other people that this eminent Judge did nothing to endanger the religious liberty of Protestants?

Even in the sixteenth century, when the Pope blessed the Spanish Armada and prayed for the conquest of England by the fanatical Philip II., did not Queen Elizabeth entrust her fleet to the command of Lord Howard of Effingham, one of her Catholic subjects? Did he betray his country to the Pope and the Spaniard? Yet that was the day when Catholics and Protestants were cutting each other's throats. But Elizabeth knew that Lord Howard was a loyal Englishman, and deliberately entrusted her fate in his hands. Do we not know that Smith is a loyal American? Do we not also know that the twentieth century is one in which throat cutting in the name of religion is out of fashion?

But, it may be said, is there not danger that the election of a Catholic President might make Catholicism so popular that the majority of the people would become Catholics? This question might be countered by another one: When Taft was elected, did any one observe a great rush of people into the Unitarian Church?

But let us assume the worst. Let us admit that the election of Smith, for some inscrutable reason, would lead the vast majority of American Protestants to renounce their creed and become Catholics. Would that mean that the Pope would become the political ruler of the United States? If so, how does it happen that the French, almost unanimously Catholic, have not only abolished the Concordat with the Pope, but have actually elected Doumergue, a Protestant, to the Presidency of France? How does it happen that Catholic Italy has ousted the Holy Father from his temporal power and shut him up as "the prisoner of the Vatican?"

Cannot Southerners be brought to see the significance of such facts as these?

Plan for Smith Missionaries.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is an abundance of Smith sentiment in North Carolina, and from what one gathers it extends throughout the South. For the past few weeks a great many of Governor Smith's well-wishers in this section have been wondering if contact with men connected with the political life of New York would not in a large measure contribute to their strength.

Our idea is something like this: During the Winter scores of men connected with the Democratic organizations throughout New York State journey to the Southland for pleasure and recreation. Perhaps many of them are members of the various organizations which are international in character. Let them attend the meetings of clubs at or near the point where they are spending the Winter and mingle with the men of the South.

A great many of our people look on a Northerner as cold-blooded, and one who has tendency to hold aloof. I find the reverse is true. If we can bring your people and ours together around the table, meet on common ground, and let our men hear from the lips of those who know Governor Smith just what kind if a man he is, it will work wonders in firmly cementing the sentiment which we know exists.

PAN-AMERICAN BID TO CANADA LIKELY

Appointment of a Minister Opens Way to a League of Western Nations.

CONGRESS MEETS HERE

John Barrett, Former Director, Says Union Would Promote Progress and Peace of the World.

A real Pan-American Union and a new League of Nations to be formed by nations of the Western Hemisphere were foretold yesterday at the meeting of the Pan-American Commercial Congress in the Hotel Roosevelt by John Barrett, former Director General of the Pan American Union and former American Minister to Argentine, Colombia and Panama.

Mr. Barrett, who has been actively interested in Latin-American countries for a quarter of a century, lately has been an arbitrator in commercial disputes in which Latin-American countries were involved, prefaced his remarks on the subject of Canada with the assertion that what he said a year ago at the congress about anti-American feeling in the countries of South America had been misinterpreted. He then read a prepared speech, but made several interpolations. He said in part:

"The most important and significant event in the twentieth century relations of Canada and the United States is the appointment of a Canadian Minister Plenipotentiary to Washington.

"The chief question now resulting from such unprecedented action is: Will the United States and the twenty Governments of Latin America, now forming the Pan American Union at Washington, invite Canada to join the union, which is practically a Pan-American or Western Hemisphere League of Nations?

"Without Canada, first in commercial area, second in international commerce, fifth in population, among the twenty-two governmental entities of the New World, the Pan American Union is only a part-American union. Unless having its independence of action admitted by the Imperial British Government, it could hardly participate on even ground with the other American countries. The action of the Imperial Council recently held in London and the appointment by Canada of Vincent Massey as Minister cleared the situation. They make possible the realization of a perfect organization for the solidarity and cooperation of the entire Western Hemisphere and an immeasurably powerful New World League of Nations for the peace and progress of the whole world.

"When the present Pan American Building at Washington was being erected and we were planning the structure as well as present use of the temple of Pan Americanism, I suggested to Elihu Root, then Secretary of State and Chairman, ex-officio, of the Governing Board of the Pan American Union, that we should look into the future and consider the entrance of Canada into the union and so plan the decorations and wordings which would not be easily changed later on. After consideration and consultation with President Roosevelt he very eminent Latin-American statesmen instructed me, first, to place the Canadian coat of arms on the main staircase alongside those of the United States and the other American countries; second, to include a Canadian panel in the bronze frieze of the Governing Board room and, third, to have made a chair carrying the name 'Canada' for the Governing Board's council table."

In the morning Senator Robert L. Owen spoke on the Federal Reserve act and its relation to the trade of the Americas, explaining in detail the system and stressing the power that lies behind a Federal Reserve note, which he said are available to all Pan-Americans, adding: "And they are as good as gold."

Two representatives of European countries which have special ties with Latin-America spoke. They were Dr. Rafaele Casares, Consul General of Spain, and Romolo Angelone, Commercial Attaché of the Italian Government. The latter spoke briefly, expressing the desire that trade between the Western Hemisphere and Italy would grow, hoping that Italy would not continue to be regarded as a land to which to spend a honeymoon, or as a romantic land with a great past, but as a land which would again play the great part in the world's affairs that Rome played."

He spoke of the growth of trade and of the initiative taken by Italy in putting ships into service between the United States and Italy and then said:

"And here, gentlemen, allow me to mention that such a marked development in the trade relations of our nations is mainly due to the great changes brought about by the full acceptance of the Fascist theory of Government by the Italian people, and it is recognized, after all, that Fascismo means common sense in the administration of the State; it means business management in the governmental and national machine. The gradual development and enactment of the sound Fascist policies will not fail to foster such a movement during future years."

The Spanish representative spoke of the feeling that must exist between Spain and the Spanish-speaking people of the Latin-American countries. Alberto Palacios, Consul General of Bolivia, spoke of the trade between his country and America, giving figures showing the increase. He expressed the belief that the feeling between the two countries was becoming better and better.

A reception was given in honor of the officers, delegates and guests attending the congress at the Roosevelt last night by the All-Nations Association, of which Henry Tudor Mason is the founder and international President.

Mrs. Mary Hanford Ford gave an address of welcome to the delegates and guests, which was followed by a musical program, with international artists contributing, and dancing.

BRUCE TO VISIT COOLIDGE

Australian Premier Will Discuss Anglo-American Cooperation.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—Premier Bruce of Australia, who sails for New York on the Majestic Dec. 22, is to have an interview with President Coolidge at the White House. He will visit New York, Washington and Chicago before returning home via Canada.

Among the subjects to be discussed by Premier Bruce with President Coolidge will be the American regulations governing the length of stay of Australian business men in the United States. This, it is alleged, is at present so strictly limited that a business man is sometimes obliged to return to Australia before he had had time to do all he came for, whereas Europeans are protected by an old treaty which gives them more extended privileges.

Premier Bruce, it is expected, will also discuss with President Coolidge his cherished plan for Anglo-American cooperation.

GREEK LETTER 'BIDS' FOR 240 FRESHMEN

Twenty-two Fraternities at Columbia Give Out Lists of New Members.

THIRTEEN STILL TO REPORT

Many First-Year Men Invited by More Than One Society in Ten Days of Rushing.

Due to the failure of many fraternities at Columbia to give complete returns on the freshmen who have accepted their "bids," only a partial list was available last night of the first-year men who have made their choice among the thirty-five Greek-letter societies on the campus. TO PICTURE TRUE JEW.

B'nai B'rith Will Apply Part of $2,000,000 Against Defamation.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Dec. 13.—Establishment of a speakers' bureau to explain the Jew in a true and sympathetic light was decided on at the annual meeting of the Executive Committee of the B'nai B'rith Grand Lodge here today.

A budget of $250,000 was voted for the coming year and plans were perfected for a campaign to raise $2,000,000 for cultural and educational advancement of Jews.

The fund is to be applied to this work through the Hillel Foundations, Jewish student organizations in American universities and colleges; the Aleph Zadik Aleph, National Jewish fraternity, a junior order of the B'nai B'rith; the Anti-Defamation League of the order; in the furthering of Jewish ... work in Mexico and the establishment of a "garden city" in Palestine.

Additional Hillel foundations will be established in universities whence requests for the organization have come. The work planned for Mexico is to ... all kinds of assistance to the ... influx of Jewish immigrants from Eastern Europe. The plan for Palestine is designed to give housing relief for the congestion now existing.

GALE WRECKS THEATRE.

Eight Persons Killed When Roof Falls in Alexandria, Egypt.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company. By Wireless to The New York Times.

CAIRO, Dec. 13.—Members of the International Congress of Navigation who are meeting here are unfortunate in experiencing abnormal weather conditions.

During the week-end a gale amounting almost to a hurricane prevailed, seriously affecting shipping. Steamers were unable to leave Alexandria Harbor for two days till yesterday. In Alexandria several houses collapsed, owing to heavy rains, and last night a tragedy occurred in a cinema house, the roof of which collapsed, burying the audience under dust and falling fragments of plaster and stone. Eight persons are reported killed and forty, mostly children.

JUDGE W. W. CUTLER DIES FROM OVERWORK

Jurist of Hudson County (N. J.) Circuit Court, Aged 70, Collapsed in Court on Dec. 6.

Judge Willard W. Cutler of the Hudson County, New Jersey, Circuit Court died yesterday at his home in Morristown of overwork combined with his age, 70 years. He became ill on Dec. 1, but, in spite of advice to the contrary, he refused to take a rest, with the result that he collapsed on Dec. 6 as he entered the court room in Jersey City.

After serving as prosecutor of Morris County and as a Judge of Common Pleas, Judge Cutler, who was a son of the late Congressman Augustus Cutler, returned to private practice for several years. He was appointed to the Circuit Court in 1916, and for the last four years had been assigned to Jersey City. In August, 1919, he married Altha E. Hatch of Morristown, who survives. She is curator and the only woman member of the Washington Association of New Jersey. Judge Cutler's first wife, who died in 1916, was Mary B. Hinchman of Brooklyn. Five children of the earlier marriage survive. Services will be held at the Presbyterian Church in Morristown on Thursday afternoon at 2:30.

CHANDLER WITHINGTON.

Engineer, Who Was 40 Years in the City's Service, Dies at 66.

Chandler Withington, for many years chief engineer of the New York City Department of Finance and for more than forty years in the service of the city, died yesterday at his residence, 515 West 143d Street, aged 66. He was a descendant of the eleventh generation of one of the settlers in 1645 of Dorchester, Mass. His grandfather, Phineas Withington, was associated with Commodore Vanderbilt in the operation of a primitive fleet of vessels plying between Staten Island and New York City, and later held the contract for carrying the United States mails between Washington, D. C., and Boston.

Immediately on his graduation from Princeton in 1882, with the degree of civil engineer, Mr. Withington entered the engineering service of the New York Park Department, changing in 1886 to the Finance Department, of which he was made chief engineer in 1906. He was a member of the Princeton Club and the Society of Municipal Engineers. He married Violet Long, who survives.

JEAN P. WORTH DEAD.

For Years Head of Famous Paris Dressmaking Concern.

Jean Philippe Worth, for many years head of the famous dressmaking establishment in Paris founded by his father, Charles Frederic Worth, died a few days ago in Paris at the age of seventy, according to an announcement here last night by his nephew, Jacques Worth, who will sail for France tomorrow. In recent years Mr. Worth had diminished his activities and the direction of the house has been in the hands of his nephews, Jacques and Jean Charles Worth.

During the World War Mr. Worth opened a private hospital for wounded and blinded soldiers, and the care of this institution had occupied much of his time since then. In his youth Mr. Worth studied painting with Corot, and to the end of his life he was a patron of the arts and a helper of young artists.

She is survived by two brothers, former Detective Sergeant Irving A. O'Hara and George O'Hara, and two sisters, Mrs. Hylan and Miss Flora E. O'Hara.

JOHN L. WHITMAN, PENOLOGIST, DEAD

Stricken Ill After Grand Jury Scored Reforms of His Wardenship at Joliet.

NOTED AS A HUMANITARIAN

Wanted to Give Convicts a Sense of Responsibility—Dealt With Prisoners for 30 Years.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13 (AP).—John L. Whitman, former warden of Joliet Penitentiary, whose advocacy of humane treatment of convicts gained him a nation-wide reputation as a penologist, died in a hospital here today of heart disease, after an illness of several weeks. His age was 64. He leaves a wife.

Mr. Whitman suffered a breakdown shortly after he retired as warden last Summer on the recommendation of a Grand Jury which investigated the slaying of a deputy warden and the escape of seven prisoners, six of whom have since been caught, tried and sentenced to be hanged. During the investigation Mr. Whitman's humanitarian methods, and particularly the prison "honor farm" which he introduced, were under fire. Physicians said the criticism affected his health.

He began his career as a penologist thirty years ago, becoming a guard in the Cook County Jail here. After serving as Superintendent of the House of Correction for ten years and then as State Superintendent of Prisons, he was made warden at Joliet in 1922.

Among the reforms which he instituted was abolishment of corporal punishment, entertainment for prisoners as a reward for good behavior and an increase in ventilation and sunlight through the installation of huge glass walls facing the cells.

When he assumed charge at Joliet, Warden Whitman summed up his policy as follows:

"I expect to do my duty, but to temper my work with justice and mercy. I am following that verse of the Scriptures, 'Love thy neighbor as thyself,' rather than the other verse, 'Am I my brother's keeper?' We want to give our men a sense of responsibility as human beings. We want to appeal to the honor, the pride and the manhood of our men, to convince them that they will go out of Joliet better men than when they entered."

Mr. Whitman once quelled a riot by walking into the House of Correction bare-handed and simply talking to the prisoners. A prisoner who tried to strike him with an iron bar was knocked down by another, who explained that he had acted because Whitman had been kind to him.

WALDO BRIGGS DROPS DEAD.

Engineer Who Helped Build Subways Stricken in Jersey City.

Waldo C. Briggs, 56 years old, of Scarsdale, N. Y., dropped dead yesterday morning of heart disease as he stepped from an elevator in City Hall, Jersey City. He was an engineering superintendent for Henry Steers, Inc., of Manhattan, contracting engineer, and had entered the building to obtain a copy of his plans for platform work in the Journal Square station, Jersey City.

Mr. Briggs was an expert on subway work. He was associated with H. C. Sanford in charge of the construction of the Interborough Rapid Transit subway from Grand Central Station through Forty-second Street to Broadway and Forty-seventh Street, and he had charge of the Sunnyside Yards improvement of the Long Island Railroad. He directed the excavation for the Pennsylvania Railroad between Thirty-second and Thirty-third Streets on Seventh Avenue.

He was a Yale graduate and a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers. His wife, a son and a daughter survive.

JAMES SHEWAN DEAD.

Owner of Brooklyn Dry Docks Dies in Post-Graduate Hospital.

James Shewan of 630 Park Avenue, President of James Shewan & Sons, Inc., 32 Broadway, owners of dry docks at Twenty-fifth and Twenty-eighth Streets, Brooklyn, died Sunday in the Post-Graduate Hospital, New York. He was 55 years old, a son of the James Shewan who founded the firm that bears his name. Edwin A. Shewan of 1,046 Fifth Avenue, is a brother. Also surviving are his wife and two children, James and Patricia Shewan. Funeral services will be held at the residence at 10:30 tomorrow morning.

Among the clubs to which Mr. Shewan belonged were the Metropolitan, New York Yacht, National Links and St. Andrew's Society. He owned a country place at Southampton, L. I., where on June 24, 1925, two pearl necklaces valued at $32,000 were stolen.

J. C. Kilgore.

Special to The New York Times.

FRANKLIN, Pa., Dec. 13.—J. C. Kilgore, aged 55, actively interested in the oil business the major part of his life, died at the Franklin Hospital this evening. He had been ill less than a week, an operation for appendicitis proving fatal.

Mr. Kilgore was President of the Premier Oil Company and for five years was head of Standard Oil operations in Mexico. He was a member of the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association.

Marshall A. Hudson.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 13 (AP).—Marshall A. Hudson, 76, founder of the Worldwide Baraca and Philathea movement, died suddenly tonight after a heart attack at his home.

Mr. Hudson conceived the idea of an interdenominational organization of Christian young people in 1890 and organized the movement which was to spread throughout the world. He had served as President ever since and was active in its affairs up to the time of his death.

Tito Schipa's Father Dead in Rome.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—Tragedy followed the plaudits of thousands yesterday for Tito Schipa, leading tenor of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, when at the conclusion of the performance he received a cablegram telling of the death of his father, Luigi, in Rome. The elder Schipa, 88 years old, died Saturday. News of his death was held from Tito by his manager until he had finished his rôle in "Martha."

Anita Devere.

Anita Devere, aged 80, formerly a dancer and circus equestrienne, died on last Saturday at the Home for Incurables, where she had been under the care of the Actors' Fund of America for the last eighteen years. She was the widow of Sam Devere. Funeral services will be held from Campbell's Funeral Church tomorrow at 11 A. M. under the auspices of the Actors' Fund.

LORD EMMOTT DEAD; A PROMINENT LIBERAL

Head of Big Spinning Firm and Former Member of House of Commons.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company. By Wireless to The New York Times.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—Lord Emmott, prominent business man and Liberal politician, died suddenly in his London home today of angina pectoris. He was the head of a great cotton-spinning firm, was Under Secretary for the Colonies from 1911 to 1914 and had served as First Commissioner of Works and as Chairman of House of Commons committees.

Lord Emmott, who was 68 years old, was a Liberal member of Parliament from 1899 to 1911, and Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee in the House of Commons for his last five years. He married in 1887 Mary Gertrude Lees. They had two daughters.

VINCENTE BALBAS DEAD.

Led Fight on Acceptance by Porto Ricans of American Citizenship.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Dec. 13 (AP).—Vincente Balbas, who in 1917 led a fight on the island against acceptance by Porto Ricans of American citizenship, died today after a long illness.

Although Porto Rican born, Balbas was considered always strongly pro-Spanish and after 1898 at times violently anti-American. He headed a group of 288 men who rejected American citizenship in 1917.

In earlier days he was noted both as an editor and a swordsman and was credited with several duels. His paper Heraldo Español was suspended during the World War because of the publication of an article against the war. He was arrested for violation of the Espionage act on Nov. 23, 1917. Soon after he was found guilty in the United States District Court at San Juan of charges under the Espionage and Trading with the Enemy act, and with interfering with the draft. The Appellate Court, however, reversed the verdict.

WILLIAM HAZEN DEAD.

Cashier of The Evening Post Had Been With the Paper 55 Years.

William Hazen, cashier of The New York Evening Post and connected with that paper for fifty-five years, died on Sunday night at his home, 532 Putnam Avenue, Brooklyn, of heart disease. He was 72 years old. Mr. Hazen joined The Post as an office boy in 1871 and with successive promotions served as bookkeeper, advertising clerk, assistant publisher and cashier. From 1918 to 1923 he also acted as Treasurer of the paper.

During all of his years with The Post Mr. Hazen had been away from his work only once for a short time, and that was due to illness. He had served under the régimes of William Cullen Bryant, E. L. Godkin, Horace White and Carl Schurz. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Josephine Hazen, and a daughter, Miss Edna Hazen.

MRS. LOUISE B. STANTON.

Wife of Brigadier General Dies Suddenly of Heart Disease.

Mrs. Louise Burnett Stanton, wife of Brig. Gen. William Stanton, U. S. A. (retired), died suddenly of heart disease yesterday at her home in the Sevilia Apartments, 117 West Fifty-eighth Street, in her seventy-seventh year. Mrs. Stanton's father was General Ward Burnett, who fought in the Civil War, and her grandfather was General Aaron Ward. She was a sister of the late Rear Admiral Aaron Ward and a niece of the late Samuel J. Randall, once Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Richard Dreyer.

SEA CLIFF, L. I., Dec. 13.—Word was received here today of the sudden death Saturday night of Richard Dreyer, 68 years old, on his farm at Willimantic, Conn. Mr. Dreyer was at one time connected with the Mehlen Family Oil Company of Long Island City and retired ten years ago. He had been a resident of Sea Cliff for more than thirty years. The body was brought to Fairchild's Undertaking Parlors in Brooklyn. Funeral services are to be held there Wednesday and burial will be in Roslyn Cemetery, Roslyn, L. I.

Dr. William Rose Hynes.

Dr. William Rose Hynes, a surgeon on the staff of St. Luke's Hospital and a member of the American Academy of Medicine, died yesterday at his home, 78 West Ninety-second Street, of Bright's disease.

Dr. Hynes, who was 53 years old, was a son of William Rose Hynes of Nashville. He was graduated from Rush Medical College in Chicago in 1900, starting practice here a short time later.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday morning at the home. Burial will be made at Woodlawn Cemetery.

Peter Speer Van Reyper.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Dec. 13.—Peter Speer Van Reyper, grandson of Peter G. Speer, one of the founders of Speertown, now Montclair, died yesterday at the old Speer homestead, 848 Valley Road, Upper Montclair. He was 70 years old and was born in Montclair. About ten years ago he retired from a dairy business he had directed for thirty years. Funeral services will be conducted at his home Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Thomas Dunk Sr.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 13 (AP).—Mrs. Thomas Dunk Sr., formerly of Buffalo, N. Y., died suddenly at her home here today. Mrs. Dunk was the daughter of John McCarthy, said to be one of the wealthiest men in New York.

THE DOCTORS ARE SAYING OF CANCER

That many persons can be cured. There are some who never can be.

Of These the Poor

Are cared for as a remnant by the Servants of Relief personally.

REMEMBER

That there are many cancer incurables; remember that there are many penniless ones.

The little crowd of these whom we house and nurse should have a fireproof Home, and we have begged for it for four years.

Cash on hand December 1, 1926, $95,448.12. Expended since July 1, 1926, $83,630.24. Additional amount needed, $122,000.00.

We beg our friends to contribute to the new Home in memory of MOTHER M. ALPHONSA, who worked so faithfully for the poor.

Knabe Angelus Player Grand, $875. A magnificent piano and a fine player mechanism. At a fraction of cost when new Steinway Small Grand Piano, $1175. Mahogany case. The little use that this fine instrument has had has only improved its tone.

Mason & Hamlin Welte-Mignon Upright, $875. This magnificent instrument is a bargain to someone desiring a fine reproducing piano.

Henry F. Miller Small Grand, $685. Perfectly rebuilt in our own shops. Splendid saving is offered some real value seeking buyer

Steinway Duo Art Grand, $2250. Entirely rebuilt and refinished, carrying our iron-clad guarantee. The price of this instrument speaks for itself.

Steinway Duo Art Upright, $1095. This instrument, when taken in trade, was so new it did not even need refinishing.

Gilbert, $395. Beautiful small grand piano. Like new in every way. A very reasonable price for this little grand.

Chickering Second-Size Grand $1050. This magnificent piano is in beautiful condition. Like new from every practical standpoint.

OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL CHRISTMAS

·RARE · CHANCES·

During the past 30 days we have received from many of the finest homes in the city, a collection of pianos exchanged for the Chickering Ampico purchased for Christmas. Each one is in practically perfect condition. Do not confuse them with the ordinary second-hand pianos. For the Christmas shopper they form a most unusual opportunity as they are priced to force immediate clearance.

You may extend your payments over a period of years.

RICH AND POOR HELP THE CITY'S NEEDIEST

Another $1,000 Contribution and Other Large Gifts Arrive With Many Small Ones.

MANY MORE STILL NEEDED

Total Now Is $79,918, Leaving About $180,000 to Come to Equal the 1925 Goal.

PUPILS GIVE TO THE CAUSE

Little Children Also Respond to the Appeal in Behalf of the Distressed Families.

Contributions of $10,365 increased the total for the neediest cases yesterday to $79,918.02. This is less than one-third of last year's fund of $260,998.26, which provided for 345 needy cases. It is hoped to provide for an even greater number of destitute and deserving families this year. Thousands of contributions are still needed.

Contributors yesterday numbered 431, making a total so far this year of 2,876. On the same day of last year's appeal the contributors numbered 2,535, and the amount received was $74,093.42.

One check for $1,000 was received yesterday, the gift of M. J. Flynn, for many years a large contributor to the neediest cases. Other large contributions were $700 from Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Brousseau; $500 from Samuel S. Keyser; $450 from "A Friend"; $350 from Collin Kemper; $200 from K. B. Sturges, and $150 from Mrs. Holbrook H. Curtis. An additional gift of $200 was received from Jedediah Tingle, making his total contributions $600.

Among the contributors of $100 were Edmund Lincoln Baylies, Mrs. Andrew H. Broun, S. K. Glover, Mrs. Edward J. King, M. V. Swords, Mrs. Henry R. Mallory, Mrs. William Reynolds Brown, George N. Tidd, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Earle, Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Tyler, Miss Coffin and Mrs. Augustus E. Paine.

Sixty-four contributions were made in memory of dear ones.

Pupils Send Contribution.

A contribution of $15 came from the pupils of a Pennsylvania school with the following letter:

Cheltenham High School,
Elkins Park., Pa.
Dec. 12, 1926.

Hundred Neediest Cases Fund:

Last Sunday one of the pupils in an eighth grade class of mine saw and read the appeal for the Hundred Neediest Cases of your city. On Monday morning she presented the matter to her class in the form of an appeal. Instantly the class voted to raise some money to send in order that the suffering might be alleviated.

After carefully considering the cases, the pupils decided that they would like to have their small contribution applied to Case 99.

They want you to know that their Christmas will be made much happier for the helping of some one less fortunate than they are. They intend to help this fund grow larger every year.

Sincerely yours,
WILLIAM J. HAXTON.

Another contribution from pupils came with a letter saying:

"Again it is the pleasure of the Ulysses S. Grant Class of P. S. 179 to add a little sum toward that splendid fund to relieve the unfortunate. Please add the enclosed check for $5 to the fund with the earnest wish of every pupil in the class for success."

Messages From Donors.

The following are passages from the letters of contributors:

A Friend—When I told my little daughter this morning the very sad story published in today's issue about poor little Helen, who has no parents, no clothes, no home and not even a toy, my little girl was so moved that she asked me to send all her savings as a contribution to Helen's Christmas. As my daughter's savings do not amount to very much I have added a sum myself and beg to enclose herewith a check for $100—as a Christmas gift from my little daughter for poor little Helen.

B. Selden Bacon—I enclose check for $5 to be applied in your discretion to any one of the Hundred Neediest Cases. Please allow me to express my appreciation of this splendid work.

Arthur Stern Jr.—I would like this money to go to Cases 71 and 38. Please give each case $5. This check is my mother's, but we gave her $3 each. I am eight and five-sixths and Barbara nine and a quarter.

Barbara Stern—My brother has just written, but I want you to send part of the money to Cases 71 and 38. We chose these cases because we know what it is to be without mother and daddy. They have just come back from Europe.

Mrs. Henry R. Mallory—It gives me great pleasure to enclose my check for $100 for the fund which is being so intelligently administered. Case 13 appealed to me, or Case 65, both so desperately needy. My Christmas will be the happiest ever with the thought of helping to bring a bit of sunshine into a desolate home.

J. C. Van Alstyne—Enclosed find my check for $50 for the Hundred Neediest Cases Fund. Use for cases not written up—the additional cases, and especially for some little girl's case, if possible.

Adrian and James Israel—Here is a small amount of our weekly allowances which we hope will make the children in Case 71 happy.

A Privilege to Help the Fund.

Mrs. Grace E. Peck—Enclosed you will find a check for $5. Please use it wherever it is most needed. It is not only a pleasure but a privilege to give to this fund.

Mrs. H. L. Taylor—I enclose my small check for any case you think best. They are all very appealing. I only wish I might give more.

E. H. N.—Enclosed please find my check for $100 for this noble charity. Will you kindly acknowledge as follows: "In Memory of S. M. N. and E. N." Wishing the fund all possible success.

G. B. S.—Please use the enclosed check for the best advantage and much luck for a noble cause. In memory of Henry D. Swain.

Mamie J. Alexander—Please apply enclosed check for $25 to brighten some child's Christmas among one of your cases. This is a beautiful and worthy cause.

Mrs. R. E. Danforth, Camden, S. C.—It is a pleasure to be able to contribute to this splendid fund.

Eugene H. Porter, Upper Lisle, N. Y.—It is a great pleasure and privilege to be able once more to join the contributors for the Hundred Neediest Cases Fund, if only in a small way. I hope the record will be beaten again.

Irving J. Hess—Much success in this noble work.

Kate L. Anthony—Enclosed find check for $20 for the Hundred Neediest Cases Fund. Please list "In Memory of My Mother, Julia P. Anthony, and My Mister, Mabel H. Anthony."

Agnes M. C. Chapman—The enclosed check may be used for the needs of the two elderly sisters, Case 79, I think it is, who are both ill and very desirous of staying together as long as they live. My sympathies go out to the old who are poor and unable to work, as well as to others, of course. I would be glad to send thousands instead of this mite.

A. L. D.—I am sending you my small, but bountiful in feeling, annual donation to this worthy cause. May the success be greater than ever.

Gift From a Little Boy.

Paul G. Dreyfus—A little boy two years old is sending the enclosed check to the Hundred Neediest Cases Fund to be used for Case 27 "Dark Rooms Where Bulbs Die."

New Jersey Friend—Enclosed find $2 cash to be applied to Case 69. I hope the mother and little children can be kept together and wish I could help more.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Earle—Enclosed check for $100 for the relief of Case 80. We welcome the opportunity to do a little toward helping those in distress, and am grateful for making it possible for us to do so and wish to congratulate you on this beautiful and practical enterprise. We have been subscribers since you started it.

Collin Kemper—Enclosed please find my check for $350 which I hope will be used to relieve in part Case 13, with my thanks for bringing these unfortunate cases to public notice.

Mrs. M. F. G.—A small check to give cheer to some little tot. This is in memory of my little daughter who passed to the Great Beyond three months ago. My Christmas will be a little brighter by sending cheer to some others this year.

Herman Reith—On behalf of my mother, sister and brother and myself, I am sending you $50 in memory of my father, the late Joseph Reith. What a golden opportunity this great work offers those people who have complained of the small portion of the money contributed that actualy goes to the beneficiaries. It makes one doubly anxious to give to know that every penny goes for the relief of the suffering.

Clara E. Hoskins—I am enclosing a check for $10. Please use it for Case 17 unless that family is already cared for. I should not feel that it were Christmas if I could not help at least a tiny bit.

Zadie B. Carter, Crescent City, Fla.—I enclose check to be divided equally between Cases 64 and 70. I regret I cannot send a larger check, for these cases especially appeal to me, since I am an elderly woman who has lost by death the companionship of my sister and am now entirely alone. This is a splendid work in which no one who has any understanding, any sympathy, can fail to help.

Many Reasons for Giving.

Carleen Marks—Today being my eighteenth birthday, nothing gives me more pleasure than to contribute my mite to the Neediest Cases in memory of my dear daddy.

Marjorie Morris—Enclosed you will find my annual contribution of $5. I would like this money to be used for Case 11. I am sending this in memory of my dear grandmother, Mrs. Babette Kaiser, who was always ready to assist those less fortunate than she.

Anonymous—Enclosed is my check which I wish used for Case 34. This case appeals very strongly to a teacher and I am sure children who can keep up such excellent school records in spite of adverse home conditions are worthy of the best help possible.

L. A. Barnard—Please find enclosed check for $10 which, being an old woman of 86 years, I would like to go to Case 64, two sisters of 74 and 75.

Laura M. Epstein—Again it is my pleasure and privilege to forward the enclosed check for the Hundred Neediest Fund. With this check goes my sincerest good wishes for the great success of this wonderful work in behalf of so many of the city's unfortunates.

J. K.—The sorrows and sufferings of which you write rouse my deepest sympathy and it is hard to say which case seems most needy. Case 25 is sad beyond words, for to all else is added the disgrace of a dishonest father who may have simply yielded to temptation in sheer despair. Please give my little help to the poor "shrinking, timid wife" who must bear this added burden.

L. C.—Enclosed find $10 to be used for Case 47. I have a boy of 9 and realize how heavy the mother's burden must be. I wish you further success and hope to see this year's contributions go over the top.

Anonymous—It is a great pleasure to again enjoy what may well be called God's service.

Leslie Fuller—I am enclosing a check for $25 which I would like you to contribute to Case 17. I hope it will be of some small assistance in this good cause.

L. M.—In memory of my beloved mother I send this bit to Case 38 with the sincere hope that the mother and little daughter may not be forced to part.

Mrs. Charles B. Clark, Fort Sam Houston, Texas—Enclosed please find check to be used as your judgment sees best.

Edmund Lincoln Baylies—It gives me great pleasure to send you a $100 check for the Hundred Neediest Cases Fund. I am glad that you have already received so many gifts, and I trust that the fund for 1926 will be even larger than that of 1925.

Anonymous—The enclosed $50 is a contribution for your fund and with it go my wishes for unparalleled success.

Anonymous—Enclosed you will find a money order for $3. Kindly use for Case 8. I am a widow past 70 years, but am being taken care of by my children. Wish I could give more. This work is wonderful.

J. H. D.—I should like this to be applied to Case 20 for the boy who must face the world alone. I can only hope for him the same fortitude that was in Gordon, in whose memory this small contribution is sent.

Children Help the Cause.

Doris and Marjory—Enclosed find check for $5 to be used for Case No. 77. If this fund is complete apply it to any other needy case. From Doris, aged 7, and Marjory, aged 5.

Anonymous—I enclose check for $5, my contribution for Case 8, Mrs. Vogel and daughter, as this case is particularly interesting to me.

A. Soling—Enclosed please find check representing the accumulation of pennies from my two children, Doris and Ruth Soling, for this very worthy charity. They hope they will be able to give more next year.

Blanche B. Greene—Please accept the enclosed check and apply it as you think fit. Only wish I could give more to one of the finest charities I know of.

A. P. L., Stonington, Conn.—I am very glad to send the small amount enclosed for the Hundred Neediest Cases, as I verily believe it is "more blessed to give than to receive."

Donald M. Hyman, Cambridge, Mass.—The enclosed check is not large, but I hope it may in its small way help a little in this great work. They say that "great oaks from little acorns grow," and I hope that many small contributions will combine to create a huge oak of charity whose spreading branches will bring relief to the vast desert of poverty.

Amherst, Mass.—With a feeling of thankfulness for my own blessings, it is with pleasure a check for $25 is enclosed that others not so well off may share.

Charles C. Tyler, Bridgeport, Conn.—It again affords me pleasure to enclose check for $100 as the contribution of Mrs. Tyler and myself to the Neediest Cases fund. Although I have found it necessary to reduce our contributions to some other charitable enterprises, the work being accomplished by your fund has such a strong appeal we feel we must maintain our former rate. I trust the fund this year will exceed that of former years.

The following are cases whose needs have not yet been met:

CASE 64.

Two Aged Sisters Who Ask the Way to the Poor House.

One sister is 74, the other is 75. Mary, the older, has long been an invalid. For eighteen years Edith supported them both by working in a lunch room. It closed, and since then she has done housework, practical nursing, caring for children—whatever she could get to do. Her health has not been good lately. Anxiously she sought work, but in the last month earned only $19.33. All this went for food and there was nothing left to pay the rent. They knew that their days of self-support were over, and they wrote to the church asking for directions to the poorhouse. "We do not know the way," said the letter, which was turned over by the church to the A. I. C. P. A visitor found them at work packing up their treasured belongings to move out. They were carefully tying newspaper pads about a spool table—it had been their mother's—and an old chair. A picture of their father playing the violin was taken from the wall. A little temporary aid has enabled them to remain in, this old home, but unless further relief comes they will go to the almshouse.

CASE 66.

One Year Old and Sorely Beset by Many Illnesses.

In one year of life Ben has had many narrow escapes from death. He has had rheumatism, pneumonia, ear trouble and intestinal trouble, and scabies besides. His parents abandoned him. He is a pretty baby, with blue eyes, a white skin, a merry expression and a fighting spirit. He's "worth raisin'," but kindly hearts must provide the means.

Amount needed, $290.

Case attested and administered free of cost by the State Charities Aid Association, 105 East Twenty-second Street. (Telephone Gramercy 1454.)

CASE 83.

A Blind Father, a Broken Mother and Six Little Ones.

When her husband went blind she had to do something at once. There were seven in the family and very little money. She was allowed to take over her husband's work, that of caring for several teams of mules for a contractor. For months she watered and fed the mules, curried them and cleaned the stalls. But this, in addition to her housework, broke down her health and she had to apply for charitable help. James, 12, the oldest boy, leads his father through the streets to a training shop where the man is learning to make brushes. Hugo, who is 11 and in 6A, does his home work as quickly as possible, then goes out with 8-year-old Ellen to hunt for pieces of wood and lumps of coal that have dropped from trucks. The other children are Hazel, 5, and Betty, 5 months. All the children are clothed in cast-off garments obtained from neighbors. The family must have help to weather through to brighter days.

Amount needed, $1,050.

Case attested and administered free of cost by the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, 69 Schermerhorn Street. (Telephone Triangle 0710.)

CASE 75.

Five Fatherless Children Who Are Always Having to Move.

Anna, 10, is only in the second grade, and Sally, 8, and Rose, 7, are only in the first, yet they are unusually bright children. They never have a chance to get used to their school. They are always on the move. They are dispossessed almost as soon as they get a new home. Their father died last March, leaving them penniless, and it has been a heavy struggle for them since then. In addition to the three school children, there are Bess, 4, and Edward, 2. Bess is barely recovering from diphtheria. For months they have hardly ever had a nourishing meal. The children are poorly clothed. They are all living now in three small rooms which the sun never reaches. The mother must have aid to raise her helpless brood.

Amount needed, $660.

Case attested and administered free of cost by the Charity Organization Society, 105 East Twenty-second Street. (Telephone Gramercy 4066.)

CASE 65.

A Crippled Father and His Helpless Family of Five.

Frederick was born three months ago in a bare room in the basement of an old frame tenement. There was little preparation for his coming. His father was in the hospital and his brothers and sisters were half-starved and in rags. Clothing was provided for the baby by members of a near-by church. Frederick's father was a skilled workman, a polisher of ornamental brasses. One day he made a false movement and an emery wheel cut deep into his arm. It severed a nerve and left the arm half paralyzed. He received $200 in compensation, but was never able to return to his trade. He became a plasterer's helper. A falling scaffold struck his back. He recovered, but both injuries developed after-effects. A cancer on the arm resulted from one, tuberculosis of the spine from the other. His arm was amputated. His back is in a plaster cast. The mother, in the time she has remaining after taking care of her family, earns about $3 a week finishing coats. Louis, the oldest boy, is 14, but is only in the fifth grade, having been held back by physical handicaps. In spite of his lack of education he will soon go to work to help support the family. Ruth is 8, and Thelma is 3. Ruth is in the first grade and is self-conscious about her worn and ill-fitting clothes. Frederick, in spite of the environment that he was born into, is a promising baby. The family cannot go on without help.

Amount needed, $850.

Case attested and administered free of cost by the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, 69 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn. (Telephone Triangle 0710.)

Sad Plight of This Family Calls for Speedy Relief

CASE 96.—Seven fatherless children and a mother too ill to support them.

One look at Nellie, 12, told the school nurse that something was wrong at home. She had dark circles under her eyes, and her little body was a bundle of skin and bones. It was found that her six sisters and brothers were equally gaunt and pathetic. Their father had just died of heart disease after a long illness during which the savings melted away. The mother was worn out trying to care for the invalid and the six children and to earn an income by sewing on buttons. They were in three rooms, two of which had no windows. Tommy, 15, has been under treatment for tuberculosis and is now attending the boat school. Nellie has asthma. The mother has a weak heart and needs rest. Contributions are asked to keep the mother and her children from being parted.

Amount needed, $720.

ATTACK ON JEWELER EXCITES BROADWAY

E. M. Guionnaud and Employe in Hospital From Fractured Skulls—Salesman Held.

POLICE SEEK A MOTIVE

Hear That Accused Man Owed Merchant for Bracelet—Find $20,000 Gems in Former's Pocket.

Eugene M. Guionnaud, 50 years old, a jeweler, and Alfred Eberlein, a diamond setter in his employ, were beaten until their skulls were fractured, Mr. Guionnaud being probably fatally injured, yesterday afternoon in the jeweler's office and workshop, on the sixth floor of the Fitzgerald Building, 1,482 Broadway. Julius Friedman, 30, of 1,556 East Twelfth Street, Brooklyn, a jewelry salesman, was arrested on charges of robbery, felonious assault and violation of the Sullivan law.

The police are trying to establish a motive for the attack, which caused much excitement among tenants of the building, which is at Forty-third Street, and among crowds in the street.

A possible clue to the motive was furnished to the police by Jerry Perrella, an apprentice employed by Mr. Guionnaud. Perella said his employer had turned over to Friedman on consignment a diamond bracelet. He also said, according to the police, that Friedman was to have paid Mr. Guionnaud for the bracelet, valued at between $3,500 and $3,800, on Dec. 10.

According to Perrella's story, Friedman informed the jeweler that he had sold the bracelet, but had not received a check, which he expected daily. On the date when payment was due Mr. Guionnaud extended the date of the salesman's obligation until today.

Friedman, who said he was of Austrian birth and married, refused to discuss the attack. He had been doing business with Mr. Guionnaud for about six months, according to Mr. Eberlein.

Friedman Refuses to Talk.

Friedman, the police were told, first called at the workshop yesterday at noon, but soon left. He returned at 2 o'clock and talked with the jeweler. While they were thus engaged, Mr. Eberlein went out. The door, equipped with a night latch, was locked behind him.

Five minutes later he returned and Friedman opened the door. Eberlein started toward the workshop, which is separated by a glass partition from a small office, and saw his employer lying on the floor, wounded, near the partition. Suddenly he was almost stunned by a blow on the back of the head. He grappled with Friedman and then noticed that the latter had a pistol. The men struggled toward the door, Eberlein shouting for help. Others in the building answered his cries and disarmed Friedman. Both the injured were taken to Bellevue and Friedman was arrested. At the station, the police said, a collection of unset jewels, wrapped in tissue paper, was found in his pocket. Perrella identified the gems, valued at $20,000, as part of the Guionnaud stock, the police asserted.

"Don't tell my uncle, don't tell my uncle," Friedman repeated over and over.

Mr. Eberlein, who lives at 303 West Englewood Avenue, West Englewood, N. J., said his employer lived at 4,072 Hudson Boulevard, Union City, N. J.

Friedman's wife was near tears when she discussed his arrest at their home last night. She said Friedman had been a model husband ever since their marriage about three years ago, that he was a devoted father to their infant son, and that he must have been driven almost to the breaking point by some difficulty if he were impelled to do what the police accused him of having done.

Two Stores Robbed.

Two young robbers, one white and the other a negro, forced three employes of Daniel Reeves, Inc., into the back room of the Reeves grocery store at 1,557 Second Avenue shortly before noon yesterday and escaped with $763.

John McCall, a company superintendent, entered the store just before the hold-up men. Drawing pistols they crowded him toward the rear with August Luhrs and Thomas McMannon, employes of the store. They took $363 from the pockets of the three men and $400 from the register. When McCall denied that he was a collector the thugs knocked him unconscious. The two then ran from the store and drove away in McCall's automobile.

Benjamin Franz, 35 years old, of 296 East Sidney Avenue, Mount Vernon, Westchester, manager of the National Hosiery chain store at 418 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, was bound and gagged by a negro, whole stole $2,300 from the store safe yesterday morning, he told the police.

As quickly as possible, Franz said, he worked free of the rope and removed the gag. Then he ran to the street and shouted an alarm.

Burglars who used gloves to prevent making fingerprints and spent hours at their work broke open a safe in the general offices of the Modell Radio Company, at 71 Cortlandt Street, some time between Saturday afternoon and yesterday morning and stole between $3,000 and $5,000. They also took seven radio sets, worth $125 to $150. The robbery was discovered yesterday morning when the offices were opened.

WARNS HIGH FRANC MAY UPSET BUDGET

French Senate Commission Cuts Revenue Estimates and Army and Navy Appropriations.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 13.—Too quick improvement in the franc may result in a decline in revenue and consequent unbalancing of the budget, it is stated by Senator Henry Chéron in his report on the budget, which comes before the Senate tomorrow.

This situation may arise because the larger proportion of French taxes are applied on turnover sales, business profits, &c. There is therefore a double danger, Senator Chéron says. If business slackens or if, consequent on improvement in the franc, prices decrease, revenue will inevitably diminish.

This warning is advanced as justification of the Senate Finance Commission's further trimming of expenditure by 155,000,000 francs, of which 60,000,000 comes off the army and 34,000,000 off the navy appropriations. The commission also has revised the revenue estimates downward, leaving a favorable budget balance of 149,000,000.

In summing up the situation, Senator Chéron declares that all danger of inflation is now definitely removed, while Treasury accumulations of foreign moneys are sufficient to check speculators' attacks on the franc.

Will Rogers Offers Advice To the Girl Bank Robber

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Co.
To the Editor of The New York Times:

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 13.—See where the female secretary of my friend, Dan Moody, Governor-elect of Texas, has traded her typewriter for an automatic and been doing a little trick and fancy bank robbing in between dictations. If she will plead guilty and can get in jail before Ma Ferguson's time expires on January first, Ma will pardon her.

Hurray for Dan Moody and West Texas. WILL.

DENIES BAIL TO GIRL IN TEXAS ROBBERY

County Judge Bases Ruling on Bank Hold-Up With Pistol Being a Capital Offense.

DECLARED A SECRET BRIDE

Young Lawyer Says He Wed Miss Bradley While at University and Comes to Her Aid.

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 13.—Rebecca Bradley, the young stenographer of Attorney General Dan Moody's office, charged with robbing with firearms the Farmers' National Bank of Buda on Saturday, was declared not entitled to bail, because accused of a capital offense, by Judge A. M. Ramsey this afternoon in court at San Marco, the seat of Hays County in which the crime was committed.

This ruling followed the appearance of the girl this morning before Judge George Calhoun in the District Court of Austin for a hearing on the habeas corpus proceedings under which Justice O. S. Lattimore of the State Court of Criminal Appeals released her early yesterday morning under temporary bond of $5,000.

After taking brief testimony and hearing statements by counsel, Judge Calhoun granted continuance till tomorrow morning to permit the case to be taken before Judge Ramsey on the charge filed against the girl in Hays County.

It is stated that the temporary bond, signed by Mayor P. W. McFadden of Austin and Professor Charles Ramsdell of the University of Texas, where Miss Bradley is a graduate student, is still in effect. Should Judge Calhoun rule tomorrow that the offense is not bailable, in accordance with Judge Ramsey's decision, the girl will be committed to the jail at San Marcos. If the Grand Jury returns an indictment her trial will probably take place at the February term of court at San Marcos.

Faces Crowded Courtroom.

When Miss Bradley, accompanied by her mother, appeared in Judge Calhoun's court this morning she was the centre of attention of a crowd of people, including many students of the University of Texas, that filled all available space.

Though her mother showed distinct signs of acute mental suffering, Miss Bradley, to outward appearance, was laboring under no unusual strain during the hour that she spent in the court room here and the few minutes that she was before Judge Ramsey at San Marcos this afternoon.

When a flashlight picture was taken of the court room she jumped nervously and a little later, when a rat ran across the floor near where she was seated, causing several women to raise their feet, she did likewise and then remarked to a newspaper writer: "You can say that I am afraid of rats."

Counsel Declare Girl a Minor.

In the pleading read by Miss Bradley's counsel it was set forth that the girl is a minor, being only 19 years old. Her age has been given heretofore as 21 years.

Present in court here and at San Marcos today were Cashier S. M. Jamieson and Bookkeeper Raymond Howe of the Farmers' National Bank at Buda, which the girl is accused of robbing at the point of an automatic pistol. They identified Miss Bradley as the person who held them up.

It was learned today that Miss Bradley has been beset recently by financial troubles, notwithstanding the fact that she has been earning good wages. She borrowed from time to time various sums of money from members of the Faculty of the university, and these debts and other bills are unpaid, it is stated.

Secret Marriage Is Disclosed.

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 13 (AP).—Rebecca Bradley, the alleged bank robber, is the wife of Otis Rogers, young Amarillo lawyer, Rogers revealed tonight.

Rogers came here to defend his bride. The announcement of the marriage was made in a statement by Rogers given out in the presence of his wife and John Cofer Jr., the Austin lawyer retained to defend the girl. It read:

"Rebecca Bradley is my wife. She and I were secretly married Oct. 28, 1925, at Georgetown, Texas. She and I were students in the University of Texas at the time, and I later received my law degree in June, 1926, and went to Amarillo to start the practice of law.

"She did not go with me, because I was just beginning my practice and was financially unable to provide her a home there. She remained in Austin to finish her work toward her M. A. degree.

"As soon as I heard of the charge against her I came immediately to Austin to assist her."

Mrs. Grace E. Bradley, mother of the girl, said the announcement was a complete surprise to her.

Christmas Festival at School.

The annual Christmas festival for the children of the West Fifty-third Street School will be held on the afternoon of Dec. 22 at the school. The school is maintained for handicapped children by the Children's Aid Society. William Church Osborn is President of the Board of Trustees.

Albert Phillips of the Lambs Club will play the rôle of Santa Claus, as he has done for some years, and distribute new clothing, toys and candy to the pupils.

Simpson Denies Candidacy.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 13.—State Senator Alexander Simpson of Hudson County, who was special prosecutor in the Hall-Mills murder trial, branded today as absurd reports that he would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor in 1928.

MAYOR ACTS TO END WATER PROBLEMS

Calls Conference of Boards for Jan. 10 to Find Best Way to Get Supplementary Supply.

TO DEBATE ON RAISING RATE

Titus Repeats Offer, Saying 100 Wells Could Produce 400,000,000 Gallons a Day.

OFFERS A $500,000 BOND

Rival Companies' Plans Underbid His, but None Will Be Taken Up Till After Conference.

Mayor Walker called yesterday a general conference of the Board of Estimate, the Board of Water Supply and the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity, for Jan. 10 next. The purpose of the conference is to endeavor to formulate a policy looking toward a supplementary water supply for the city.

It is intended also to debate the question whether the best way to meet the large cost of such additional water supply would be, as suggested by Controller Charles W. Berry, to increase the city's water rates, which have not been revised since 1857.
